To-morrow (Sunday) St. Paul's Presbyterian Church will celebrate its eighty-first anniversary, the Church having been formed in 1834. The special preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. Dr. Dickie, minister of Crescent Presbyterian Church of Montreal, one of the largest and most important churches in that city. Dr. Dickie is a most practical and convincing preacher, a man of broad culture and wide reading. He is possessed of a commanding presence, and is most dignified and reverent in style. Large congregations should be present to hear Dr. Dickie. There will be special music at both services and Miss Dorothy Allan, who will sing at both morning and evening services, has been asked to repeat Sir Edward Elgar's great patriotic solo, "Land of Hope and Glory," at the evening service, as a tribute to those who have fallen in the cause of justice and freedom.

The choir will sing Hayda's "The Heavens are telling the Glory of God"; "He Watching Over Israel, Slumbers Not Nor Sleeps," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah"; "For Thee, O Dear, Dear Country," and "Thine is the Kingdom," from Gaul's "Holy City".

In all buildings in Cologne except separate residences of not more than two stories, concrete or iron stairways are required by law.

A new meter for electric automobiles registers the amount of electricity that is put into and taken from storage batteries to show how much is available or may be needed.

MISSIONARY WILL SPEAK

Miss M. E. Hamilton, a missionary from the Argentine Republic, is at present in the city and will, on Sunday morning, May 2nd, speak in Bethany Tabernacle on her work in South America.

Miss Hamilton is a native of Armagh, Ireland. In 1892 she went out to Brasil, under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The Portuguese language is spoken in Brasil. Going from there to the Argentine Republic, under the Christian and Missionary Alliance, where the Spanish language is spoken. Miss Hamilton has been working in Argentine for seventeen years. In her twenty-three years of missionary life she has had but two furloughs—one to Ireland, in 1903, and her present one. This is her first visit to North America.

Troops Land at the Dardanelles.—This map shows some of the difficulties in the way of the allies' army and navies in the Turkish campaign. British and French troops have been landed on both side of the entrance, the British on the north shore and the French on the south or Asiatic shore. The French advanced, taking Kum Kalessi and five hundred Turks. Constantinople claims they and the British were driven back to Turkish claims to retire as to the British force that landed at the tip of the peninsula of Gallipoli. The map indicates

James L. Garvin, London Editor, Shows How Nation Overcame Her Serious Unpreparedness

LONDON, May 1.—James Louis Garvin, editor of the "Observer" and "Pall Mall Gazette," and undoubtedly one of the few men in the world meriting the title of "expert," gives the following authoritative statement of what Britain is doing in the war and of her unpreparedness at the beginning.

The important feature of Mr. Garvin's summary is an unequivocal contradiction of a sentiment which seems to have been pervading the minds of not a few neutral observers that Englishmen were losing some portion of the perfect confidence they had shown during the first half year of the war. Mr. Garvin said

Let us admit that there is a marked change in the attitude of the people as expressed in the daily press. The reason is a simple one. In the past two months we have realised finally the cost of victory and at the same time we have come to a new and thorough understanding of the means of victory.

THINK TOO MUCH OF NUMBERS.

We have been thinking too exclusively of raising volunteer armies to the number of 3,000,000 men. That number is already assured. In that way we have already done the biggest thing ever done under a voluntary system. Paraphrasing a famous word of Nelson's "we know now that only munitions can annihilate."

All the recent experience of the war has proved that. In talking we must come back to it again and again. We had greatly enlarged our capacity for turning out munitions. But we had to set about enlarging it again to a prodigious degree. The requirements rose beyond all previous conception even of experts and supply must be raised to an extent that civilian imagination can hardly grasp.

To win the war there must be a continuous overwhelming storm of shell before infantry can drive home the issue. Thousands upon thousands of guns must vomit millions upon millions of explosive projectiles. We want munitions in mountains, as it were, and we are now going to have them. But that is where public criticism came in to help Mr. Lloyd George.

MUST MAKE MUNITIONS.

By comparison with the new view of the secret victory which France, not Germany, was the first to grasp and apply, we in Britain, in spite of our vast industrial resources, were not turning out anything like enough of the stuff. Our democracy had not understood that its work at home raised to topmost pressure was absolutely essential to the success of our soldiers at the front and to all the armies of the Allies.

A deeper sense of the inexpressible horrors the war has brought to Europe is sinking into the minds of all classes, and they appreciate the need of our responding to the calls made upon us on a scale that could not have been conceivable until six months and more of the workings of the German military machine had forced the conception upon us.

"Germany has proclaimed that this is a life and death struggle. We don't proclaim it; we know it. When the Germans overwhelmed us with their great superiority of artillery fire at the battle of Mons and again and again during the retreat to Paris we had no comment to make, but we knew what was wanted. We worked.

"Later, at Neuve Chapelle, after we had pulverized the enemy with our artillery the Germans declared there had never been known in the history of the world anything comparable to the blasting devastation our 300 guns on less than a two miles front wrought in their defences. Hardly one of those 300 guns existed when the battle of Mons was fought.

Must Have Army of Labour.

We know now that there must be an army of labour behind the army in the trenches. And it is this knowledge that has given rise to our national uprising to put right some existing conditions among the workers at home. It must be borne in mind that during the first six months we were fairly busy in creating an army of soldiers.

This army now numbers three million men in various stages of training. I believe its creation stands unparalleled in the world's history. It has come into being voluntarily. It is only now emerging from that state which Milton describes so wonderfully when the animals on the day of creation were half in the earth and half out of the earth.

Lord Kitchener is satisfied with this army. He has said so. If there are those who still question his wisdom in refusing to make known the exact results of the voluntary system of enlistment let them pause to consider the indisputable fact that his aim—to deceive the enemy as to the numbers of armed men the Empire has at hand—has surely succeeded.

As to the times and ways of putting the new armies successively in the field, he puzzles the Germans, and puzzles ourselves. Of all the optimists none has expressed himself more thoroughly confident than Field Marshal French, on condition that he gets his munitions. He will. There is undoubtedly the strongest belief in military quarters that the problem in Flanders is manageable.

Munitions Deciding Factor.

Our men were saved at Neuve Chapelle by an unexampled expenditure of explosives. This, then, is the lesson that, more than ever before, the army of labour has a new responsibility resting upon it. Munitions—munitions — munitions — there we have the deciding factor in a word. And there we had reason for our concern, while the army of labour did not thoroughly realize that the soldier can only win by what is placed in his hand by the artisan. There is no question that drink has interfered with the maximum output of munitions. There can be no disputing the injuries done by strikes.

If drink interferes with the maximum capacity for work of even one workman engaged in producing munitions of war—drink must be put beyond the reach of that workman, even if we all have to forego drink for the sake of the nation.

The county at large must be and is ready to make any sacrifices necessary to make us all fit to give our best to our work.

Physical tiredness is chiefly at the back of the whole trouble. Many thousands of men have been working very long hours and continuous overtime, seven days a week, for many months. They are honestly tired, as an man would be, but they now have a new inspiration, and they will work to the last until the war is put clean through.

Three Threats Wasted.

We have already lived through the phases of three German bugaboos.

We have waited a long time for the materialisation of the monster guns which were almost to bombard Canterbury Cathedral from the Continent; we have waited as long for the appearance of the Zeppelins which were to blast a trail of ruin through London.

We have waited almost as patiently for the submarine blockade to accomplish some reasonable part of its declared purpose to starve our cities and stop our transports, and paralyze our merchant shipping. It is futile. Last week 1,550 ships came and went to and from English ports, and of those five were sunk by German submarines—one-third of one per cent.

From the invasion of Belgium to the campaign of sea murder Germany has only roused the allies to greater and greater energy and confirmed their union.

Firmer Market In Flour And Pork Products

Tea Market Is Also Stronger And Increased Freight Rates Will Affect Eastern Goods

TORONTO, April 30.—Following the lines of our remarks anent the grain situation in this summary last week, flour prices are firm, and the market is advancing. There is little or no business doing, but the high levels of wheat necessitate corresponding quotings on flour. First patents were 20 cents below the wheat market when wheat stood at $1.61, as it did last week. But during the last few days it has moved up in Winnipeg to $1.64 a bushel, and is a cent higher than that in Chicago. There is, therefore, ample justification for higher flour prices, and though these have not materialized at the moment, they indubitably will. We expect to see first patents 20 cents or so higher within the next few days, if the wheat levels hold steady, and ther is every reason why they would and none why they would not

In both Montreal and Toronto there has been a noticeable stiffening of prices on pork products. Hogs are firm, particularly in Montreal. Supplies coming forward are not ample enough for the big packers' and others' demand. As a corollary, bacons and cooked meats are stiffer. Breakfast bacon has advanced a cent and the market is strong, demand for cooked meats is much better this year than formerly, and in view of the fact that spring and summer always show a stiffening of prices on pork products, meats and so onfi we think we shall see levels on these a cent or a cent and a half higher yet. Smoked meats, too, are in good demand. Market for dressed stock is also steadily better than for some time.

Washington announced this week that freight rates on transportation from the far East had been increased, and this will affect prices on several imported lines, such as rice, tea, cinnamon, cloves and others. The increase range from 25 per cent. up, and on rice, we hear, the effect will be an increased freightage of about one dollar a ton.

Teas once more are higher at the London auction, this time by a half-penny. There is a disparity in one grade of Ceylon teas of thirteen cents a pound between present and 1909 prices. Thirteen cents a pound is a very remarkable increase in these six years. Teas in London cannot be bought less than one shilling a pound now. There are fairly well-defined rumours that we shall see an increase in package teas next week. Canadian Grocer has pointed out for some time that it is impossible for tea men here to sell at the levels they had six months ago, and an advance, if it doesn't come next week, cannot be long delayed, since tea concerns are not in business for their health. The enormous consumption is in the main responsible, though lack of freights and losses of consignments by ships being sunk all have to be paid for and help to swell the total cost.—Canadian Grocer.

"No Words of Mine Can Express The Admiration I Feel For Their Gallant Conduct"

OTTAWA, May 1.—As a result of the last developments at the front, developments in which the Canadians played so striking a part, it is understood that the plans of the Canadian military authorities are to send the second contingent to the front as a division and to draw on the third contingent for the very heavy reinforcements which are required in this war. This does not, however, altogether preclude the sending of a third complete division to the front, but it is acknowledged that if this is done it will mean participation by Canada in the present conflict to a far great extent than at present. To keep two divisions in the field up to strength will, it is calculated on the basis of the Ypres engagement and other recent fighting, require at least 8,000 new men per month, or 96,000 in a year. If the plan to keep 50,000 men under arms in Canada is adhered to it will mean by the end of the year that the Dominion will have sent 155,000 soldiers to the front, and will have 50,000 at home.

It is understood that, according to present intentions, reinforcements are to be drawn from the third contingent for the first one at the rate of one company at a time from each battalion.

After the second contingent has left there will be no fewer than 400 Canadian nurses at the front or in England. There are already 250 additional doctors overseas and a request has been received for 100 more to serve in the British forces. No base hospitals will be sent with the second contingent. There are still 1,200 applications from Canadian nurses for military positions and no difficulty is being encountered in getting the best material.

Further tributes to the gallantry of the Canadian troops were paid to-day. A telegram received from Sir John French by Sir Robert Borden was as follows:

"I thank you heartily for your telegram, which I have communicated to the Canadian troops. No words of mine can express the admiration I feel for their gallant conduct. Canada has indeed reason to be proud of her sons, and their devoted bravery has done more than anything else could have done to weld together the British Empire."

"As further reports come in magnificent conduct our Canadian troops at the front becomes all the more general topic conversation and complimentary press comment Motherland and allies loud in praise and honour our gallant boys. Permit me tender through you expression profound sorrow with relatives and friends of fallen. They died that Empire and liberty and freedom might live."

A private message just received by a gentleman in Ottawa gives the following extract from a letter written by a British officer on the 24th April: "In last fight Canadians fought like very devils. We lay next them about six weeks ago and they made our men look like pigmies. They are great, big, hard looking ruffians and have proved more than a match for the Germans. For three days and three nights they stuck to almost untenable position and closed gap Germans made between them and the French."

Otonabee River And Rice Lake Very Beautiful

River Winds Its Blue Ribbon Through Many Shades of Green

Navigation from Rice Lake this morning almost reached midsummer records. The steamers Geneva and Rainbow docked at the George Street wharf before eleven o'clock bringing general though rather light cargoes of potatoes, butter, eggs and rat pelts.

The number of passengers was fairly large. Apart from their comments upon the early opening of the season several of the Rice Lake people said that the lake and river seemed never so beautiful as at present. The river is margined with the richest verdure, in the fields fall wheat which in places waves on eight and ten inch stalks, in the marshy undergrowth along the sunken shores, and in the foliage that has burst from the branches of the sentinel trees. Fields, marsh and woods are deepest green, but with delicate shades that subdue any tendency to monochrome effects. And appearing as the warp through this colourful wood is the rank grass showing its own peculiar tone of greenness. The picture, say the lake people, is a long stretch of beauty and behind it is the satisfaction induced by health wheat and oats.

Address By Mrs. Rutherford

Interesting Meeting Held by the W. C. T. U.

A meeting of special interest to the members and friends of the local W. C. T. U. was held on Thursday evening in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, the special feature of which was an address given by Mrs. A. O. Rutherford, Honorary President of the Dominion W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Whalley, the Preisdent, occupied the chair, and after devotional exercises and a well rendered solo by Mr. Downey, introduced the speaker of the evening, who in a well rounded and comprehensive manner, dealt with the world-wide work of the W. C. T. U., giving her hearers an insight of the work many of them not previously known.

She spoke in no uncertain terms condemning the use of the wet canteen among our Canadian soldiers, at the front, citing instances where young men have learned to do their first drinking by having it served to them as daily rations.

Mrs. Rutherford again addressed the W. C. T. U. at their regular meeting on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Rutherford was tendered a vote of thanks for her eloquent address, as was also the pastor and trustees of the church, who had so kindly thrown open the doors, and to all who had helped in any way to make the meeting so helpful and profitable.

Muskrats Brought Only 26c. Per Pelt

Hiawatha Men Brought in Last of Their Catch This Morning

The muskrat—some will have it musharat—season closed last night and Rice Lake Indians brought in their bags of pelts this morning. The luck they reported ran like this: Alfie Crowe 380 pelts, Ben Weeks 295 pelts, Malden Howard 440, and Jim Howard 320. Other boys had substantial catches, but they were all disappointed with the war-crimped prices. Only 25 cents a pelt was but a shoe string compared with the high prices of a few years back. However, the Hiawatha men say they are willing to bear their share of the effects of the war. The four recruits from Kingston were back at their home reddy for a week-end visit.

Peterboro's Offer of Base Hospital

Statement From Committee of the Medical Society

For the information of those interested in the stationary hospital recently offered by the citizens of Peterborough for overseas service, the committee of the Medical Society having this matter in charge desire to state that when the offer was submitted to the Minister of Militia they were informed that the War Office had recently notified the Department at Ottawa that no further hospital units would be required for the present, but that their generous offer was very much appreciated and would be forwarded to the War Office for their future consideration. The committee also desires to thank those citizens who so generously offered to contribute to its maintenance.

KODAK SAFETY

Built to run the 10,000th mile as smoothly as the first

"—because it's a Studebaker"—because this car carries a name that for more than 63 years has stood for the highest ideals in manufacturing, every Studebaker car is built COMPLETE in Studebaker plants—and built to a "thousandth-inch" ideal of accuracy. For every one of the hundreds of parts must tally to within one-thousandth of the inch with the engineers' designs.

Knowing this, you can begin to appreciate the long "time-service" that you get from a Studebaker—the long life, the rare necessity for replacements, and above all the smooth, vibrationless operation that makes driving a pleasure.

Hundreds of Studebaker Cars are on the road today that have been driven 100,000 miles. But it's not luck on Studebaker's part. It is simply that with its ideals of what a car must be, Studebaker has the resources and the manufacturing facilities to build a car that lives up to its ideals—a car that gives 365-day service year after year—a car built to run the 10,000th mile as smoothly as the first.

But you'll see what this means when you go to your local Studebaker Dealer's and see the car itself. It's a "built-in-Canada" FOUR. And you'll find that it's needless to pay more and unwise to pay less when you see what this FOUR gives you at $1250.

Winners in Church Basketball League

The interest among the boys in the intermediate basketball league is running high. All the games are hotly contested and the weaker teams are making a better showing each time they play. In last night's games the Charlotte Street boys downed All Saints' 15-10 after a hard fought game in which All Saints' led for the first half 10-7, but their heavier opponents had the scoring all their own way in the second half.

Charlotte Street— Thompson, Austin, Soden, English, Skuce.

All Saints'—Blake, McLeod, S. McLeod, Gollop, LeBar.

George Street kept up its winning streak and took Knox in tow to the tune of 15-3. The Methodist boys were a little too [illegible] and fast for their Presbyterian brethren and hadn't any trouble in leading all the way through.

Knox — Montgomery, Webster, Smythe, Martin, Clarke.

Mark Street put up the best game against Murray Street they have so far played, but didn't have quite enough steam to win out. They are developing, however, and will give a good account of themselves. The Baptists had the better of the argument in the first half, the score being 8—2, but the Methodist boys hit a fast gait in the second half and piled up 8 points to their opponents' 7. Pringle did most of the scoring for Murray Street, while Lipsett was high man for Mark Street.

TENNIS CLUB IN THE SACRED HEART PARISH

It is likely that tennis will be one of the games which will flourish among the young men of the Sacred Heart parish this summer. An organization meeting was held last night attended by a dozen of the members and a very encouraging beginning was made. Rev. Father McAuley was elected president, and Mr. Aleric Letellier secretary-treasurer. Two courts will be operated this year and a scheme is under way to provide back nets which should greatly add to the pleasure of the game. Grounds and regulation committees were appointed. The courts have been rolled twice and will receive further treatment. It is expected that everything will be ready in the next week or ten days. The arrangements for the young ladies' club will be the same as in past summers.

AUTO ASSOCIATION IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Interesting Programme For the Season is Outlined

At a meeting of the Executive of the local Automobile Association, held recently, considerable enthusiasm was shown, and an interesting programme outlined for the season. This includes the usual entertainment to the County Council, drives to the inmates of the charitable institutions soliciting government aid to a highway from Port Hope to Lakefield, removing the stones from all roads in the vicinity of the city, picnics and associations drives to various places, a combined meeting with Cobourg and Port Hope motorists at Gore's Landing, etc.

Every motor owner should do his share in helping along with the good work by at least becoming a member of the Association. Some member of the Executive will wait upon you during the coming week and ask for your subscription.

Aged Resident of East City

A rather striking coincidence was called to mind by one of the sons of the deceased, this morning, when being questioned by Dr. Greer as to particulars. He recalled that one year ago this morning his father was sitting on the bank of the river, with his head down, looking at the water, when he fell in, at about the same place as he went in this morning, and went around the eddy, but managed to get out alone. He explained that time, that he got light headed.

The deceased was a native of Cork, Ireland, coming to Canada when he was about eighteen years of age. He first took up his residence in Ashburnham, and later removed to Otonabee Township. He followed farming for forty years. Eight years ago he removed with his family to Peterborough, taking up his residence at 461 Mark Street, East City.

The survivors are his wife, four sons and four daughters. The sons are Messrs. John, Matthew, William, and Frank McMahon, and the daughters, Mrs. C. Gainey, Mrs. Brooks, Misses Agnes and Margaret. All the members of the family reside in this city.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at o'clock, from the family residence, 461 Mark Street, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery for interment.

Annual Week of Self-Denial

Was Inaugurated by the Salvation Army in 1886—Current Stories of Interest

Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, of the Peterborough Corps, announces that they are about to launch the Annual Self-Denial Effort, which has become such an important institution throughout the world-wide Salvation Army.

The Annual Week of Self-Denial was inaugurated by the Salvation Army in the year 1886. The amount raised was $34,000.00. The total result of the Army's Week of Self-Denial last year was $[illegible],000.00, of which amount the Army in the Dominion of Canada, raised $44,842.00. Peterborough Corps is hoping to raise at least $600.

There are many interesting stories current which show the devotion of the Salvationists to their cause, and how warmly the public in general feel towards the Salvationists and their work.

Full of Bullet Holes.

A military Salvationist had collected twenty-seven shillings from the soldiers in the trenches in France. Being relieved from trench duty, he had purchased two money orders for the amount collected, and had written Headquarters, enclosing the orders with half-a-crown in silver. He had evidently been recalled to the trenches before he had time to post the letter, as he was afterswrds found dead. It was full of bullet holes, and the orders were punctured several times, as also was the half crown.

Perhaps, no religious organization has more readily responded to the cry of King and Country than the Salvation Army. There are over ten thousand Salvationists in the Army and Navy, eighteen hundred of them being bandsmen.

A colonel of a certain British regiment wanted to form a band but didn't know how he could obtain sufficient players. One of his officers remarked to him one day, that there were a good many Salvation Army men in the regiment. "Why not form a band out of them," suggested the subaltern. "All those Army fellows can play an instrument of some sort." On parade next day, the colonel gave the command—"All men belonging to the Salvation Army, ten paces to the front—March." To his surprise, over one hundred men stepped forward. "Now all those who can play a musical instrument step forward," was the next command. Sixty-seven men moved, and out of this number the colonel selected thirty-two for his band. So that the regiment now marches with a real Salvation Army Band at its head.

Lord Kitchener's Special Mail Bag

Special Staff Necessary to Deal With Odd Suggestions on War Conduct

If Lord Kitchener were a man of words he might have much to say that is amusing to his countless unknown advisers.

A miniature staff has latterly come into being at the War Office, whose business it is to deal with the vast mass of correspondence arriving each day addressed personally to his Lordship. This "suggestions" postbag often mounts up to three or four hundred letters a day.

Such free advice comes from every class of the community, and the labourer's letter is treated with no less respect than the peer's. Whereas, of course, the greater part of the suggestions put forward are not only thoroughly impracticable but often even absurd, perusal of the postbag has to be exhaustive, many excellent ideas having already been noted and acted on.

There is a story being told in military circles of a certain [illegible] whose humanitarian sentiments were such that even after the "baby-killing" episode she could not bring herself to "see red" and to agree as to the wholesale extermination of Germans necessary for the good of mankind. She is said to have written, calling the War Minister's attention to the properties of a certain well known anti-bettle preparation which, "if packed in shells instead of shrapnel, would render the enemy insensible and in our clutches just the same as if they had been killed off."

Lord Kitchener's reply, if any, is not on record. Still, the public should know that all reasonable letters are welcome.

Some Talk of the Lacrosse District Being Changed Here

The lacrosse seniors are beginning to wonder what the local district is going to resolve into. Lakefield and Lindsay have been ominously quiet. Millbrook and Peterborough appear to be the limit of this district. Percy Lancaster of Havelock said a week ago that a change would be made in favour of the locals, but nothing more has been heard. The 'Y' practices have been very encouraging. Harold Dunsford, Ray Best and George Robertson have been out with them and some of the young fellows new to the game show promising aptitude. Ed. Dillon is marshalling T.A.S, starters and from the two teams it is believed a good O.A.L.A. team will be secured. The nights are fairly long now and practices will get under way in earnest during the next week.

TAXPAYER TALKS ON DEPUTATIONS

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Are we taxpayers made of money? Isn't there a place for every dollar of city money? Yet it took thirteen of a deputation to go to Toronto to interview the Provincial Board of Health, at a cost of at least five dollars apiece or a total of $65; and many of them never opened their mouths; I bet, except to eat and drink, or did anything but look handsome. What's the use of such a big deputation? For real business the Mayor, as head of the Council, the City Solicitor (to put the case), and the City Engineer (to get pointers) would have been enough. But there were seven members of the Council, including the Mayor, and also three ex-members of the council, now private citizens, and having no more right to be on such a deputation than any private citizen picked up on the public streets. I am not a penny-pincher, but when taxes are high and money and employment hard to get, I don't see why we should spend money to send a big deputation, entirely unnecessary in numbers, not to speak of giving a joy-ride at the taxpayers' expense to three ex-members of the Council. I know that myself and the most of us have to economize and I can't see why the city shouldn't economize, too, in these hard times. If money is spent as recklessly and without good value in every other department as it is in the deputation department, it's no wonder our tax-bills are big.

Yours truly,
Taxpayer.

ACKERMAN BOYS NOT ON CASUALTY LIST

Mr. B. F. Ackerman Receives Cablegram From London War Office

In answer to a cablegram sent by him to London, Mr. B. F. Ackerman has received a cablegram from the London War Office that the casualty lists do not report the names of Lieut. Chas. Ackerman or Sergt. Arthur Ackerman, Mr. Ackerman's two sons who were with the 2nd Battalion.

No word has been received of any other Peterborough officers or men. Another casualty list is expected tonight. The one published at Ottawa at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and published in this issue does not contain any Peterborough names.

Among the list of casualties in the Second Battalion of the First Canadian Contingent appears the name of Sergt. Ross McHeard, who was wounded in the recent fighting in Belgium in which the Canadians played such a prominent part. Sergt. McHeard, whose home is in England, enlisted in Lakefield, and his friends there hope that his wounds are not of a serious nature. He left with the 48th detachment.

TRIESTE JAILS INADEQUATE.

Authorities Lodge Anti-War Demonstrators in a School.

ROME, April 29. — Alarming reports from Trieste still are being received from the frontier. Most of the residents of the city are serving in the army, and the majority of those remaining are said to have been arrested for participating in anti-war demonstrations. So many were taken into custody that all of them could not be lodged in the prison, and the Police Chief asked permission from the municipality to transform a large school buildings into a jail. The shops of the city have been closed for fear of pillage.

The Mayor attempted to quell the disorders by announcing that sufficient bread would be baked to supply the needs of the population, and that potatoes would be sold for 5 cents a kilo (2.20 pounds). The situation has been aggravated by the knowledge that large quantities of supplies have been stored at Pola in preparation for a possible siege.

CANADA'S GREATEST MARATHONER GIVES LIFE FOR EMPIRE

Jimmy Duffy Had Won the Ward Marathon---Set Up a New Record in the Hamilton Herald Race and Crowned His Athletic Career by Winning the Famous Boston Marathon.

Canada's greatest distance runner since the days of Tom Longboat—and a boy just as erratic as the big Indian —is dead on the battlefield at Ypres, where the Canadians so gallantly plugged the hole the retiring French left in the allies' lines, says Lou Marsh in the Toronto Star. He is Jimmy Duffy of Toonto and Hamilton, twice winner of the famous Hamilton Herald race and record-holder for that race, and a Ward Marathon and Boston Marathon winner.

Duffy came here from Scotland in the summer of 1911 and joined the Central Y.M.C.A. Fred Smith, the Central's physical director, sprung Duffy on the running public in the Ward Marathon that year, and he would have won the race right off the reel, but he stopped at the Humber to argue with supporters of Bob O'Brien and wasted the wind he needed to catch the leader. The next spring he joined the Eaton A. A. A. and came under Billy Cumming's coaching. In 1912 at the Olympic tryout over the Hamilton Bay course, Duffy ran second to Harry Jensen, of New York. The day was a scorcher and Duffy, who was used to cold weather, could not stand it. He led the race until 390 yards from home, when Jensen caught and passed him.

First Canadian in Sweden.

At the Olympic Marathon in Sweden, where Duffy and Jim Corkery represented Canada, Duffy was the first Canadian to finish. He came home 34th in 2.42-18, 4-5, a matter of 5.34 behind K. McArthur, the South African, who won it. That was a fiercely warm day, too. In the fall of 1912 he won the Ward Marathon, beating such good men as Jimmy Dellow and Jim Corkery. He came from behind to beat Dellow in the last three months. Then Duffy, who was as elusive as the big Onondaga, made a sudden move to Hamilton, where he joined the Ramblers' Bicycle Club and put himself under the care of Tommy Thompson, then gaining fame as a handler of long-distance runners, Duffy, who was in the pink of condition when he left Bill Cumming, was handled cannily by Thompson, and on the day of the race he and Jim Corkery went out to the front and proceeded to cut all the course records to ribbons. They left the crowd far behind in the first five miles, and then Duffy said farewell to the gallant Corkery and galloped into Hamilton a winner by 300 yards and the holder of a new record. He ran the 19 miles 168 yards in 1.46.15, beating the famous record of Sammy Mellor, the Yonkers ghost, by 2 minutes and 20 seconds, and that record had stood the assaults of a Longboat, a Coley, and a Homer, to say nothmin gof Mike Ran, Harry Jensen, and a string of United States cracks. In 1913 he repeated his Hamilton Herald race victory against a small field. He was good enough to break his own record and was ahead of it at 12 miles, but he lacked opposition and slowed down. He finished the course in 1.48.36.

Won Boston Marathon.

Last spring he crowned his career by winning the famous Boston Marathon and added his name to the list of brilliant Canadian runners who have showed the way from Ashland to Boston to the best on the American contingent. Edouard Fabre, of Montreal, who won this year's Boston Marathon, was one minute behind him. Fabre and Duffy were together for 23 miles in that race, and then Duffy said "Good-bye, I'm on my way," and beat him home by a minute.

A month after this race he was thrown out by the A.A.U. of C. for running a five-mile race against aFlye in Kingston, for which he or his handlers were paid $100. That ended his amateur career. He was preparing to meet the big pro. runners when the war broke out, and he joined the first contingent with the list of Hamilton.

Before he came to Canada he made a reputation for himself as a distance runner in Scotland, and though only an 18-year-old youngster lost his place on the British Olympic team by a narrow margin.

As Game as a Pebble.

Duffy, who was a tinsmith by trade, was a hard man to train and handle. He was an inveterate cigaret smoker and loved his pint of Bass'. The result was that his trainers were forced to work him double all the time. In a race he was as game as they breed them. He had good racing brains and was possessed of unlimited courage. Time and time again he fought his way through cramps and stomach trouble and endured blistered feet to win. He had a good sprint and was a boy who was never beated as long as he had a pair of legs that would hold him upright.

Duffy had many friends in the athletic game in Toronto. He was a dependable fellow, loyal to his comrades and club. If Jimmy Duffy fought the Germans as he fought out his many bitter road races more than one Hun preceded him to the happy hunting grounds.

"JIMMY" DUFFY—Winner of the Ward Marathon 1912½ Hamilton Herald race, 1912-13; the Boston Marathon, 1914, and the first Canadian to finish in the Swedish Olympic Marathon, who is reported dead of wounds at Ypres.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL NEWS

LONDON, May 1.—In a second League match played Wednesday, Hull City beat Grimsby Town by 4 to 1.

Football closed to-day in the Old Country for an indefinite period, as it is not expected that it will be resumed until the boom of the cannon has ceased on the Continent. Prussian militarism has been subdued and the countries of the world are at peace. British interest is now wholly centred in the war, and until it is over sport of all kinds is a subsidiary question. Now that thousands of strong, splendidly developed young footballers are let loose from their club contracts there will be a rush for the front, and Kaiser Bill, the German goalkeeper, may look out for many "penalty kicks."

Soccer Gossip.

Burnley's income from the English Cup ties this season was £906. Last season it was £6,000.

Scott, of Bradford, has played 140 consecutive games for his club—always at left half.

'Tis not generally known that Burton, who played left back for West Ham U. was born in Mexico.

Although McLeod has not enjoyed his greatest season with Leeds City, he and Windridge, of Birmingham, are the only men to score five goals in a first-class this season.

Middlesbrough Reserves have had some heavy scorings to their credit during the past season, notably against Skelton, 19-1; Houghton Rovers, 15-1; Wallsend, 15-1; South Bank, 12-2; Jarrow, 9-1; Ashton, 8-0; Carlisle, 6-0; Shildon, 6-2; some record scoring, my word.

Dawson, Burnley, Ewart, Bradford City, and Iremonger, Nott's County, are the only players who have appeared in every match during the past season with their clubs.

Last season an ex-Barnsley player, captained the cup winning team Burnley, in the person of Boyle, and another ex-Barnsley player has had the honour this season, George Utley, Sheffield U.

Percy Dawson and Jockey Simpson, of Blackburn R., were deadly marksmen in Scotland, but they have found that goals are harder to get in England.

Tom Kelso, the old Manchester City back, is working at his old trade, and helping to make engines for ships of war.

There are not many clubs who would have had the courage to promise their players bonuses if they won promotion, this is what Preston N. E. did, and they will have to pay out.

This has been Watford's red letter season, for they have never previously been "placed."

Simmons, the cup winners' outside right, is a nephew of the once-famous goalie, Billy Foulkes.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

It is announced that the Canadian Patriotic Fund now totals $3,700,000, with disbursements of about $1,500,000.

The McLaughlin Carriage Co., Oshawa, have presented the Red Cross Society with a motor ambulance to be sent to Shorncliffe Hospital, Eng.

Attempting to board a quickly-moving Chambly electric car in Montreal yesterday morning, Malcolm Scott, St. Lambert, fell under its wheels and was killed.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Hines Page has followed the King's example. Now and henceforth no liquor is being served in his household on Grosvenor square, London.

The four McCutcheon brothers were committed for trial on four charges of theft in the Toronto police court yesterday. The crown withdrew one of the theft charges laid against them.

The British steamship which was reported Thursday night to have been sunk by a German submarine off the Isle of Lewis, North Scotland, was identified yesterday as the British steamer Mobile, carrying a cargo of coal.

There was a neck and neck race between the Zeppelin which Thursday night visited Suffolk and a train, the crew of the aircraft trying to drop bombs on the train. Five were thrown, but all went wide. The only victim of the German visit was a collie dog.

Eggs Advanced Two Cents on Market

If wet land kept the farmers out of work over the weekend and turned more of them into town, it did not appreciably increase the market attendance. Eggs, jumped back to 20 cents this morning, due to the reported turn to lighter production. Farmers say the hens have passed their Spring peak. Butter ranged from 30 to 35 cents, and potatoes from 80 to 85 cents. The market was not a large one, nor did it sell out quickly.

FORTY BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED

During the Month of April—Total Valuation is Lower

Forty building permits were issued during the month just closed. This is thirty less than the number issued during the month of April 1914. The total valuation represented by the permits issued during the month is $14,400 as compared with $98,016 for a similar period last year. The result is not in any way alarming as last year's figures were boosted by one large building for which a permit was issued whereas this year's figures are based on buildings of a more general and miscellaneous nature. The largest permit in the list is for a dwelling house, of which there are a number. The rest are chiefly confined to alterations, garages, summer kitchens, verandahs, and other buildings of a miscellaneous character.

Many of the contractors in the city are looking forward to a fairly busy season despite present conditions. A number of men formerly employed in the building trades have left the city so that those who remain may find things nearly as brisk as though conditions were normal.

OBITUARY

MR. HARRY BRADBURY.

A bright young life was brought to a close at 9 o'clock last night when Mr. Harry Bradbury, aged 21 years, passed away in the Nicholls Hospital.

The late Mr. Bradbury had been suffering for some months from tubercular trouble, and for eight months has been a patient at the Nicholls Hospital. Though there has not been much hope held out for his recovery during the past few months, he has been very patient in his suffering, and won many warm friends by his cheerful manner of facing his trouble.

Deceased was an Englishman by birth, and was for a number of years employed near Mount Pleasant, coming to the city two years ago. He was a member of the Young Men's A.S.K. Bible Class of Knox Presbyterian Church. He is survived by one brother and one sister, both residing in Peterborough.

The Funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Andrew McKenzie, 256 Bolton Street, minister of the A.S.K. Bible Class. Rev. Jas. A. MacKenzie will conduct service at the house at 3:00 p.m.

Entertained the Chinese

Unique Social Evening at the Murray St. Church Last Evening

A rather unique social evening was spent last night at Murray Street Baptist Church, when the teachers of the Chinese Department entertained the Chinese of the city. Mr. George P. Mark was the guest of honour.

Rev. Mr. Webb, in a very kindly spirit, expressed to the Chinese the reasons for the pleasure which the Church felt in having them at the various services. This address was interpreted by Mr. George P. Mark. Mr. Joseph Wearing also availed himself of the services of Mr. Mark to express to the guests his feelings as superintendent of the Sunday School towards the Chinese boys. The remainder of the programme, being in the universal language of music, did not need the services of an interpreter. After an excellent programme, in which Miss Kidd, the Misses Elcome, Miss Doris Rathbone and Miss Elsie Adam assisted, everyone engaged for a short time in various games.

Refreshments were then served and all seemed agreed that a pleasant and profitable evening had resulted from the efforts of those in charge of the Chinese department. Altogether it would seem that such gatherings might do much towards assimilating the "strangers within our gates."

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, April 30.—Liquidating sales to make ready for May deliveries tomorrow, cut a great deal of figure today in lowering the price of wheat. Heaviness characterized the close, which was 3-4 to 1-8c under last night's level. Other leading staples, too, all suffered losses, corn 1-8 to 3-8c net, oats 1-4 to 7-8c, and provisions 5 to 12 1-2c.

Free buying on the part of a big warehouse interest tended somewhat to offset in the corn market the bearish effect of the decline in wheat. On the other hand, rapid progress in planting was an element adverse to the bulls.

Efforts to change from the May option to later month resulted in pulling down the oats market as a whole. Good cash demand, however, helped to check the downturn.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Wheat futures opened ⅛c to ¼c lower this morning. Oats were ½c lower, while flax was ⅛c to ¼c higher. Trading was light, and showing little interest in May. Cash demand was indifferent. Oats were slow, demand being only for Nos. 1 and 2 feed. Total inspections Thursday, 238 cars, as against 164 cars last year, and in sight 205 cars.

Wheat futures closed ⅛c to 1c lower, cash ⅛c to 1c lower, oats ⅛c to ⅜c lower, and flax ½c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, April 30—A feature of the grain trade today was the increased demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba wheat for nearby shipment, and as prices were stronger on an advance of 2¢ to 6¢ per quarter, sales of ten lots were made, but the demand for new crop American wheat was poor and business on the whole is quiet. The trade in coarse grains on spot was a little better and sales of a number of car lots of oats were made, and one lot of 20,000 bushels No. 1 feed for shipment from Fort William sold at 68½c afloat. The export trade in flour was quiet again today, but the tone is firm. Demand for millfeed continues fair. Better easy. Eggs in good demand and firm.

CHEESE MARKETS.

CORNWALL, April 29.—At the general meeting of the Cornwall Cheese and Butter Board, held this afternoon, the offerings were 1,000 colored and 300 white, a total of 1,300 boxes. All were sold at 17½c and the balance [illegible] were offered. Quiet prices for the Cornwall [illegible]

MILK SHORTAGE IN PETERBORO' COUNTY

Farmers and Dairymen Are Waiting for the New Pasture—Seeding Reports

The milk supply is reported to be very light, so far as Peterborough county is concerned. This is attributed to the scarcity of feed and the impoverished condition of many of the dairy herds. The latter condition comes as a result of the feed shortage which has been prevalent throughout the winter months. Mr. G. A. Gillespie of the Peterborough City Dairy is of the opinion that the shortage in the milk supply will continue until the new pasture is ready for feeding purposes.

Next week will see the opening of the cheese factories. The first make of cheese will be small. It is expected that the Peterborough Cheese Board will hold its first sale about the nineteenth of May.

Seeding Reports.

Edmonton, May 1.— Hon. Duncan Marshall estimates that seventy-five per cent. seeding from Edmonton to southern border of Alberta will be completed by the end of the week.

Alberta Welcomes Rain.

Calgary, May 1.—Violent rains broke over Calgary district and were of priceless value to newly planted wheat, which already is showing itself above the ground in the southern part of the Province.

The Choir Entertained

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Renwick, Aylmer street, was thrown open to the choir members of George Street Methodist Church last night. The rooms were laid out for the gathering of the clans, and the scene was resplendent, like the hall at Waterloo the evening before the battle, with "fair women and brave men"—brave amongst so many of the fair sex.

The assemblage numbered between forty and fifty, and the host and hostess had every preparation made for a pleasant evening.

Games, with a sumptuous luncheon about midnight, were indulged in by all, the "wee short oor ayont the twal'" being reached all too soon. (A few even waited around, for some excuse or other, till "three shoort oors Mair.") All were delighted with the event, and did not fail to mention the fact ere departing.

MORE ENGAGEMENTS EXPECTED IN THE NORTH SEA

Two German Torpedo Boats and a British Destroyer Were Sunk

A Series of Small Naval Engagements Took Place in the Galloper and North Hinder Lightships on Saturday---Four Officers and 21 Men of "Recruit" Were Saved.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 3.—The British Admiralty stated last evening that two German torpedo boats had been sunk in the North Sea. The British torpedo-boat destroyer Recruit also was sunk.

The text of the Admiralty statement follows:

"A series of small affairs took place in the neighbourhood of the Galloper and North Hinder Lightships on Saturday.

"During the forenoon H.M. destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine, four officers and 21 men being saved by the trawler Daisy.

"At 3 p.m. the trawler Colombia was attacked by two German torpedo boats, who approached her from the westward and commenced an action without hoisting their colours. The Colombia was sunk by a torpedo, only one deck hand being saved by other trawlers.

A division of British destroyers, comprising the Laferey, Leonidas, Lawford and Lark, chased the two German vessels, and after a brief running fight of about one hour sank them both. The British destroyers sustained no casualties.

"Two German officers and 44 men were rescued from the sea and made prisoners of war."

The destroyer Recruit was on patrol duty Saturday morning when the submarine sank her. According to details received here, she was struck amidships by the torpedo and began to sink. The wounded vessel signalled for assistance, and her call was answered by the trawler Daisy, and 30 men of her complement of 85 were saved.

It is stated that a torpedo was fired at the Daisy, which was forced to leave one of her rescue boats behind, and that the submarine chased this boat and fired her gun at it, wounding four men.

British torpedo-boat destroyers, sighting in the distance two German torpedo boats which had sunk the trawler Colombia and apparently were supporting a submarine, engaged the Germans at long range in the vicinity of the North Hinder light. The Germans endeavoured to run away, but the British boats pressed them hard and shortly afterwards sank them. The British boats rescued some of the crew of the Germans and landed them to-day.

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE.

The Daily Mail says:

The destroyer Recruit was patrolling at 11.30 o'clock on the morning of May 1, in fine weather and a choppy sea with a smart breeze blowing, when her officers saw the periscope of a submarine quite near. Immediately the white trail of a torpedo darted across the water. The Recruit first steered straight for the submarine, but the torpedo caught her and dealt a mortal wound.

The destroyer heeled and began to sink fast. At a signal from her the trawler Daisy approached, lowered boats and sent them to the rescue. The officers and crew of the Recruit waited for the Daisy's boats, which picked up many of the destroyer's crew. The German seamen fired at the Daisy and one of her boats full of survivors. The Daisy managed to escape, but one of the boats was repeatedly fired on by the submarine and one of the survivors was wounded.

"All this time a detachment of British destroyers, attracted by signals from the Daisy, had been moving at full speed toward the scene. They included the Laferey, Leonidas, Lawford and Lark. At 3.30 o'clock they sighted two torpedo boats. These turned and steered the straightest possible course for the German coast. The British flotilla gave chase. Only two of the British boats opened fire and continued firing till the German craft sank. The enemy put up a surprisingly poor fight. Their gunnery was erratic and their speed much inferior to that of the British boats.

"A British shell which struck one of the enemy vessels amidships, must have damaged the engine, for the torpedo boat's pace immediately fell. Shells rained on the torpedo boats, while the British vessels suffered not a single casualty. The fight was over by 5 o'clock.

"As the German boats went down their crews were rescued by the British. It is understood that one of the German officers who were taken aboard a destroyer blew out his brains with a revolver.

'The Recruit is the first British destroyer to be sunk in the war. The torpedoing of this vessel was rather a remarkable feat, as she drew only 5 1-2 feet of water. It was paralleled, however, by the British submarine E-9 in the sinking of a German destroyer off Heligoland.

"The Recruit, though useful, was old. She was launched in 1896 and originally had a speed of 29 1-2 knots. Her normal complement was 60 men. Details regarding the German boats which were sunk have not yet been obtained.

FOUGHT OFF TORPEDO BOATS.

The trawler Barbados has arrived t Yarmouth in a damaged condition as the result of an encounter with a German torpedo boat off the Belgian coast on Saturday. The captain of the trawler was wounded in the foot, but the rest of the crew escaped uninjured.

The Barbados reports that the trawler Columbia was torpedoed and sank with 17 hands. One survivor and one German bluejacket, who had fallen overboard, were brought to Yarmouth by the Barbados.

The Barbados defended herself against the torpedo boat with two small guns, and the captain says the German was evidently hit, as steam was seen escaping from her. The wheel-house and funnel of the Barbados were riddled with shot.

MORE ENGAGEMENTS EXPECTED.

LONDON, Eng., May 3.—The sinking of the British destroyer "Recruit" in the North Sea off the Holland coast, followed by the sinking of two German torpedo boats Saturday, is expected to be followed by more engagements of this character soon.

The weather is now ideal for cruising and both belligerents have all of their small vessels on scout duty, while it is again reported that the main German fleet has been sighted cruising off Heligoland.

There has been a significant realignment of the British battle fleet during the last ten days, and officials at the Admiralty say that the possibility of real fighting is constantly improving. It is not expected that the two great fleets will clash, but there is bound to be more or less fighting between rival squadrons of destroyers, armed trawlers and light cruisers, all of which are now on sea duty.

French and British light cruisers of the Arethusa type are reported in the North Sea near the Belgian coast, where a flotilla of 20-knot German light cruisers has been reported. These may clash at any time.

12,000 Germans Said To Have Been Killed

And Several Times That Number Wounded in the Fighting at Ypres

A BIG GUN BATTLE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 3.—Twelve thousand Germans have been killed and several times that number wounded in the second battle of Ypres, telegraphs the Daily Mail's correspondent in Northern France, who says that the information comes from a reliable source.

The operations in this vicinity, he continues, have now developed into a battle between big guns on both sides, which are throwing out a curtain of fire to conceal the concentration of troops. The cannonade has been incessant since Friday in the neighbourhood of Ypres and Dixmude.

Attacks on Zeebrugge from the sea have so worried the Germans that they are building iron sluices of great strength and height at Fort Lapin on the outskirts of Bruges to stem the floods should the big water gates at Zeebrugge be destroyed by the bombardment. German troops are continually being put through practice drills directed toward an imaginary enemy attempting to land along this coast. The greatest activity has been apparent at Cadzand. Saturday morning during manoeuvres of this description twenty heavy guns, each drawn by six horses, were tested at Ichapaburg, on the road from Sluys to Knocke, where many trenches have been prepared.

The batteries at Zeebrugge each fired five practice rounds at moving targets. Steam rollers have arrived at Bruges to repair the roads damaged by heavy guns drawn over them.

Last week 20,000 new German troops arrived at Lisseweghe, and 8,000 of them were despatched to Courtrai. Thousands of German wounded continue to arrive at Routers and Bruges.

More German cavalry has arrived along the Dutch frontier to assist the already numerous guard there. At Eccloo and Wetervliet the Waerttemburg Landsturm troops are on duty, standing only ten yards apart. The Germans have begun to build a high wall topped with barbed wire south of Brabant and Limburg to prevent the Belgians from escaping.

In the valley of the Aisne and in Champagne the Germans in the course of Saturday tried various appliances of war, which had no effect whatever, according to the official report. Near Tracycle Mont glass tubes, which on breaking spread fumes of ether, were used. Between Rheims and the Argonne the enemy resorted to bombs loaded with inflammable substances. Finally a gas producing a heavy green smoke was employed, but it remained over the German line and failed to reach the French front.

Feared That Allied Troops Lose Heavily

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 3.—That the allied troops are losing even more heavily than has been feared in the operations to aid the fleet in reducing the defences of the Dardanelles was admitted at the War Office to-day. But emphatic denial was forthcoming of the Turkish-German claims that the expedition was facing annihilation.

Eight Hundred of First Contingent Said To Have Been Killed at Ypres

Number of Casualties Is Growing---Proportion of Men Taken Prisoners Is Not Yet Known---Many Sick From Gas.

(Special Morning Cable.)

OTTAWA, May 3.—With the casualty lists during Saturday afternoon and yesterday totalling upwards of 250 more officers, non-commissioned officers and privates killed, wounded or missing, there have been heavy additions to the recorded loss among the Canadian forces in the recent terrific fighting in which they won undying glory near Ypres.

It is now understood that the Canadian losses in killed, wounded or taken prisoner as a result of that four-day engagement will not be short of 6,000, and in regard to this the next few days will tell the tale as every day brings its fresh total.

Of the 6,000, 800 have been killed in action, and the balance is about equally divided between wounded and missing, the greater part being among the infantry. This means that half of the infantry at the front with the first division has been put out of action.

No further news has been received at the Militia Department as to the fate of the 13th and 14th Montreal battalions, which are reported, according to one interpretation of the description of the Ypres battle by the Canadian eye-witness, to have been left behind on the retirement of the 3rd brigade from St. Julien. While this statement would lend credence to the belief that these two battalions had been killed, wounded or captured, it is pointed out the eye-witness report states that the "detachments of the 13th and 14th" had to be left behind. This may mean that only detachments from these regiments suffered this fate, while the remainder escaped.

It may be some days before the German official list of Canadian prisoners reaches Canada. Such lists are exchanged at intervals by the belligerents through the medium of the Red Cross headquarters in Geneva.

The greater part of the losses reported in yesterday's casualty lists were among Toronto, Western Ontario, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria battalions. The proportion of killed is still fortunately small as compared with the wounded, but the names of a number sick from gas fumes are beginning to appear.

Four casualties of local interest are reported, namely, Pte. Harold Saunders, and Pte. E. Mosley, of this city, and Pte. Garrett, Otonabee, and Pte. Robinson, Parnell Street. All are reported wounded.

THOUSANDS OF GERMANS IN U.S. ARE MAKING ARMS FOR ALLIES

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 3. — Eight thousand of the 9,000 men who are making war munitions for the Allies in the arms and ammunition factories in Connecticut are of German birth or parentage, according to inspectors who are familiar with the various nationalities represented by the employees.

Many German machinists, die sinkers, toolmakers and inventors have come to Connectjcut since the war began. They are working side by side with English, Irish, Swedish and French artisans in turning out the nearly one hundred thousand tons a day of war material which Connecticut is shipping for the allied armies.

German gun and powder makers say wages are much better here, relatively as well as actually, than in the Fatherland. Those who have families in Germany assert their labour here assure a competence for their wives and children, which would be impossible, they say, were they employed in Germany.

Men who have worked in the arsenals if Germany declare that German products cannot match in destructiveness those of the American output, which is flowing in a daily stronger and steadier stream to the Allies.

British inspectors in this city say the most ingenious and efficient workmen Germany ever boasted now find employment for their talents and skill in Connecticut and other American factories in making war material for Germany's enemies. Some of these German workmen say that in helping to encompass the defeat of the Kaiser they are doing a greater service for the German people than they could if they should aid him in prolonging the war.

Complications Are Graver Than Before

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Official circles are very reticent to-day concerning the sinking of the United States' tanker "Gulflight" in the North Sea, by a German submarine. It was tacitly admitted that the incident premised graver complications, from a United States' standpoint than any which has preceded it since the war began in Europe.

Men in high government positions were frankly anxious.

It was taken for granted that the skipper of the German submarine which sank the American tanker was mistaken in the latter's nationality. However, this was not looked on as a satisfactory excuse. It was felt that he must justify his mistake by reason which the naval officers here confidentially said they feared he would have trouble in giving, unless, indeed, allowance was made for gross carelessness on his part.

This, in fact, was what the affair was generally attributed to.

By fastening them together with a string one inventor proposes to prevent mistakes in the use of poison tablets, while another suggests enclosing them in pointed metal guards which would block attempts to swallow them.

TRAWLERS WERE CHASED BY SUBMARINES

Special to The Examiner:

ABERDEEN, Scotland, May 3.—The Scottish trawlers, Endosia, Brenmington and Arlos made port to-day, reporting they were chased by German submarines. They saw two trawlers, identity unknown, sunk by a submarine, and it is believed all of the crews perished.

GUN BOMBARDING DUNKIRK SAID TO BE DAMAGED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, May .—The French War Office issued the following statement yesterday.

'Information received from a deserter is to the effect that for about two months engineers of the Krupp gun works have been working in the suburbs of Dixmude, a section where there has been no fighting for several months, on the installation of a marine gun capable of firing a shell over a very long range. It is this gun which may have bombarded Dunkirk. The gun is believed to have a range of 38 kilometres (23.5 miles).

"Only nine shells were fired on the second and last bombardment of the French seaport. There is reason to believe that the gun either has been damaged by a method of fire which the most powerful pieces do not long resist or that the continual presence of our aeroplanes has had the effect of stopping its fire."

SPRING HOPES.

The days are getting warmer now,
The frost is going fast,
Old winter's frigid reign is o'er,
And spring is here at last!
The backyard farmer thinks no more
Of last year's pests and weeds,
And now his mind is full of plans
For tucking in some seeds.

Already in a window box
Some have begun to sprout,
And he is planning for the plants,
Just where to set them out.
He has a hotbed started, too,
And it will go all right,
Unless the sash is left half off
On some cold frosty night.

The backyard farmer's courage starts
Anew with each fresh spring,
His heart rejoices when he hears
The primal robin sing.
He feels quite confident in March
His harvest will be big,
And, anyhow, he knows he yearns
To get out doors and dig!

A TRENCH "CARUSO"

Welsh Soldier Caused Temporary Truce by Singing For Fighters

The depressing feature of this war is its anonymity, wrote a Central News correspondent from "a town in Flanders." We know of its terrors, but we rarely hear of the deeds which have brought frequent bright rays of glory into the drab work of trench fighting, and even less of the little exhibitions of humanity sometimes displayed by the grim combatants.

I have just received a story of a Welshman which is altogether remarkable. The soldier, I am informed, came from Tonypin, or Llwyngpandy, or some place with an equally unpronounceable name, and except that he possessed a remarkably good tenor voice was an otherwise undistinguished wearer of the King's khaki. Now he has acquired a local fame not only amongst his comrades but also amongst his foes in the opposite trench.

It seems to have happened in this way: It was one of the many miserable nights that our troops have spent in the muddy trenches. There was no sound beyond the occasional "plip-plop" of a German rifle and the sharp bark of a reply shot. In these circumstances the gallant Welshman suddenly lifted up his heart in song.

He sang a merry Welsh ballad, "Hob y deri dando," and when he had finished not only did his own cold and rain-sodden comrades applaud him, but across from the opposite trench there came in excellent English a demand for more! So once again the clear voice was lifted up into the grey night. This time the song was "Mintra Gwen," and again the Germans applauded. "Have you got Caruso there?" one of them shouted across.

At this moment it seemed to dawn upon both sides that the singer had created a truce, for whilst he had sung not a shot had been fired. Everyone within earshot had momentarily forgotten the deadly work of war to hang upon the melodies arising from the mud of Flanders. A bargain was struck on the German proposition that if the soldier with the beautiful voice would sing again they would [illegible]

For the third time the singer entertained his strange audience, this time choosing "Hen Wlad fy Nhadau," and the stirring strains of the Welsh National Anthem arose for, perhaps, the first time over the dismal Flemish morass.

The Short Man at the Front

The distinguished English physiologist who in a recent discussion before the Royal Sanitary Institute insisted that the short man is a more efficient fighting machine only empnasized what has been the growing conviction of scientific observers in late years. The small man presents less of a target to the foe, eats less, has usually a higher vitality and better resistance to infecions, all of which are eminently desirable qualities in the soldier.—New York Herald.

Youthful Commanders

A colonel at the age of twenty-seven (he commands one of the new battalions of the "Fighting Fifth") is one of the latest records this war has produced. In the Napoleonic wars Junot was a general of brigade at twenty-seven, Murat was a general of division at twenty-eight, and Napoleon was a commander-in-chief at twenty-six. Wellington was a lieutenant-colonel at twenty-four.

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR CONSTIPATION

The Experience of One Who Knows and Places Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills First

It is not difficult to secure a medicine that will effect movement of the bowels. To cure Constipation and the complications which arise from it is another matter.

Constipation of the bowels is usually preceded by torpid action of the liver. Hence it follows that if Constipation is to be cured the liver must be set right. And here lies the secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They awaken the action of the liver and insure a good flow of bile, which is nature's cathartic. The liver, kidneys and bowels are invigorated and regulated, and the troubles with the digestive system disappear.

Mr. H. M. Bell, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "For some considerable time I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have obtained through your firm. I suppose during my life I have used nearly all the best-known pills, as I have been subject to Constipation and digestive troubles. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I can honestly say that of all the pills I have tried nothing has suited me better—no griping—action always insured, and fine for the kidneys. This is how I have found them after a thorough test, and you may use this statement if you like."

This letter should convince you of the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but there is nothing like personal experience. If you do not feel like risking 25 cents for a box, write to us for a free sample box, mentioning where you saw this advertisement. Put this medicine to the test when you have indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache or kidney derangements. The results will soon prove to you the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

40,000 REFUGEES IN POLAND HAVE HOMES IN CAVES

WARSAW, April 28—The soldiers are beginning to like their dugouts, and to hate the tedium and needless circumstance of the modern house. Soldiers sent back for a rest find the best rest in trenches. When the fighting on Baura, Rawka and Nida dwindled in intensity, Grand Duke Nicholas, thinking of his men's comfort, arranged a relief system under which men would be sent in succession to the rear for a rest.

The men first were delighted. They went to the rear. But they refused to dwell in the windy Polish cabins, many of which have shell holes through the roofs. They found better resting and sleeping places, of a kind which they had come to love. These were the trenches and field fortifications between the present fighting front and Warsaw.

The Germans made these fortifications when they advanced too near Warsaw in October.

40,000 Living Underground.

Peter Wisniewski, curator of Catholic establishments at Lodz, tells similar tales of the refugee civilians. Wisniewski was able to leave Lodz after the Germans came. He had a good look about the country, and he estimates that 40,000 homeless persons are living in underground holes, and abandoned trenches in the five provinces of West Vistula Poland, which are wholly or partly in German hands. Wisniewski calls them "mud dwellers" (grisevive obitateli).

The greatest underground colony stretches along the northwestward running line from Lodz to Lowitsch. Here was fought the three weeks' battle for Lodz, which ended on Dec. 5, when the Russians evacuated the city. A hundred and fifty villages before and behind these positions were destroyed.

Between Lodz and Lowitsch and in a pocket running down toward the tow of Brezsiny are the greatest field fortifications ever built. The Russian works are the bigger. In section they are like a half opened sack, narrow of top, but roomy underneath. Balks hold them up. The Russians hoped to hold this position indefinitely, so the trenches and dugouts were made comfortable. The dugouts extend five yards under the parapets. Many of them are rooms. When the Russians retired to the Miazza the refugees rushed into these earthworks, and there they remain.

Prefer Earth Holes.

These refugees refused to leave. They said they were warm and safe, and that outside the earth holes it was cold and perilous. Ten miles off was a vacant village with undestroyed houses.

Wisniewski persuaded two families of earth dwellers to remove there. Next day they came back, reported that a German shell had fired the thatch of the cottage they had taken possession of, and vowed that they would face the miseries of those living no more. Wisniewski sent to the earthworks cooking ranges, kettles, and salt. The refugees had grain. They begged the refugee committee to leave them in peace.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

Winnipeg—While sales in most lines do not equal those of a year ago, there are distinct signs of coming improvement. The demand for dry goods, groceries and provisions is expanding. Farm supplies are in brisk request and the movement of brick, cement, lumber and hardware is increasing.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL.

Chicago — Illinois Central's April loadings make better comparisons than for March, but the entire month will show some decrease in gross earnings despite the fact that the coal strike took place last year. The officials expect however that April net will at least break even, and perhaps show some gain, as they have transportation costs well in hand.

NO GERMANS NEED APPLY

Britain For the Britons After the War is Prevailing Sentiment

There is a very strong feeling in the British Isles and also in the army on the subject of enemy aliens, particularly the treatment of enemy aliens after the war. It must be remembered that the army has been recruited from the civilian population. Of course, all recruits come from the civilian population, but the young men who join the standing army under ordinary conditions do virtually adopt soldiering as a profession, and remaining for some years in the service lose touch with civil life. But the men of the new army stepped directly out of civil life into the ranks, and have taken with them to the front the civilian outlook upon national affairs. They are men who had to get their living as civilians before the war and will have to get it again if they come back alive.

These men are "fed up" with Germany and the Germans. The bulk of the working population at home are in the same mood. They want to know how the Germans are to be treated when the war is over. In many letters sent to England there occurs the significant statement: "Our men in the trenches want to know whether when the Germans are driven out of France and Belgium they will be allowed to come to England and take their jobs?" It is a subject to which the people and the Government will have to give serious attention. The British people do not want their markets flooded with German goods, a London writer points out. They do not want the labor market flooded with German cheap labor. They do not want the country mapped out and patrolled by German spies. They do not want any Germans in the country at all nor any German goods.

A Blackburn Heroe's Errand

Blackburn is proud of Thomas Duxbury, of the East Lancashire Regiment, and justifiably so; for the gallant achievement which won for him the Distinguished Conduct Medal stands out prominently among the thousands of other heroic deeds which have been performed in the war. Duxbury, despatch for the commanding officer to a regiment seven miles away. His hazardous errand lay across the firing line, where shells and bullets fell thickly. After traversing five and a half miles he was badly wounded in both legs. Determined to accomplish his mission, he crawled the remainder of the journey, suffering agonizing pain, and delivered his despatch. Duxbury is the second Blackburn soldier to win the D.C.M.

Finds German Food and Munition Supply Heavy

Frenchwoman Serving as Nurse at Kaiser's Divisional Headquarters in France Warns Allies Against Too Great Optimism on This Score.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)
LONDON, May 1.

Writing to a friend in London, a Frenchwoman who has been since the beginning of the war a hospital nurse in St. Quentin—now one of the divisional headquarters of the German army in France—tells an interesting story of life in that town, and throws out a warning against too much optimism regarding the lack of supplies of both food and the munitions of war in the German army.

The arrival of the German troops, she says, was a complete surprise to the population, who had had no previous warning. Most of the French infantry had left the town, and there remained only a few detachments and some English and Scottish soldiers who had lost their way in the great retreat or who were lying wounded in the hospitals.

The enemy came into St. Quentin at four o'clock in the afternoon on August 28, having surrounded the town, so that they entered from every direction.

The civil population, panic stricken, remained for the most part in their houses, staring through their windows at the columns of dusty, sun baked men who came down the street. Some of the British soldiers caught in this trap decided to fight to the death, which they knew was inevitable. Several English and Scottish soldiers fired at the Germans as they advanced into the chief square and were instantly shot.

One man, a tall young soldier, stationed himself at the corner of the Place de 8 Octobre and with extraordinary coolness and rapidity fired shot after shot, killing several Germans. The enemy brought up a machine gun and used it against this one man, who tried to stop an army. He fell, riddled with bullets, and was blown to pieces as he lay.

On the whole the Germans have behaved well at St. Quentin. Their rule is stern but just, and although the civil population has been put on rations of black bread they get enough, and it is not, after all, so bad. As one of the most important bases of the German army in France, the town is continually filled with troops of every regiment, who stay a little while and then pass on, leaving a permanent garrison in occupation.

"It is impossible to say," declares this woman, "that the Germans are ill fed and lacking in supplies. On the contrary, one can only marvel at their splendid organisation and the efficiency of their commissariat.

"Every night long convoys of motor waggons, containing hot food for the soldiers, would leave the town for the trenches, and although, no doubt, some of these supplies do not get to the men in advanced positions, it is certain that nine times out of ten the men in the fighting lines get their food with great regularity. All the soldiers I saw—and for seven months I saw hundreds of thousands—were well fed and in splendid physical condition.

"It is quite true that the Germans are now expelling civil populations from towns and villages in the war zone, and that they are anxious to get rid of these 'useless mouths,' but I am convinced that this is merely a matter of precaution, and that it is part of that remarkable foresight which the enemy shows in every branch of military organisation. They look ahead and take measures which will be useful to them should the war continue for another year."

The nurse says she saw no sign of depression among the soldiers. They still cherish the conviction of ultimate victory, and nothing seems to shake their faith.

When an officer complained that his cloak was dirty she asked him why he had not taken it along to be cleaned in Paris.

The officer understood her innuendo.

"Paris is not our object," he said. We are going to Calais instead."

"You are a long time getting there," she remarked.

"We bide our time," was the answer. "We are in no hurry."

"This did not seem to be mere bluff," says the writer. "The German soldier was something childlike in his faith in the wisdom and power of his war lords. With apparent sincerity he looks forward to the spring campaign for tremendous victories.

"With regard to munitions, there does not seem to be any shortage. I have myself seen long trains of ordnance going to the front with enough shells to supply an army corps for a big battle, and, although they are requisitioning all cotton and other material for the manufacture of explosives, this seems to be for the future rather than for present needs.

"It is rash for us to underestimate the enemy's strength or resistance. They have entrenched themselves everywhere, and each trench is a fortress crammed with mitrailleuses behind a forest of barbed wire. It is a terrible thing to reflect that many of these trenches have been dug by the peasants of France, compelled to strengthen their enemy's position by force of arms."

The capture of Vauquois, in the Argonne, by the French was accomplished after three days' terrific fighting. Four times the French were driven back with heavy losses, but at two in the afternoon of the third day, the hour fixed for the general assault, three regiments dashed from their trenches. The hilly slopes had been gashed and torn by artillery fire, but the French struggled on and drove the Germans from their first line of trenches.

The Germans withdrew into the village and all the positions in front of the houses were then in French possession. A little later, with a splendid dash, their battalions penetrated into the ruined village and installed themselves there. The artillery immediately lengthened its range in order to prevent the enemy from bringing up reinforcements. During that time a hand to hand fight was going on in the streets among the ruined houses.

While this attack was being carried out a terrible snow and hail storm occurred to make matters worse. The main road running through Vauquois, which had to be crossed during this snowstorm, was intercepted with trenches, barbed wire and other obstructions.

In the houses the Germans had installed quick firing guns, and the whole area had been cumbered with land mines and high explosives, so that it was dangerous to move across it.

NEW GERMAN SUBMARINES SHOW GREAT ADVANCE OVER OLD TYPE

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)
LONDON, May 1.

The following appears in the London Daily Standard:—

"There is every reason to believe that since the outbreak of hostilities Germany has launched and fitted out at least nineteen of what can only be termed submersible cruisers or super-submarines, one at least of which is fitted with engines of nearly 7,000 horse-power. These vessels are of from 800 to 1,000 tons displacement, their length is from 213 feet to 230 feet, and they have a beam of 20 feet. Of the class of vessel is the U-26, which recently captured the Dutch vessel Batavier V. has been remarked, regarding that submersible in particular, that her very size exposes her unduly to danger in the Narrow Seas, and the opinion was vouchsafed that she would ultimately fall a victim to a destroyer that could easily have been evaded by a smaller and more easily handled craft.

"It is not clearly shown why this should be the case, and against the assumption it may be mentioned that the boats Germany possessed before the outbreak of hostilities had a surface speed of only from fourteen to sixteen knots and a submerged speed of ten knots. The new type have a surface speed of from twenty to twenty-four knots and an under water speed of at least twelve knots. They are also fitted with engines which can be reversed from full speed ahead to full speed astern in ten seconds, and it would seem, therefore, that such vessels would be more likely to escape from a destroyer attack than one of the older craft. It may be mentioned here that these new submersibles are armed with four tubes, two forward and two aft, firing 19½ inch torpedoes with war heads charged with tri-nitro-toluol. In addition, they are fitted with an anti-aircraft gun and two 14-pounders. These are mounted on disappearing carriages, which are automatically drawn below the surface of the deck as soon as the pumps are set to work to submerge the vessel.

"Germany has always aimed at obtaining the most powerful engines possible for their ships for her submarine service, as well as at securing for her boats the greatest possible radius of action. For months before the war broke out Krupp's and the Maschinenfabrik Augsburg-Nurnberg A.-G. had been experimenting with the Diesel engine with a view to evolving a type which should be eminently suited for use in submarine craft. Krupp's has worked principally on a two stroke engine, in which, as there is no scavenging stroke, as it is called, the scavenging, or cleansing, of the cylinder from the burnt gases is effected by a separate compressor and a system of valves in the cylinder head. The design of the engine is quite away from usual lines; three working cylinders are fitted at each side of the high pressure compressor, and two double acting pumps for scavenging are placed at the extreme end of the bed.

"The M.A.N. firm also is elaborating a two stroke Diesel engine at Nurnberg, and several of the German super-submarines are believed to be fitted with engines turned out from their works. The engines are of the eight cylinder 2,000-horse power type, and two engines are fitted in each boat.

"But it is not only in speed and size that developments have been made. The 'sight' of the submarine has been greatly improved and the modern periscope is fitted with a compass by means of which it is possible for a helmsman to steer to fractions of a degree instead of, as hitherto, to quarter points only. By this the accuracy with which a torpedo can be fired is greatly enhanced, and in the newest boats it is possible to obtain the bearings of an enemy ship from a distance of some miles away and set a course which, without it being necessary to use the periscope again, will bring the boat to a point from which a torpedo may be fired with an absolute certainty of its hitting the mark. The earlier forms of periscopes were frail and leaky and a constant source of trouble. The new type are not only robust, but the glasses have no tendency to become [illegible] and no matter in what position the object viewed may be the image thrown [illegible] erect, and not as it does inverted, as in the older instruments. The bearing of the object viewed is indicated by a movable pointer on a fixed dial.

"The new pattern of periscope is also arranged that if desired a magnifier can be brought into operation whereby a vessel invisible to the naked eye can be seen and its exact position calculated with mathematical precision. Once this has been worked out the submarine, as has already been mentioned, can be submerged and her periscope drawn in and as under water course pursued until the exact position at which the torpedo should be fired is arrived at. It may be added that in all modern vessels the firing can be done 'from the periscope'—i. e., the officer who is watching the periscope and telltale when they are in use can himself fire the torpedoes without leaving his post.

"Signalling is done on a submarine in the same way as on board a surface ship, but when the vessel is submerged it is carried out by messages sent by a modified form of submarine bell, the vibrations of which are picked up by microphone. Submarines are exceptionally noisy when submerged, and in order that messages may be sent or received correctly the operator sits in a soundproof compartment.

"Attention may be drawn to the fact that a submarine of the modern type which is rammed by a merchantman, or even war vessel, may quite easily be uninjured; indeed, it is a most difficult thing to sink a submersible cruiser by ramming her. They are fitted, it must be mentioned, with double hulls, the outer skin being comparatively thin, while the inner hull is stout, as it has to withstand the full hydrostatic pressure. The space between these hulls is subdivided by numerous bulkheads, and while some of the spaces are water tanks for sinking purposes, in others the heavy fuel oil used with the engines is stored. Any two of these spaces—in some boats more than two—could be flooded without the rising powers of the boat being impaired. Consequently when a merchantman rams a submersible of the latest type and reports that a film of oil rose to the surface at the spot where the undersea boat disappeared, the great probability is that the latter was undamaged and that all that has been done has been to pierce her outer skin and allow the contents of one of her fuel tanks to escape."

Warsaw Night Life Is Gay Amid Grewsome Reminders of the War

Although Constant Stream of Wounded Enters the City, Hospitals Are Full and Air Raids Are Frequent, the Residents Are Care Free and Merry.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)
PETROGRAD, May 1.

The Prager Tageblatt prints a letter from Ferdinand Tuchy telling of conditions of life in Warsaw, and indicating that the residents of the Polish capital by no means are worried about the war or the battles raging near them.

"It is a half hour before midnight," he writes. "The whole evening we have been sitting in the palatial 'Kwas,' listening to the dreamy music of the gypsy band, which affects one like opium. The whole scene is like the third act in a modern operetta—the brilliantly lighted restaurant, the brightly colored uniforms of the Russian officers, that seem to harmonise with the beautiful gowns of the pretty Polish women; the laughter and the singing—all, in fact, form a scene not to be forgotten.

"As we leave the restaurant a little after midnight we find ourselves in a broad thoroughfare alive with automobiles and pedestrians in evening clothes. The officers who left the trenches at the front a few hours before are now again entering their automobiles to return as quickly as possible to the scene of the conflict.

"A gay life is led in the restaurants of Warsaw; it is somewhat similar to the scenes that took place behind the front in the Russo-Japanese war. The officers of the Czar want to taste life to the uttermost before they face death.

"Warsaw is bright and happy, and so different from London, where I found the streets dark after nine o'clock and the whole atmosphere depressing. The people here are not depressed by the war. The papers give daily the names of thousands of casualties, and wounded soldiers are seen constantly in the streets; the hospitals are filled with victims of malignant diseases, and almost daily German aeroplanes drop their deadly bombs in the city. But despite all this the people have a care free manner, and laugh and joke and eat and drink, visit the opera or go to see the rollicking comedy at the Nowahl Theatre, which is a great attraction for the soldiers who are on leave.

"Warsaw has accustomed itself to the war, to the German aeroplanes and to the battles raging all round the city. If bombs are thrown on the city, who cares? What a contrast there is here to England, where the war is regarded as a very serious business!

Germans Free French Captives on Promise to Work for Peace

(SPECIAL DISPATCH.)
PARIS, May 1.

The sending back to France of French prisoners by the Germans and supplying them with money on the promise that they urge a demonstration for peace is one of the things charged against the Kaiser by the French. In support of this contention they give the name of a petty officer who told them of the scheme, as well as the man who sent him. In telling the story the Figaro says:—

"Among the many various methods employed by the Kaiser to urge peace upon us one of the strangest was told to us by a French petty officer. This man was made a prisoner in December near Saint Mihiel, and recently he arrived at Pontarlier, free, armed with false Belgian papers and supplied with money from the Germans. Here is his story:—

"'After having been taken a prisoner to Metz some one arranged for him to have a talk with a German socialist named Sudekum. This man said that France was merely serving the interest of England, while she could have an understanding with Germany. This could be easily done through the medium of the socialists. A moment later, he said, could be sent to the proletariat of both countries.

"'The petty officer agreed to return to France. He was told that if the first trip was successful he would be sent out again to organise a campaign for peace by means of pamphlets and placards. Then he was to look into the possibility of starting a revolutionary movement in Mid-France. After certain indications that the petty officer favored the scheme he was told of others who had been sent back to France with the same object.'

"'Every day, like Charlemagne, William II. has sent these 'rules deminici.' If all those engaged in the scheme of the agent Sudekum are recruited from among the French prisoners it will at least have the advantage of making them very happy. What good fortune for a petty officer who has the evil outlook of a wet and frozen prison camp before him to be charged with such a mission.

"'We cannot be too much in sympathy with those of our unfortunate compatriots who work themselves into the good graces of Herr Sudekum and seize quickly on the opportunity of coming back bringing the lessons which has been taught to them by this most interesting man. The Germans are giving enough evil proofs of their rotten methods by a ruse of such a sort that it would not be [illegible] against all decent warfare.'"

Tonic Lotion for the Skin.

It is claimed for the following compound that it tones the cutaneous circulation and prevents wrinkles. Two ounces of spirits of ammonia, the same of tincture of camphor, five ounces coarse salt, one quart of boiling water. After these are well agitated and cold, add six ounces of alcohol.

To be shaken before using. This is called "skin tonic" and is both refreshing and rejuvenating.

To Protect Against Moths.

If you wish to pack away your winter clothes without fear of moths, spray the bottom of a trunk with kerosene, and paur a teaspoonful of the oil down each corner. Spread a freshly printed newspaper on the bottom of the trunk and it is ready for moth-inviting furs or woollens. Pack the trunk full and lay newspaper on the top. See that trunk closes tight, then spray floor of attic with kerosene and rest in peace.

Moths will not lay eggs where kerosene has been. In soaking a coat or man's suit, put a wad of cotton, soaked with kerosene in one of the pockets. It is far less odourous than gasoline and when things are taken out and aired, soon evaporates.

PIMPLES
APPEARED ON HIS FACE AND HANDS.

The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."

2,000,000 Italian Troops Ready To Take the Field

ROME, May 3.—When the European conflict began Italy and her army were entirely unprepared to take part in any war, much less in a war of the enormous dimensions which the present conflict has assumed. The Libyan war, although only a colonial affair, had left considerable blanks in the equipment of the army which had not been replenished. It is no exaggeration to say that Italy last August would not have been able to stand the wear and tear of a European conflict for six weeks, even if she had not been beaten in the first fortnight.

In eight months, however, miracles have been performed, and it the moment arrives for Italy to join in the general tumult, she will be able to put in the field a first line of two million fighting men, well equipped and eager for the fray.

The actual first line is a million strong, but as for war purposes each regiment is doubled, the effective strength of the first line will be brought up to nearly two million men under thirty years of age, without considering the territorial militia and the reserves, which would account for another million.

The infantry line is composed of ninety-two regiments each 4,000 strong, plus two regiments of Grenadiers, twelve regiments of Bersagliere, twelve regiments of cyclist Bersagliere, twelve regiments of Carabineers composing the famous Legion, twelve regiments of Frontier Guards (Guardia di Finane), and twelve regiments of Alpine troops.

Of these infantry regiments the Bersagliere, the Alpine regiments, the Frontier Guards, and about a dozen of the infantry regiments are especially equipped and trained for the extremely arduous warfare of the Alps. In particular the Alpine regiments have for some time been at full strength, fourteen classes, averaging 20,000 men, a class being at the present moment with the colours scattered along the frontier to prevent any sudden attack from the north.

Strength of Cavalry.

The Italian cavalry is known throughout the world as an extremely capable body of men. Under the command of the Count of Turin, Inspector-General of Cavalry, it is certain to give a good account of itself. There are four regiments of dragoons, nine regiments of lancers, and sixteen regiments of light cavalry. The ordinary war formation is five squadrons to the regiment.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty with which Italy had to contend in preparing for the field has been in the matter of artillery.

Long before the European conflict began the War Ministry had ordered a large number of batteries of the new Deporte 75mm. field gun from France. In August the French manufacturers found they were unable to supply the guns, as all their produce was required for the defence of France from the invader. Italy was, therefore, "in a hole." Some months after the war had been in progress they were able to obtain from the French General Staff one battery as a sample. This battery has been the model on which many batteries have been manufactured in Italy.

Throughout the winter the factories have been working night and day to fill the requirements of the army, and even the State railway works have been utilized for the manufacture of limbers and gun carriages. Besides the Deporte 75, the army is equipped with the Krupp 75.

As a result of the experience gained in the present war the number of guns to a battery has been reduced from six to four. The Minister of War, in explaining the reason for this change, stated that experience has now shown that a quick firing battery of four guns was superior to the old arrangement of six guns, while from the mobile point of view it was distinctly advisable to adopt the new arrangement.

Twelve regiments of mountain artillery, with thirteen regiments divided between siege, fortress and coast artillery, and six regiments of heavy field artillery complete the equipment of the Italian gunners.

Demands on Engineers.

The peculiar physical conditions of Italy make it necessary that the army engineer corps shall be many-sided. Besides six regiments of sappers, it contains one regiment of miners, three regiments of bridgers, one regiment of Lagunari, one regiment of aerostatists, about three hundred aeroplanes (not counting private owners and airmen), and three regiments of railway engineers.

Following the German example, the Italian Engineer Specialist Brigade formerly put their faith in dirigibles in preference to aeroplanes. The war has shown the dirigible is a very much overrated weapon of offence, except for the slaughter of innocent women and children. Recently, therefore, there has been an entire revision of the Italian aeronautic services, and the aviators have been organized on a larger and broader basis. It is unlikely that either dirigibles or aeroplanes will be of much service in an Alpine campaign, but should the operations lead toward the Adriatic aeroplane work will be of the first importance.

Expert on Alpine Forts of Austria Italy's War Aid

ROME, April 30.—Gen. Pistoia, for many years attached to the general headquarters staff, who made a special study of the Austrian fortifications along the Alpine frontiers and is now a member of the chamber of deputies recently granted an interview to the Giornale d'Italia of Rome, which is considered of special importance inasmuch as it practically explains the military plans of Italy's invasion of Austria.

The general worded his interview very carefully but he dropped sufficiently broad hints to explain that in case of war with Austria Italy's aim is to occupy Vienna, and not Trent or Trieste, the two "lost provinces," which will be surrendered when peace is made. He says:

"We are admirably protected against Austria by a formidable Alpine barrier, which is practically impregnable, when covered with snow during winter. Italy was therefore sufficiently defended against offensive actions by Austria during the last months, and this was admitted by the minister of war, General Zupelli, when the explained in parliament that there was no necessity to call out for training all the complementary officers, since there was no danger of war in winter.

Why Nation Has Armed.

"Of course, what was necessary was to show that we were quite prepared and ready for war, and this explains why the nation has been armed and kept ready to intervene at the opportune moment.

"Italy should have mobilized her army and concentrated it against Austria when war broke out. Fortunately, this was not done, and it proved to be a profitable mistake since a great deal of money has been saved and our soldiers have been spared the inevitable hardships of spending a winter in idleness in an Alpine region. The fact that mobilization was not ordered at once enabled the government to complete the necessary preparations for war, and this undoubtedly has been a great advantage.

"It is lucky that nothing happened, and that Austria gained over six months. Most however, that events and possibly developing, we must consider the situation of the central empires, our future enemies. Their troops are lining two battlefronts more than 1,000 miles long, and are all but exhausted after such a long, hard war.

"It is practically impossible for the Austrians to invade Italy through Trent or Switzerland. Our frontiers around Trent are sufficiently defended and guarded by troops and our fortifications are strong enough to resist invasion. We are convinced that Austria will never attempt to violate Switzerland's neutrality, since that country will defend herself quite well, and of course we need not defend our Swiss frontiers, the more so as if we concentrated of threatening to violate Switzerland's neutrality ourselves."

400 Miles of Frontier.

The frontier between Italy and Austria, from the Stelvio pass in southren Tyrol around Trent to Lake Garda and up again across the Domomites, the Carnic, and the Julian Alps down to the Adriatic coast, is roughly 400 miles long, and it is strongly fortified on both sides, more so perhaps on Austria's side, with permanent works on all strategical points and along all the military roads and passes. Owing to the mountainous character of all this frontier line, with the single exception of about thirty miles near the coast, it is obvious that any attempt at invasion on the part of Italy across the Alpine passes would prove extremely difficult.

Since neither Austria nor Italy will attempt to violate Switzerland's neutrality, it follows that the only way open is that near the Adriatic coast, the plain of the Isonso between Gradisca and Aquileia, the more so as the distance in a straight line between Goera and Vienna is exactly 200 miles, or ten days' easy march if no railway communications are available.

Gen. Pistoia's hints are broad enough to be understood without any explanation and consequently he has been blamed for divulging military secrets, despite the fact that they are

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. ## EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

APRON IN EMPIRE STYLE.

By Anabel Worthington.

Even the apron shall not escape the influence of the Empire, for here we have one that undoubtedly deserves that classification. It is a very neat looking garment and distinctly pretty. The cotton braid trimming lifts it above the ordinary work apron, and the striped material of which it is made is nice enough for any morning tub frock. But this is only one version of this design. It can be developed into a strictly utilitarian garment by omitting the braid, and choosing a material both plain and substantial, such as calico or gingham.

The body consists of only two pieces, the front of the sleeve being cut in one with the body front and the back of the sleeve with body back. This construction simplifies the making, as there is merely a shoulder and underarm seam and no sleeve to be sewed in an armhole. There are three gores in the skirt, cut to flare a little at the hem and fitted at the top without gathers. The pocket is conveniently large.

An apron of this sort can be put together in a hurry, for there is no need of fitting if the right sized pattern has been obtained in the first place. Bastings are superfluous until skirt and waist are ready to be joined together. The apron might be tried on at that stage and the lower edge marked for turning up. The rest is just a matter of machine stitching. For medium size 3¼ yards of material 36 inches wide would be required. The pattern, No. 7,096, can be obtained in sizes from 34 to 44 inches [illegible]

Official Story of Canadians' Stand Against 100,000 Germans

Complete Report Issued From Ottawa To-day Estimates That There Were Over 6000 Casualties---Every One of the Decimated Battalions Covered Itself With Glory ---Waited in Vain for Re-inforcements.

THRILLING STORY OF THE BATTLE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TAUBE DRIVEN OFF

OTTAWA, May 3.—An official detailed story giving the disposition of the Canadian troops and describing how they held their position gallantly while faced with tremendous odds and handicapped by the nature of the front they were forced to hold, was issued this morning by the Militia Department.

It is a straightforward story of the stand in the face of terrible odds, as inspiring as any in history, and indicates that there was not a single one of the now terribly decimated battalions and their officers, who did not cover themselves with glory.

The casualties—killed, wounded and missing—total over six thousand, with over 700 killed, and two thousand missing. The number of Germans who battered against the position is given at 100,000, at least.

With rifle, shell, machine gun fire, and deadly gases projected against them, the Canadian brigades formed and reformed, attacked and counter-attacked and stuck to their positions, waiting in vain for reinforcements, until the ranks were sadly thinned, and their front was extended to a length not justified by their numbers.

The memorandum says—"From authentic data, it appears that on the 22nd, the Canadians held 5000 yards of trenches near Ypres. They were on the extreme left of the British line. This has always been regarded, being a very flat country, as the weakest part of the British line, that it is the most difficult to hold."

The Canadian position would be held by two or three Brigades. On the right, the second infantry brigade, under Major General Currie, made up of Western Canada battalions.

On their left were the Highland brigade, made up of the Highlanders from Winnipeg, Vancouver and Hamilton, and also the fifteenth battalion, which included the 45th Highlanders, and various units from Ontario points.

The 1st brigade was in reserve some miles in the rear. It was commanded by General S. Mercer of the Queen's Own Rifles, of Toronto, with Major Ross Hayter of Halifax, as Brigade Major. It included the first battalion, made up of western Ontario troops, under Colonel Hill of Niagara Falls, with Major Bercher of London assiting him; the second battalion, "made up of Eastern Ontario, under command of Colonel D. Watson, of Quebec, with Colonel C. H. Rogers, of Northumberland county, and Colonel Frank A. Howard of Brantford, assisting him."

The third battalion, "under command of Colonel Rennie, of Toronto," and the fourth battalion "was made up of Central Ontario, North and Northwest of Toronto.

Owing to Colonel Labatt's illness, Colonel Birchall of the permanent staff, was placed in command of the fourth battalion.

The Canadian guns were posted far to the rear, and the four heavy Canadian guns it seems were some two or three miles in the rear of the French lines.

THE FIRST ATTACK

On the afternoon of the 22nd, following a prolonged and terrific artillery fire, the enemy's trenches being on an average of about 200 yards from the allied line, and the wind being from the enemy's direction towards the allied lines, dense volumes of heavy gas were projected towards the allied lines, evidently by compression through tubing, and upon reaching the allied trenches, were found to be asphyxiating. It is generally supposed that chlorine was principally used. The fumes seemed to have enveloped all the French front, and part of the Highland brigade, and in many instances proved immediately deadly; in other instances it completey disabled the soldiers, while in others the effect was only temporary.

PARIS, France, May 3.—That the Germans are again using their asphyxiating gas in an effort to gain ground north of the Yser and in the vicinity of Ypres, was admitted by the war office to-day. In its regular afternoon communique the war office said that the Germans had tried by this means to gain ground there but had failed.

PETERBORO' BOYS SELECTED TO GO OVERSEAS AT ONCE

Twenty-Eight of the 57th Detachment of the 39th Battalion Will go in the Draft of Reinforcements For 1st Contingent

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Below is given a list of the 57th Regiment members of the 39th Battalion at Belleville chosen for immediate service overseas in the draft of reinforcements for the First Canadian Contingent. Some 230 men of the 39th Battalion were required, and as the whole battalion volunteered, there was naturally keen rivalry and keen disappointment for many of the men. This was especially true of the non-commissioned officers, only a few of whom were drawn. All the Peterborough detachment volunteered and the twenty-eight named below will go. Several other local boys were selected, but on Saturday were discovered to be carriers of spinal meningitis germs, and instead of going with the draft, are in the detention camp at Belleville. Those include Pte. A. E. Naish and Bugler A. Lord. A number of other local men, who were in the detention camp when the order came, of course, had no chance to go.

The detachment will leave Belleville immediately for an unknown destination, and the Peterborough squad selected were home yesterday to say good-bye to their relatives, returning to Belleville this morning.

CANUCK N.C.O'S. THREW UP STRIPES TO GET TO FRONT

110 Men of 22nd Battery of Which Capt. Fee Was Second in Command Have Been Drafted Into Royal Horse Artillery

PETERBORO' BOY WRITES

The following interesting letter received by the Examiner from Quarter Master Sergt. Fred Reed of Peterborough, formerly of the 22nd Battery, C.E.F., and now of the 3rd Battery, Canadian Artillery Reserve, Depot Brigade, gives the news for the first time that the crack battery of which Capt. Fee of Peterborough, was second in command, has been practically absorbed in the Royal Horse Artillery, 110 men having been drafted. The letter is as follows:

Moore Barracks,
Shorncliffe, Kent, Eng.,
April 18, 1915.

Now that we are having things a little more comfortable than we did when we first hit here, we can find a minute now and again, to drop a line to some of our old friends and let them know we are still on the map.

We are in barracks on hills overlooking the English Channel, and the French Coast can be clearly seen from here. If the Germans had succeeded in their dash on Calais and had a few of the guns the "Queen Lizzie" has at the Dardenelles we would be having an interesting session around here, but then we said "IF".

We are practically in Folkestone, the popular English watering place, on the south coast, about nine miles west of Dover, and the boys manage to kick in their time in the evenings and things are beginning to liven up a little more now that the summer season is beginning to open up. The boys are on their good behaviour, and have made a good impression here, and it is generally admitted by the citizens that they average up better in neatness of dress and smart appearance than Kitchener's new army.

There is not altogether the feeling between the Territorials and our crash there should be. The whole trouble seemingly hinges on the difference in rates of pay, and when they get after us about it we usually quote a well-known authority who once said "that men are valuable," etc., and tell them when they get in our class they will probably get the same rate of pay. Of course we are only stringing them and giving them a good time, but the matter is too serious and they can't see any joke about it, and I guess if our circumstances were reversed we would be a long time seeing the funny side of the issue, as far as man, the Territorials are putting up as good a scrap as the next one.

Pte. Geo. Middleton, 146 Park St., formerly No. 3 Co., 57th Regiment.

Pte. Wm. E. Morgan, 239 Aylmer St., formerly No. 8 Company, 57th Regiment.

Pte. Fred Clarke, formerly No. 8 Company, 57th Regiment.

Pte. Frank Dudley, 183 Reid St., formerly of No. 3 Company, 57th Regiment.

The above heavy list of casualties among the 57th detachment of the 2nd battalion, published in yesterday's lists or conveyed to relatives by private messages, shows that the Rangers' quota suffered terribly in the Langemarck fight. In addition to Major Bennett's death there have already been seventeen of the rank and file reported wounded, and it is feared that the list is by no means completed. The men listed above are for the most part well-known members of the 57th Regiment, a number of them having held sergeants' stripes in the Rangers.

Pte. H. W. Saunders.

Mrs. J. Saunders, 177 Sherbrooke Street, were informed in a telegram from the Adjutant General's department yesterday that her son, Pte. Harold Wright Saunders is officially reported wounded. Pte. Saunders is probably the youngest Peterborough soldier at the front. In fact he spent his seventeenth birth day in the hospital, as he reached the seventeenth mark only last Tuesday. He had been a member of No. 2 company of the 57th Regiment and was at Petawawa Camp last June with the Rangers. When enlistment began for the first contingent he was eager to go and as he was a big boy for his age was accepted. Pte. Saunders had lived in Peterborough five years and was for some time employed at the Examiner office, more recently working at the Canadian Canoe Company's factory. He was a member of the Murray Street Baptist Sunday school. His parents and two sisters, Eva and Lily, reside at 177 Sherbrooke Street.

'It was almost a relief to hear that Harold was wounded, after the suspense of last week, especially as the telegram does not say dangerously or seriously wounded," remarked Mrs. Saunders to the Examiner yesterday.

Pte. Saunders is a bright, likeable youngster, who had many friends in Peterborough. His father is at present ill in Nicholls Hospital.

Pte. Ernest Mealey.

Pte. Ernest Mealey of the 57th detachment, 2nd Battalion, who is officially reported wounded, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mealey, 282 Dalhousie Street, and is 20 years of age. His parents received a telegram from the Adjutant General, Ottawa, at 12.20 p.m. yesterday, conveying them of his being wounded, but there are no particulars so far as to the circumstances of his wounds.

Pte. Mealey was born in Bloomfield, Ont. He came to this city with his parents eight years ago. At the time of his enlistment for overseas service

THE REAL POWER.

It seems as if fate, or the concurrence of circumstances, conspires to bring the Dominions into the light conspicuously. As the Canadians in France fought valiantly "facing fearful odds," and paid the heavy price, so the Australians and New Zealanders in Turkey are so valiantly fighting and paying the terrible price. The wonder of it is that in neither case is there any compulsion of obligation, except the compulsion of affection and a recognition of the indivisible unity of the Empire; no compulsion, but the compulsion of love, loyalty and duty. The German doctrine of force is falling [illegible] the gentler compulsions of affection, made strong by regard for the high principles of right and justice. As the greater and more universal forces of nature—the silent resistless cell multiplication that we call growth — are benign so in the world of human affairs; the forces of love and affection, and high principle, are the only really great and effective, and dominant forces.

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

The beautifully solemn and impressive service at St. John's last night, was in one sense a domestic service—a church family service; Major Bennett and family have long been associated with this church. But of its own accord the service expanded into a demonstration of the universal kinship of sympathy and interest, inherent in our citizenship. The church was crowded with a congregation, representing all city church affiliations. It was not called together by curiosity; but by a desire to honour the memory of the gallant dead—on the part of his comrades in arms and brother officers, and, our representative citizens, and our citizens generally. The lessons of the service, and the excellent sermon, were the beauty of manhood, as exemplified in the life and death of the subject of the occasion, who was held up as an example of the earnest, manly, and undaunted discharge of duty. Such a service, commemorating not only the dead officer, but all who fell with him, or were wounded, was a most becoming one—in keeping with the divine plan, which has ordained the baptismic service of the church as a perpetual memorial of Him, upon whom, and in whom, not only our Christianity, but the deathless hope it inspires, is founded.

WE ARE NOT DISCOURAGED.

There is no doubt that this war is a battle between humanity and Hun savagery. Throughout the whole war, the British especially at sea, have yielded to the impulses of humanity, and made every effort to save men thrown into the water from sinking ships. On the contrary, the Germans have no record of having saved a life under similar circumstances. They have rather fired upon rescue boats and upon men battling for life in the sea—heartless cruelty that outrages all our conceptions of humanity. Sinking hospital ships with torpedoes, training artillery on Red Cross stations, shows that even the symbol of man's redemption and of Christianity is not regarded as sacred by the Huns. The use of poisonous gases contrary to [illegible] Convention, to which Germany was a signatory, shows that the Huns have no respect for their solemnly-pledged word, or any hesitation in committing wholesale murder; for the use of such methods is not war; it is plain murder. We are called upon to especially reprobate and condemn this, for the use of poisonous fumes, accounted for the fact that thousands of Canadian names, the names of our sons, friends and neighbors, appear in the daily growing casualty lists. The gas drove back the British [illegible] the Canadian division to bear the brunt of an attack by the Germans by overwhelming numbers. The Canadians were Canadians and more than that, and "saved the situation" at the awful sacrifice. But the poisonous gas, while it demonstrated the superiority of the Huns, appears to be a confirmation of the "engineer paid with his own money." The poisonous fumes designed to paralyze the enemy acquires the Germans themselves, so that they are unable to advance. So with the prospects of the biter being bit, and the allies taking precautions to render the poisonous gases harmless, the heathenish cruelty of using noxious gases will not probably be long employed. In another way this method will recoil indirectly upon the Germans. Nothing in the time of war has stimulated recruiting in Canada, like the gallantry and glorious death of so many Canadians in battle. To fill the gaps in the ranks in France drafts are being made upon the Third Canadian Contingent, now in training; a call is made for about twenty-five per cent. of each battalion, to volunteer for immediate service abroad. In many cases, so great is the anxiety to go, whole battalions have volunteered; the difficulty is not to get men to complete the draft, but to keep the men at home that are not considered as needed yet. The same spirit is shown by the Canadians still in England. A letter received by The Examiner from a Peterborough boy, Quartermaster-Sergeant Fred Read, formerly of The Examiner editorial staff, states that the 22nd Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, now in England, was called on for 140 men, to be incorporated with the Royal Horse Artillery, now at the front, and so eager were the men to go that sergeants sacrificed their chevrons preferring to go to the front as privates rather than not go at all. With this spirit animating our Canadians, it is certain that if a call for 50,000 or more recruits were made, there would be a rush for the colours, and the required number would speedily be secured, if ill-timed season of political excitement would not interfere. German "frightfulness," instead of daunting the British and Canadians, only puts them on their mettle. This spirit, and the right of our cause, point to certain ultimate triumph.

ABOUT THE UNTHINKABLE.

Will Sir Robert Borden quit the tiller and let the Canadian war-ship of state drift while he plunges the country into the comparative puerility and folly of a general election at this time? He will do so if he lets partianship triumph over and replace patriotism. If he does so he is sinning against light. He hears the voice of strong protests, from independent men, from patriots before partizans. Men high in patriots before partisans. Men high in church activities, men high in commerce and industry, have protested against an election. The Liberal, the Independent, and even some of the Conservative press, have protested. La Presse, Montreal, staunchly independent, says it has been indifferent to the discussion of a general election, not that it is not concerned in public affairs, but > Because we have never seriously thought that a colonial government would insult (affronterait) public opinion in the exceptionally grave circumstances in which we find ourselves.

The Toronto Telegram, whose Conservatism is without question, and its support of the Borden Government unwavering, says:

> "Where does Sir Robert Borden keep his ears? If Sir Robert Borden's ear is to the ground, Sir Robert should know that from Halifax to Vancouver Conservatives are protesting that they do not want an election, and vow that they will either vote Liberal or not vote at all if an election is brought on."

The Telegram apparently knows its men. It appeals against an election, not on patriotic but party grounds. The only appeal which the "sinister influences" that seem to make Sir Robert Borden as clay in the hands of the potter, will regard, is the appeal to their partianship. If they think they can gain in a party sense from a premature election, no matter what national and imperial military interests are imperilled, then there is to be an election. The only thing that will avert the mad proposal will be the fear of losing party advantage. Sir Robert has a chance to show whether he is a statesman or a mere pawn in the political game.

Peterboro' Boys Selected To Go

Major G. R. Hall, officer commanding the 39th Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F., is home from Kingston for a few days leave.

Lieut. Victor McWilliams, A.M.C., who is going to the front as a doctor in the Imperial service was the guest of his parents here yesterday. He has been on duty at Exhibition Park, Toronto.

A squad of the 8th C.M.R. are spending a few days at home.

Sergts. H. Dodds, M. Motherall, Walter Glew and H. Barrett of the 39th detachment of the 39th Battalion, were among those home on leave yesterday.

Sergt. Pinnery of the 21st [illegible] Kingston, spent Sunday at his home here.

The Call To Send More Soldiers From Canada

Lieut.-Col. Carrick, M.P., who is the official eyewitness for Canada at the war, was, according to a cable sent out to this country by him, made a special messenger by Sir John French, carrying to Lord Kitchener a request that further Canadian forces be sent to the front. Col. Carrick's cable read:

"Sir John French telegraphed Lord Kitchener yesterday he was sending me over to see him regarding further Canadian forces. I had a most satisfactory interview with Lord Kitchener."

It is a tribute to the fine work of the Canadians that the Field Marshal should send this special request to the War Office by the hand of a Canadian member of Parliament. The men of the first contingent have, at heavy sacrifice, done their country the highest credit that it is possible for soldiers to do.

At once on the news being received of the heavy fighting in which the Canadians were engaged, the Minister of Militia at Ottawa called for a draft of 750 men from the ranks of the third contingent to go abroad to help refill the ranks of the first contingent. This, of course, had nothing to do with what Sir John French had in mind when he asked Lord Kitchener for "further Canadian forces." He did no mean 700 men nor 7,000 men. He meant another division, or two divisions, a force of such strength as would be material in the vast conflict that is being waged.

Three battalions of the second contingent have been at Shorncliffe in England for some weeks, one from Quebec, one from Manitoba, and one from British Columbia. As we stated in these columns a few days ago, the officers and men of these three battalions were grieved because of persistent rumours that their organizations were to be broken up and that the men were to be sent forward in sections as drafts to fill vacancies in the ranks of the first contingent. This week large drafts of our men have left Shorncliffe for the front, but whether the three battalions of the second contingent have been drafted into the first, is not known here, as yet. No doubt the necessity of the hour is to fill up the ranks of the division on the fighting line without loss of time. But if two or three battalions of the second contingent have been drafted into the first, it will become necessary to shift two or three battalions from the third contingent into the second if it is to go forward as a division. And it is evident that Sir John French wants a second Canadian division sent to him. He wants that or more.

Whenever the suggesion has been made in Canada that larger forces should be sent fro mthis country the reply has been: "Canada has done, and is doing all that is asked of her."

That may be true. But if there is hesitancy in asking, why not expedite matters by offering?

Everybody knows that in England, Ireland, and Scotland, and Wales, the recruiting has been kept up cease lessly. Here the work of recruiting has been rigidly limited to specified numbers, even at those long intervals when a period of recruiting is opened. So many men are called for in each militia division—so many and no more. Those who cannot get in while the doors are open have to stay out. From the first the effort to enroll for active service has been competitive.

Why not open the doors and keep them open, and let the men of Canada who want to enlist, join the colours and raise this country's fighting force to be great a strength that it will count seriously in the scales in the conflict that threatens the future of the world? The German Empire has resorted to force, and force alone is what it understands. It has the service of its every man. If Canada's action after the battle of Langemarck had been, not a call for a draft of 750 men, but a call for 100,000 men to join the colours and prepare for over-sea service if required, the news of it would have conveyed some idea of the military resources of an aroused British Empire.

It is not too late to do it yet. It will cost a good deal. But nothing will cost so much as a war prolonged by dilatory methods and a half-hearted policy of "waiting to be asked." John Bull has been raising larger and larger armies without waiting to be asked. He has not yet got enough men yet although the United Kingdom is already short-handed of workers. It is not so here and thousands who want to enlist are afforded no opportunity to do so.

This country would not wait to be asked to raise greater forces if our own shores were invaded, and in this war our frontier and the frontier of democracy and of all free countries is the bank of the Rhine—Toronto Star.

SHIPS SUNK BY GERMAN SUBMARINES

London, May 3—The oil tank steamship Gulflight, owned by the Gulf Refining Co. of Pittsburg, was torpedoed off Bishops Lighthouse, Scilly Islands, at noon on Saturday by a German submarine. The vessel was badly damaged and the crew was landed at Scilly by a patrol boat.

Of the crew of 36, 33 were saved. Two jumped overboard and were drowned and the captain later died of heart failure as a result of the shock. The vessel was beached. The Gulflight was laden with naptha from Port Arthur, Texas, for Rouen.

"If it is so that a German submarine or, for that matter, any submarine, has torpedoed the steamer Gulflight as is reported, the United States faces the most serious situation since the war began," declared Frederick R. Coudert, New York, the noted authority on international law, to-day.

THE French steamer Europe also was torpedoed by a submarine and sunk off the Scilly Islands. The crew was picked up by a fishing smack and landed at Newlyn, Cornwall, England. The British steamer Fulgent was sunk off Skelling Rocks, southwest of County Kerry, Ireland in the dark early on Saturday morning also by a German submarine. The master was shot and killed and his body taken into one of the boats. Later the boat was picked up by a trawler and its occupants landed at Kilrush. It is feared the remainder of the crew who occupied a second boat which has not been found have been lost. The Greek steamer Fotis from Galveston and Norfolk for Rotterdam has been taken into Blyth, England, by a British prize crew. It is alleged that she carried a cargo of contraband believed to be destined for Germany.

ESTIMATES OF THE CANADIAN BATTLE LOSSES

It is Thought at Least 1500 May Be Missing

Ottawa, May 3—From cables received, though not official, it is not improbable that the Canadian casualties may exceed 5,000 and that the number killed in action may approximate 500. It is estimated that of the 5,000, 1,500 may be on the list of "missing." Casualty lists among the rank and file of Canadians in the battle of Ypres continue to pour in to the Militia Department at the rate of about 150 per day. Already more than 225 officers have been accounted for in dead, wounded and missing. There are reasons to believe, however, that few more casualties among officers will be received. Every battalion at the front has its toll of dead and wounded, while all the detail units, including Engineers, Army Service Corps, and even the Ambulance Corps, have suffered heavily.

The list issued at Ottawa this morning mentions Pte. McKew, Winnipeg as being killed.

Canadian wounded are as follows: Pte. Bleiely, Arva; Pte. Hastings, Stratford; Pte. Highstone, Sault Ste. Marie; Pte. H. G. L. Bennett, Toronto; Pte. Fletcher, Quebec; Pte. D'Arcy, Toronto; Pte. Haines, Toronto; Sergeant Osborne, Toronto; Pte. Brown, [illegible]ville; Pte. John White, Brantford; Pte. Geo. Paprosky, Toronto; Pte. Edward Ryan, Toronto; Pte. [illegible], Toronto; Pte. Anthony, Brantford; Pte. Harrison, Vancouver; Pte. [illegible], Sault Ste. Marie; Lance-Corp. [illegible], Regina; Pte. Gadbury, Vancouver; Pte. MacPherson, Vancouver; Pte. [illegible], New Westminster; Pte. [illegible], Strathroy; Pte. Corrigal, [illegible]; Pte. [illegible], La Prairie; Pte. Cotter, Winnipeg; Pte. [illegible], Kingston; Pte. [illegible], Vancouver; Pte. [illegible], Toronto; Pte. Moore, Toronto; Pte. Larin, Montreal; Pte. Cooke, Montreal; Pte. Steeves, Moncton; Pte. McCully, Montreal; Pte. McLaughlin, Montreal; Pte. A. G. Raby, Port Hope; Lieut. W. H. Shoenmaker, Toronto; Pte. Ferney, Vancouver; Pte. Day, Toronto; Driver Bell, Galt; Sergt. Badger, Toronto; Sapper Code, Perth; Pte. Johnson, Port Arthur.

Major Percy Byng Hall, Ilminster, England; Capt. Alexander and Lieut. Barrick of Toronto are missing.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE IS IT SPIRITUAL?

"The Soul That Sinneth, It Shall Die."

Sickness and Death Abnormal—Death the Penalty of Man's Sin of Disobedience—Jesus the Divinely Appointed Redeemer of Man—Jesus' Death and Resurrection the Satisfaction for Man's Sin—Healing a Restitution Work "God Is a Spirit"—His Personality — His Attributes — Omnipotent, Omniscient, But Not Omnipresent.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

New York City, May 3. — New York City Temple had its usual crowded audience when Pastor Russell spoke here to-night. His sermon, a continuation of his masterly discourse of last week, was based on the text, "There shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain," (Revelation 21:4.) He said in part:

In our address of last week having [illegible] stated the facts and claims of Christian Science and having pointed out the unreasonableness and inconsistency of some of its statements, we now proceed to inquire whether its teachings are Scriptural. This is the question of special interest to us. The others are merely incidental. We hold, and will endeavor to show, that Christian Science is in conflict with the Holy Scriptures.

The Bible distinctly avers that God created man perfect—in His own likeness, morally, intellectually. It declares that Adam's disobedience was sin, punishable, not with eternal torment, but with death.—Romans 5:12; 6:23; 1 Corinthians 15:21, 22; Genesis 2:17; 3:17-19; Ezekiel 18:4, 20.

Christian Science denies these facts, declaring that there is no death and that whoever dies merely commits "mortal error." It is surely against Christian Science, but confirmatory of the Bible teaching, that for more than six thousand years mankind have been dying. Even "Mother Eddy," who was expected not to commit "mortal error," finally succumbed to it. What answer can our Christian Science friends make to this? We know of none, except that they might claim that the unreasonableness of their position is no greater than the unreasonableness of any of the other sects and creeds. Logic never seems to be taken into consideration in religious matters; the more illogical a statement, the more commendable the acceptance of it.

If all disease is error, if death is the greatest of errors, and if the escaping of "mortal error"—death—brings the reward of everlasting life, how do our Christian Science friends expect to get everlasting life, when at the last moment of their trial they make failure? For those of them who are at all logical, this must be another very perplexing problem. The Bible declares that whoever fails in one point is guilty of all the Law. (James 2:10.) Surely he who commits "mortal error" has failed in attaining the desideratum of Christian Science more than in all the other failures of his life in combatting all other things! If "mortal error" thus takes hold at the dying moment, what hope would there be for such a person as respects everlasting life, if only to overcomers will be granted that life and if none of these overcome, but all succumb to "mortal error"? The corollary of the argument would be hopeless death for all mankind. In this conclusion the Bible agrees. "The wages of sin is death"; sin, "mortal error," brings death.—Ezekiel 18:4; Genesis 2:17; Romans 6:23.

The Bible logically and beautifully points out God's compassion for our race and His provision in Christ for our recovery out of this death condition by a resurrection from the dead. The Bible logically shows that the Divine sentence of death (not torment) must be met, either by humanity or by a Redeemer, and informs us that for this purpose Christ left His Heavenly glory, that He might redeem Adam and his race from sin and its death penalty. So the Apostle writes by inspiration: "As by a man (Adam) came death, by a man also (Jesus) comes the resurrection of the dead. For as all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive." (1 Corinthians 15:21, 22.) What is this but a declaration that the sin leading to "mortal error" is atoned for by Divine favor, to the intent that all sinners may be rescued from "mortal error"—from death?

The Bible is so much more reasonable and beautiful that, we believe, Christian Scientists, seeing its teachings with clear vision, will gladly exchange an inferior for a superior. Why should they bind themselves too closely to "Mother Eddy," who according to her own theory failed in the highest degree in committing "mortal error"—and hopelessly? Would they not rather take the older and still better teaching of God's Word, and realize that Jesus' resurrection from the dead was the Divine recognition of His perfect sacrifice and a guarantee that His death had accomplished the designed purpose of providing a way for the removal of "mortal error"—death—from all?

Those who accept Jesus' death and resurrection as the satisfaction for sin provided by God, and who believe the Bible teaching that the actual resurrection is to occur after the Second Advent of Jesus, may by faith speak of themselves as already risen with Him. But those who deny that there is any death must of necessity deny that Jesus died, and hence would be, whether intentionally or otherwise, denying the Ransom-Price—the Redemption-Price—[illegible] world.

Cannot our Christian Science friends accept the Redeemer and His work, and by faith look forward to the Restitution, which St. Peter declares will follow our Lord's Second Advent? (Acts 3:19-21.) It will be for all mankind, and will last a thousand years, dealing with "every man in his own order"—bringing them back from the tomb and from all their weaknesses, which are the blemishes of sin—back to the perfect image and likeness of God, as originally represented in Father Adam.

Christian Science healers necessarily acknowledge that there is sickness when they speak of healing; for how could any one be healed who is not diseased? We have already conceded that sickness, sorrow and pain would not be proper for any who are God's people; and that the prevalence of these conditions attests the fact that God is dealing with the world as criminals under death sentence. The question arises, is not the Church an exception to the world in this matter? We answer that those who believe in Jesus' redemptive work and who fully consecrate their lives, are counted as separate and distinct from the world. (John 17:16.) Nevertheless, to the surprise of some, it is not the Divine Plan that those received by God as sons should be released from sickness, imperfection or death.

Take the case of Jesus. "Holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners," the Son of God by a full outward attestation (Matthew 3:17; John 1:14), He was weary, He hungered, He agonized in the Garden, He died on the Cross. Nor were these errors; rather, they were the very things for which He came into the world, as He Himself declared; and without Jesus' suffering as our Redeemer, Adam and his race could never be recovered, according to the Divine arrangement.

The Church, styled in the Scriptures "the Bride of Christ," is invited to "suffer with Him" and to "be dead with Him," that she may thus shape with Him in the best resurrection—to the Divine nature. (2 Timothy 2:11, 12; 2 Peter 1:4.) Therefore the Church should not expect Divine healing, which is so much of Restitution and will belong to the world by and by, after Messiah's Kingdom shall have been established. But Restitution is not the promise to the Church, but a new nature, the Divine; and that Divine nature is obtainable only by participation with the Redeemer in "the sufferings of this present time" and in "the glory to follow."—Romans 8:18, 19.

Neither Jesus nor His Apostles experienced healing—nor did any of the early Church, so far as the record shows. Dorcas, who was raised from the dead, and St. Peter's wife's mother, who was healed of a fever, are not to be considered exceptions to this rule. Nor was this because none of them were sick. Jesus Himself evidently was very sick in Gethsemane, and on the way to the Cross He fainted. St. Paul mentions Trophimus and how sick he was; yet there is no suggestion that the Apostle healed him. St. Paul notes the fact that St. Timothy had dyspepsia; but instead of healing him the Apostle wrote to him advising a certain diet.

We must not think of these things as accidental; for they are in full accord with what is abundantly set forth in the Bible. The healings were done in exceptional cases, for the purpose of convincing the people respecting the Church and for the establishing of the Church. Even Jesus Himself did not heal all who needed aid. At the Pool of Bethesda there were many impotent folk; but He healed one only. (John 5:5-9.) He intimated as that His work was [illegible] example of what Restitution [illegible] the time, [illegible] shall prevail world [illegible] did [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

EIGHTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Dickie, of Montreal, Preached Morning and Evening

Yesterday, the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church celebrated its eighty-first anniversary, having been formed in 1834. The Rev. Dr. Dickie of the Crescent Presbyterian Church of Montreal, preached both morning and evening. Large congregations greeted him on each occasion, and were delighted with his masterly sermons. His evening discourse breathed patriotism throughout, and was a powerful appeal to men to enlist on the side of right and justice. "No cause," said he, "ever succeeded that men did not stand behind, and permit the unseen power to work through them."

His text was taken from Judges 5: 20, "The stars in their courses fought against Sisera," the entire chapter being the famous battle song of Deborah and Barak, the oldest piece of literature in Scripture. Jabin, king of Canaan, had lorded it over Israel for twenty years. He was the first of a race of tyrants. The chief executive officer of Jabin was Sisera, a man cold as ice, and hard as steel, whose life marks an epoch in military history. Every great general has his own military tactics on which he relies for success. Napoleon used the fire from heavy artillery followed up by a charge from the cavalry. Grant employed the plain tactics of hammering away—a wearing down process of attrition. The latest of generals resorts to poisonous gases.

Sisera put his trust in chariots of iron, nine hundred of them, drawn by armoured horses, and filled with armoured warriors, which tore through the ranks of the enemy. No army could stand against Sisera and his chariots.

Jabin and Sisera had had their own way for years, but you cannot make slaves of liberty loving people for ever. Given a leader and an opportune and they will break the bands of oppression.

Israel found their leader in a strange woman, Deborah, who, like Joan of Arc, roused the spirit of patriotism among her countrymen, gathered them from every glen, rushed at their foe with drawn swords as one man, swept the field, routing Sisera and his forces, leaving his chariots of iron battered and bent, causing him to flee in ignominious defeat, to perish at the hand of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite.

When the battle had been won this prophetess sang a song of victory, a strange song, expressing sentiments far short of Christian ideals, but these must be judged by the age in which she lived.

First it rang with passionate indignation against Meroz, a little community high up among the hills, cut off from the main line of Israel. When the bugle calls they heeded it not, deeming it prudence to remain inactive. If Israel won they would share in the spoil. If Israel lost they would escape the wrath of Sisera. When Deborah thought of their treachery she could not restrain her wrath. "Curse ye, Meroz, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof." Unless the people of Meroz were wholly insensate they must have felt the sting of Deborah's song; they must have hung their heads in shame.

In this land, to-day, a great battle cry has been sounded. Much is at stake. The people are responding to the call. Young men are bearing arms; great sacrifices are being made. Yet there are communities and individuals who have not heeded the call. They seem satisfied to live in selfish and slothful indifference, even if the life of the nation is in peril.

The declaration of the text: "The stars in their courses fought against Sisera," recounted how the famous victory which a few unarmed soldiers of Israel gained over the numerous and well equipped warriors of Sisera. On the one hand the forces of Leatheniam and tyranny, on the other those of Israel and God.

God is on the Side of Progress.

The Master of History sees that it is going somewhere; that it arrives at its goal. Over and above the warring forces of man there is an unseen power, an invisible but potential ally. There is a real ruler over the world, one who is not an indifferent spectator, but the mightiest ally of truth and progress.

"Right is right, since God is God,
And right the day must win;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin."

We have many examples of this unseen factor in the doings of man, where the chariots of the Lord have cut down the mighty, and given the victory to the weaker side. We must be strangely ignorant of English history if we cannot recall many such. One splendid example occurred over three hundred years ago in the Elizabethan era. Bacon and Shakespeare were not yet grown to manhood, Milton and Cromwell were unborn, England was the world's hope for civil and religious liberty. A new life was stirring in the nations, which would supersede the mediaevalism of Europe as championed by Phillip of Spain, who threatened to strangle it by setting up the inquisition. It was decreed by nature, however, that Phillip should become its own executioner. He fitted out many of the greatest fleets that had ever been assembled—130 ships of the line, each one greater than the best ships England could produce. He could call on the half of Europe for men. His coffers were full of new-world gold. To repress and destroy this new life, his fleet set sail from Saville, with the blessing of the Pope. It was heralded as the Invincible Armada.

England had 80 ships, only 20 of the line, but she was on the side of righteousness and righteousness. Nature did the work where Drake and Howard left off, and Phillip's ships were wrecked on the rocks of Scotland.

How a Little Garden Helped to Buy A New Spring Suit

The whistle blew for six.

John Oldham wearily removed his apron, threw it across the bench, and slowly found his way to the street. The day had been full of misfortunes. He was engaged on piece-work, and twice he had spoiled the product of his hands. Everything had gone wrong; and if it had been confined to his work he would not have cared so much, but things were not right at home. For the last couple of days his wife had been moody and cranky, and that morning there had been a misunderstanding at the breakfast table, which left him with a heavy heart, for he was at a loss to know the cause of her unusual manner.

Not hearing any noise around the house he approached the kitchen door expecting to find it locked, but it yielded to his unsteady hand. Stepping inside he found his wife seated, with her head buried in her arms on the table.

John knew from experience that silence is gold, so the meal was eaten without a word. Supper over, he strolled out into the garden to smoke his pipe of peace.

"I'd give a good bit to know what's up with Jen," thought he, "but it'll come out of her some of these days—she can't keep it."

The night wore on, and they finally retired, but sleep would not come. Presently Mrs. Oldham took to sobbing. John could stand it no longer.

"For goodness' sake, Jenny, do give up that crying and tell us what's the matter with you."

"Oh, nothing," she wailed.

"There must be something," reasoned he, "and the sooner you spit it out the sooner it'll be over. Is it anything I've done?"

"No, John, it isn't," she sobbed, "but Mrs. Newness, across the road, has a new hat and a new suit, again this spring, and I haven't had a new dud on my back for over three years."

"Oh, that's it, is it?" sighed John, and soon he fell asleep, but his slumbers were light.

Next morning at breakfast John was the first to open up.

"Well, Jenny," he began, "I've been doing a powerful lot of thinking since last night, and, if I were you, I'd get acquainted with Mrs. Newness and find out how she does it. I've heard that her husband earns about the same money as I do, and if they are able to save money, why shouldn't we?"

"What do you take me for? Think I'd belittle myself to ask her a thing like that?"

"Well, it's only a suggestion," mused the husband, "but I've heard she's a great worker in the Central Church, and this would be a chance to put her good works to a test."

With these words as a parting shot he closed the door on his domestic troubles and turned to face those at the shop.

The dishes were a long time getting washed that morning. John's idea set her thinking. No doubt it would be a funny thing to do, but ever since Mrs. Newness came to live across the street she had often wondered how they could afford many little things that she and John had to do without.

* * * * *

The town clock struck three as Mrs. Oldham pulled the doorbell at the Newness house. Steps sounded in the hall, and Mrs. Oldham's heart almost stopped beating.

"Why, Mrs. Oldham, how delighted I am to see you!" was Mrs. Newness' greeting.

"I have been a long time coming," explained Mrs. Oldham, "but, Mr. Oldham insisted that I should call on you today."

"How wise your husband must be," laughed Mrs. Newness.

"That's just Mr. Oldham's opinion of you, and that's why he advised me to come to you for help," stammered Mrs. Oldham.

"For help!" queried Mrs. Newness.

"Well, I'm sure if I can be of any help to you, Mrs. Oldham, the pleasure will be all mine," assured Mrs. Newness.

"Well, in the first place, I'm very human, and, being a woman, I have a weakness for nice clothes, but, for years we seem to have been up against it some way, and no matter how we work our family seems to get ahead. When one reads on the other day in your new spring outfit, why I just collapsed, and—well, the upshot was Mr. Oldham advised me to call on you and find out how you do it, for he says that Mr. Newness does not make any more wages than he does."

"You don't know how delighted I am that you have come over," assured Mrs. Newness. "It was only last month that Mrs. Spender came to me for the same thing, and she feels I have done wonders for her. You see I have made a careful study of house hold management, and I find it is not so much in what you make as in what you save."

"In the first place, take the question of house rent. You pay rent, do you not? Yes—$15.00—well, for a year that equals $180.00. Now, we own our own home—of course it is not all paid for, yet—and our interest payments and taxes amount to $110.00. There is a saving of $70.00 alone. That would buy a good many hats and suits, would it not?"

"Then there is the buying of supplies. Do you buy in quantity? No—well, take sugar, for example; we buy in February, when the price is down, all we need for the year, about 300 pounds, which averages us $5.00 a hundred, making $15.00. Now, by your method of buying in small quantities that many pounds would cost you about $24.00, a saving to us of $9.00—that means two good hats."

"Then take meat. We buy a quarter of beef and lamb, and pork, in the beginning of the winter. The pork I do down in dripping. In all it costs us about $16.00, whereas your meat supplies would cost you in the neighbourhood of $30.00. There is another saving of $12.00. Besides, we have soups two or three times a week in winter."

"In the summer we do not eat much meat, instead we use a lot of vegetables, which brings us to the question of the kitchen garden. There is where Mr. Newness and I shine. I don't think there is anything I delight in more than working in our garden. We have a large hot-bed, which provides us with early vegetables, in fact, our table is scarcely ever without them from May to October, and we have plenty of them."

"Mr. Newness has often wondered why you and Mr. Oldham never make use of your splendid back yard. When you and Mr. Oldham are tasting vegetables in the early season, at ten cents a smell, we are stuffing ourselves with them at practically no cost at all. It not only saves lots of money, getting daily exercise, but it is extremely healthy—thus saving large doctor's bills. Then I always have my husband home in the evenings, as a result his spending money is greatly reduced. I feel proud that I am able to help out."

"You, no doubt, noticed I have said nothing about eggs. This is another very important feature of our financing. We keep a few hens, which supply us with nearly all the eggs we use. We know they are always fresh. The hens eat up all the scraps from the table; in that way nothing is ever wasted. We have kept a pretty strict account of our eggs for the last three years, and we find they cost us eight cents a dozen. Now, yours will cost you about 23 cents a dozen on that average, making a saving to us of 15 cents a dozen. Now, nearly every family uses about two dozen a week, which, for a year, means that on eggs alone we save $15.00.

"Lastly, about the suits and hats. My system is that I get a sewing girl in for a few days each spring and fall, and make up things, which, all told, cost me very little compared with the price I would have to pay at the stores."

In the lull that followed Mrs. Oldham leaned back in her chair, and heaved the first sigh of relief she had made in years.

Mrs. Newness, you bewilder me, but—I think—I can see—light ahead. If I can only carry out what you have so patiently outlined I believe that John Oldham and I will emerge a new man and a new woman."

—Paul Penman.

Our extra money does not get us very far, for when the people down town see a Maple Leaf badge coming they have special rates put into effect at once and where it hurts us most is when it comes to "eats". I would give half my kingdom for a real pie, or tart, as they call them here. The species seems to be extinct in this neighbourhood, for after nights and nights of scouting around restaurants we have failed to locate one of the animals.

The good 22nd Battery we brought from Kingston is now only a memory. When I came back from my leave in Ireland I found 110 men had been drafted to the Royal Horse Artillery and the few who were left have been attached to the 3rd Battery Canadian Artillery Reserve, Depot Brigade, of which I have been made Quarter-Master Sergeant. The boys who were drafted are at Maresfield and Woolwich an dexpect to be sent to the Dardanelles soon. All the non-commissioned officers threw up their stripes and went as gunners in order to get away.

A Zeppelin or two dropped a number of bombs on several places in Kent County on Thursday, but failed to pay us a visit. Precautions have been taken and instructions given as to what to do in case of a raid."

"Because She Can't Cook Like Mother Used To Cook"

NEW YORK, May 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, twenty-three, and a bride of two years, is to have a trial separation for one year because she cannot cook 'like mother used to cook." Justice Supreme Court, Long Island City.

The petition of John J. Wilson for a separation on the ground of cruelty was not allowed. The alleged cruelty, he testified, consisted of his young, auburn haired bride trying to commit suicide six times within four months. She denied this charge, but her husband alleged that her attempts to end her life caused him so much worry and work that they constituted cruelty.

Mrs. Wilson testified that from the beginning of their married life her husband taunted her with statements that she could not make Scotch broth, Scotch stew or Scotch cakes "like his mother used to make." She even went to his mother's home and took a lesson in her Scotch cookery, but still her husband complained. Although she washed her kitchen stove in hot water and soap and polished it three times it failed to "shine like mother's stove."

It also annoyed Mrs. Wilson when her husband told her that when he was single he had money to jingle in his pockets and that the jingle fascinated the girls, but now he had no money.

Justice Garretson said that many young couples now are making trial marriages instead of bearing and forbearing, and added that Wilson, the son of a wealthy contractor, was "a hot headed young Scotchman" and should pay his wife $5 a week while they lived apart for one year.

Parent Circle of Queen Mary School

The Parents' Circle of Queen Mary School held their regular monthly meeting on Friday afternoon, there being a large attendance. Dr. Neal gave a splendid address on "The Care of the Infant to One Year Old," which was very interesting and instructive to all present. At the close a short programme was carried out consisting of a vocal solo by Mrs. Trotter of Vancouver, and a reading by Miss Thomas, which were both enjoyed. There were also present at the meeting delegates from the East City Club, and after a social half-hour, during which lunch was served, one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season was brought to a close.

More Peterboro' Soldiers, etc.

he was working in the Armature Department of the Canadian General Electric Company, where he had been employed for two and a half years. He served three years in the 57th Regiment, having been a sergeant in No. 2 Co., and when the call came for volunteers for the front he joined the 57th detachment. He has a large circle of friends in this city who, with his family, are anxiously waiting for further particulars as to his condition.

LANCE CORP. W. G. ELLIS.

Lance Corporal Wm. Gerald Ellis, officially reported as wounded, was a native of Richmond, Eng., where his parents now reside. Before enlisting with the 57th detachment of the First Contingent he was a Sergeant in No. 5 Company, 57th Regiment.

Lance Corp. Ellis was employed in the accounting department of the Canadian General Electric Company, a short time before enlisting. He was formerly employed as book-keeper at the Bonner Hotel, Montgomery House He has no relatives in Canada.

PTE. JAS. ROBERTSON.

Pte. Jas. Robertson, who was this morning officially reported wounded, resided at 496 Parnell Street, when he enlisted, but since he left with the 57th Detachment of the First Overseas Contingent, his family has removed north of the city, on the Chemong Road.

Pte. Robertson comes from a fighting family, his father being a veteran from India and South Africa. His mother is dead and there are five other members of his family residing at home.

Pte. Robertson was born in Scotland and came to this city when thirteen years of age. He worked for Mr. John Hill, at the grocery business for four years and Mr. Hill, in talking to the Examiner, this morning, during the last few years in the city.

During the last couple in the city Pte. Robertson was connected with the 57th Regiment, where he was a Corporal in No. 4 Company. He was 18 years of age at the time of his enlistment.

PTE. STANLEY GARRETT.

A wire to his parents this morning brought the news that a well-known and popular member of the 57th Regiment was wounded in the Langemarck fight, in the person of Pte. Stanley Garrett of the 57th detachment in the 2nd Battalion. Pte. Garrett is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Garrett, of Otonabee, a short distance east of the city limits, and has been an enthusiastic member of the 57th Regiment for a number of years, being a Sergeant in No. 7 Company, although he went to the front as a private with the 57th detachment. In addition to his parents, there are two brothers and two sisters residing at home. Pte. Garrett was born near Lakefield, but had lived at the present residence of the family for a long time.

PTE. WM. E. MORGAN.

Pte. Wm. E. Morgan, reported in to-day's casualty list as wounded, was a member of the 57th detachment of the 2nd Battalion; he boarded while in this city, at 219 Aylmer Street. He was born at Newport, Mon. Wales, and has no near relatives in Canada. He has been in Peterborough four or five years, and at the time of his enlistment worked at the Peterborough Lock Works. He at one time worked in the Transformer Department of the Canadian General Electric Co. His parents reside at Newport, Mons., Wales.

Pte. Morgan was a member of No. 5 Company, 57th Regiment, where he was a Corporal.

PTE. FRED CLARKE.

Pte. Fred Clarke, who left Peterborough with the 57th detachment, and who is officially reported wounded, was attached to No. 5 Company of the 57th Regiment. He had lived in Peterborough for some time and was employed at the C. G. E. His next-of-kin lives at 61 Fowler street, Sheffield, Eng.

GEORGE MIDDLETON.

In the reported wounding to-day of George T. Middleton of London, Eng., was revealed a friendship based on bonds similar to those which linked Damon and Pythias. Tom Jelly, who was listed with the wounded, on Saturday, and George Middleton were pals from the days back in London. Tom was in love with George's sister, but the match did not especially appeal to the former young man's father. As the result of differences which were really not serious, the men came to Canada and George came with him. The new country called to the young Englishman with a promise of opportunities which were all to rare. They worked with a farmer near Millbrook. Jelly was an [illegible], but he and a gentleman of considerable position. At any rate Tom rang the bell one day at Mrs. Dunkley's, 146 Park street, and a week later George Middleton forsook the soil and arrived in Peterborough. They secured work in the C. G. E., chummed together, belonged to the same Company of the 57th and were almost inseparable companions. Came the stringent times last year, and their positions vanished. Tom secured work with Shadgett, the painter, and at other places sufficient to pay his board. George got a little work with W. Greenslade, on Charlotte Street. Tom's father wrote him in July last, that if he needed money to let him know and it would be forthcoming. A few days later war broke out. Tom and George talked it over. The former elected to enlist and George was with him. The two young Englishmen who had roughed it around Millbrook a few years before, went home as Canadians [illegible] to their fathers land and the spirit bred deeply within them. And through the experience of Valcartier, Salisbury and France they went to Flanders, where, over a week ago they were both wounded in the engagement at St. Julien. Mrs. Dunkley speaks very highly of both these London boys. Tom neither drank or used tobacco in any form, and both were gentlemanly, quiet, industrious chaps. Their friendship seems inspirational.

FRED W. MOCKETT.

Another of to-day's wounded is Fred W. Mockett, whose only relative, a sister, lives at their home, 46 Albany Villa, Hove, Brighton, Sussex, England. He had lived in Peterborough nearly three years, was employed as a labourer at the Little Lake cemetery and boarded at 74 Ware Street, where he was held in high regard; in fact, almost as a son. [illegible] about 24 [illegible], belonged to No. 2 Co. of the 57th Regiment, and enlisted at the first opportunity.

GEORGE BRUNTON.

George Brunton boarded at 189 Reid Street, which has since been vacated. He and Dudley were pals and boarded together there. They worked in the C.G.E. and afford another example of hundreds of young Englishmen who hastened home at the call to arms. He is listed as a Reading man.

PTE. FRANK DUDLEY.

Pte. Frank Dudley is another of the Canadian General Electric Co's. employees who is reported wounded. He was a member of No. 3 Company of the 57th Regiment, and was a friend of Pte. Geo. Bunton, formerly of No. 3 Company, also reported wounded in to-day's list. Pte. Dudley's relatives are in Weymouth, Eng.

Coneybeare Is Given a Chance

On Condition That He Enlist and Repay the Express Company—Petition Largely Signed

LINDSAY, Ont., May 3.—Howard Coneybeare, a messenger, who decamped some weeks ago with a parcel of money belonging to the Canadian Express Company, and who was recently captured in Edmonton and brought back to Lindsay, came up for trial before Judge Harding.

Coneybeare pleaded guilty to all three charges against him. His lawyer, Mr. L. V. O'Connor, in addressing the Court, told the history of the affair, and asked leniency, also presented a petition largely signed by prominent business men and other citizens, asking that accused be dealt with in such a way as to enable him to redeem himself by enlisting with the militia.

The Crown did not press the case unduly against him. Of the $3,000 taken only $676 still remains unaccounted for, and he will repay the Canadian Express Company by giving them part of his pay from month to month.

G. H. Hopkins, K.C., for the Express Company, asked that sentence be imposed so as to discourage others from robbing the company.

The Judge went into the case thoroughly. The tone of the address showed a strong desire to try to reform the youth. "Terror," said his Honour, "never has kept a man honest, and never will. In seventeen years on the Bench I have never sentenced a boy to prison on a first offence. I have always warned them to keep out of trouble and not once has ever come before me again."

To the prisoner he said: "I intend to reform you, and know of no better place than in the strict discipline of the British army. If in future you touch anything that does not belong to you, you will be subject to the full regors of the law. Sentence is suspended."

Necessary bonds were secured to the amount of $400. The accused enrolled in the expeditionary force, having passed successfully the doctor's examination. Judge Harding's decision apparently meets with the approval of all classes.

SUNDAY MORNING SERVICE GEORGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

"Beloved, Let Us Love One Another, For Love is of God"

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a large congregation assembled at the George Street Methodist Church, Sunday morning. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the regular service, when a large number of new members, some by profession of faith and some by certificate of transfer, were received into fellowship with the Church.

The sermon was appropriate to the occasion, its theme being "Love one another," and the text: "Behold, let us love one another; for love is of God," found in 1 John, 4:7.

By way of introduction the Rev. Mr. Fewer said he would not like to sing a "Song of Hate" for anyone, nor yet would be care to sing it for any nation. His theme was in perfect harmony with the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and peculiarly fitting just now when nations are warring against nations.

The life of the writer of the text, St. John, may be divided into three periods; First, companionship with the Lord—he was younger than Jesus. Second, period of public service, culminating in his exile on Patmos and, third, fruitfulness, when he became an aged man and lived at Ephesus. During this period we were given the Gospel of John and the Epistles, all of which exemplify the great principle of love.

This is the tradition which relates that while John was at Ephesus he spent his time passing among the churches or societies, exhorting them as "little children to love one another."

The writings of John express his with catholicity of spirit, suggesting a period of rest and peace within the Church. The great 100 A.D. saw persecution ceasing and the emancipation of the early Church from Judaism. The Christian Church was growing and Christianity was becoming a power in the land.

John uses very little local colouring; his writing was addressed to a catholic church for all time, the emphasis being placed upon the eternal principle of love. "Behold, let us love one another, for love is of God."

His catholicity of spirit is seen in the emphasis he places on the life hidden in Christ. "He that hath the Son, hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God, hath not life." "But these things are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ—the Son of God; and that, believing, ye might have life through His name." This suggests the figure of the branch abiding in the vine, and the thought of the Christian drawing his life from Christ.

This catholicity of spirit did not always mark John, however. We usually think of John as a mild disciple, but early in his career he was referred to as the "Son of Thunder." Grace had done much for him. Love did not always obtain; witness the mother asking first place for her two sons. The catholicity of spirit was the result of growth in life.

"Let us cultivate that spirit. Let us seek, no matter what our tasks, day by day, to develop this same spirit that John developed and it will change our character as it changed his.

Love is the essence of life, the central attribute of duty, coming as it does from One full of wisdom, omnipotent, and all powerful, binding all the relationships of man to Christ, and to his God. "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son, Jesus Christ," "for we love Him because He first loved us." Fellowship with Christ will continue because it is rooted and grounded in love. "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us," which means the whole world.

The practical aim of this spirit is the awakening of love in others. For example, in the home, where love is strong, love will show itself in the affections, binding the members together. Also love of citizenship, binding together the community. This spirit begets love in some one else's heart. It is needed to-day, in this great world strife. It is needed in the Church, in all the relationships of life.

We are not rivals in life. We are brethren, held together by a bond of Christian love.

The absence of love bars the fruitage of your life; it prevents your rendering helpfulness to your fellowmen.

The cultivation of a kindly spirit makes the individual loveable to others and a power among his fellows.

The graces as enumerated in the 13th Chapter of Corinthians all take second place to charity, to love. "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

"Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God."

—Paul Penman.

Major Bennett Remembered In Solemn Memorial Service

Unique and Impressive Service at St. John's Church Last Night Attended by Large Representation of Citizens and Military and Civic Officials.

CANON DAVIDSON'S SERMON

"While it is the saddest moment in my life to see a comrade fall, either dead or wounded, beside me, yet when I think of our glorious cause it seems but to strengthen my determination to put forth every effort so that this cause may prevail." —From Major Bennett's last letter, read in St. John's Church, last night).

To the patriotic tone of the Sunday evensong service at St. John's Church since the outbreak of war was added a rather poignant minor in the impressive memorial last night to the late Major George W. Bennett. The church held a large assembly representative of the citizens including civic and military officials who occupied reserved pews, and throughout the congregation one noticed the khaki service uniforms of men home on short leave. The military effect was heightened by the big beautiful Union Jack draping the chancel arch. The hymns and prayers during the solemn and simple service were deeply mindful of the cost of Canadian pluck and bravery at Langemarck and St. Julien. Special intercession was made for the prisoners, the wounded, the bereaved relatives, and those anxiously awaiting intelligence from husband, son or brother, with the contingent. In his sermon Major the Rev. Canon Davidson, paid an affecting tribute to the late Major Bennett, in whose life and death, he said, there was a message approaching David's charge to Solomon in the text from Kings, "I go the way of all flesh; be thou strong therefore and show thyself a man; and keep the charge of the Lord thy God . . . . that thou mayest prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself."

But the central feature of the service came after the hymn, "Sleep Thy Last Sleep," sung in slow and subdued measures by the choir with tense feeling.

Followed the deeply impressive commendatory prayer of the Anglican ritual used for the dying said with reference to the soldiers now falling on European fields, and with special reference to the late Major Bennett, in a service unique in many respects this moment stood out in its profound solemnity and tensely emotional character affecting the congregation in a prayer, breathed as one breath.

One saw the hurried yesterdays turned back to St. Julien, and as the souls of the brave lifted like flocks of birds from the rolling fields they were attended to the throne of God by these petitions of loved ones at home.

Canon Davidson then produced a package of Major Bennett's letters written to a friend, chiefly from the trenches themselves, and dated 3.15 a.m., 6.15 a.m., 6.30 p.m. and other hours of day and night. Short extracts were given, particularly dwelling on an extract from the last letter, dated April 3rd, as follows:

"[illegible] in my life to see a comrade fall, either dead or wounded, beside me, yet when I think of our glorious cause it seems but to strengthen my determination to put forth every effort so that this cause my prevail."

Picture Was Clear.

Rev. Canon Davidson held that they needed no detailed information as to the final act in his career. First out of the trenches, steadying his men around him by his enthusiasm and good humour and then his final dash. Was there not a clear and distinct echo from such a life of David's last exhortation to strong, true manliness?

The Need of Manliness.

This quality is a national need today. Over 100,000 of our strongest and most enterprising men would soon be at the front; many summoned by such a life as that of Major Bennett There would be no lack of volunteers, but there was the same call to strong manliness in every man whose duty kept him here. First, for the sake of comradeship. How could we from any ordinary or soft arm chair life stretch out a hand to our heroic fellow countrymen in their privations? The Empire called upon us as well as upon them at this critical time for hardy self-denial and self-sacrifice. An ordinary life would not do to-day, and for the sake of our country, our manhood needed to be stiffened up for the country needs to bring Canadian character generally to a higher plane and to enable us to build up Canada.

Common Honesty's Plea.

In both public and private life there was an appalling need of good old-fashioned honesty, straight dealing and honourable conduct. We needed more promptness in small things and self-reliance. In fact we needed the iron qualities of manhood. But an all-round man was also humane and must have in heart qualities developed. And here the speaker referred to the cheery good-mannered and even playful character of Major Bennett. Let men set themselves to wear cheerful countenances, to cultivate the powers of comradeship, to be kindly and merciful. If we had to fight as now let it be a gentleman's fight, utterly putting away from ourselves all thirsting for revenge or reviling our enemies. In day let us be men courageous, unafraid of difficulties, and humane, strong in bigness of heart as well as strong in determination and character.

Among the Visitors.

The military and civic officials present included the following: Colonel Miller and Colonel Haliday, Lt.-Col. Walker, Major Cameron, Major G. E. Hall of 39th Batt., C.F.A., C.E.F., Major V. Eastwood, Major J. E. Eastwood and Major Burnham, Capt. Lech, Capt. Watt, Capt. Lankford, Capt. Hickson, Capt. Park, Lieutenants J. Brighton, Worth, D. Smith, and Lieut. Hanna of Rifles of Canada, Mounted Rifles, also Major Burke, all the aldermen, also civic officials and employees. His Worship Judge Hayden was also present, as were military associations [illegible] Johnny and Tommy Atkins present in a particularly [illegible] for a service memorial [illegible] Amid the hymns [illegible] most appropriate. Coming directly after the impressive moment when the solo and chorus, "Arm, Arm Ye Brave," from Judas Maccabaeus, sung by Mr. Tom Ward, was exceptionally stirring in its position. The same was true of the next anthem, "We Come in Bright Array," and in the verses from "O Canada" and "God Save the King." Noticeable, too, were the strains from Beethoven's march funebre at the opening and Chopin's funeral march at the close of the service.

And on leaving the church one was struck by the photographs of Major Bennett in the vestibule. One was taken in London, Eng., just before embarking for France, another was a large picture of the farewell service in Central Park last summer in which the late Major's stalwart figure stands out conspicuously.

BERLIN, May 3.—Official orders mobilizing the remainder of the Landsturm were promulgated to-day. The mobilization is to be finished by May 12th.

AMSTERDAM, May 3.—The Kaiser accompanied by Prince Henry of Prussia, visited Antwerp on Saturday and inspected the reconstruction of the fortifications, and the new submarine yard. The Antwerp newspapers were prohibited until to-day making mention of the visit, The authorities feared that an attempt might be made at assassination.

NO BOYCOTT

AMSTERDAM, May 3.—The suggestion that a general boycott of all American goods be inaugurated in retaliation for the action of the United States in supplying ammunition goods to the allies, is meeting with no encouragement in official quarters in Germany, according to the advices from Berlin. These advices point out that such a boycott would have very litte force under the present conditions, and might prove to be a boomerang later on. The Hamburgher Machrichten prints an editorial appeal to its readers to be careful. "We must not take any sudden action in dealing with America, no matter how much we may dislike her," says the paper, "as we need her after the war, even though she now is favouring our enemies."

ATTACKS REPULSED

LONDON, May 3.—There was given out to-day a British official statement dated May 3rd, and reading as follows

"At 7 pm., on May 1st, the Germans attacked Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, and yesterday evening they attacked in the neighborhodo of St. Julien. These attacks were both repulsed. We lost no ground and we inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in spite of the fact that he again used poisonous gases emitted both from tubes in the trenches, and from specially manufactured shells. A German aeroplane yesterday afternoon was chased by one of our machines to within rifle range of our trenches, and then brought down by our fire."

Fist Fight Between Herzog And Rigler

National League Game at St. Louis Featured by a Battle—New York Americans Are at the Top of Their League With Giants at Bottom of the National

ST. Louis May 1.—Manager Herzog of the Reds and Umpire Rigler staged a regular fist fight in the seventh inning of to-day's game between the Cardinals and Reds. Herzog argued with Rigler in the seventh after the umpire called Leach out at second when Huggins worked the hidden ball trick on Tommy. Rigler waved Herzog to the clubhouse. Charlie continued his verbal battle, and then the umpire, tearing off his mask, crashed it against Herzog's face. In an instant the two men were mixing around the home plate and fists were flying against eyes and noses. Police rushed from the stands, and players on both sides joined in the scramble. Herzog suffered a bleeding nose and discoloured eye, while Rigler was severely gashed in the foot, where he claimed Herzog spiked him. Herzog denies this, claiming that Killifer accidentally spiked the umpire. Killifer bears out Herzog in this respect. Rigler and Herzog will appear in court Monday to prosecute each other, they said.

The Cardinals won the game by 9 to 5, overcoming an early lead when they scored eight runs on nine hits in the fourth and fifth. Score:

At Philadelphia.— More hard luck trailed McGraw when he opened his first series of the year here to-day. McGraw not only lost another ball game, but he is now minus the services of Pitcher Poll Perritt, who sustained a broken nose in a collision with Bobby Byrne before the game. The Phillies won by 4 to 2. The accident will keep Perritt out of the game for a month. Score:

Chicago, May 1.—The White Sox continued their winning streak to-day when Russell held the Tigers to two hits. The count was 5 to 0. Ty. Cobb fanned and became so angry that he threw his bat in the air and spoke his mind about Umpire J. Nallin in calling one of Russell's curves a strike. He was waved to the club house. Score:

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL NEWS

Six Hundred Scottish Footballers Join the Colours —A Record

It is estimated that close on six hundred Scottish junior footballers have joined the colours.

Queen's Park Club, who are at the bottom of the Scottish League, was founded in 1867 and for the first seven years of their existence did not lose a goal—changed days.

Lancashire has been represented in the English Cup final on nineteen occasions and thirteen times have Lancashire clubs collared the trophy.

Only R. S. McColl has ever scored six goals in a Scottish League match. In English this record has been equalled in a league game by Bloomer, Woodward, Halse and Hibbert.

Donald - Coleman, Aberdeen's International back, is coming to America. Let us hope it is to that part of it called Canada.

Alex. Smith, the veteran left-winger of Glasgow Rangers, has retired from the game after 21 years' service with the Ibrox Club. This is a record that may never be equalled.

As a farewell game Rangers played Notts County on 17th April and strange to say it was against the Notts team that he played his first game 21 years ago.

The outstanding feature of Swindon's 6 to 0 victory over Watford, was the scoring of all the goals by Bown. The scoring of six boals consecutively is a feat to be proud of and one which constitutes a record for Swindon and the Southern League. In modern years this total has in no way been approached by any played in the Southern League, while six in succession by Bloomer is, we believe, a record for the chief leagues.

While neither can be compared with Bown's extraordinary performance there are two other players of the Swindon Club who have exceeded this total but not equalling six in succession. Alec. Boggie obtained eight goals against Ilford in a Southern League match during 1908-9, and T. Sanderson is credited with scoring nine goals against Grays United in a subsequent season. The latter, however, was not in a League game. Neither of these performances can be compared with Bown's for the opposition on each occasion was not great, while in his case it was against the League leaders.

The Irish League have asked the Scottish League to recognize each other's agreements, and it is believed the Scottish League will grant the request the Irish "open door" seems to be on the point of being closed.

Gough, the Sheffield United custodian, has only been beaten three times in thirteen Cup ties.

W. Garraty, the old Aston Villa player, is lying seriously ill at Birmingham with pneumonia.

Phillies' Spurt Does Not Worry Miracle Man

NEW YORK, April 30.—George Stallings, manager of the world's champions, does not take the Phillies' spurt seriously. He says that Moran has a good ball club and one that will almost surely land in the first division, and possibly in second place, but as for beating the Braves for the pennant, that is out of the question, according to George.

To date Stallings has been experimenting with young pitchers, and he believes that his club could have won several games that have been lost and he wanted to send his first-string men to the pitching bill.

The 21-player limit goes into effect on May 1, and at present Stallings has 25 men on the list, not counting Fred Mitchell, his first lieutenant. He does not want to part with any of his men, but realizes that he must, and it is for this purpose he has been experimenting.

Mitchell Head Scout.

Mitchell, who has ben given full credit for the wonderful work of the Braves' pitching staff, will no longer appear on the coaching lines, but will act as head scout and coach in the mornings when the team is in Boston.

Dick Egan has been purchased from Brooklyn and makes it all the harder for Stallings to cut down. At present he has five outfielders. They are Magee, Connolly, Moran, Cather and Gilbert. One of them must go, with chances favouring Gilbert, because of Cather's hitting and ability to play third base. One infielder will have to go also unless Stallings can cut off three pitchers, and at present that looks like a hard job. Either Tradgresser or Bruggy will be cut loose, with chances favouring the retention of Bruggy. Stallings likes his fighting spirit and headwork, and intimated that Tradgresser would go back to the Southern League.

Interesting Pitchers on Roster.

Seven pitchers are on the Boston roster at present, and two, and possibly three, will be released on May 5. James, Rudolph, Tyler, Hughes, Strand, Hess and Davis are certainties, but the latter will not join the team until the middle of June, when he is graduated from the Harvard Law school. Aside from pitching, Hess is first substitute for Schmidt at first base, while Strand is looked upon as the best pinch hitter on the club.

With his team working as mapped out above, Stallings believes that the Braves will break all records for number of games won in the National League. The present record is held by the Chicago Cubs and was made in 1910, but Stallings says that his club will easily pass this mark. The Giants are looked upon as the most formidable opponent, though George admits that the work of the Phillies is more than a flash and that Moran's team might possibly keep up in the race for three months.

Tobacco For The Soldiers

A Chance to Send Comforts to the Men on the Firing Line

Peterborough, May 3, 1915.

Dear Sir,—I have been requested by the Hon. Secretary of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Tobacco Fund of Central House, Kingsway, W.C., to state the need of such comfort for the men in the firing line, of whom three-fourths are smokers. Twenty shillings provides twenty men with a half-pound each.

I shall be very glad to forward any subscriptions that may be given. All cheques or orders may be made out to the Hon. Secretary as above, and should be crossed "Barclay & Co.'

Any regiment or ship to which it is desired that the tobacco be sent may be stated, and a post card addressed to the donor is put in every parcel that he may receive a grateful word of thanks from our brave comrades in the firing line.

Yours truly,
C. E. JAMIESON,
594 Aylmer St.

Voice of The People

Editor Examiner,—The letters of Major Bennett seem to have been unusually striking and picturesque in character judging from the few printed and extracts read and referred to at the memorial service last night. Surely very few letters were written, like some of his, actually in the trenches. Could not the portions of his letters of public interest be gathered together and published for the benefit of his many friends?

Yours, etc.,
Comrade.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It appears from what Kitchener, French, and all the experts say, that the only factor in retarding the progress of Kitchener's drive against the Germans, is the want of sufficient munitions of war, although nearly all the factories in the Old Country, with their artisans, are used for the manufacture of them and are working overtime. It is also stated that one artisan so employed is doing even more in the Allies' cause than the soldier who is fighting at the front.

That being the case, why is there not a move made in Canada to turn our factories over to the manufacture of such munitions, and at the same time give work to men unemployed, especially in Peterborough, where we have so many factories well adopted for such a purpose, notable the Canadian General Electric Works. We could aid in a less degree by sending our unemployed artisans to the Motherland to help along the patriotic work. Canada should do all she can in this, and that at once.

Yours truly,
A CANADIAN VOICE.
May 3rd, 1915.

"EARLY BIRDS" AT STONEY LAKE

Some of Those Who "Hit the Trail" Early in the Season

For the majority of people the season at Stoney Lake is rather short —usually the two months of July and August. If it were not for the laws of the Education Department many could remain up the lakes much longer. But its rules are cast iron, the health of the child occupying only second and third place, and the children must be rushed away from the summer resorts at the very time when they could enjoy the most—for September is the best outing month of the whole year —and be packed in stuffy rooms to cram their brains (and stunt their bodies.)

There are a few, however, who are able to enjoy its charms for several months, some remaining as long as six months at a stretch. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McWilliams and their daughter, Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stubbs and son Edgar, of Peterborough, and Mr. Aikens and family of Toronto, usually go north the first week in May and remain through to the end of October or the first week in November.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fraser of Hamilton have been at Burleigh Falls for some weeks past. They are building a large summer home on the second island from the falls, and are rushing it to completion. They expect to have it ready to occupy about the time of the [illegible] season.

Mrs. J. W. McKinney of Bewkley, Pa., will arrive at Stoney Lake about the middle of May, and will occupy Mr. John Crane's cottage for a month, while their new cottage is being completed. Last fall Mr. McKinney purchased that splendid point opposite Mr. Tanner's island from Mr. Crane, and Mr. Norrish of Lakefield is busily engaged erecting a mountain bungalow similar in design to that of Dr. Barnes, Jr.

Mr. Cox and Mr. Cooper's families expect to occupy "Dubes Domum" about the 3rd week in May.

Mr. Robert Harstone has taken the Gordon cottage for another summer, and his family will likely go there early in May.

Mr. John Carlisle, than whom there is no more industrious fisherman on Stoney Lake, expects to go up soon. He had a severe attack of "Grippe" this winter, and feels the need of Stoney Lake air to restore him to his usual health and strength.

Mr. Lennox of Lakefield, usually finds his way to Crowe's Landing early in the season to get his hostelry, "Belvidere" in shape.

There are two families of perennials in Stoney Lake, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter and Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, who live there the year round.

—Monty Le Rock.

T. A. S. NOTES

The regular meeting of the amalgamated societies was held yesterday afternoon and from reports from the different reports presented a great stimulus has been given temperance work by the amalgamation. Accommodation has been secured at Riverside park for the athletic section. Practice will begin on Tuesday evening next, when a large turn out is expected. All kinds of athletic sports will receive attention, including lacrosse, baseball and track work. It is the intention to hold a camp at T.A.S. park, for which arrangement is already being made. The first of July picnic also received some attention and plans are under way to make it a huge success. During the meeting addresses along temperance lines were given by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Dean McColl, Chancellor Phelan and others. All urged the members to great efforts, looking forward to building up the membership.

A new feature has been introduced in what is known as the Hospital committee, whose duty consists in visiting the sick, strangers as well as residents of the city, and is proving quite a success. The Board of Mangament have under consideration plans for improving the accommodation in the rooms, adding a reception room for those who wish to talk over current events, transact business or otherwise pass a pleasant afternoon or evening.

His Lordship at both masses announced that the gardening scheme in St. Peters' school is in full swing and already forty-five plots have been laid out, and judging from the progress already made, its ultimate success is assured. It is the intention to hold a fair in the fall, at which the various articles grown will be on exhibition, for which suitable prizes will likely be given.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Deprecate Holding an Election—Resolution Will Be Forwarded to Party Leaders

A meeting of the Ministerial Association of Peterborough was held in the Y.M.C.A. this morning. After discussing the likelihood of a Federal election, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"In view of the serious situation of the world war in which Canada is involved, also of the frequent statements in the public press that the government contemplates an election in the near future, it is resolved that we, the Ministerial Association in Peterborough, depreciate holding an election, and request the government in view of the present emergency, not to involv the people in political strife at the present time and that we further call upon Liberals and Conservatives to cease all efforts to secure party advantage until the war is terminated."

It was agreed to forward a copy of the resolution to Premier R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Leader of the Opposition.

Total Abstinence Is Strongly Urged

In the Anglican Churches Throughout the City

Yesterday in the Anglican churches throughout the city a letter was read from the Bishops of the churches, concerning a resolution that was passed in Port Arthur on April 14th. The resolution contained the following:

"The Bishops of the Church of England in Canada strongly recommend all members of the church throughout the Dominion to abstain entirely from the use of alcoholic drink as a beverage during the present war, and also refrain absolutely from treating others."

The Sanitary Inspector.

The residential status of Sanitary Inspector Spence will come up for discussion at to-night's meeting of the Council. It is hardly likely that the Council will ask the Inspector to move inside the city limits, judging by the opinion that is heard on all sides.

The intersection of Park and Charlotte Streets is being widened in order to accommodate the street car tracks as well as vehicular traffic. New tracks and switches are being laid at this point.

TEMPERATURE WAS ONE DEGREE ABOVE FREEZING

White Frost Last Night—Some Wheat in Peterboro' County is Up Nearly a Foot—The Hay Crop

The minimum temperature throughout the night was one degree above freezing. There was a little white frost, but not of sufficient intensity to injure vegetation. The cool spell of the last few days will have the effect of retarding the abnormal growth, thereby enabling the coarse grains such as wheat, etc., to stool out to better advantage. The extreme heat of the early part of last week brought the wheat on almost too rapidly. In same places in Otonabee and Smith township, it shot up to a height of from ten inches to a foot. Oats were reported to be up several inches, and the grass seeds such as timothy, clover, etc., are putting in an appearance. Most of the farmers will welcome the cool wave that has set in providing it odes not register frost.

The Hay Crops.

Prospects are good for a much better hay crop than was the case last year. The meadows are looking fine with the exception of a few that suffered from the depredations of grasshoppers.

A number of farmers in Otonabee and Smith townships have sowed a part of their root crop, principally mangolds. It will be nearly another three weeks or a month before it will be safe to sow corn and turnips.

Be Careful About Those Bonfires

Chief Howard Issues a Warning to Citizens—Three Fires Saturday Night

The Fire Department had a pretty good start for the first day of May when they were called to three fires on Saturday evening.

The first was at 7:30 p.m. to the rear of the Bethany Tabernacle. Some one had started a bonfire too close to the building and for a time the building was threatened. The department succeeded in putting the blaze out before any damage had been done.

The Chief took occasion to read the "riot act" to the neighbours about the practice of starting bonfires too close to buildings. There is a city by-law which states that no non-fire shall be started within 100 feet of any building in the city. This is being violated in many instances, and some time the result might be very disastrous. Chief Howard promises that if he finds anyone doing it from now on, prosecutions will follow.

Chimney Fire.

At 9:31 p.m. a chimney fire was reported at the south end of Stewart street. There was no damage.

Dropped Cigarette.

Someone carelessly dropped a lighted cigarette through the grating in front of Messrs. Merrell and Meredith's store. A blaze was started amongst the rubbish and the joists of the building caught fire. The Fire Department received the alarm at 11:20 p.m.

There was lots of smoke, but very little damage. Woolworth and Co.'s store was filled with smoke, and in that direction the damage has not been estimated.

Forcing of The Straits Will Not Long Be Delayed Say British Officers

Peninsula Neck Has Been Seized---British Troops From Enos Land on Gallipoli Peninsula---Maido's Forts Destroyed.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Tuesday, May 4.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Sofia telegraphs that the allies in their campaign on the Peninsula of Gallipoli have occupied Karadaf. The Mail suggests that this name is identical with Kurudagh on the north neck of the Gallipoli Peninsula, and it assumes that the force that occupied this place is that which landed at Enos fro mthe Gulf af Saros.

According to the Daily Mail's Athens correspondent, reports from Tenedos state that important engagements are in progress on the peninsula. The Turks are said to be strongly entrenches in positions defended with barbed wire entanglements. It is stated that among the prisoners taken by the allies there are many Christians who were forced to enlist in the Turkish army.

Some British officers are reported to have expressed the opinion that the forcing of the straits will not be long delayed owing to the renewed vigorous shelling of the forts by the allied fleet.

MAIDOS OCCUPIED.

The landing of British troops continues at two new unnamed points on the peninsula. The forts defending Maidos are said to have been destroyed by a bombardment from the land side, and the British advance force is said to have occupied Maidos after it had been practically destroyed by shells. The Turkish losses were very great at this point.

Reports from Dedeagatch state that the steamers Magda and Virginia have been captured outside the port by warships of the allies, and their cargoes of goods destined for Turkey have been seized.

BOMBARDMENT IS CEASELESS.

Hugh Martin telegraphs to the Daily News from Mendros, Tenedos, under date of May 3: "Day and night fierce fighting continues in the Dardanelles. The ships of the fleet are working in shifts and the bombardment is ceaseless. In the words of a naval officer, 'We are battering our way through the Narrows, and it is bound to be a tough job.' In spite of the desperate resistance, steady progress has been made both on land and sea. Most of the vital points of the enemy's defences are now strongly invested

SHELLED BOSPHORUS FORTS.

"On the 1st, our Black Sea fleet bombarded the forts of the Bosphorus. The fire was very efficacious and caused great explosions, and set fire to Fort Elaina. The Turkish batteries replied vigorously, but without result. We also destroyed a steamer with a cargo of coal and sank two large sailing boats."

"The allies' operations against the ardanelles are developing favourably," according to information reaching here from different sources," says the Athens correspondent of the Havas Agency. "Heavy fighting continues, in which the Turks are constantly being worsted. The guns of the fleet lend efficacious aid to the troops. The allies have occupied several villages, which were in ruins. The Turks, it seems, burn all villages as they retire."

Various special despatches from Mitylene reaching London by way of Athens confirm the report that the allies have occupied Maidos, on the Dardanelles, 22 miles south of the town of Gallipoli.

The British Admiralty has as yet made no comment on these reports.

CLAIM TO HAVE HIT SHIPS.

The following Turkish report of the operations in the Dardanelles was received from Constantinople to-day: "The enemy has been unable to improve his situation on the Gallipoli peninsula because of our successful attacks. Our artillery on the outer front at Sedd-el-Bahr gives promise of accomplishing good results. The French armoured cruiser Henry IV., while expending a heavy fire against our batteries yesterday, was struck by ten shells. The ship has not returned to-day. The British armoured ship Vengeance, which our fire had damaged, has retired. Insignificant attacks made on the narrows last night by enemy torpedo boats were repulsed easily. The Russian Black Sea fleet, after demonstrating for an hour before the Bosphorus, sailed northward."

Officers Shot Down the Men Being Rescued

Special Morning Cable:

LONDON, May 4.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Harwich telegraphs as follows: "Rather than allow British boats to rescue men from the sinking German torpedo boats in the North Sea on Saturday German officers shot as the men jumped, and it is believed that five were killed in this way. One of the most conspicuous officers who fired on the men until one of the torpedo boats sank was the captain who committed suicide after being rescued.

"The Germans showed great fear of their fate. Apparently they expected barbarous treatment, and when they found they were to be treated differently their joy was unconcealed.

"The Capadrid torpedo boats were terribly battered by the guns of the British destroyers, which showered 4-inch shells on the two vessels for an hour. A few German shells dropped close to the British ships, but hardly one struck home. Before they sank the German boats presented a terrible sight. The funnels had been shot away, there were great holes in the decks, and the hulls were little more than wreckage."

MANY GERMANS FROM CANADA OPPOSE OUR MEN

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 4. — A reminder that Canada has sheltered aliens who are now fighting in the German trenches was revealed by an incident related yesterday by a private of the Royal Montreals who is now wounded in the hospital at Cardiff. On one occasion he heard a guttural voice in the German trenches call out in good English: "Are any of you fellows from the Old Brewery Mission?" The reply was in the form of a few rounds from the rifles in the Canadian trenches. The same private says there seemed to be in the enemy trenches many Germans who had lived in Canada. He also related a story that a German wearing the uniform of a Canadian officer had been arrested while examining a big gun, and was shot as a spy.

REMAIN AT PEACE WITH ALL NATIONS

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, May 4.—Speaking at a banquet here to-day on the occasion of the launching of a new warship, King Gustaf said:

"It is my sincere hope that with the aid of the Almighty we may remain at peace with all nations, but the danger that we may be drawn into the present great war is no less now than at the outbreak of the war."

Despite Appalling Losses Enemy Has Not Abandoned Offensive

Had Launched Further Assaults But Were Repulsed on Every Hand---640 Cars of Wounded

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 4.—The Daily Mail's correspondent in Rotterdam telegraphs as follows:

"The Germans continue their attempts to creep forward towards Ypres. They attacked southeast of St. Julien Sunday, but met with a fierce resistance at the hamlet of Fortuin. They have made desultory attacks northeast of Ypres and also against French troops.

"There is no sign that the Germans intend to abandon the offensive now that they have had time to rest and to bring up fresh troops. Despite the appalling losses which they suffered in the grim struggle for possession of the road to Calais, they have not turned from their purpose.

"A German observation balloon which drifted across the frontier near Sluys and was brought down by the fire of Dutch soldiers, was found to be unoccupied."

GERMANS ADMIT 12,000 KILLED.

Percival Phillips telegraphs to the Express: The German staff in Belgium admit that they lost 12,000 dead in the battle of Ypres. Some idea of the enormous flood of wounded which poured across Belgium last week may be gathered from the fact that on Thursday alone 16 trains, each of 40 carriages filled with serious cases, passed through Bruges on route to Cologne. Southeast of Bruges and west of the Bruges-Courtrai road, Flanders appears to be literally packed with waiting divisions bivouacked in the fields and billeted in every building, while the country-side is dotted with new artillery parks.

FRENCH HOLD MOUNTAIN TOP.

Hartmanns-Weiler, Alsace, April 30, via Paris, May 4.—Shells, great and small, fell upon this spur in the Vosges mountains at the rate of from sixty to eighty-four a minute for hours last Monday after French mountaineers had carried the crest by assault.

Twice before had the Alpine troops won the summit of the mountain and been forced from it by obstinate German attacks. This time, they clung to the craters made by mines and shells, and to the scant shelter of abandoned trenches and dugouts.

When the shell fire suddenly stopped and the Germans from their trenches below swept upward again the Alpine riflemen, supported and reinforced, were just able to threw back attack after attack.

The Germans persisted with the utmost courage, and the fighting after the first rushes was with the bayonet. Dead and wounded fell so thickly that the bodies touched one another. Presently the assaults died down and the Germans sank into their trenches on the slopes. They have remained there since, while day and night the French work at enlarging and deepening their trenches and digging and roofing in shell-proof shelters — organizing their position, as the French say.

This is the culmination of three months of violent efforts by one side to hold and by the other to take up eminence dominating the plain of Alsace.

Infant Was Drowned In Water Pail

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellis Fell Into Pail—Women's Relief Committee Report

HAVELOCK NEWS

Special to The Examiner:

HAVELOCK, May 4.—Olive, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Ellis of Rockdale, met an untimely death on Monday, when she was drowned by falling into a pail of water, which was placed on the floor. The funeral took place at Rochdale, yesterday. The bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their affliction.

FOR THE KIDNEYS

A Guaranteed Treatment, Money Back If It Fails

Kidney diseases are more prevalent than is generally supposed, and are not always recognized as such. What was at first but a slight derangement of the kidneys often results in indigestion, rheumatism, anaemia, chronic and very painful headache, neuralgia, eye weakness, and other diseases, of a most aggravating type. Therefore it is highly important and absolutely necessary that the kidneys and the urinary system be kept in an active and healthy condition.

After a thorough experience with the most successful forms of kidney treatment, we are confident that the one remedy which embraces the most desirable, safe and efficacious curative qualities, so necessary to the successful treatment and positive eradication of kidney diseases in general, is Rexall Kidney Pills.

We are so positive that Rexall Kidney Pills are unexcelled, and that they will do all we claim, that we sell them with our own personal guarantee that they shall not cost the user a cent if they should fail to give entire satisfaction.

We particularly recommend Rexall Kidney Pills, for kidney ailments that resist ordinary treatment. We believe, if taken according to directions with regularity and persistency for a reasonable length of time, they will positively remove all symptoms and effect permanent relief.

Surely we could not more strongly demonstrate our faith in Rexall Kidney Pills, and our generous guarantee should convince the most sceptical that we would not dare make such a statement except we know what we try Rexall Kidney Pills at our risk. Price 50c. Sold in this community only at our store,—The Rexall Store.

"I swan," the farmer's wife replied,
'Can't be they tied the sack.
But, never mind, we've heaps of mice,
And others of that ilk.
So guess we'd just as well be nice
And give old 'Tom' some milk."

OTTAWA, May 3.—The shipment of wheat, flour and a large number of other agricultural commodities has been prohibited to the United States except when for consumption in that country, and Customs officers at ports of exit are required before allowing exportation to see that bills of lading for such shipments are made out to specified consignees and for consumption in the United States only. Exportation to certain foreign countries through the United States is also allowed, but a license of dispensation from the Customs Department must be delivered to the Customs officer at the port of exit from Canada before exportation is permitted.

First Shipment Out of What Used to Be Called "Barren North."

MONTREAL, May 4.—The first car of wheat ever shipped out of the Peace River country, in northern Alberta, has arrived at Winnipeg, Grand Trunk Pacific officials report.

It was grown at Vanrena, but how the wheat got from Vanrena to Peace River Landing is not known at the present time. From Peace River Landing to Edmonton the trip was made by the Edmonton, Dunvegan & British Columbia Railway line. It was then transferred to the G.T.P. and forwarded to Winnipeg.

FACTS ABOUT BERLIN

Berlin, with its 2,071,000 inhabitants, is the sixth largest city in the world where population is concerned. New York, London, Paris, Tokio, and Chicago rank before it in the order named.

The Germans go in for large departmental stores. In the main streets of Berlin stand huge, palace-like buildings in which anything from a pin to a motor car can be obtained.

Police supervision in Berlin is extremely strict. A newcomer to the city is summoned by the police and called upon to give a history of himself. If his statements are unsatisfactory he is requested to go back to where he came from. Strangers in Berlin are provided by the police with a list of "Don'ts."

An airship continually patrols over Berlin, and the population gather in the streets to cheer it. Amongst the wealthy class it is a fad to pay exorbitant fees for the privilege of taking a flight in a patrolling Zeppelin.

Berlin women are not worried by the servant problem. If a maid is discharged at three o'clock at four there will be a dozen girls clamoring for the place. Every servant has to carry a little book which contains testimonials from her various employers.

Decoration Won by Canadian

THE MILITARY CROSS

This magnificent decoration was won by Pte. A. C. Innis, of Port Arthur, Ont., who, at the commencement of the war, joined an Irish regiment and went to the front. Pte. Innis took command of a company after all the officers had been put out of action, and led the men to a couple of the enemy's posts, which they captured. For this gallant exploit Pte. Innis received the Military Cross.

Curious Military Facts

Do you know that there are no Welsh cavalry regiments, that there are seventy-three regiments of infantry, that the King's Royal Rifle Corps boasts forty battale honors—more than any regiment—that Lancashire provides fhore regiments than any other county, and that six English counties provide no regiments at all?

GERMAN SHOT DEAD

Attempted to Escape From Guards at Montreal

Montreal, May 3—A German prisoner attempting to escape yesterday was shot dead by guards. One hundred and sixteen Germans held as war captives were being taken from Montreal detention headquarters to be sent to Spirit Lake, when, at Bonaventure Station one broke from the ring of guards and attempted to dash to liberty. The guards called upon him to stop. When he kept on running the order to fire was given. The fleeing man fell dead.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughter and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Boers Captured Germans

Cape Town, May 3—The following official statement regarding the operations in South Africa was issued yesterday:

"General MacKenzie's mounted force, which was designated to cut off the Germans, who retreated northward along the railway, inflicted a serious defeat on them in the vicinity of Gibeon. The Union forces, by destroying the railway north of Gibeon, captured the whole railway train, a number of transport wagons, a great quantity of live stock, two field guns, several Maxims and 200 prisoners."

Fighting in Mexico

Washington, May 3—Gen. Villa telegraphed his agent here last night that the battle between his forces and Obregon's near Leon lasted "almost four hours with complete success." Villa says: "Our losses were 20 dead and 30 wounded. The enemy was driven back. We inflicted a loss of more than 200 killed and captured four machine guns and other munitions of war. The enemy has lost in these last fights more than 800 dead and many wounded, eight machine guns and much war material."

No Election Date Yet

Sir Robert Borden made the following statement yesterday: "The announcement that Parliament has been dissolved and that elections were to be held on the 28th of June is absolutely inaccurate and unfounded. Parliament has not been dissolved. The subject has not been definitely considered, and any report to the contrary is entirely imaginative."

London, May 3—A casualty list issued last evening by the British War Department shows that during the landing of British troops in the operations against the Dardanelles, that is between April 25 and April 30, 26 men of the British fleet were killed and 53 wounded.

Winnipeg, May 3—Major-General Steele, M.V.O., A.D.C., commander of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, leaves for the front this week. Lieut. Harwood Steele, General Steele's only son, will accompany him.

Chatham, May 3—Fire supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion destroyed two warehouses and two freight cars in the Grand Trunk yards Sunday morning. The total damages will amount to over $20,000.

BLUCHER WAS FAILURE

Authentic Story of How Germans Were Fooled Into Building Cruiser

Many stories have been told of the ill-fated cruiser Blucher, Germany's "reply" to the Dreadnought. But this, from the Navy and Army, is probably the true version: When the Dreadnought was laid down at Portsmouth, there were three other British ships of the same type laid down up north, only they were the first of the battle cruisers—the invincible, inflexible and Indomitable. The estimate for the year gave the shipbuilding program as one battleship, three armored cruisers, and the only notice taken was that it was not enough for our requirements. The armored cruisers were generally accepted as being a repetition of the "Shannon" class, and the battleship as another "Lord Nelson."

Then suddenly rumors were spread about the latter. It was going to be quite different from any other battleship; no one was allowed to go anywhere near the building slip, while building operations were pushed forward at phenomenal speed. An air of mystery surrounded the whole thing, till at last the attention of the whole world became concentrated upon it. That Germany made very desperate efforts to penetrate the veil is well known; that she failed is pretty well proved by the fact that her own battleship program was held in abeyance till the features of the British ship became known.

Not so her cruiser program, and the Blucher was the resultant armored cruiser, which was a great advance on the British Shannons, because it really embodied the all-big-gun ship idea, carrying twelve 8.2-inch, with a 25-knot speed, as against the four 9.2-inch, and ten 7.5-inch of the "Shannons" with their 23-knot speed. That Germany thought she had stolen a march on the British is certain, and her writers were jubilant. Meanwhile, the whole world talked "Dreadnought," and the three armored cruisers building up north were entirely forgotten. When these particulars at last became known, it was discovered that they carried eight 12-inch guns and had a speed of 28 knots, and so Germany had been bluffed into spending a million-and-a-quarter on a ship of no use, and which is now at the bottom.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

TWO GAMES PLAYED

Love and the National Pastime Contest, but the Former Triumphs.

By CRITT TRUEMAN.

"Play ball!" the umpire's voice rang ut, and two games were on, one be- ween the Yellow Feet and the Black ags, and the other between Maisie aughlin and Bessie Houston. In the st game a pennant was in question; the latter the happiness of two, ost three lives.

Ralph Thurston, the star twirler of e Black Flags, was in the box, for e Yellow Feet had the first half, d two pairs of eyes were fastened on s flushed face. There were other es, of course, but those belonging the girls already mentioned alone tracted him. He knew it was not ght that he should even know they ere there, for a good player is blind, af and dumb to everything outside e diamond, but then Thurston was fter all a man, and a rather young e at that, and his heart was waver- g between the two. All summer ng Bessie had come out to the home rounds of the Black Flags to root for em, and her blue eyes followed ev- ry play with experienced devotion. A onth before Maisie had become ac- uainted with her, and of course with e Black Flags, and then the game as on between the girls. Maisie was ashing, stylish and was backed by a ealthy father. Bessie was a dear ttle thing, who earned her own liv- g in a department store. Before ad made up his mind that Bessie nd he would sign up for a life game, ut since then, he did not know. The ast inning had yet to be played.

Realizing that he must put all houghts of these two out of his ind, Thurston put several quick, hot nes over the plate, following with a ow grounder, and had his man out without a strike. The next two were asy, and the Yellow Feet were re- tired in one, two, three order. The Black Flags, however, failed to con- nect with any of Compton's balls, and e was congratulated by his team s he, too, registered the same score. This followed for three innings; not a strike was called on either side, although there were several balls, and then Thurston went into the box for the first of the fourth inning. As he ran down field he caught sight of Maisie's waving handkerchief, and immediately the old problem confronted him. It unsteadied his arm so that when the catcher signaled for an out- curve he sent over a straight one. The man at bat found this soft, and he sent it soaring down past center, easily reaching second before the ball was captured.

The grand stand went into the ec- stasies usual on such occasions, but two girls turned white and bit their lips, feeling as though some personal affront had been offered them. Usu- ally Thurston would have been stead- ied by such a mishap, but today he was not in usual form, and all be- cause of these two girls. Therefore to the dismay of the Black Flags, he let Compton connect with an incurve which he bunted, and the man on sec- ond made third amid thunderous ap- plause from the Yellow Feet contin- gent and hisses from those espousing the Black Flags. The next man got his base on balls, and the Yellow Feet scored, although Thurston managed to hold them down to that. Maisie flashed Ralph a glance of scorn as he passed on his way to the bench, so that he failed to see how Bessie looked, and huddled down in his coat, refusing to reply to any remarks buried at him by his indignant fellow players. In the next half the Black Flags scored, and would have made a home run, if Thurston had not allowed himself to be caught between second and third. Once more his blunder cost the Black Flags dearly.

After this followed a series of blun- ders by him that made the captain and manager rave. If the other two pitch- ers on whom they could depend had not been laid up, Thurston would have been taken from the box. As it was, they had to content themselves with addressing unkind remarks to him, and threatening him with dire results if he did not buck up and show some ginger.

All the while the real cause of this disturbance lay in his pocket. It con- sisted of two notes, one signed Maisie, the other Bessie. Each girl invited him to spend the evening in her com- pany. Maisie had added in her note, written on monogram paper, that it might be the last before she left town, and that she hoped he would not dis- appoint her. Maisie's was on a sheet of pad paper, but contained a pitiful little plea.

"Honest, Ralph," it read, "I'd not care much what happened if I couldn't come to see you play, but I get tired rooting when I can't tell you after- wards how proud I am of our star pitcher. Please come."

On one side was Maisie with the possibilities of influential assistance, combined with the girl's brilliant at- tractiveness; on the other, sweet, faithful, devoted Bessie, fitted by training and inclination to help a man in playing not only baseball, but any game of life, willing to sit and root for him if afterwards he would come to her for comfort and congratula- tions. No wonder that his arm went back on him, and that his eyes mis- judged. Thurston was playing a big- ger game than he realized.

"Pull him out!" some yelled as Thurston continued his blunders; but as there was no one to take his place; the captain contented himself with coaching with all his might, while the manager tried to stimulate interest by betting heavily against the Yellow Feet, covering his money by judicious- ly placed bets on the other side, made by those in his employ.

Finally the first half of the ninth was reached. The score stood 4 to 1, in favor of the visitors. Instead of the usual cheering and applause which had greeted Thurston as he ran to the box, there came a dead silence more expressive than any demonstration. As he had left the bench, he had caught a sight of the pale faces of the two girls, and he wished that a hole would open up before his feet, in which he might hide from them and the mock- ing crowd. He gritted his teeth, clenched his fists until the fingers bit into the palms of his hands, then began pitching with all his old-time vigor. As in the first inning, he put the men out in one, two, three order, and the grand stand went wild with joy. The Yellow Feet were not wor- ried, however, and indifferently trot- ted out into the field. A sneer disfig- ured Compton's face as he swung his arm, but it changed to something else when Gryce, the captain of the Black Flags, struck out a home run. This rattled the man in the box, for he let the next man get to second on a line drive that easily passed left field, and the third took his base on balls. Thurston then came to bat. His two- bagger brought in another run and put a man on second. The next man bunted, and three bases were filled. The score was now 4 to 3, with all bases filled. The manager, Gordon, was the next man at bat, but he fanned out, as did the next. Then came Burchell, who always managed a two-bagger. His ball rose grace- fully, soared out and over the head of right field, and the men began eat- ing up the ground to get home. Just as the man from third began to slide, the ball fell into the glove of the right fielder, and the pennant be- longed to the Yellow Feet.

The work of all the Black Flags had been good. They had assisted again and again in keeping down the score of the Yellow Feet when Thurston had gone to pieces, and naturally blamed their defeat on him. The man said nothing. Sullenly he changed to his street clothes, then wrote his resig- nation. The manager took it, saying tartly:

"All right, if you feel that way."

"I guess all of you feel that my room is better than my company," Thurston said sourly, as he slouched out of the club house, hands deep in his pockets, head bent down. Just as he emerged an automobile dashed by. In it were several of the cheering Yellow Feet and Maisie. In the sec- ond of passing she tossed her head, looking at him with unbared con- tempt.

As he turned to make his way to the street cars, a soft voice said at his elbow:

"Don't run over me, Ralph," and starting, he saw Bessie smiling up at him, although her eyes were red with tears of disappointment.

"They expect too much of you, working you until your arm goes stale; it's a shame," she said com- fortingly.

"Bess," Ralph said, catching her hand and gripping it hard, "I'm a piker; I went up in the air on this game, honest."

"Everyone does that sometimes," she said softly.

"I say, Bess," he asked sheepishly, "I wonder if you'd be afraid of me in another kind of game?" and Bessie understood. She answered, as they walked slowly towards the street cars:

Woman is a Full-fledged and Fighting Officer of Cossack Regiment

Militant feminism of a genuinely heroic sort is exemplified in the per- son and exploits of a woman who is a colonel in the Russian army—Col. Alexandra Koudasheva in command of the Sixth Ural Cossack Regiment.

Before distinguishing herself in dar- ing raids against the Germans in East Prussia, Mme. Koudasheva was known throughout the empire for having com- pleted what is reported to have been the longest horseback ride ever un- dertaken by a woman. She rode from Harbin through Manchuria, Siberia, and the forest of European Russia to Petrograd, covering in all 3,000 miles.

At the outbreak of the war Mme. Koudasheva joined the Cossack regi- ment in which her husband had served years ago. She was wounded twice in encounters in East Prussia, received the Cross of St. George, the V.C. of Russia, for bravery; became a lieutenant, and finally a colonel. She has also been promised the mili- tary pension which her husband, who died several years ago, failed to re- ceive.

Accounts of Col. Koudasheva's ex- ploits, printed in Russian newspapers, show her to be a woman of refine- ment, a lover of sports, and possessed of a talent for music. Her letters and diary indicate that she has no mean ability with her pen.

Mr. John McMillan

THE announcement that Mr. John McMillan had succeeded Mr. James Kent as manager of the C. P. R. Telegraphs afforded much gratification to his friends in Western Canada. Mr. McMillan was born in Liverpool, November 2, 1866. He spent his boyhood in Scotland, and came west when fifteen years of age. Ever since that time he has been in the employ of the company's telegraphs, having indeed worked in every capacity. He first worked ahead of the railroad on the construction of the telegraph line, but always ahead of the steel—across the prairie and through the Rocky Mountains. When only eighteen he was loaned by the C. P. R. to the government during the Riel Rebellion, and was foreman of construction with as many as fifty men under him. In 1885 he was general foreman of construction for the Canadian Pacific's western lines, and the following year returned to the maintenance staff in Winnipeg. In 1895 he was an operator in Winnipeg, and became in turn wire chief and inspector, and in 1906 was appointed assistant superintendent. The following year he was transferred to Calgary as superintendent of the Alberta Division, and in 1912 came back to Winnipeg as superintendent of the Manitoba Division, to be appointed next year general superintendent of western lines.

LIQUOR IN BRITAIN

Late King Edward Did Much to Popularize Decent Sobriety

It is because Britain never before engaged in such a terrific struggle, not because drinking to excess is com- moner now than it was, that the tem- perance problem is such a serious one for her statesmen. In the memory of living men it was considered no disgrace for a man to get drunk. The gentleman who could not put away his three bottles of port after dinner when the ladies had left the room was considered a mollycoddle, and the gentleman who did not occa- sionally become incapacitated through strong waters was regarded as an eccentric.

The late King Edward, though he was by no means a teetotaler, did more for temperance in England, per- haps, than all the temperance lec- turers in fifty years. He made drun- kenness unfashionable. Hard drink- ers found themselves frowned upon. Intemperance of any kind was ab- horrent to King Edward even when he was a young man, as his letter to Archbishop Benson shortly after the baccarat scandal in which the Prince figured, and which led to such unfair attacks upon him by a dis- reputable section of the English press, clearly showed.

Intemperance in betting, in speech and in drinking were checked by the Prince of Wales, who, when Queen Victoria practically withdrew from public life after the death of the Prince Consort in 1862, came to exercise an enormous influence as an arbiter of social affairs. In the first half of the nineteenth century blas- phemy and drunkenness were so com- mon as to be almost unnoticed.

It was not long after he came to the throne that the late King Edward caused it to be quietly known through- out the army and navy that he would feel just as much honored if the messes drank his health in water as in wine, and one of the last letters he wrote before his death expressed the fervent hope that he might live to do something effective for the cause of temperance.

Billinger's Den.

"When Billinger bought his new house it was with the express un- derstanding that he should have a room all of his own — a den or study."

"Yes, I know what you mean. Did he get it?"

"Yes, and his wife furnished it."

"How?"

RUSSIA IN HARMONY WITH HER ALLIES

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 29.—That Russia's relations with her Allies is one of complete harmony and that "the fully apparent result thereof if that Russia, as well as her Allies, organized the matter of their struggle with Germany in accord- ance with their unalterable resolu- tion to carry it to a finish" is the statement of the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs recently made in the Duma, the text of which was made public by the Russian Embassy here to-day. The statement continues:

"Our reciprocal work in the do- main of politics and war has been broadened in these days by new agree- ments of a financial and economic character. The significance of these agreements in their bearing upon the successful accomplishment of the difficult tasks before us will, of course, escape your attention."

The relations of Russia with Great Britain especially with regard to Persia are reviewed and emphasis is laid upon the complete understanding with Japan:

"The presence of our troops in Per- sian territory by no means involves a violation of Persian neutrality. Our detachments were sent to that coun- try some years ago for the definite purpose of establishing and main- taining order in districts contiguous to our possessions, of high economic importance to us, also to prevent the Turks, who openly strived to create for themselves there, especially in the district of Urumiah, a convenient base for military operations against the Caucasus. The Persian government, not having the actual power, to main- tain its neutrality, met the Turkish violation of the latter with protests, which, however, had no results.

"I must remark with pleasure that our relations with Britain in the Per- sian affair, more than at any previous time, rest upon a basis of full mutual confidence and sincere reciprocity.

"The political agreements which we concluded with Japan in 1907 and 1910 have recently given an especially clear demonstration of their value and have borne abundant fruit. In the present war, Japan is on our side, and our relations are really those of Allies."

DOCTOR SAID ONLY HOPE WAS IN AN OPERATION

Was Skeptical When He Began the Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Relief Came Quickly

Here is a plain, honest statement in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment. Between the lines of this letter you can read the gratitude which its writer feels. One does not suffer from annoying, distressing piles for ten years without appreciating a cure when it is obtained.

Almost every mail brings the re- port of someone who has been cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Such statements are never used without the permission of the writer, and until we are satis- fied that the cure is genuine and the writer a person of responsibility.

You may believe in operations for piles, and think there is no other cure. Write to Mr. Ingles, enclosing stamp, and he will gladly verify his statement. He will tell you that the pain, the expense, the risk of an op- eration are quite unnecessary. That relief and cure come with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Ernest W. Ingles, Penticton, B.C., writes: "I suffered from piles for ten years, and though I tried all kinds of ointments and injections I really had no permanent relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. When I began this treatment I had abso- lutely no faith in it, for I had been examined by a well-known physician in Vancouver, and he said that an operation was the only thing that would benefit me. It was surprising the relief I obtained from the very first box, and now, after using four boxes, I am practically cured. My case was so exceptionally bad that I received no relief day or night, and for this reason the results are won- derful."

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Oint- ment from any dealer at 60 cents a box. If you do not want to risk this much send a two-cent stamp to pay postage, and mention this paper, and we shall send you a sample box free. We are so certain that any suf- ferer from piles will obtain relief by using this ointment that we do not hesitate to make you this offer. Ed- manson, Bates & Co., Limited, To- ronto.

Had Range of 20 Miles

Bombardment of Dunkirk by Specially Mounted Gun

Paris, May 3—Bombardment of Dunkirk was carried out by a specially mounted naval gun at a distance of nearly 21 miles according to an official statement issued by the war office yesterday afternoon. The gun was mounted near Dixmude. A German deserter has reported that for nearly two months engineers from the Krupp works have been installing in the neighborhood of Dixmude, a section in which no fighting has occurred for several months, a naval gun capable of firing at long range. This gun, he said, bombarded Dunkirk, firing at a range of 21 miles.

The tocsin sounded as soon as the first shell exploded, warning the population in rush to the cellars. Only but brief intermissions the bombardment lasted for 90 minutes. Shells arrived on an average of five minute intervals. Forty-seven civilians were killed or wounded. Some of the projectiles bored holes in the streets 30 feet across and 20 feet deep. It is believed that this gun has now been put out of action.

In Belgium to the north of Ypres the Germans attempted an attack on the allies' right. They were immediately stopped by rapid fire guns. There is nothing new on the British front.

Immediately Italy declares war Germany will invade Switzerland with two army corps, occupying Zurich and the country around it. This assertion is made positively in last night's Liberte.

Winston Churchill yesterday visited Duchess of Connaught's Canadian Hospital at Cliveden. Waldorf Astor's estate, and talked to many of the patients, some of whom but recently arrived wounded from the Ypres battlefield.

GRAFTING IS EASY

W. H. Fowler, Wentworth Co., Ont.

One of the most wonderful apple trees I have ever seen is in the back yard of a city friend. It bears no less than six varieties of apples on the one trunk. My friend has room for only one tree in his yard, and he has made the most of it. Originally it was a Talman Sweet. To-day only one branch bears Talmans. Other standard varieties were grafted on.

Many farmers in this county, and I suppose in all others, are poorly supplied with apples. Perhaps there are a few trees with only inferior fruit. Why should these trees not be top-worked, as my friend top-worked his single tree, and made to bear varieties that will be appreciated. Top-working or cleft-grafting is not a secret or mysterious process. Anyone can do it.

The best time to cleft graft is just when the buds are beginning to swell. Select the branches that are to be grafted; the best sizes are those one inch to one and three-quarter inches in diameter—and saw off with a fine tooth saw, cutting straight across the branch. Then split the branch, wedge the cleft open, and put in the scions. These scions, which are cut the previous fall and kept packed in slightly moist sand all winter, are pared down to a long wedged point at one end, trimmed to three buds, and inserted in the cleft made in the branch, so that the cambian layers of both the scion and the branch come together. The cambian is the living layer of cells directly under the outside bark. The sap flows through the cambian layers, and it is thfough this flow of sap that the scion becomes a part of the tree. Two scions are inserted in each cleft so that if one dies there is still a chance of the other living. If both live, it may be advisable to remove one. When the scions are inserted, the wedges are removed, the top made secure by tying with raffia, and the end of the stub and the cleft in the tree covered with grafting wax.

Grafting wax may be bought from nursery firms, or may be easily made by melting together two parts of beeswax, one part of tallow, and four parts of rosin. Pull the mixture until it is like taffy. When working with it in the orchard, the wax may be kept warm by letting it stand in a pail of warm water. I have done this work myself successfully, and I am no professional expert.

Meals for the Family

"Aunt Fannie," Peterboro Co., Ont.

SPRING seems to be the hardest season of all to plan the meals for the family. Somehow we are apt to be more particular about what we eat in spring and how it is prepared than at the other seasons. Now is just the right time to substitute egg dishes, such as omelet, egg salad, etc., for some of the heavier and richer fare of the cold months. I believe, too, that the spring is the time when we should plan to have more salads and probably more fish dishes than at other times. I am giving a few of my favorite dishes which may be new to some readers of Farm and Dairy.

A tempting hot dish for the evening meal that is a favorite in our home is one made from beets and potatoes. I cook six or eight beets until thoroughly done, and pare and boil potatoes as usual. When done I slice one or two of the hot potatoes in a dish, add some butter, salt and pepper and put over this a layer of beets sliced. I repeat again and add another layer of potatoes and so on until dish is filled. A small amount of vinegar is poured over this mixture and it is served immediately without stirring.

My favorite salad when company comes is made with one cup finely chopped celery, one cup Malaga grapes quartered and seeded, one-half cup chopped walnuts. I mix these and pour over a good cream salad dressing. Sliced bananas rolled in lemon juice and sugar mixed with an equal amount of sliced apples, served with mayonnaise dressing is also very delicious.

Normandy salad is another of my favorites. This can be made from canned peas. I allow them to simmer in their own liquor with a few mint leaves until all the liquor is absorbed, and set aside too cool. I blanch and chop walnuts and mix them with the peas, then place them on a bed of lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Here is a fish salad which enables one to make good use of the left-over fish from dinner. I pick the fish apart in as large pieces as possible, remove bones, place on lettuce leaves and pour over the whole a mustard dressing. I keep a pot of parsley growing in winter for garnishing and always have it in my garden for summer use. Parsley will put just the proper finishing touch to this fish salad.

Just one more fish salad before I make my exit. Often when unexpected company drops in for tea I take a can of salmon and flake it and add a few hard boiled eggs, sliced. Occasionally I add a few chopped cucumber pickles and pour salad dressing over the whole.

I find that it is a good idea to keep a jar of salad dressing on hand and a salad can then be made on a moment's notice. I make the dressing rather stiff and thin with cream just before using.

—Farm and Dairy.

POTATO GROWING

POTATO growing in Ontario is of great importance any year. It is of particular importance this year. Europe, and especially Germany, have been large producers of potatoes in the past. At the present crisis everything points to the great need for every potato grower to add to this industry in 1915. I believe that if every potato grower would increase his supply, even though it should be doubled, that it will be a much needed commodity, and we will be well repaid for so doing.

I believe that nearly all we farmers have plots of land on our farms that have never paid us a dividend. Why not in this year of need make all available land pay its share by growing potatoes. This does not apply to farmers alone, but to townspeople as well. Is there not an abundance of fertile land in our own city of Peterboro that could be used to splendid advantage in making good our shortage of supplies?

If we did not have these idle plots of land plowed, let us get busy now, and if possible get on our old, long-lying-idle plots some manure while the ground is frozen. If this is not possible there will be considerable weed roots to assist fertility, and under such conditions I have grown crops of potatoes successfully. We cannot expect potatoes to grow abundantly, however, by just simply dropping the seed. I would strongly advise every owner of idle land, which may have been an eyesore to the community in the past, to get busy and make such land produce its share of potatoes during the coming season.

To keep telephones clean a San Francisco inventor has patented a machine that automatically covers a transmitter with paper after it has been used, which paper must be removed before the instrument is used again.

Investigation among the working classes by English scientists showed that the employment of women in the industries has lowered the birth rate and tends toward the birth of a larger proportion of female infants.

You Can't Brush or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Influence Is Being Felt

Geo. A. Putnam, Superintendent

The influence of the Women's Institute in an educational way is being felt in every district, perhaps not so much where they have taken up reading courses and study of literary works, as where they have established or improved public libraries, or brought high-class entertainments and lecturers to the village. In most sections it is possible to get excellent material from local talent, and the Institutes excel in getting the cooperation of every specialist or professional person in the district. Especially has this been helpful in getting demonstrations in horticulture, bee-culture, etc. Several Institutes have taken advantage of the university extension lectures, and a few have worked through the local school board to form technical classes for the people.

It has been gratifying to note that in the face of the present hard time, the Institute contributions to philanthropic causes have increased. Grants to hospitals, children's shelters, old people's homes, the travellers' aid, and general relief work have not been neglected, even when the demand for the Red Cross and patriotic societies was so pressing. Perhaps the civic improvements which have always been very popular with the Institutes will receive less attention, although during the past year they have been as enthusiastic as ever in building sidewalks, improving public halls, paying for street lamps and drinking fountains, planting trees in parks, distributing flower bulbs, etc. One Institute last year gave a prize of a ten-dollar lawn mower for the best kept lawn in the town. Another way in which several Institutes have been doing a much needed work, and one which we hope will not be neglected, is the care and beautifying of country cemeteries.

It is almost impossible to outline the scope of the various lines of work undertaken and carried out successfully by the different branches of this organization. In one town, the special feature is a neighborly and uplifting attention to the foreigners. In a few Institutes, where most of the members are farmers' wives, cooperative egg circles have been formed. Several Institutes have made a specialty of helping with the fall fairs, and of holding Institute fairs to encourage various lines of domestic art and to raise money for philanthropic causes. In some places this winter, the Institutes have found all they could do to take care of the needy families in their own locality, and no work could be more important than this. The special lines of work to undertake are left to the best judgment of the individual societies, and they have proved this year, as never before, the high ideals and the stamina of their organization.

Should Be Carefully Protected

R. H. Harding, Middlesex Co., Ont.

HAVING had the pleasure recently of travelling through a good part of our north country, both by train and team, I couldn't help but be impressed with the vastness of the country. I feel quite free to say that while there is a bright future in store for some parts of that country, where it falls into the hands of the industrious and progressive husbandman, yet there are vast stretches of it that should be carefully protected and allowed to retimber itself for the benefit of future generations. Many settlers are seeing rather strenuous times during this winter. Between drought and frost, the crops in that country during last season were far below the average. Tightened financial conditions (which we are all inclined to charge to the war, although it was plainly visible before war was declared) cut off the work in mines and lumber camps, which has the effect to thrust many settlers and so-called farmers out of employment, thereby adding worry to worry, and leaving many in sore need. This scarcity of work away from home has, I believe, been a blessing in disguise to many. Altogether too many (if we are permitted to judge) of the so-called farmers in the clay belts have been just tickling a few acres and leaving the greater portion of their farms in the rough, trusting to the lumber camps and construction camps, etc., for their living. This winter, having nothing of that to do, they turned their attention to cleaning up a piece of their own farms, which will consequently be an asset very soon, growing crops instead of standing idle, as a liability.

I am told that clover will do excellently in almost all of Northern Ontario. Such being the case, live stock should do well. I heard a man inquire in a small town for butter and not a single pound could be had. I inquired as to prices of meat, butter, eggs, etc., and found that those people had the equal of Toronto market prices practically at their doors, not only for meats, butter and eggs, but for potatoes, oats and hay. I even noticed turnips quoted at 75c a bag at Port Arthur, where they can be successfully grown. What would some of our farmers in Old Ontario do if they could get such prices for turnips? If I were asked to give advice to the settlers of Northern Ontario I would say to the man who has settled, on the rocks as it were, with only a few acres of arable land: "Move out into the clay belt or somewhere else and let that farm go back into nature and grow timber." To the man on the arable land I would say: "Clear it up as fast as possible, get a few sheep to assist in clearing the land, then stock it as fast as possible with milk and meat producing animals, thereby providing constant and profitable employment, at the same time building up a home and developing the country."

When west of Port Arthur I was told by farmers that they were getting less than $2.75 a cord for pulp wood delivered at the stations. I felt that the farmers should be protected against such prices. With the average prices of pulp wood $4 to $4.50 a cord, the former price looks to me like a hold up.

MARMALADE

"Country Cousin," Peterboro Co., Ont

I wonder how many housewives have made this year's supply of orange marmalade. Now is the season when it can be made to best advantage. I have just finished mine up to-day, and while the topic is fresh in my mind, I have decided to give readers of this department some of my ideas and experiences along this line.

When March comes in, I find that as a general rule the fruit jars on my cellar shelves are rapidly disappearing, and the making of marmalade not only constitutes a variety in the fruit line, but helps materially in filling up some of the vacancies.

There are several important points in making good marmalade that endeavor to have it of a transparent, yellow color and of a good jelly consistency. A necessary precaution in the final boiling is to watch the mixture in case it should either boil over or stick to the bottom and burn. I also keep the scum removed thoroughly and test frequently for jelly.

Get good bitter oranges, peel off the rind as thin as possible in long strips with a sharp knife, then remove the white part. Cut the yellow part in very thin shreds, about one inch long, and the white part into bits the size of small beans. Cut up the pulp rather fine, saving the pips, which should be put in a bowl, and a pint of water poured over them. For every pint of cut up rind and pulp, add two and one-half pints of cold water. Let stand over night, and the next day add the liquid from the pips, put on the stove and when it has reached the boiling point, boil quickly for three-quarters of an hour, then remove from the stove. The following day weigh the boiled liquid, and for every pound add one and one-quarter pounds of granulated sugar. Then boil an hour (or less if it jellies) and it is ready for putting in glasses. A dozen oranges will make sufficient to fill three dozen ordinary jelly glasses.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

THE NEW SUSPENDER SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

There is no time more appropriate for launching the suspender skirt than at this season, when the summer wardrobe is being planned and the sewing begun. The waist that shows no relation to the skirt with which it is worn is still regarded as inartistic and incorrect. But suspenders establish the necessary connection between the two, and as they add nothing in the way of warmth they meet the requirements of warm weather very well indeed. Practical in themselves, this year they bear the stamp of fashion's highest approval.

The design shown here is a very pleasing one, simple, almost severe, but the smarter on that account. The skirt fits easily and without fulness over the hips and flares to a good width at lower edge. There are three gores, with the closing at the front, and an inverted box pleat at lower part of each side seam. The suspenders are joined to the top of the belt and the belt is attached to the skirt at the upper edge only, the lower edge of belt being left free. If desired, the skirt can be worn without the suspenders.

Black and white cheviot would be effective for this design, or dark blue serge or covert. Among the wool fabrics in wash materials cotton gabardine, linen, ratine, corduroy and poplin would be appropriate. For medium size the skirt and suspenders together would require 3 yards of 44 inch material; the skirt alone 2¾ yards of 44 inch material. The pattern, No. 7099, can be obtained in sizes from 22 to 32 inches waist measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

DESPERATE ATTEMPTS OF GERMANS NORTH OF YPRES ARE REPULSED

British Troops on Evening of May 3 Inflicted Heavy Losses on the Enemy in Driving Back a Night Attack---Germans Persist in Their Attempts in Spite of Their Frightful Casualties.

POISONOUS GASES PROVE BOOMERANG

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, France, May 4.—Desperate efforts by the Germans to advance north of Ypres have failed.

The British forces repulsed a night attack on May 3rd, inflicting heavy losses. It is apparent that the attack started on Sunday is to be continued by the Germans, despite their repeated repulses, and the frightful losses they are sustaining.

Unofficial reports from the front are that the poisonous gases thrown in especially constructed shells by the Germans have in many cases been blown back on the enemy's trenches by the wind.

The official communique this afternoon dismissed the situation with the laconic comment that the British had repulsed night attacks.

It was also stated that the French offensive in the Argonne was continuing successfully, an advance having been made in yesterday's engagements.

STEAMER MINTERN SUNK

LONDON, May 4.—The British steamer Mintern has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. The Mintern was of 3018 tons and was owned by the Mintern Steamship Co. The crew is believed to have been saved.

LATER.—Two lives were lost when the Minterne was sent to the bottom. She was torpedoed without warning, and two foremen were killed by the explosion.

LONDON, May 4.—Following the conference of the Nationalist members of Parliament, it was announced that they had decided to oppose the new cabinet drink bill. This is the first open break in Parliament since the outbreak of the war, and it is feared that it may prove to be the entering wedge to more serious dissensions. It is considered certain that many of the Laborites will support the Nationalists in their stand.

CLAIMS SUCCESSES

BERLIN, via wireless to London, May 4.—The German forces operating in Belgian territory, have again hammered their way through the allied lines, says an official statement isued to-day. The war office declares that the Germans have captured Zevencote, Zonnebeke and Westhoek. The allies in retreating were subjected to a very heavy flanking fire from the German batteries north and south of Ypres.

Zennebeke, taken first, is only four miles north east of Ypres, on the main railway line between Ypres and Roulers, the chief German base. The other villages are in that same vicinity.

The British press bureau claims to have no information concerning the truth or the falsity of the German claims, but made no objection to their publication.

THE HEAVIEST BUDGET

London, Eng., May 4.—The heaviest budget in the history of England was introduced in the House of Lords to-day by Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. In moving it the Chancellor declared that although the ultimate issue of the war was not in doubt, the duration was uncertain, consequently rendering of the budget was a most difficult task. To the end of the financial year the Chancellor said, the total cost of the war will be three hundred million pounds. The Chancellor stated that the total revenues of the Government for the year are 270 millions, an increase of 43 millions.

THE PATH OF DUTY

TORONTO, May 4.—"Point the path of duty to the shirkers at home; we want 50,000 of them here."

The foregoing paragraph concluded a letteer from Lt.-Colonel J. H. Currie, M.P., of the 15th battalion, written three days before Langemarcke, and received to-day in this city. "This is a terrible place, and we find that those who were the most determined to go to the front at any cost are the first to get killed."

ROME, May 4.—The decision of King Victor Emmanuel, and the members of the ministry to take part in the ceremony of unveling the Garibaldi monument at Quarto Sant'Elena, is being comented upon today as a step of very great significance. It is believed to have been the result of a call made by Prince Von Buelow, the German Ambassador, upon Foreign Minister Sonnino, Sunday night.

Correspondents are permitted to say that Von Buelow made new proposals. These proposals were submitted to the Cabinet ministers, who will hold another council to-day.

MONTREAL, May 4.—Relatives in Montreal of the following officers in the 13th and 14th "Montreal" battalions, received cables from them stating that the are "safe and well": Lt.-Col. W. W. Burland, Lt.-Col. F. S. Meighen, Major Warmington, and Captains Clarence MacCauig and Morrisey. It is now believed that only small detachments of these battalions were taken prisoners.

TOKIO, May 4.—The Japanese government has decided to send an ultimatum to China setting forth a time limit in which China must acquiesce to Japan's demands for special concessions, according to authoritative information to-day. The Cabinet held another prolonged session to-day; official information is lacking.

LONDON, May 4.—A despatch from Athens printed here this afternoon says that the authorities of the town of Smyrna, Turkey, have entered into negotiations with the allied fleet for the [illegible] of the city. There is no confirmation of the report from official sources, but it is thought here quite possibly true.

COUNCIL SAYS MR. SPENCE MUST BE A RATEPAYER

Give Him Until End of Year to Do So—City's Response to Petition From Trades and Labour Council

HAS CROP IN NOW

That Sanitary Inspector Spence become a ratepayer at the end of the present year was the Council's answer to the Trades and Labour Council's request that all city officials should be at least local taxpayers.

The City Council's motion was moved by Ald. Weir, and seconded by Ald. Edgar. It was an amendment to Ald. Green's motion that Mr. Spence be asked to become a ratepayer as soon as possible, without loss to himself. Ald. McIntyre seconded it, and Ald. Evans alone supported it with its endorsers. The amendment was carried by Aldermen Weir, Edgar, Duffus, Langford and Saunders. Ald. Dobbin was absent, and Ald. Stratton held that neither resolution dealt with the general question in a satisfactory manner.

Ald. McIntyre afterwards said that Mr. Spence had told him he would resign if pressed in this matter.

Ald. Green said he believed the Labour men would look on the matter in a broad way. If Mr. Spence had a crop in he should be given time to harvest it.

Ald. Stratton felt the Labour men's point was well taken. It was not a question, he felt, of an individual, but a general question that had to be dealt with.

Mayor Buller added that every one agreed Mr. Spence was a faithful public servant.

R. Mitchell and other Trades and Labour men occupied the gallery.

Ald. Weir's objection to the motion was its indefiniteness.

ONLY THE STREETS WATERED LAST YEAR WILL BE OILED

Several times was mention made of the city's street oiling scheme at the Council meeting last night. In answer to Ald. Stratton's enquiry, Ald. Green replied that the streets are being prepared for oil, but they are not yet ready. A car of oil can be obtained in 48 hours. But the worst was yet to come, and it arrived when Ald. Edgar presented a petition that George Street be oiled between Lake and Romaine Streets.

Mayor Buller—Was it watered last year?

Ald. Edgar—No.

Ald. Green groaned. "It's no use," he said. "We simply can't oil any streets that were not watered last year."

PTE. TOM W. JOLLY, 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., wounded at St. Julien. In a card to a local friend recently Pte. Jolly wrote: "We are ready for anything."

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S ARMY READY FOR ITS WORK

(By Wm. G. Shephard).

Headquarters of the British Army Northern France April 19—(By mail to New York)—I have seen the entire British line.

It is the stopper which General French put into the neck of the German bottle at the battle of Ypres when the German tide began to pour Calais-ward last Fall.

This English line is at the exact spot in Europe where Gen. Nogi, the Japanese master of war, once said would occur a battle that would stagger the world, if war in Europe became a reality.

Was Ypres the battle General Nogi dreamed of, or was that battle only a forerunner of a greater battle, which Gen. French and his British soldiers have before them within the coming months?

The first thing that strikes you about the British Army is its quiet men. I saw six horses try to run away the other day when a regiment of men cheered General French, after he had thanked them after his quiet, hesitating way, for the part they had taken in the battle of Neuve Chapelle. Cannnons the horses knew. Cheers are strange to them.

It dawns on an American slowly that, in the mind of an English army man noise, fuss and efficiency do not go together.

"Don't have any ceremony" seems to be the British army's idea of ding his job.

PETERBORO' HEALTH ASSOCIATION ASKS COUNCIL'S HELP

Review of Work Accomplished in Peterboro'—Need Assistance on Account of Present General Condition

MAYOR BULLER'S PRAISE

A deputation from the Peterborough Health Association waited upon the City Council last night and asked for assittance to the amount of $60 a month, to assure the continuance of the Association's work while the present financial clouds are lowering. Dr. Cameron, E. A. Peck, Rev. Father Phelan, Dr. Halliday, W. H. Dunsford, and Dr. Neal, composed the delegation.

Dr. Cameron stated the Association's case modestly, exactly and briefly. Organized in the summer of 1911 the Peterborough Health Association began its operations under a provincial charter during the following winter. In 1912 a fair held in the Armouries raised $2,617.00. In November, 1912, the first district nurse was engaged. She continued her services until the following summer when she retired. Two nurses are now engaged, Miss Mercier devoting her time to tubercular subjects, and Miss Hamilton to general work. Both their salaries amount to 1,800 year. In addition the nurses' supervision committees require $600 or $700. This latter money is dispensed in providing necessary articles in homes that cannot afford them, bedding, tents or verandah fixtures for tubercular patients, medicine, etc. Since 1912 the Association provided 5,000 quarts of milk and 2,000 dozens of eggs. The Association provides necessaries and a few luxuries for persons who are unable to provide them for themselves.

Camp for Children.

Last summer a camp for children at Jackson Park required $60.00. It was open six weeks and accommodated thirty-five sick children. The equipment cost $60.00, and in addition there was food, nursing and other expenses.

Since 1912 the Association collected $3,400.00, and spent $4,880.00, leaving a small balance.

Nurses' Duties.

The district nurses are at the disposal of any person in the city who requires them. Since 1912 they have made six thousand visits. Miss Mercier attended 126 patients, and Miss Hamilton 269 patients. The seeming disparity in these figures is explained by the fact that Miss Mercier gives chr time altogether to tubercular work. Where a person is in a position to pay the nurse is permitted to accept 25 cents a visit. Since January Miss Mercier collected $1.00 for her work. In twenty-two months Miss Hamilton collected $176.00 from 978 patients. Since January, 1913, Miss Mercier collected $71.00 from 135 patients. The total amount collected from other sources was $260.

Present Need.

Dr. Cameron said that about $900 remained of the fair fund which was expected to carry the Association until 1915. Under existing conditions it is not thought advisable to attempt to raise money in that manner, and the only other means is the annual membership fee of $1.00. If the Council will assume the obligation of paying

LETTER WRITTEN BY MAJ. BENNETT TO THE EXAMINER

Communication Received Yesterday Was Written Shortly Before the Big Battle and Tells of Review of Canadians

COMMENDED BY GENERAL

Like a message from the grave was the letter received by the Examiner yesterday from Major Bennett, written on April 14th. Here is a portion of the missive, one of the last the heroic officer ever wrote:

"We are all in splendid trim to go into trenches again in a few days. We have had showers of honours conferred upon us recently, both by General Alderson and staff and also by the General Officer Commanding, Sir H. Smith-Dorrien. If there was any doubt about the Canadians being able for the job it was certainly dispelled by the remarks of the G. O. C. after a critical inspection of each unit. In fact he told us candidly that we were 'It' with a capital 'I.' in the British army."

FOUND GUILTY OF BIGAMY

Havelock Man Sentenced to Eighteen Months

James Freeman, of Belleville, appeared before Judge Ward on a charge of abducting Violet Parcels, of Havelock, taking her to Port Hope and marrying her. As no satisfactory evidence could be produced the charge was dismissed. As Freeman had a wife living at the time of his second marriage, a charge of bigamy was laid. On this charge he was found guilty and sentenced to eighteen months in jail.

BIG GUNS ARE POUNDING AT THE DARDENELLES FORTS

Queen Elizabeth, Warspite and other Big Battleships Rake Turkish Position From Aegean Sea while Other Warships Penetrate Straits.

THE LAND OPERATIONS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

ATHENS, May 4.—The bombardment of the fortifications guarding the Dardanelles was resumed with in[illegible] day.

The Queen Elizabeth, Warspite and other big ships are raking the forts from the Aegean Sea and the Gulf of Saros, while a squadron of French and British warships have penetrated the straits and are concentrating their fire on Eski Rabr and Chanak Kalessi.

A second squadron of four British battleships is pounding away at the land forts in the Gulf of Smyrna, and the reports reaching here are that the response is feeble. It is believed, however, that the Turks are husbanding their ammunition in the anticipation of important land operations.

The Allied troops landed at Ephesus, the noted Bible city, which lies 35 miles south southwest of Smyrna. It is believed they will co-operate with the warships in the capture of Smyrna which has several times erroneously been reported surrendered to the British.

On the Peninsula of Gallipoli the Allied troops are pushing forward, but naturally their progress is very slow. The Turkish positions are very strong, and so well placed strategically, that it is necessary to try to reduce them by big guns rather than by direct attack. The British casualties are very great, and it is understood that a number of transports have been transformed into hospital ships to carry the wounded back to Malta for treatment.

FORMER RESIDENTS OF PETERBORO' ARE REPORTED WOUNDED

Pte. David Lothian and Patrick Duggan Were] Victims in the Langemarck Fight—57th Drill To-night

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Mr. Chas. Duggan, Montreal House, received a wire from the Adjutant General's Department to-day that a relative, Pte. Patrick Duggan of the 14th (Montreal) Battalion, had been wounded. Pte. Duggan lived here for some time and was employed in the metre department of the Canadian General Electric Co. He enlisted at Montreal, where he was working when the war broke out.

The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment will be held to-night, when it is expected that the biggest attendance of the year will be on hand. The Regiment will attend the memorial service in George Street Methodist church on Thursday evening in a body.

Local Nurse Leaves.

Mrs. Mabel K. Douglas who left this morning for Kingston to join the nursing staff of No. 5 Stationary Hospital under control of Queen's University, is a graduate of Nicholls Hospital and has nursed in Peterborough for some years. She is at the present time President of the local Graduate Nurses' Association and is a nursing sister of the Army Medical Corps, having taken the special course in the Military Hospital at Quebec last winter. Mrs. Douglas has a host of friends in Peterborough who will wish her a safe journey and who will feel that their wounded soldier friends will receive the best of care and attention should it be their lot to be under her ministrations.

Military news

Former Local Man.

In the casualty list of the 15th Battalion appears the names of Pte. E. Lothrian, who is reported wounded. Pte. Lothian is very well known in this city, where he was employed for some time on the staff of Farm and Dairy, and his many friends will be sorry to learn that he is wounded. He came to Canada from Edinburgh, Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Davidson, of 169 Charlotte Street, city, have been informed by their son Adam Alexand Davidson, who has been in training at the Exhibition grounds, Toronto with sub-Section A, section 2, divisional ammunition column, C.E.F., that he is one of those to leave for overseas service. Adam is an experienced horse man, being a jockey for six years, and he writes to his mother to say he would just as soon face the Germans as be a hurdle jumper.

TO-DAY'S CASUALTIES.

OTTAWA, May 4—This afternoon's casualty lists give two died of wounds and sixty-five wounded, from first, second and fourth, eighth, tenth, eleventh, thirteenth and sixteenth battalions.

Casualties, Second Battalion — Wounded—Corp. A. W. Savage, address not given; Pres. Albert Edward Lusty, Smiths Falls.

Harry Grant, St. Johns, N. F.

Information Wanted

George R. Bolton, 213 Ninth Street, Saskatoon, is seeking information concerning the whereabouts of Keith Dalrymple, who, it is said, worked in or near Peterborough some time ago. The party enquiring will bear of something to his advantage, as well as relieve the anxiety of his friends by communicating with the above address.

With The Remounts At St. Jean, Que.

Pte. Claude Bartlett Describes Life at Canadian Remount Depot —Still Snow

Mrs. Fred Bartlett, 62 Murray Street, has received a letter from her son, Pte. Claude Bartlett, who is at Saint Jean, Que. with the Canadian remount depot. It will be remembered that the local quota for this unit left here some weeks ago. Pte. Bartlett says, writing May 1st:

"We were all inoculated this morning. Some got pretty sick, but so far Harold (Morrow) and I have not noticed it. Harold has a cousin here from Prescott and I met another fellow from the Bank of Ottawa. We are putting every effort in our work and I think we will get a couple of stripes from the remarks they passed while inspecting the squadron. We have not got our uniforms as yet but expect to get them in a few days before we sail. I think it will be a few weeks before we get away.

As to our meals; for breakfast we have pork and beans, tea and bread, and for tea we get bread, butter, jam and tea, but we have a good cook, soap, meat and potatoes, tea, bread and butter, so I think we will get along O.K. We have three military blankets each and sleep on the cold side of a hardwood floor, but we are used to it now and would not have it any other way. We get up at 6 o'clock and parade for the cook house. At 8.45 we parade for physical drill until 10 o'clock. At 10.15 we fall in for drill until 12 o'clock. At 12.15 we go for the mess house for dinner and fall in at 2 o'clock and drill until 4.15 o'clock. From 4.15 o'clock until 8.30 we are free to go as we please. At 9.30 we fall in for roll-call and then go to bed at 10 o'clock.

ENTIRELY PARTIZAN.

The Mail and Empire says this:

"It is not really the prospect of an early election that is agitating Liberal leaders. It is the prospect of an early defeat.

A stream cannot rise higher than its source; and a partisan newspaper cannot take anything but a partisan view of public matters. The organ of the "practical politicians," the out and out partisans, judges its opponents by its own standard. Liberals might be well credited with an interest in the welfare of the country and the Empire, when tens of thousands of decent Conservatives, take the same stand as the Liberals, that an election at the present time would be a political crime, not for one moment to be set against a problematical party advantage. They do not fear defeat. Business Men's Associations, Boards of Trade, Ministerial Associations, and other bodies, composed of Liberals and Conservatives, do not strenuously oppose a war-time election because they fear a defeat. If they fear any defeat, is the defeat of the aim of Canada to stand by the Empire in its time of need without the interference of any distractions, especially a distraction represented by the heart-burning, antagonism and strife that would for weeks set united Canadian [illegible] solidly fighting for the same end, into two hostile camps, fighting each other, when their whole hearts souls, minds and activities, should be concentrated upon the fight against Germany.

"WAR TAX," NO WAR TAX.

Newspapers, that are showing their patriotism by advocating or endorsing the idea of a general election at this unthinkable time, lend themselves to denouncing as "unpatriotic" some persons who try to evade or pay less taxes through the so-called, but miscalled, "war tax" stamp. These persons are unpatriotic and disloyal enough to deliver by hand, circulars and accounts, instead of sending them through the post office. The condemnation of these newspapers is misdirected and unfounded. This is not mere unsupported assertion, but is based upon the assurance of the Finance Minister of Canada, who stated in his budget speech, that not one penny of the increased customs taxation, and of the "war tax" levy, would be applied this year to war purposes. Our war expenditure will be financed on borrowed money. Therefore, the patriotic tax-payer who "planks down" his increased taxation with the proud feeling that he is making a sacrifice to strengthen "the sinews of war," is under a delusion. He is not doing anything more particularly patriotic, than he would be doing by paying taxes in ordinary times and for ordinary purposes. He is paying more taxes—not to promote war measures—but to carry on the public business. More money is needed for this purpose; for under the Borden Government the expenditure of the Government, has increased nearly twice over in the three and a half years they have been in power. The taxpayer is paying more taxes to cover this increased expenditure — just to try to make ends meet. When a patriotic Canadian licks an extra stamp, he is not as he may think, adding to Canada's war fund, but contributing money to help meet the wide gap between revenue and expenditure caused by the too generous spending of the Government. In 1911, the last year the Liberal Government was in power, the ordinary expenditures of Canada were 47 millions of dollars. In five years the Conservative Government, the Borden Government, increased the ordinary expenditure of Canada to 140 millions of dollars per annum. The election campaign of Mr. Borden denounced the extravagance of the Liberal Government, and said:

"The increase in 'compellable expenditure' from 34 millions in 1896 to 47 millions in 1911 (fifteen years) is startling enough, beyond any possible defence.

The Liberal Government in 15 years increased the expenditure mentioned [illegible] at the rate of a little over 3 millions a year. The Borden Government in three years increased the expenditure 42 millions, or at the rate of 14 millions a year. We are suffering under increased taxation to meet the results of this extravagant expenditure, not to meet war expenditures. We shall only be beginning to pay war taxes, when the interest becomes due upon the money we borrow from Great Britain to finance Canada's share in carrying on the war.

THE LOYALTY THAT COUNTS.

> The Examiner says some French-Canadians are eminently disloyal. Does it include Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who prevented Canada from providing three effective battleships for the defence of the Empire?

We should suspect the loyalty of a man who without warrant impugns the loyalty of his neighbour. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not disloyal, either to a solemn agreement, nor to any national interest, in opposing the humiliating proposal to borrow 35 million dollars from Great Britain to build battleships. Canada cannot compound her indebtedness to the Empire with money. Laurier proposed a Canadian navy, built in Canada and maintained by Canada, and manned by Canadian men, as an adjunct to the Royal navy. That would have meant something—meant something tangible and timely in the way of strengthening the British navy and protecting Canada's coasts, which has now to be done by the British navy. Canada is nobly responding to the call for men, what the Empire needs at present, at an expense of 150 millions of dollars. What if Canada had withheld the men, and had borrowed 150 millions to Great Britain, and sent it [illegible] to equip and maintain British soldiers? That would be on a level with the gift of money to build battleships in Great Britain.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, if the question is raised, is more loyal in this matter than Sir Robert Borden; as his policy of a Canadian navy was more loyal to the Empire. In 1909 Sir Robert Borden, with all his Conservative following, voted in Parliament, unanimously with the Liberals, for a resolution denouncing the policy of contribution of money, and involving a solemn bargain to build a Canadian navy. A further bargain was made with Australia, with the strict approval of the British Admiralty, that the two dominions should build national navies. Australia kept her part of the bargain, but Canada, through the Borden Government, was disloyal to the pledged word of the Dominion of Canada, as expressed by the unanimous vote of the Canadian Parliament. Sir Wilfrid Laurier carried out his part of the bargain. He passed an act authoring a Canadian navy, and had invited tenders for ships. Before these tenders could be accepted or dealt with he was replaced by Mr. Robert Borden and his party. Mr. Borden's first work was to disregard the bargain of 1909 to which he subscribed—by vote—and adopted the plan against which he had voted—contribution of money. If Sir Robert Borden had been loyal to his word, expressed by his vote for the principle of a Canadian navy, and had acted upon the tenders for ships, which passed into his hands, Canada would now have had a fleet of her own, as capable and large as that of Australia, whose cruiser, the Sydney, sank the elusive Emden, the most mischief-working of the German cruisers.

If it comes to what the chevaliers d'industrie call a "show-down," and if the frivolous issue of comparative loyalty is raised, it is apparent that Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the naval matter was both loyal to his pledged word, to the unanimous agreement of Parliament, and also loyal to the interests of imperial naval defence; and it follows that Sir Robert Borden was not loyal to the principle of a Canadian navy for which he voted in Parliament, nor loyal to the condemnation of the contribution policy which he voted, nor, in effect, loyal to the best interests of effective imperial naval defence. Let us quit prating of loyalty, and bandying disloyal charges; the only loyalty that counts is that which is translated into actions.

CIVILIZATION'S PROGRESS—IN GERMANY.

Joseph Conrad, the Polish sailor who has become one of the greatest writers in English literature, recalls that during the great war which finished a hundred years ago, France was considering how to combat the English Fleet which was keeping watch on Brest. An American came forward and offered to the maritime Prefect of the port and to the French admiral, an invention that would sink the English ships one after another—any at any rate, most of them. The offer was not even taken into consideration; and the Prefect sended his report to the Minister of Marine in Paris with a fine phrase of indignation: "It is not the sort of death one would deal to brave men."

That—this just one hundred years ago, while progress civilization has made in that time? The nations whose now claims to lead mankind in all that is best and worthiest—in fact, in all those super-virtues which are summed up in the word Kultur—has abolished for want of a better word may be called decency of conduct, has turned its back on mercy, and has forgotten the dignity of human life. They have earned for themselves the distinction of being a nation of [illegible] listeners at key-holes, spying through cracks, making friends but to betray them.

With gusto they not only sink warships by stealth but murder by stealth the crews and passengers of merchant and refugee ships. They bombard unfortified towns, killing women and babies. They use airships for the purpose of dropping bombs on sleeping villages and even on hospitals. They murder their neighbours, over-run their neighbours' territory, ravish their neighbours' women-folk, rob their neighbours of all their possessions and even of the very food necessary to keep them alive — and offer as their only excuse for what they admit to be wrong, the statement that "military necessity" compels it!

On the field of battle they misuse the white flag, they fire on Red Cross workers, they murder the wounded, they pour boiling tar and flaming oil on their opponent, they use poisonous gases. The prisoners whom they do not murder they insult, starve, ill-treat and torture. And, the crowning achievement of all, they ally themselves with the Turks for the advancement of mankind! All this is Kultur. And Kultur, it would seem, is that particular brand of German civilization which is accompanied by want of conscience, loss of moral discernment, and utter atrophy of ethical life.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

Grand Old Man of Methodist Church Grows Satirical

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, May 3—One of the cleverest and most deeply humorous letters which appeared in the press for a long time is that written by Dr. Carman, the famous old man and leader of the Methodist Church in Canada. The deliciousness of the satire has made it one of the general topics of interest and incidentally Premier Hearst and the Conservative party must be rather disconcerted.

This is what Dr. Carman says:

"Canada hands this liquor business over to the Methodists. All right, if partisan Methodists always voted straight. But for a great public measure like this there are Presbyterians, Anglican, and other voters as well. Why not divide up the responsibility and the measureless honour? I do not favour this Methodist monopoly of all the glory."

This is rather a set-back to Premier Hearst and the Conservative party, who, when they went out of their way to appoint four Methodists out of five men on the new License Board, undoubedly were making what they thought would be a spectacular and successful bid for the support of the Methodist Church. From the very moment of the announcement, however, there was a suspicion that the Government had made a serious blunder, and that the Methodists were not particularly pleased with being made responsible for the continuance of the bar in Ontario. Now, the general feeling of resentment is focused in this very clever letter of Dr. Carman.

The letter in part is as follows:

To the Editor of The Globe:—Premier Asquith's rallying call to Britons in the home lands: "We want more men, and we want them now"; the British Cabinet's loyal, tactful summons to faithful subjects of the Empire all around the globe?—And why this waste? We are [illegible] struggle [illegible], we hand [illegible] are fighting [illegible] for the right [illegible] to enjoy their [illegible] to [illegible] the German [illegible] What [illegible] are [illegible] paid [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] Builds? Can it be possible? Strong drink? booze? Where is British manhood, courage, loyalty? The nation, hard pressed for its life, honour its high seat of wealth and power, and all sacrificed to booze? I hate to hear Britons say it. I shiver in such a crisis to have them think it of any number of reputable men.

And is not this a sorry business? Britain, Imperial, [illegible] Britain, palsied helpless, stupefied by booze! And that despite the example, the implied entreaty of his Majesty the King and the Royal house, Lloyd George affirms three mighty foes, Germany, Austria, Britain's liquor trade, the last the greater. Canada hands this liquor business over to the Methodists. All right if partisan Methodists always voted straight. But for a great public measure like this, there are Presbyterian, Anglican and other voters as well. Why not divide up the responsibility and the measureless honour? I do not favour this Methodist monopoly of all the glory.

NEW YPRES ATTACK DUE

Artillery Prepares Fresh German Assault Despite Awful Scenes

Rotterdam, May 4—South Zealand has been echoing to the sound of cannonading from a southwesterly direction for three days past. There are indications that the Germans are preparing to deliver another great assault.

Before crossing the frontier from Flanders all speak of the terrible scenes in the towns where the German wounded are being brought in. When the trains arrive and the victims are taken out blood streams from the cars and the groans of the wounded are terrible. Many Dutch soldiers are sickened and desertions are frequent.

All's Well in West

Paris, May 4—Last night's official statement merely says: "There is nothing to announce except the check of two German attacks Sunday night; one against the British troops north of Ypres, the other against the French troops in La Preire woods."

Buried Side by Side

Washington, May 4—Secretary of the Navy Daniels, announced to-day that it has been determined to keep the two interned German auxiliary cruisers, the Prinz Eitel Friedrich and Kron Prinz Wilhelm at Norfolk berthed just 20 feet apart.

Canadians Are Now Paying Not War Taxes; Only More Taxes

The "war-tax" humbug still persists. Here and there business houses have been trying to evade the increase in rates of postage by changing their system of sending out accounts, circulars, and other correspondence. There has been a somewhat heated semi-official announcement from Ottawa that the Postoffice regulations will be strictly enforced against anyone seeking to evade payment of his share of the war taxes by making an unauthorized use of the mails. A portion of the Conservative Press also is busily engaged driving home Ottawa's admonition by pointing out that the patriotic citizen who cannot fight should pay cheerfully.

This brings up the question of the financing of the war. No Canadian citizen has paid or will pay during fiscal year which began on April 1 a single dollar of the cost of the war. The Minister of Finance made this so plain in his Budget speech that it is amazing to find any responsible journal advancing the opposite view. Mr. White said, as reported by Hansard, page 96.

"So far as concerns our special war expenditures, which may reach one hundred million dollars, I should be disposed, if we had not such heavy and uncontrollable expenditure to meet, to recommend that we should pay at least a part of it from current revenue. But it is obvious upon a consideration of the figures which I have submitted that we shall not by any reasonable supplemental taxation measures be able to close the gap between revenue and expenditure, much less to pay a portion of the principle of our special war outlay. In the circumstances, I have no hesitation in proposing to the House that we shall borrow the full amount required under this heading."

Nothing could be plainer or more unequivocal than this declaration by Mr. White. The proceeds of stamp taxation, of the increased customs duties, and of the special levies upon railway tickets, banks, trust companies, etc., are not being used to raise, equip or maintain Canada's armies. The money so obtained is being spent upon the ordinary services of the country, the cost of which has increased by leaps and bounds since the Borden Government took office. Were the question put to him point blank, Mr. White would have to admit that had there been no war he would still have been under the necessity of increasing the taxation of the people or of adding to the national debt to a degree that no honest financier would justify.

The men who seek to dodge the new taxes are not more despicable than tax-dodgers generally. The payments they try to shuffle out of are taxes, but not war taxes. Every dollar required for the raising, maintaining, and equipping of the soldiers of Canada is coming in the form of a loan from the Imperial Government, or financiers operating under Governmental authority. The Minister of Finance has put the financial burden upon the back of posterity. There may be rude justice in this, for the men and women of today are paying a great price in blood and tears for the destruction of Germany's dream of world empire.—The Globe.

Belgian Refugees Have Arrived In Toronto

Women Tell of Massacre of Men and Boys—All Non-Combatants

Toronto, May 3—Toronto has been brought one stage nearer to the terrible ravages of war by the arrival in the city yesterday of fourteen refugees from sacked Belgium. With their coming there is at the moment indisputable evidence of the spirit of murder and of ferocity which moves certain of the Kaiser's troops. One of the victims, Madame Colin Justin, whose father and brother, although non-combatants, were bayoneted practically before her eyes, had a terrible story to unfold, and, though her account of a massacre near her home in Aerschot, when 800 defenceless men and boys were either shot down or bayoneted, is terribly saddening in its effect, there is this in her revelation that the Germans spared the women and children. The refugees represent all that are left of four families and their names are:

Gerard and Alphonse Brunyneel, brothers, aged 17 and 19.

The Marechal family, of father, mother and children—Jean, 8; Susanne, 6, and Helene, 4.

Francois Joseph Colin Justin, Madame Colin Justin and their sons, Maurice, 9, and Marcel, 7.

Their arrival in Toronto provides another splendid illustration of helping hands which can be stretched across the sea. Not so long ago Cardinal Mercier, of Antwerp, the distinguished member of the Catholic Church who for some time was imprisoned by the Germans because he maintained that as a servant of God he was of greater account than the Kaiser's minions, interested himself in the future of the little band, and through Father Prevot cabled to Archbishop McNeil, Toronto, enquiring if there was a possibility of an opening for the homeless families in Canada. The reply was flashed back immediately: "Send the people on; we will care for them." The refugees left England on the Metagama and were met at the Union Station yesterday by R. P. Goff, Gordon Taylor, Father Castex, representing Archbishop McNeil, and Tom Flanagan. The company were conveyed to the Grand Central Hotel and will there remain for the present, the guests of Tom Flanagan.

Told of Experiences.

It was there to a few presemen that the refugees, with the aid of Father Castex, as interpreter, told of their sad experiences. From appearance and manners, the whole are people who must have walked in the higher planes of Belgian life.

The story of Madame Justin eclipsed in its gruesomeness that of the others. A most intelligent lady, Madame Justin still bears in her eyes a suggestion of the horrors she was compelled to witness. After the taking of Aerschot by the Germans about one hundred women and children were hearded together in the garden attached to her father's home. This done, the German soldiers massacred the whole of the male population on whom they could lay hands. Almost eight hundred men and boys were put to death either by shots or bayonet stabs. Two wells were filled with six hundred corpses and then the Germans told the women they might if they cared bury the rest. This the women were only too glad to do, and in the sad work Madame Justin helped. Prior to the massacre the priest protested against the murders. He was arrested and shot two days later. His body was recovered by the women and buried in the churchyard close to that of the priest's housekeeper, the only woman to be shot. Her body also had been thrown into one of the wells. Finally, after undergoing suffering and privations amid the ruins of their homes, a number of the women escaped to England, and it was there Madame Justin met her soldier husband, who had been wounded and sent across the Channel.

The Marechals, a Brussels family, escaped into Holland by a ruse. They disguised themselves as workers in the fields and gradually tramped to the border, and, eluding the Germans on guard, reached a haven of safety. Brussels was being heavily shelled when they left, and they had lost everything. The Brunyneel brothers fled from Antwerp at a time when the German shells were creating havoc among life and property, and they were successful in getting on board a steamer bound for England. A similar experience befell the Verbovens.

Tom Flanagan will care for the refugees pending the finding of homes for them, but already others are interesting themselves in the welfare of the strangers. Percy Haswell has sent box tickets for the Alexandra theatre to-night, and this morning the guests will be taken for an automobile tour organized by R. P. Goff.

Bandages have been invented containing insulated wires to take current from storage batteries or lighting circuits so that they can be kept warm indefinitely.

Accounts to be Paid by Council

Report of Finance Committee as Adopted at Last Night's Meeting

The report of the Finance Committee of the City Council last night presented by Alderman Stratton, was adopted as follows:

We recommend that an account from St. Joseph's Hospital for the care of Mrs. Harry Harrison be returned to the hospital and the hospital authorities informed that the city will not accept responsibility for cases such as this.

We recommend that the City Treasurer ask for tenders for $18,000 of waterworks debentures and $2,000 of sewer debentures, and that an advertisement be placed in one of the local papers twice giving notice that the debentures are for sale.

With respect to the instructions given this committee to look into the matter of whether persons were selling ice cream without a license, the Chief Constable was interviewed and said the matter had been and would be looked after.

We recommend that cheques be issued for war stamps when required and that no change be made on account of the war tax in the city's method of making payments.

We recommend that a grant of $10.00, the same as last year, be made to the Dominion Textile Press.

A BOY sat on a rail fence enclosing a corn field. A city chap, passing by, said:

"Your corn looks kind of yellow, bub."

"Yep; that's the kind we planted," replied the bub.

"It don't look like you will get more than half a crop," said the city chap.

"Nope; we don't expect to; the landlord gets the other half," retorted the youngster.

The stranger hesitated a moment, and then ventured:

"You are not very far from a feed, are you, my boy?"

"Nope; not more'n ten feet," said the boy, and the city chap moved on.

SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

The Supervised Playground is no respector of persons. The director sees that every child gets a chance, and "Fair Play" is the slogan. Among the pictures that will be shown at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night will be the following:

1. Boys "shooting crap," showing where the play instinct will lead if not directed into right channels.
2. Young girls in a Georgia cotton mill, showing the results on those who have been robbed of their birthright.
3. Slides showing games, dances, races, etc., carried on by supervised playgrounds.

These are just a few samples; there are over fifty slides showing different phases of the work, which will be shown in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday, May 7th.

UNDERDRAINS

F. C. McCrae, B.S.A., Peterboro Co., Ont.

SINCE last March the local Department of Agriculture in Peterboro county have made surveys for 35,000 feet of underdrains. Underdrains in the county have been laid without initial surveys. Last fall I was called to a farm in Douro township where 4,000 feet of tile had been laid. Our department was called upon because the proprietor of that farm could not get an outlet for his system. When we had located an outlet for him we went back to look over the system. I requested the privilege of applying the instrument to the main line of tile into which the laterals ran. I found that what was supposed to be the head of the system was three inches lower than the point of outlet and the system was therefore useless.

I claim that where a man has underdrains to put in he cannot afford to take a chance on them. A proper survey should precede all tile drainage operations. Had this man had his farm surveyed he would not have had to take up his drains.

Food For Thought

NEITHER do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more."—John viii., 11.

None but Christ could have understood the case of the poor, sinning woman standing before Him, and pronounced this wonderful pardon.

None but Him understood all her [illegible] how hard she had struggled, how bitter was her sorrow. What about her accusers. Gone every one of them, shamefaced, feeling that none being sinless none could cast the first stone on her.

A Christian worker in a large city, who has had nearly half a century of experience among the sinning and the sinned against, answered once when some one expressed surprise over his treatment of a young girl. "When I began this work so many years ago, I had a great many rules and theories, to which I rigidly held.

"One by one these have all broken down, and now in each unfortunate that comes to me, I see a human soul needing the best I can give, and in a way, just like no other. I have to put myself in their places, and try to imagine the life they live."

There is an expressive little Japanese group of three monkeys, one with both hands over his ears, another with both hands over his eyes, while the third has both his over his mouth. It preaches an eloquent sermon to anyone looking at it. If this sermon were put into daily practice, we would not see the faults and failings of others, and then would not judge them harshly.

But in order to hear and see and praise all the good points, then both hands must come off ears and eyes and mouth, so that all possible credit can be given. Everyone has certain good points, and if we would try to find them out, then often, so often, the harsh criticism would never be made.

No one but God knows how surely the sinner may have been tempted, how long he may have resisted, how bitterly he may have repented. Always before judging, let us think of our own failings and sins, which must make us more charitable and merciful towards others.—I. H. N.

BUSINESS OF INTEREST TO RATEPAYERS DEALT WITH BY COUNCIL LAST NIGHT

P. Kennedy Will Fight Sewage Plant Site to a Finish—Bonner-Worth Needs Better Fire Protection—Tax Collector Appeals to Council for Consideration of His Case.

OTHER ITEMS ON THE SLATE

The Council last night passed a by-law providing for the payment of the city's contribution of $16,000.00 to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund.

"It's early yet," said Ald. Edgar at ten o'clock last night when some one moved the adjournment of the regular meeting of the Council. And, holding his pipe, Oh, so gently, proceeded to call attention to a depression or two he had observed in the pavement on George Street near the Sherbrooke Street corner.

Mayor Buller—That's caused by manholes. They've got to be raised.

Ald. Edgar—Is Ald. Green going to have Foley and Gleason attend to them before they leave the city?

Ald. Green—The City Engineer is watching the pavement closely. I might say that no Alderman need hold complaints or suggestions from one meeting to another. We have a complaint book in the Engineer's office. It is gone over every day, and suggestions entered in it are attended to.

All of which was a timely intimation to citizens, Aldermanic and otherwise. It does not follow that ratepayers should hasten to fill Ald. Green's book.

There is an unwritten law among the Aldermen that smoking will be tolerated after ten o'clock. And when some of the City Fathers light up a machine gun wouldn't stop them. Inspired by Miladi Nicotine they can call up more deficiencies around the city than several departments could look after. Ald. Duffus doesn't smoke but he fell in step with the general movement and presented the 1915 model of the East City Bridge, to which Ald. Evans opened his arms and warmly embraced.

Tax Collector's Difficulty.

Tax Collector J. W. Green suggested that the Finance Committee be given power to act in considering the postal regulations in their effect on late delivery of tax bills. In the past, he said, he issued them all on one day by employing fifteen boys to distribute them. The Postal Act is being strictly enforced, and all letters must go through the post office. This would mean nine cents on every letter sent out by Mr. Green. The Council acceded to his request.

Fine Old Elm Street.

W. J. Kearns and other Elm street residents asked that the street name be changed to Dutton street west. Referred to Board of Works.

Grange Approach.

R. C. Reid, 518 Gilmour street, asked for a roadway approach over the sidewalk in front of his lot to lead into his new garage. Referred to Board of Works.

Additional Engineers.

Alderman Green moved that Engineer Rogers's engagement of Assistant Davidson at $5 a day, and E. W. Cumberland at $3.50 a day, be authorized by their being placed on the permanent staff, in other words that they be placed on good standing with the civic eagle. Carried.

Alderman McIntyre, who "snipes" at everything that looks like new expenditure, said this meant four men on the engineering staff.

Alderman Green and Mayor Buller replied that this simply recruited the staff up to summer strength.

Alderman McIntyre pursed his lips, as he figured on his foolscap, and later submitted the following statement of engineering salaries:

|---|---|
| R. H. Parsons, per day | $8.00 |
| Angus Richardson, per day | 3.00 |
| E. G. Cumberland, per day | 2.50 |
| T. A. S. Hay, per day | 4.50 |
| T. Q. Quartermaine, per day | 2.50 |
| Total | $21.00 |

"Or" said Alderman McIntyre, "$6,500.00 a year!"

The rest of the Council responded with a silent "Well, what about it?" and that ended the matter.

Alderman Stratton Newsy.

Alderman Stratton—Mr. Mayor, have you a report from the committee that waited on the Provincial Board of Health?

Mayor Buller replied that the Board had not yet made a report, and hence there was nothing to offer.

Alderman Weir's Burden.

That East City watering trough on Hunter street, that made so much trouble for ex-Alderman Anderson, well apparently the residents over there now greet Alderman Weir with enquiries as to when he intends to make it behave. The water supply is more than satisfactory, but there seems to be chronic trouble with the exhaust. There is something wrong with it at any rate, and for particulars apply to Geo. A. Gillespie, Harry Morgan, John Anderson, Malcolm McIntyre or to Alderman Weir. The latter wants the ailment permanently fixed up.

Mayor Buller—Move it up to the track. It will be handy for your horses then.

County Council's Query.

The following letter was received from the County Council:

Last year the county paid the garbage tax under protest, and removed their own garbage. This year, up to the present, no garbage has been removed. Will the county take for granted that 1914 garbage taxes will be remitted and no garbage tax asked for 1915, or will the county remove the garbage and charge the city with such removal?

E. M. Elliott,
County Clerk.

Referred to Property Committee.

TRADES AND LABOUR MEN WANT A MINIMUM WAGE

R. Mitchell, the man at the periscope in the Trades and Labour trenches, was present last night and not a City Father but was aware of it. He submitted a resolution passed by the Labour Council asking for a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour for all labourers employed on sewers, sidewalks and similar city work, and that the city include a clause in all labour contracts let by the city calling for a minimum wage of 25 cents for labourers, a nine hour day and the employing of local labour only.

Mr. Mitchell's letter pointed out that the labouring man work only 8 months in a year and lost considerable of this time. In addition the cost of living has gone up and the labouring man need a 25 cent wage.

Ald. Green said—As this is a question coming about entirely under the Board of Works and deserves a great deal of consideration, I would suggest [illegible] meeting of the Council. This proposal was accepted.

Walk on Patterson Street.

Ald. Edgar asked for a sidewalk on the south side of Patterson Street from Hart to Rutherford. Ald. Saunders seconded the motion.

Caterpillar Campaign.

Mr. Richardson, agent for a sprayer, will get a chance to talk to the Board of Works soon.

Ald. Edgar—There is no use spending money to destroy caterpillars on city property if they are not destroyed on private property. Can we not force citizens to do this?

Ald. Green—Mr. Gordon is out of the city and we are waiting for his report on that point. We are asking the citizens in a kindly manner to co-operate. If that fails we may use harsher methods.

Ald. Langford— You will have to persuade farmers to get rid of their wild cherry trees before the caterpillar pest is destroyed. The country roads are lined with them.

WILL OPPOSE LOCATION OF SEWAGE PLANTS TO FINISH

Douglas & Gibson, counsel for H. P. Kennedy, forwarded the following letter, which is self-explanatory:

On April 16th, we notice in the Peterborough Examiner that a resolution was passed, moved by Alderman Green and seconded by Alderman Duffus, with reference to the construction of sewer and sewerage disposal plant on the property owned by our client, and that the resolution provided that notice should be sent to the clerk of the Township of Otonabee.

We beg to notify you on behalf of our client, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, that we will require notification of any such proceedings for which your resolution does not provide, and in any event, we do not propose that this plant shall be established on our client's property until we have exhausted every possible means as far as the courts will allow us.

We cannot understand the Council of a progressive city like Peterborough endeavouring to place a sewerage disposal plant on property which will ultimately become one of the finest residential districts of your city. You will, therefore, take notice that in any such proceedings as your resolution of April 15th called for, we must have notice as we intend to fight it to a finish.

DOUGLAS & GIBSON,
Solicitors, Toronto.

Referred to Board of Works.

BETTER FIRE PROTECTION FOR BONNER-WORTH CO.

The following letter was received from Davis, Thompson Co.:

City Clerk,—A representative of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, who was in Peterborough last week, inspected the premises of the Bonner-Worth Co., with a view to installing sprinklers, which that company have under consideration at the present time. He reports under present conditions this factory is practically without fire protection. There is only one hydrant which is connected with a 6-inch main on Cambridge street, and which is a dead-end. He found on a test of this hydrant that the pressure was 60 pounds, and when open dropped to 12 pounds. It must be admitted that this is a serious matter when it is taken into consideration that the Bonner-Worth Co. have an investment of about $250,000 with this building as their only protection. We understand that a 10-inch main has been laid on McDonnel street to Cross street. The Association require that this 10-inch main be connected with the 6-inch main, doing away with dead-ends, and that an al-

The Call to Peterborough

In two of the city churches on Sunday references were made to an article which appeared in the Examiner last week entitled "A Call to Peterborough" and stating that "the heroes of Ypres and Langemarck must be avenged." In both cases the reverend speakers deprecated this paragraph on the ground that it did not appeal to the higher emotions; that it did not come as a plea for the vindication of principle. From the standpoint of ethics the ministers are undoubtedly correct, but as a means to an end in an effort to stimulate recruiting there may be differences of opinion. For instance both reverend gentlemen might be justly if somewhat passively indignant at the abstract violation of some principle of justice, but let some one kick Mr. Davidson's dog (if he has one) or throw a stone through Mr. Webb's window and it may reasonably be assumed that just and passive indignation would give way to an equally just but much more vigorous desire for the apprehension of the offender. That is just the point. The average man undoubtedly fights the better when he is convinced that he is fighting for principle, as the British soldiers are fighting to-day, but let him know that a comrade has been cruelly and treacherously put to death and he becomes fired with a desire for revenge that makes him a much more formidable adversary than he otherwise would be. What are the things that have made Britishers rush to the colours? Was it the violation of Belgium's neutrality, the rupture of international laws? Partially of course, but much more so the horrible news of the innocent people slaughtered and young girls ravished. Did not the murder of women and children by the baby-killers of Scarborough add thousands of recruits to Kitchener's army, and will not those soldiers fight the harder when they recall the manner in which those unoffending non-combatants were put to death? Will not the British turn be more formidable than ever with the recollection of the murder of sailors by German submarines? Has not this always been the case? Was it not this spirit that enabled the handful of British soldiers subdue the hordes of mutineers in India? Don't you think that the story of the slaughter of English women and children fired the hearts of the soldiers and strengthened their arms so that they were able to achieve the impossible? What caused the Spanish-American war Not the abuses in Cuba, but primarily the blowing up of the United States' cruiser Maine. All of us remember the wave of indignation that swept over the republic to the south. "Remember the Maine" was the battle slogan in that war, and not "Remember Cuba."

But we have not to go that far back for an illustration. Reading Sir Max Aitken's wonderful eye-witness's story of the Canadians' exploits at Langemarck we come to his description of the charge of the 4th Battalion where he tells us that in the face of the murderous machine gun fire the line wavered until Lt.-Col. Birchall sprang out in front and was killed. "Then with a hoarse cry, for they loved him," says the eye witness, the gallant lads of the 4th Battalion charged and captured the German trenches. It was the desire to avenge their brave leader that transformed the battalion into a force that apparently nothing could stop.

And doesn't it seem reasonable that Canadian soldiers when they go into action again will be all the more determined to inflict all possible punishment on their adversaries when they remember how their comrades were done to death by the villainous use of poisonous gas by these same enemies? That spirit may not be of the upper strata ethically, but it is the spirit that has won many a battle, and the world's hisory is replete with illustrations.

EIGHT MORE VESSELS HAVE BEEN SUNK

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 4.—Eight more vessels were yesterday reported sunk by German submarines in the North Sea. Of the eight destroyed four were Norwegian steamers, and one was Swedish and three were British trawlers. The loss of life, which is confined to the crews of the trawlers, was light.

The Norgwegian steamer Baldwin was sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea on Sunday.

The members of the crew, numbering seventeen men, were allowed to take to their boats. Yesterday they landed at Leith.

Nine shots were fired into the Baldwin before she went down.

The Norwegian steamer Baldwin was of 698 tons net register and 231 feet long. Built in 1903, she was owned by Det Selmerik Redi of Trondhjem, Norway.

Crew Adrift 13 Hours.

The Norwegian steamship America was torpedoed in the North Sea on Saturday. The vessel sank within two hours.

The crew of the America, consisting of 39 men, were picked up thirteen hours later by the Norwegian mail boat Sterling, and were landed at Newcastle to-day.

The America left Sunderland Saturday morning for Bergen.

The steamship America was owned by the Sweden-Norway Line, and carried a cargo of lubricating oil and merchandise valued at $240,000. She sailed from Philadelphia, March 28, for Bergen and Christiana, in command of Captain Emdresen. Her tonnage was 2,305.

Ordered to Rescue Crew.

The Norwegian steamer Laila was sunk in the North Sea on Friday by a German submarine. Her crew was landed at Copenhagen yesterday by the steamer Anna, which witnessed the sinking, and at the request of the commander of the German submarine took the crew of the Laila aboard.

The Laila was a small freighter engaged in the North Sea. Her tonnage was 445. She was last reported as arriving at Bergen on April 30.

Crank Inventors Plan War Machines

Would-be inventors of new devices to wipe out whole armies at a stroke, sink powerful dreadnoughts, reduce big Zeppelins to powdered form; guns that will carry great distances, fade-away howitzers, etc., are haunting the offices of London patent agents day and night. The war has caused inventors' ingenuity to run riot. Here are a few inventions from the clever brains of engineers and others:

New gun that will bag a Zeppelin at any height, with an ingenious range-finder.

A gun that can fire a projectile miles beyond the range of the biggest guns now used by Germany.

Projectiles that carry all kinds of acids and chemicals that put soldiers into their death sleep—if they take a sniff. One inventor with long hair and green eyes would like to finance a company to make a projectile that carries tons of snuff. On explosion regiments are thrown into violent fits of sneezing and taken prisoners before they can recover.

Aeroplanes that can be perforated with bullets and still navigate.

Mines of all shapes and sizes, guaranteed to annihilate whole cities and destroy a fleet of battleships good material for the scrap heap.

Incandescent lamps with filaments in the form of the Maxwell coats have been invented (perhaps coats never look their best of the same size with cylindrical sleeves).

WARNED NOT TO ENTER GERMANY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

THE HAGUE, May 4.—Signora Genoni, one of the Italian delegates to the Women's International Congress, which has just come to an end here, yesterday received a personal letter from Italy advising her not to attempt to return through Germany owing to the tenseness of the situation. The writer of the letter referred also to serious pro-war rioting in the past few days in Milan and other cities in northern Italy.

THE PLAYGROUNDS

The Women's Council should be encouraged by the citizens of Peterborough in their efforts to establish supervised play grounds. Our city is well provided with parks, but lacks in places where the boys and girls may enjoy wholesome play. One eminent authority has said:

"Play is the first means of development of the human mind, its first effort to make acquaintance with the outward world to collect original experiences from things and facts, and to exercise the powers of body and mind." If this be so our citizens should manifest a deep interest in the play-grounds scheme.

Peterborough is interested in the health of the boys and girls. Give them good, healthy games — games that will develop the manhood and womanhood—games that will take away the selfish side and will teach the "give and take" spirit in their young lives.

In the supervised play ground the children will be encouraged to play fairly, cleanly and manfully. Every child will get a fair chance to play. Loyalty to the weak, loyalty to oneself, loyalty to one's opponents, will develop in the children, and thus the foundation of a greater loyalty will be begun. A word of caution, a look of approbation, or a wise admonition from the Supervisor may prove to be of incalculable value to a child in after life.

During this week let all talk of the play grounds and of Carnation Day—the proceeds of which will gladden some weary mother's heart because she feels that her child is at last going to have wholesome play during the summer under proper supervision. This call to boost the play ground is a call to everybody—to mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, and boys, and girls.

Interested.

18. Any person having the control or charge of a motor vehicle shall not sound any bell, horn, or other signalling device so as to make an unreasonable noise, and an operator of any motor vehicle shall not permit any unreasonable amount of smoke to escape from the said motor vehicle nor shall such operator at any time by cutting out the muffler or otherwise, cause such motor vehicle to make any unnecessary noise.

"Safety First" is the watchword of the Ontario Motor League, and we should like to have this season go by without an accident in or around our city. Cut out these rules and paste them on your wind shield until you know them thoroughly.

Purchasing A Memorial Tablet

Granite Monuments Made in Peterborough the Equal of Any Produced in Canada

It seems quite unnecessary to repeat that every dollar sent out of Peterborough carries with it a value that rightfully belongs to the community. Every dollar spent at home with your home dealer helps to build up your own interests. As one business man said to an out-of-town shopper: "If you buy out of town and all your neighbours buy out of town, what is to become of our town?" In this connection, it will be of interest to many to know that there is no need of buying anything in the monument line out of Peterborough. The Coughlin Monumental Work of 214 Hunter Street can fill any order, large or small, of any design, at any expense, in any quality of work that can be produced anywhere else in Canada.

The opening up of spring is always an opportune time for the consideration of the purchase of a memorial stone of some kind for departed relatives.

Coughlin's Monumental Works are fully equipped for supplying granite and other monuments in any desired design and artistic finish. They have installed a new air compressor in their plant, which, with the increased power thus obtained, enables them to introduce a number of new pneumatic tools of various kinds for carving and lettering in a more rapid and artistic manner.

Additions have also been made to their polishing mill which greatly increases their capacity for handling polishing of granite monuments. All kinds of granite are handled. Beautiful memorials from the Coughlin workshops may be seen all over this district, which have done credit to the skilled granite cutters they employ—some of whom are real artists in their work who learned their trade in the great granite shops of Scotland.

Coughlin's Monumental Works have recently placed an order for a carload of granite from the celebrated Ebony quarries of Mount Johnston, near Quebec. This granite is considered the best rough granite in the world for the production of beautiful granite monuments. They have also placed orders with the Barrie Vermont quarries for a number of carloads of rough granite, which is used principally for hammered finished monuments. Anyone contemplating placing an order for a memorial tablet should arrange for an inspection of the Coughlin works and secure a personal interview with Mr. Coughlin. If desired, a representative will call at any address with the latest designs and models, on which prices can be quoted that will effect a substantial saving, as well as the duty and the freight.

It is an important advantage to be able to place an order for a fine memorial tablet of the very newest design at hand, instead of buying the stock monuments which our cemeteries are now over-crowded with. Besides extra saving of duty and freight, the Coughlin Works saves their patrons the middlemen's profits on imported monuments.

To patronize home industries is a duty every citizen owes to himself and those he would like to see practice the Golden Rule. 9d-103-1w-18

Council Rewarded Industry of Man Who Supported Himself

The Council refunded half of Alexander Irwin's $30 license which permitted him to sell fish to householders during the past winter. He said he had used the license four months. Mayor Buller expressed the opinion that the young man's request deserved consideration. When out of work last winter he provided for himself rather than become a dependent on the city by seeking charity.

Ald. Stratton moved that Mr. Irwin be refunded six months license or $15, covering the last half of his year's permit. Ald. Green seconded it.

ALD. LANGFORD IS HIMSELF AGAIN

Welcomed by Mayor Buller and Council After His Recent Election

Ald. Langford was welcomed back to the aldermanic fold last night. He occupied the chair in which ex-Ald. Johnston ensconced himself until the good-natured veteran from the north ward withdrew to his billet for a self imposed rest after extended operations in the welter and turmoil up in the front civic trenches.

Ald. Langford resumed his nestling place under the Mayor's wing as casually as if he had snuggled in it during the cold and dreary winter months.

City Clerk Armstrong officially reported to the Council that Ald. Langford had been duly elected in the north ward bye election and had filed his qualifications.

Mayor Buller offered the Council's felicitations as follows:

"I might say we are glad to have you back again with us. We missed you while you were gone. We always appreciated the good work you have done, especially last year, and we hope to benefit in future by your wise counsel."

Ald. Langford briefly acknowledged the Mayor's welcome and said he would continue to give the city's affairs his closest attention. He signalized his return by asking Ald. Green what he proposed to do by way of fixing up George and Water Street north.

Mayor Buller—They need paving.

Ald. Green—I'll go up and look at them.

Ald. Langford—You'll see a reflection of yourself in some of the mud puddles. But seriously, there is a great deal of traffic on these streets and they should be attended to.

Ald. Green agreed and Ald. Langford was satisfied with the promise of repair work.

BERLIN IS EVIDENTLY

AT GALICIAN VICTORY

London, May 4—The defeat of the Russians in Western Galicia, if information and Austrian reports are to be believed, is serious. The main southern army of Russia under Gen. Ivanoff at present occupies a 70-mile front in the Carpathians from Ragelowo to Telegovec. It may possibly have to retreat as its right flank is in danger of envelopment and its left is threatened by strong enemy forces on the Stryj-Munkacs line.

The Russian army had established strong position s on the southern slopes of the Carpathians. Opposition to its advance recently has been stiffened for the Austrian troops have been reinforced by German corps. For the past three weeks the heaviest fighting has been in the region south of Rostok Pass, and slightly north of Dusok Pass.

Berlin claims that the movement in western Galicia is of the greatest importance of any action since Gen. von Hindenburg's great drive in the north and that the Russian army in the Carpathians is in imminent danger of being cut off. The Russians have gained the southern slopes of the main ridge and have worked their way well into the eastern Hungarian Duhla, and other smaller passes.

According to Berlin, Gen. von Mackensen's army has shattered the Russian right wing on a line running north and south about 50 miles east of Cracow. Meanwhile another strong Austrian column is working its way north along the Valley of the Stryj to attack the left wing positions of the Czar's forces. The German hope is to trap the Russians in the passes between these two forces. An attack on the Russian right wing has been predicted recently in Petrograd despatches as an offset to the Russian efforts farther east on the Carpathian front.

Despatches received from Berlin several days ago indicated that a great battle was being fought in this quarter. Copenhagen now reports that Berlin is wildly celebrating the receipt of the news that the Germans have broken through the Russian front in western Galicia.

Meanwhile Gen. von Hindenburg's forces are pressing steadily forward in northwestern Russia, along the Baltic shores. Rapid strides are being made, according to the German statement, and south of Mitau, on this march, the Germans captured 1,700 Russians. This advance is apparently to cut off the Russian port of Libau.

The official statement from Petrograd to-day says that the recent fighting on the Vistula has been characterized by particularly hot artillery fire. The German gunners during one period of 24 hours, fired 30,000 shells. Austrian prisoners especially the Roumanians, complain of cruel treatment by the Germans.

Petrograd expects that the German invaders along the Baltic will find it impossible to retreat.

WAR NOW

EXPECTED

Increasing Signs To-day That Austro-Italian Crisis is On

Rome, May 4—Direct information from the German Embassy confirms the report that negotiations between Austria and Italy have been broken off. The excitement in the city is growing.

Ambassador Von Buelow's messenger delivered a note to the Foreign Minister, Baron Sonnino, last evening. Baron Sonnino immediately paid a second long visit to the King.

Before the meeting of the cabinet last night the newspaper Messagero announced: "During the last few hours the situation has undergone a marked change. Baron Sonnino, before war is declared on Austria, will make an effort to end the conflagration. He will warn Germany that Italy's intervention will also mean the intervention of Roumania."

Two important envoys are coming to Rome on secret missions. One of these envoys is Herr Mathias Erzberger, leader of the Catholic party in the German Reichstag, bearing a personal letter from Emperor Wilhelm to the Pope. A courier from Vienna will reach Rome to-day with Austria's final answer to the Italian representations.

The cancellation of the visits of the King and Premier Salandra to the unveiling of a Garibaldi memorial has added greatly to the popular excitement. The commercial and industrial life of the city has come practically to a standstill.

Peterborough Health Association

...00.00 a month for food and the other necessities for patients, the Association will undertake to raise sufficient money to keep the nurses in the field until the strenuous times have passed.

A First Appeal.

Dr. Cameron said that the Association had not heretofore appealed to the public for assistance, nor to the Council, nor to any other organization The members would be glad to receive new members including the City Fathers.

Rev. Father Phelan said it was his first appearance before the Council with any delegation, and he was pleased that the present object was such a worthy one. The Association had relieved the Council of a great burden, and many cases have been looked after which the city would have had to look after.

Mr. Black remarked that the Council does a good work in providing work for the unemployed. But the Health Association goes further.

The Council provides work for the health, the Association cares for the ill, especially those in poor circumstances. At the same time its object is largely preventative, especially in the treatment of tubercular cases.

Dr. Halliday, Dr. Neal, and Mr. Dunsford endorsed the remarks of the previous speakers. The latter stated that the Association's membership last year was only 180.

Council Will Assist.

Mayor Buller replying said his heart was with the cause. The Association had carried on a wonderful work, and without asking for help. This was one of the greatest works in Peterborough. His Worship asked Alderman Stratton to take up the Association's request and see what could be done. The Council, he concluded, would be glad to help.

Cars Running on Charlotte Street

Street Car Service Has Not Been Completely Re-established Yet

The jitney service on Charlotte St. has been dispensed with for a time, and the street cars are being operated [illegible] Railway Company has not been completely re-established on Charlotte Street as yet, and when the bricks are being laid along the tracks the jitney will in all probability be put into action again.

The paving operations by Messrs. Foley and Gleason's men are being rushed. By this evening the first layer of paving will have been laid as far west as the corner of Park Street and Charlotte Street. The corner there is being widened, part of the Park being taken into the street to make room for the street car line. The corner is practically prepared to receive the first coating, and it will only be a matter of a few days now until the finishing layer is being put on.

This morning the first bricks were laid at the crossings. The curb, which is being placed about eighteen inches from the edge of the sidewalk, making a sort of boulevard the length of the street on both sides, is almost finished as far as Reid Street.

To-day the street cars are running as far west on Charlotte Street as Reid Street, and passengers have only a block to walk to connect with the C. G. E. or Jackson Park lines.

Four Degrees Above Freezing

Last Night's Temperature Was Three Degrees Higher—Snowfall Eight Years Ago To-day

The margin of safety from frost was widened last night by three degrees over that of the previous evening, when the low mark of thirty-three degrees was recorded. The minimum temperature for last night was thirty-six degrees, or four degrees above freezing. It is interesting to note that eight years ago to-day, this section of Ontario was blanketed with over four inches of snow. In fact the snowploughs were dragged from the shades of oblivion and were directed around their usual routes. At that time the trees were partly in leaf and almost as far shot as they are at the present time. The snow did not last very long, and the crop prospects were said to have been enhanced as a result of the moisture that followed the disappearance of the snow.

In Western Ontario.

The farmers of Halton county smile a broad smile as they pass the clover and fall wheat fields on the way to the spring seeding. The clovers and grasses, as well as the fall wheat, have wintered exceptionally well, and several old sods left over to insure a hay crop are being ploughed and cultivated for spring seeding. An estimate last fall of the quantity of wheat sown here was placed at about double that sown the year previous. With the increased acreage and brilliant prospect large yields are prophesied. Only the best of the clover and grasses are being left for hay. Spring seeding is general, and in some districts finished. In some sections the seeding will be finished three or four weeks earlier than last year. Spring crops have gone in splendidly. In addition to the preparation of a good seed bed there has been a good deal of attention paid to good seed. There has been a brisk demand for seed from fields of good record last year. A good rain would be appreciated, especially on the lighter land.

SELF DENIAL EFFORT IS UNDER WAY

Peterboro' Salvation Army Corps is Assisting in the Work—Stories From the Firing Line

Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, of the Peterborough Corps, announces the Annual Self-Denial Effort which is on this week, and which has become such an important institution throughout the world-wide Salvation Army.

The Annual Week of Self-Denial was inaugurated by the Salvation Army in the year 1886. The amount raised was $34,000 00. The total result of the Army's Week of Self-Denial last year, was $266,800.000, of which amount the Army in the Dominion of Canada, raised $44,343.00. Peterborough Corps is hoping to raise at least $600.

Items of Interest.

Instructor Harry Ranger, B.E.M.C., was awarded the distinguished Conduct Medal for helping to rescue Prince Maurice of Battenburg, when mortally wounded. Up to the present, the General has provided two motor ambulance units, one of five and another of six cars. The first unit was dedicated by the Lord Mayor of London in the historic Guildhall. The second unit is named "The Queen Alexander Unit." Her Majesty having been pleased to inspect and name them. These are all operated by Salvationists. Salvation Army Officers have proved themselves so efficient that the Imperial authorities have availed themselves of their services in connection with the Imperial Ambulance sections.

In connection with this branch of Army operations no fewer than nine thousand wounded Belgian soldiers have convalesced at Salvation Army Farms and social institutions.

In connection with the training of [illegible] have three hundred tents and huts in the training localities, for the purpose of affording rest rooms and supplying the boys in khaki with refreshments conducting meetings and serving the soldiers generally. With respect to these meetings, the following story is told:

A Tommy had been marching all day and was coming into camp dead tired. He was dragging his way along, one leg saying to the other—"let me go by this time and I'll let you go by next." The number of his brass tag was 246. Presently he came by the tent, and the hymn was just being announced. 'Number 246" came the preacher's voice, "Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Heavy Laden?" Tommy poked his head through the flap of the tent, "Not arf" he said.

Assist Bereaved Ones.

The comforting and cheering of the bereaved ones and assisting those materially in need, is largely done by an organization called the Special Service Legion. This provides that in all large towns, twenty or more women Salvationists will comfort and help the wives and friends of those at the front.

It appears that the First Sea Lord inquired at the offices of a London Distress committee for information as to what was being done to cheer up the wives of the soldiers and sailors. He was informed that the Salvation Army had undertaken to do all that was necessary in that direction.

"We have set apart for it!" he was told, "women with tender hearts and cheerful countenances." The remark delighted Lord Fisher. He slapped his thigh in sailor fashion, laughed heartily and exclaimed, "Splendid; "Splendid; this is the best I have heard yet. I will tell the King about it".

It was in connection with this branch of work that the following took place

A Sunderland woman lay dying; her five sons being in the army. Her one desire was to see her boys again, and through the officers of a local Salvation Army Corps, four of the sons serving in England reached home in twenty-four hours. Their expenses were paid by the authorities. The fifth son, however, was at the front, and there seemed little chance of the old woman seeing her wish fulfilled. But the Salvationist Officer wired to the War Office, and back came the reply over Lord Kitchener's signature, saying if the son could be found he would be sent home, and eventually he landed in time to see his mother before hr death. The authorities had paid his expenses and given him seven days' furlough and rations.

The Salvation Army has three Chaplains with the rank of Honorary Captains connected with the Canadian Forces, and officials and unofficial chaplains with every belligerent nation except Turkey and Austria.

The funds raised by this special effort are mainly devoted to the missionary work of the Army, which organization is at work in fifty-eight countries and colonies, and the Gospel is preached in thirty-six languages. The operations of the Army, comprise medical missionary work, educational enterprises, social institutions and preaching the Gospel.

The address of Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, should any one desire to contribute a donation towards this effort, is 515 King Street.

With the addition of these two boxes, the business section of the city will be adequately provided for, as each block will be served with a fire alarm box. The boxes are now being installed and will be connected up in the course of a few days.

Stock Markets

New York Stocks

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 4.—To-day's market was an improvement on yesterday's. It would seem that the readjustment level has been reached in the prices of leading stocks, and a return to the activity of the last two or three weeks would not come as a surprise. War specialties have suffered with the rest in the decline of the past few days. Rails and Industrials have also reflected weakness that bids fair to be temporary. Stocks that should recover well from breaks are Westinghouse, Locomotive, Car Foundry and the regular line of war specialties.

WM. BARNES AND ROOSEVELT TESTIFY

Warring Interests in $50,000 Libel Suit is Revived—Roosevelt to "Correct His Testimony"

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 5.—Waning interest in the William Barnes-Theodore Roosevelt $50,000 political suit was revived and redoubled by the expectation that both principals would be on the stand.

The crowd that struggled for admission to the court-room was like those of the first week of the action when the Colonel held the boards.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to "correct his testimony" to the extent of revealing his "state of mind" at the time he caused to be republished his alleged libel of Barnes whom he charged with being in combination with C. Francis Murphy of Tammany Hall.

After long consideration by the lawyers, fourteen additional letters from the musty files of the late "Boss" Platt were ready to be read. Edward T. Platt, son and executor of the Senator, brought some ten thousand letters to Syracuse and wanted them all read. They dated from 1890 to 1909 and included many Platt-Roosevelt and Platt-Barnes missives. John M. Bowers, chief counsel for the Colonel, insisted that he wanted only Platt-Barnes correspondence of 1898-1899 and after much sifting fourteen letters were selected.

A story that former Governor Martin H. Glynn would be summoned to tell of the alleged printing ring in Albany was characterized as "imagination" by counsel for Roosevelt.

German Submarines Sink More Trawlers

THREE MORE TRAWLERS ARE SUNK

Victims of German Submarines —Italian Newspapers Declare Italy is About to Join Allies

WAR DESPATCHES

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 5.—All despatches from Rome bear evidence of the strictest censorship. They agree, however, that the situation is rapidly approaching [illegible] has been assiduously devoting himself to military and diplomatic preparations necessary for the carrying out of any purpose that may be decided on.

The interventionist newspapers continue to declare that Italy is about to join the allies.

THREE MORE VICTIMS.

London, Eng., May 5—Three more trawlers were victims to-day of German submarine attacks, designed to destroy the trawler fleet in a two-fold hope of the Germans preventing the use of the fishing fleet as auxiliaries for mine sweeping and to force the stoppage of all fishing.

The three vessels to-day were west ward ho, recently used as a patrol boat, the Iolanthe and the Hero.

The crews of the three trawlers were permitted to take to boats before they were sunk.

All were safely landed at Hull to-day.

WATCHED WITH INTENSE INTEREST.

WASHINGTON, May 5.— That the United States 'action in the matter of the Gulflight, Failaba, Frye and other ships attacked, or supposed to have been attacked by German war vessels, is being watched by European neutrals with the most intense interest, was apparent from the State Department developments to-day.

Since the report of the disaster of the Gulflight reached this country, diplomats of two other neutrals have called at the department for news of the incident, according to their own testimony, and one admitted that the administrations' action was being reported in detail to his government.

Norway, Sweden and Holland, diplomats said, are in much the same position toward Germany as is the United States, all three having suffered more or less from submarine attacks, Norway perhaps the most heavily.

Officials to-day pointed one phase of the situation as yet little commented upon, practically the immunity enjoyed by Italian vessels.

TO GET BETTER TREATMENT.

LONDON, May 5.—A British official announcement issued yesterday says Germany is arranging, through the U. S. Ambassador, to accord exactly similar treatment to the British officers who have been especially confined in Germany as that given by Great Britain to German submarine prisoners.

Pte. Heber Rogers Falls In Battle

Was Killed at the Battle of Langemarck—Son of Mr. R. B. Rogers

A cable from Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers, second in command of the second battalion, first Canadian contingent, to his cousin, Mr. R. B. Rogers, 147 Hunter Street east, last evening, informed him that his son, Pte. Heber Rogers, had been killed in action at the battle of Langemarck. The cable read: "Heber sold his life dearly at a machine gun."

The late Pte. Rogers was the youngest son of Mr. R. B. Rogers. He was 19 years of age and was among the first to enlist in Peterborough. He was a general favourite in the city and his passing is deeply regretted.

Russians Are Still Holding Railway To The Carpathians

Desperate Resistance Being Offered to Advance of Germans Enemy---Enemy Crosses Dunajec River But Success is Not Decisive

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 5.—The Austro-German forces have succeeded in crossing to the right or eastern bank of the Dunajec River in Galacia, according to official announcement last night from Petrograd, but the claims of the Czar's opponents to a decisive victory are by no means admitted by the Russian War Office, which declares that desperate fighting still is in progress in that region of the war theatre.

The opinion is expressed here that, while the forces under Gen von Mackensen appear to have won an initial success of considerable importance, they have not been able to cause a retreat by the Russians for any great distance. It is pointed out by the British military critics that Tarnow, Gorlice and other important towns are situated very close behind the original Russian fortified line, and the fact that none of these towns is referred to in the Austrian and German official reports is taken to indicate that they are all still in the hands of the Russians. It is believed that so long as the Russians can retain control of the railway line passing southward through Tarnow, east of the Dunajec, their positions along the Carpathian heights, so dearly won in the recent great engagement, will not be seriously menaced.

Over 30,000 Russian prisoners are in the hands of the Austrians and Germans, according to the latest official despatches from Vienna and Berlin. While it is conceded that this figure may not be exaggerated, the opinion prevails in London that the Austro-German successes so far have been in isolated battles, and not the result of a general breakdown of the Russian defensive lines.

STRONGEST ON LEFT WING.

The correspondent of the Morning Post says in a despatch from Petrograd: 'As was anticipated some time ago, the enemy is now developing an attack on a fifty or sixty mile front in West Galicia. From the lower reaches of the Nida, where it flows into the Upper Vistula right away to the Carpathians, the fighting is now in progress. The left wing of the enemy's advancing line is being pushed with exceptional vigor, while the fighting elsewhere is mainly an artillery preparation or a series of disconnected conflicts.

"The left wing, advancing along the left bank of the Vistula, delivered in the early hours of Sunday before dawn no fewer than six attacks. The enemy displayed such determination in this section that it is practically certain that the attacking force consisted of Germans. The artillery fire was the strongest in the neighbourhood of Tarnow and south of that point, but attacks delivered here lacked the cohesion of the general plan, presumably being entrusted to Austrians, whose leading in the field has by no means equalled that of the German officers.

"The object of the attack is to relieve the pressure upon the forces defending the Plains of Hungary from the main line of the Russian advance across the Carpathians."

CELEBRATION IN BERLIN.

Fuller details of the battle are anxiously awaited from Petrograd, for it is believed here that a considerable Austro-German success in the East would permit of the transfer of great masses of German troops to the west and the resumption of operations on a large scale in Flanders.

The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail says:

"An enthusiastic celebration of the Austro-German victory in the Carpathians is in progress in Berlin. The houses and streets are bedecked with flags and crowds are parading the Capital singing patriotic songs.

"The Vossische Zeitung describes the victory as one of the glorious events of the war. It adds that it will have an immense military and moral result and hopes it will be a warning to neutral nations who might be inclined to take up arms against Austria and Germany.

"Germans in Rotterdam are jubilant. They are predicting the fall of Calais within two weeks." The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs "A holiday was granted to all the schools of Germany today to celebrate the Russian defeat in the Carpathians. The population is beside itself with joy. Nevertheless, the Berlin Stock Exchange was dull to-day."

MAKING FURIOUS ASSAULTS

On the Dardanelles Defences —Bombardment of Strait Forts by the Warships

MORE TROOPS LANDED

LONDON, May 5.—The despatches from newspaper correspondents concerning the operations against the Dardanelles were confirmed last night when the British War Office and Admiralty issued reports stating that [illegible] allied forces had taken the offensive on the Gallipoli Peninsula and now were advancing into the interior.

The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs:

"A fresh landing of troops is in progress on the Gallipoli Peninsula. The allied troops are making furious assaults on the Turkish positions, and are advancing steadily, consolidating their positions. The bombardment of the forts of the strait by the warships is continuing actively."

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

The following official statement was issued by the War Office last night:

"During the night of the 1st-2nd of May and the night of the 2nd-3rd the enemy launched strong and determined attacks in mass against our positions, constantly bringing up fresh troops.

"Not only did the allies repulse every attack, inflicting enormous losses on the enemy, but we assumed the offensive, drove the enemy out of their position and are now advancing into the interior of the peninsula."

Four large transports are carrying German reinforcements to the Dardanelles, says the correspondent of the Daily News at Athens. He does not say where these transports are being sent, but it is supposedly from Constantinople.

The Constantinople official statement to-day is typical of all issued by the Porte. After claiming to have repulsed the allied troops, who, according to a previous official communication, were never permitted to land, it recorded this 'glorious victory:"

"In an engagement between our gendarmes and seven armed sailors who landed on the uninhabited island of Biarat, in the Aegean Sea, the latter were killed."

An Athens despatch says:

"The bombardment of the Turkish forts on the Gulf of Smyrna has been resumed, according to messages reaching here from Mitylene, and the warships of the allies continue their lively shelling of the forts on the Dardanelles. The allies are reported to have effected a landing near the site of the ancient Ephesus, a location 25 miles south-south-east of Smyrna."

AUSTRALASIAN LOSSES.

A despatch from Sydney says: Additional lists of the killed and wounded among the Australasians in the fighting on the Gallipoli Peninsula show a high percentage of casualties among the officers, and indicate that the Australian troops are suffering severely. The latest casualty list includes the names of Lt.-Col. McLaurin, commanding the third infantry brigade of Australasians, and Lieut.-Col. Stewart of the New Zealanders, among the killed.

HAD PREPARED PROCLAMATIONS IN ANTICIPATION

of the Capture of Ypres But the Canadians Upset Their Plans

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 5.—The Morning Post's Amsterdam correspondent quotes the Echo Belge for a statement that in anticipation of being able to pierce the allied lines near Ypres the Germans decided formally to proclaim the annexation of Belgium.

With this end in view a number of Antwerp journalists connected with papers which are still allowed to appear under German censorship were summoned to the German headquarters, where they were told they must prepare Belgian public opinion for the approaching announcement.

Despite the almost menacing tone of the commandant's secretary, the journalists left without committing themselves any way, and the next day the commandant learned that the German troops had made no appreciable progress. Whereupon all ideas of the campaign for annexation were abandoned.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

FOUNDERS OF THE EMPIRE

When we look at the map of the world, we understand that the big red splashes represent continents, countries, islands innumerable, which own allegiance to King George.

Who built this great Empire? One of the greatest builders was Captain Cook. Cook was the Yorkshire sailorman who practically made the Empire a present of Australia, New Zealand, and the thousand and one isles and atolls of the Pacific. Of course, "there were others," but Australians look upon Cook as their "only begetter."

It is improbable that King George would to-day be Emperor of India had there never been a Robert Clive, a young fellow who forsook the clerk's desk for the battlefield. When he went to India he found a few trading stations, but he left an Empire.

If we turn to America two names spring to our lips, the founder of Virginia and the conqueror of Canada. For two centuries it was a toss-up which should be top-dog in North America. France or England. If priority of settlement counts, Britain had first call, for Raleigh founded the colony of Virginia in the days of Good Queen Bess, its name being meant as a compliment to that strong-minded woman. But the French were very solidly settled in Canada, it seemed, when Wolfe so brilliantly captured Quebec, the Gibraltar of the St. Lawrence.

There have been many men connected with the development of British influence and power in Africa. Egypt was won in an hour's fight at Tel-el-Kebir by Wolseley; we owe the Soudan to Gordon and Kitchener; and the rest of Africa under the British flag, firstly, to that missionary-traveller, Livingstone, and secondly, to that organising genius and man of business, Cecil Rhodes.

To that little handful of men, then, probably the British Empire is chiefly indebted for its phenomenal expansion.—London Answers.

HAD INDIGESTION
FOR OVER 10 YEARS.
ALMOST DESPAIRED OF EVER GETTING WELL.

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitating feeling in it. After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation. It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion if you will only try that old and well-known remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which is a combination of nature's best, known roots, herbs and barks for the cure of all stomach and blood troubles.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors' medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings.

PAMPERING PRISONERS BRINGS MANY PROTESTS

Some People in England Think Captured German Officers Treated Better Than Defenders of Country

England feels rather indignant at what the newspapers call the "pampering of prisoners" and the treatment of German captives in England is angrily contrasted with the hardships which British prisoners in Germany are said to endure. The London papers are full of letters of protest against the Government's purchase of a mansion in Leicester called Donington Hall, formerly the seat of a British peer, which has been fitted up for the reception of captured German officers at a cost of some $65,000. In the columns of the London Times there was the following report of a discussion of the question in the House of Commons:

"Mr. Tennant (Under Secretary of War) said he was able to mention the main items of expenditure for fitting up Donington Hall for German officer prisoners. Complete tests of the drainage were made by agents and their report revealed the fact that an entire overhaul was necessary. As to repairs of the house, it had been unoccupied for many years, and in some places the walls showed signs of decay. No decoration nor unnecessary work was done. Two baths were installed in one room, which was at the rate of one bath for fifty officers—not an extravagant allowance. An additional boiler was put in for supplying the baths. In regard to electric lighting, that was necessary to illuminate the barbed wire fence at night. As there was no artificial light in the house it was considered that the most economical plan was to install electric light in the house also. As the large bedrooms were distinctly crowded, wooden huts were erected to accommodate twelve officers each. Each officer had a camp-bed, a plain washstand, and a cheap chest of drawers so that the style of furnishing corresponded with that of servants' bedrooms, and could not be described as luxurious. No billiard tables had been provided. The majority of the servants were housed in a large loft over the coach house. The estimated cost of putting up the huts for prisoners, of providing the fence and furniture, etc., was over $100,000. The number provided for at Donington Hall included 320 prisoner officers, 105 prisoner servants, and 160 staff and guard; total, 585. By putting up extra huts for more persons a total of 700 could be accommodated. When the place was full the rent would come out at about $3.75 per head per annum.

Mr. Hume-Williams asked the Under Secretary for War whether as soon as the electric light had been suitably installed at Donington Hall for the use of German officers and their servants, it would become possible to extend a similar convenience to the English officers and men in the Hyde Park barracks at Knightsbridge; and why it was necessary to provide electric lighting for the Germans when one of the principal barracks for Englishmen had been so long without it.

As a sample of the feeling aroused Sir William Richmond, the eminent painter, wrote to the Morning Post: "The action of the Government in regard to Donington Hall is weak, foolish, and wrong, to use no stronger expression.

"Weak, because it is an attempt to curry favor among our enemies. Foolish, because they only laugh at the effeminate sentiment of which it is an expression. Wrong, because the nation's money spent upon granting luxuries to our enemies in our own land, which they would devastate to-morrow if they could, is money mis-spent and in an unpatriotic cause."

An indignant letter came from "The Mother of a Private in Kitchener's Army," who said:

"There are many men who have given up comfortable, refined homes, and sacrificed much to fight for their King and country, and their friends cannot but feel intense indignation at such luxurious quarters being provided for German officer prisoners at Donington Hall, when leaking huts, no baths, and elementary sanitary arrangements are considered good enough for the brave fellows who have come forward in their country's hour of need."

Busy Women Wanted.

In Germany there is a total number of 11,000 women filling honorary positions in cities and on charity boards. In 155 municipalities seven thousand women are in active service for the care of the poor and of orphans. In 125 towns these are working serving on school boards.

FIFE AND DRUM BANDS

Almost from time immemorial soldiers have marched to battle to the tune of the drum or the skirling of the pipes. Perhaps, however, the most interesting of the early record of martial music in the British Isles is that concerning an episode in 1333, the date of the Battle of Halidon Hill, when "the Englysche mynstrelles beaten their tabors and blewen their trumpes, and pipers pipedene loud and made a great schowte upon the Skottes."

The earliest date at which drums were carried on horseback in England appears to be 1542, when Henry VIII. sent to Vienna for kettle drums that could be played on horseback "after the Hungarian manner." Mounted bands were in vogue in the last decade of the eighteenth century, the two regiments of Life Guards having them in 1795.

Regimental kettle drums are usually draped in beautifully-worked drum banners, which often display great artistic taste, and are inscribed with the regimental honors. The Royal Horse Guards have a pair of silver drums which were presented by King George III. in 1805.

Fifes also have a claim to notice. They were in favor before the reign of James I., when they were withdrawn, to be restored by the Duke of Cumberland in 1745, who reintroduced them into the Guards. Thereafter the drums and fifes took their place as a recognized body, distinct from the band generally speaking, but a valuable asset for marching purposes.

An epoch in the history of military music was the adoption of wooden instruments with keys. This enabled melodies to be played long before the brass instruments could do more than sound their "open" notes.

THIS BURGLAR WAS WELCOME

Victim Would Give Anything for Another Visit From the Night Marauder.

"I know a burglar—that is, I met him once—who can have anything I've got if he will only visit me again," said the hollow-eyed man.

"I was in bad shape. For months my arch-enemy, insomnia, had held me in a death grip. I was in the midst of one of my very worst nights when the burglar came.

"I had been lying for I don't know how long trying to imagine I was asleep, which was the nearest approach to sleep I ever got these nights, and had just about succeeded, when my burglar scraped his foot against the wall.

"I opened my eyes and saw him sitting on the window sill. I knew he was a burglar, but I wasn't scared.

"'You can run away with the house itself,' I said, 'if you'll only let me sink into a doze again.'

"He understood right off how it was.

"'Tough, ain't it?' he said. 'I've been there. In fact, I'm just getting over a nasty attack and have half a dozen sleeping powders in my pocket now. A doctor I tried to hold up one night gave them to me. They're the best I ever tried. If you like, I'll let you have one.'

"I did want one, so the burglar turned on the light and mixed the powder with a little water. I gulped it down.

"'Thanks,' said I. Then, as I fell back on the pillow, I said: 'Go ahead and help yourself.'

"He did, but he was very considerate. He only took my watch and a roll of bills from my trousers pockets. In payment he left the other five sleeping powders.

"They were worth the price. They put me into such fine condition that I have slept like a top up to about two months ago.

"Now insomnia has me again and I have no more powders nor the address of the burglar's doctor. I wish he'd rob my house again."

As to the Tired Business Man.

See the tired business man! Is he really tired? Well, we are always hearing that he is.

What does he do? Why, he looks over his mail, smokes a few good cigars, dictates to Miss Snappitycliek, motors a bit, lunches a little too well or banquets in the same fashion, roots at the ball game, gawks some and possibly basks in the smiles of a peach or two in no way related to him, and incidentally talks a little business with a few other tired business men.

But what makes him tired? We do not know. But it is the shows that are put up for his delectation, the books that are printed for him and the everlasting pickle that is written about his weariness that makes the rest of us tired.

MAKING HER HAPPY

One Case Where Love Was Successfully Placed Second to Honor.

By ROSE CARRINGTON.

"If you really loved me, you'd explain," and the girl tossed her head angrily.

"Once more, Helen, I will not."

"Then, Ted, there is nothing more for me to do but to give you back this," and Helen drew off the ring he had placed on her finger with such professions of devoted love that it made her heart ache to remember them.

"Helen, don't," he whispered, but she did not flinch.

"Can you bear to break it off?" he asked softly, all the anger dying out of his boyish face.

"Yes, I can when there is a secret between us. If you have one now, you'd have a dozen after we were married." But her own face was relaxing, and the tears lay near the surface.

"Helen, dearest, just wait. Give me until tonight, and then I promise to tell you everything. You owe me that much notice," and he smiled a little uncertainly. "You know when a man loses his job he is given a little bit of notice."

"But this is not a job," Helen said; but she slipped the ring back on her finger.

"Isn't it? Well, I just guess yes, the finest kind of a one."

"How do you make that out?" and now there was a faint smile about the pretty lips.

"It is a mighty fine job, that of making you happy," Ted returned, his usual merry expression coming back into his eyes as he bent towards her.

"Nonsense. But honest, Ted, if you can tell me tonight, why not now?" and her eyes tempted him to go against what he believed to be right, but he shook off the influence, and returned gravely:

"Remember, Neil, that picture we saw last winter at the art exhibit?"

She did not need to be told which one, for there had been only that which had lingered in their memory.

"You know, the one where the girl is trying to get her sweetheart to wear a white handkerchief so that he will be taken for a member of the other side, and not be killed?"

He Offered Her No Explanation.

"Of course."

"And you know what was under it? Something about loving her less if he did not love honor more?"

Helen nodded.

"Well, that's my case, girlie—honest. I can't tell you because I promised not to, and I can't go back on my honor, for if I did I'd not be worthy of you. See?" And there was a strength of purpose in his dark eyes that appealed to her and made her eyes dim, although, woman like, she asked softly:

"Would you rather give me up than go back on your promise?"

Ted swallowed hard. "If you'd want me to, Nell, I don't believe I could care for you as much as I do. You see, I'd feel that something was wrong. Now kiss me, dear, and just wait until tonight, and I'll prove to you that I'm not what you think me, something awfully bad after all," and without waiting for permission, he drew her into his arms, kissed her not once but several times, then ran away, leaving her gasping, but happier than she had been for several days.

The crux of the trouble had been reached the night before, when there had been a dance to which all of her set had been invited. It was the last she expected to attend before their marriage, and so Helen had looked forward to it eagerly. Ted was to come for her at nine, and she had dressed very carefully, pinning on the bluish roses he had sent her, after kissing them with girlish tenderness. However, although she was all ready a little before nine, Ted did not come. Nine grew to ten, then eleven, and finally twelve, and still she waited alone and in vain, and worse than all, she received no message of explanation. Finally, frantic with imagining all kinds of accidents, she had thrown herself, all dressed, on her bed and sobbed herself to sleep. In the morning he had telephoned her, asking her to meet him at the park entrance, and when she arrived at the appointed spot she found him haggard, sleepless and with tumbled clothes. He offered her no explanation, except to say that business had detained him. Still, she loved him with all her girlish heart, and as she sat there in the sweet, early spring air after he had left her, feeling alone as though on a desert island, she realized that she was beginning to understand more of her woman's nature, to make excuses and forgive without knowing why.

The day passed slowly, and she felt she could scarcely wait until evening. The dreariness of the house became more pronounced because of the calls from many of her girl friends, who came so openly to question her absence from the dance, that she felt that her endurance was almost gone. To them all she replied gaily, hiding her worry beneath a smile.

"Why, there's nothing in it. Surely Ted and I ought to be allowed the privilege of choosing our way of spending an evening. You see, Ted is a bit jealous, and I honestly believe he doesn't like me to dance with any one else." And with this palpable but innocent fiction, smilingly given, she disarmed even her chum who was to be maid of honor at the wedding. The latter laughed teasingly as she cried:

"And to think that you'd be so much in love, Neil, that you'd be willing to give up a dance like that last night." But Neil only smiled back.

"Just wait, Grace, until your turn comes, and then you'll know how dear the right one can be," and there was a catch in her throat as she spoke, for surely Ted was dearer than even her sense of justice, and she felt she could still trust him.

At last, when the gloaming of the spring evening wrapped the world in its cloud, with trembling fingers Helen dressed for Ted, her heart beating so rapidly that she could scarcely get her breath. Long before eight she was ready for him, but it was after nine before she heard his ring and ran to let him in. Somehow she could not reproach him, he seemed so tired and worn. His eyes were deep with fatigue and shining bright, and to her only put her arms up and drew his head down, saying gently:

"My poor boy, how tired he looks; come, sit down and rest."

"You darling!" he whispered, and for a moment he rested his aching head on the little shoulder lovingly offered for his support, and then he broke out with:

"Thank God, it's all over," and drew her closer to him. All curiosity suddenly left Helen. No longer was she a petulant girl, jealous of her rights, but a strong, courageous woman, with a deep trust in the integrity of the man she was going to marry, and she laid her firm, cool hand on his burning one so confidingly that he raised it to his lips before he began:

"I wonder, Nellie, if I were to ask you to keep on trusting me without any explanation, you'd do it?"

Without any hesitation, she returned:

"I've been thinking about that picture, Ted, and I believe the man was right; he could not have loved the girl as he ought, if he had not been true to his honor. If you can't tell me, it is all right."

It was worth a good deal to him, this simple confession of her faith, but fortunately Ted did not have to take advantage of it. With a little laugh of pure joy, he sat with his arm about her and told her the story, which after all was simple, once she understood. An employer's son, who had fallen into bad company, had been driven to forging his father's name. The check was presented and disputed, and then Ted had been sent to find the missing wrong-doer.

"I spent the whole of last night looking for him, and most of today in getting him to go back home. I had promised not to breathe a word of it until I landed him safely, and I couldn't break my word, not even for you, sweetheart," and he spoke earnestly.

"Oh, Ted, how good you are," she said softly.

"No, it was the only thing to do. Bob's father has been pretty good to me, and now that he and Bob understand each other, the boy will be all right. So no harm's done if you don't mind being loved second to honor. That's your only rival."

"You could not have loved me as much as you do if you had not given me that rival," was Neil's reply.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a tablespoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

Napoleon's Name.

A Greek scholar called attention to a very curious coincidence about the name of Napoleon. If you take away the first letter of his name you have "apoleon;" take away the first letter of that word, and you have "poleon;" do this successively down to the last syllable, and you have "leon," "eon" and "on." Put these several words together in this order, Napoleon on oleon leon eon apoleon poleon, and you have a Greek phrase the literal translation of which is "Napoleon, being the lion of peoples, went about destroying cities."—Exchange.

The Dear Girls.

"I don't like my new gown very well," said the young lady spendthrift. "The material is awfully pretty and the style is all right, but it needs something to improve the simplicity of it."

"Why," suggested her dearest friend, "don't you let some other girl wear it?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Not an Admirer.

"Your husband loves horses, doesn't he?"

"No," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "But he is always going to the races."

"Yes. But the way he talks about the horses after he gets home is something dreadful."—Washington Star.

Deductions.

"I rejected both Jack and William last night."

"I know it. I saw them shaking hands on the golf links this morning."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Persuasion.

For Their Own Calves.

A couple of young men were out fishing one day and on returning were going past a farmhouse and felt hungry. They yelled to the farmer's daughters, "Girls, have you any butter milk?"

The reply was gently wafted back to their ears, "Yes, but we keep it for our own calves."

The boys calculated that they had business away, and they went.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWENIGAN, QUE. Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

MAGLOIRE PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

METALLIC NOVELTIES.

Library Furnishings of Bronze That Are Very Artistic.

In the shops one sees wonderfully pretty things made of bronze. Some of the prettiest and most useful of these are decorated boxes, photograph frames and book supports for the library table.

BROKEN BOOK SUPPORT, FRAME AND BOX.

Some supports are in the shape of Greek athletes with shoulders manfully braced in the direction of the line of books. Well executed models of jungle beasts, lions, tigers, elephants and apes are other models.

Trees That Explode.

All lightning blasted trees explode as overcharged boilers do. The flame of the lightning does not burn them up, nor does the electric flash split them like an ax. They simply explode, overcharged, as may be a boiler with steam. The lightning is conducted into the damp interstices of the trunk and into the hollows under the bark. Its tremendous heat at once turns all the moisture in these cramped spaces into steam. This steam in its immediate expansion blows the tree asunder.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Tageblatt Talks Gloomily

Claims Ypres Untenable, But Fighting Not Over Yet

Rotterdam, May 3—The following significant editorial appears in the officially inspired Berliner Tageblatt:

"Now it is recognized that even three-quarters of a year of unbroken fighting in the numerous theatres of war has not been sufficient to give even the dimmest outline of what must become the reality of peace. There is nothing to be done but to carry the burden further until events show so clearly that nowhere can they be misunderstood.

"On the western front the recent position of the war has been the most important for several months and it would be premature to say that this portion of the war is finished. But the enemy's position at Ypres is heavily threatened, even if it has not become entirely untenable."

GERMANS FLED FROM GAS

British Again Face Awful Fumes When Wind Changes

Northern France, May 4—The British on Saturday again faced a poison cloud wafted from the German lines but this time they were prepared with respirators sent from England. The men crouched expectantly behind the sandbags. But a number of men were already unconscious or partially so when a providential whim of nature changed the direction of the wind toward the German line of trenches. The Germans fled pell-mell and the British shells sped them on.

More Teuton Bluff

UPHOLSTERING FURNITURE.

With Bright Colored Chints a Dingy Set Can Be Successfuly Done Over.

A young matron recently did over her living at the minimum of expense and maximum of beauty. She did practically all the upholstery herself.

The walls were left the same—a pale green—but the furniture, which was in velvet of a deeper shade, was covered with chints in a big rose design, the colors soft and contrasting beautifully with the pale walls.

The chints was purchased at 25 cents a yard.

She first fitted each chair with a paper pattern, cutting and fitting the cover in this way before cutting the chints. The result was that her covers were almost perfect in fit, piped with a green braid and finished in an entirely professional manner.

Not content with this she decided to add another new touch to the room by making window hangings of chints. These were straight pieces of the goods edged with a pretty ball fringe she had purchased for a few cents a yard. The thin under curtains were of white scrim edged with a heavy imitation cluny lace.

Homemade cushions of imitation fillet lace, made over pink covers, added to the general scheme of dainty comfort, and several pretty lamp shades, made with her own hands, added just the soft light the room needed. When the whole was finished the amateur upholsterer surveyed her work with pride, and she was quite justified in doing so.

Broken Glass.

There is a market for broken glass. Some of it is ground in fine powder—like particles and used for various purposes. At other times it is remelted and made into new glass objects.

PEOPLE OFTEN SAY

"How Are We To Know When The Kidneys Are Out Of Order?"

EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD!

The location of the kidneys, close to the small of the back, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter. The note of warning comes from the back. The kidneys become overtaxed and fail to do their work at nature's call.

Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble.

The danger lies in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills stimulate the action of the kidneys, and enable them to perform their duty perfectly.

Mrs. Greig Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor East, N.S., writes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with great success, and don't think there is a better remedy for the kidneys. I was very miserable with my back, and could hardly get about. I got a box, and tried them, and found that they were really good, so I took in all about six boxes, and soon found my back cured, and my kidneys as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

HOW SOLDIERS LIVE AND FIGHT IN THE TRENCHES.

LONDON, May 5. — When it rains the trenches are half filled with water. The cold is always of the damp, penetrating, dreadful kind that chills to the very marrow. Hot food is served three times a day to the men in the trenches by other soldiers, who scurry like rabbits through long uncovered tunnels running back from the works concealing the guns.

These men in the trenches must have good food in order that they can have good blood, and if they have good blood, they have good courage, they keep warm because their circulation is good and their extremities are warm from exercise. Many men are invalided, however, because their blood and their stomach were not right to withstand the awful hardships of this winter campaign.

When you do not properly digest your food your blood becomes thin and every organ of the body soon feels the effect. The result is—headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and many other symptoms—due to accumulation of poisons in the body. Unless the stomach is given aid at this stage—more serious illnesses follow. Now is the time to help your weakened stomach—now is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (in tablet or liquid form). It has the same power to set you right as it has been proved to have in thousands of other cases. It will help your stomach so that the food you eat will nourish and sustain you and make good reviving blood. It will enable you to get rid of the waste a sluggish liver and irregular bowels have permitted to accumulate in your system.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is composed of known native healing remedial roots and herbs with no alcohol nor narcotic drugs to give you harmful habits. It can now be obtained in tablet or liquid form from dealers, or send 50 stamps for box of tablets.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada, at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ontario.

What General Hospital Is In Present War

The position of a General Hospital on the line of communication is about two-thirds of the distance between the actual firing zone and the base.

Intervening between it are the following units: The Regimental Surgeon—his duties are to render first aid to the unfortunate members of his regiment. The wounded are then carried by means of the Regimental Stretcher Bearers to a position of safety known as "Aid Posts," and at these specific points they are left and the regimental surgeon returns to his regiment. The wounded are then transported by means of the Stretcher Bearers belonging to the Field Ambulances, and are carried by means of transport to the dressing station of this unit where the injured are carefully examined and the more serious cases receive attention.

To Clearing Hospital.

They are then passed on to the clearing hospital, which is usually some building requisitioned for that purpose. As this station is only maintained for the purpose of distributing the wounded they are therefore, detained there as short a time as possible, consequently no beds are provided.

Such wounded as need immediate attention are then carried by means of transport, such as motor ambulances, etc., to the nearest rail head whence on special ambulance trains they are sent to the next hospital known as the Stationary Hospital, which has a capacity of about 200 beds.

General Hospital.

This Stationary Hospital is complete in every respect, and in it such cases are treated as are likely to be returned to the firing line again in a comparatively short space of time; but such cases as would require serious operations and longer to the nearest hospital, known as General Hospital. This hospital has a capacity of five hundred and twenty beds—twenty of these being reserved for officers. This unit is usually placed in some large building acquired for this purpose, and the equipment is such as is to be met with in any first-class civil hospital.

This general Hospital is also supplied with tent equipment so that if circumstances and conditions prove satisfactory, the whole unit would be under canvass. From these facts it must be realised that the equipment carried by such a unit as this is enormous. The personnel consists of twenty-one officers, made up of surgeons, physicians and specialists; and amongst this latter group may be mentioned an orthopedist, a neurologist, a radiographer, a sanitary officer, an oculist, an anaesthetist and dentist.

To Convalesce.

The patients from this hospital as soon as possible are sent either by rail or boat to what is known as a base hospital, which is very far removed from the scene of action.

Such base hospitals in the present campaign are, so far as the British forces are concerned, situated in England, and it it here that, these brave soldiers convalesce. They are transported to England by means of hospital ships, which are so arranged as to accommodate over two hundred patients and with each ship is a personnel of surgeons and nurses to take care of the wounded during their transportation.

Austria Fears New Foes

Precautions Being Taken Against Roumania and Italy

Bucharest, May 4—A great movement of troops is going on in Italy. Between Milan and Como in the Alps numerous trains of young and well equipped soldiers are passing, as well as ammunition and hospital trains. Similarly there is a movement of Austrian troops to the Austrian frontier.

The Austrians are also taking military precautions in Bukowina in case of an attack by Roumania.

Russia Takes Own Loan

Petrograd announces another internal loan of 100,000,000 pounds will be issued within a fortnight. A syndicate of Russian banks already has subscribed 60,000,000 pounds and the huge growth of deposits in savings and commercial banks fully assures subscription.

A Strength, Flesh and Body Builder For Spring

Run Down, Underweight People Put on Ten to Twenty Pounds of Healthy Flesh.

Most people show a tendency to lose weight in winter. The fat making material in the foods they eat, which at other seasons keep flesh and weight at normal is partially diverted in cold weather and in good is used to furnish heat for the body. Then most of us get quite coughs, colds or the grippe which tear down flesh, lower vitality, cause a considerable loss in weight and leave us in a rundown condition in the spring.

An material loss of weight should be regarded with alarm and prompt measures taken to regain the lost flesh. A splendid body builder and flesh producer is found in a preparation known as Sargol which can be found at druggists everywhere and which seldom fails to give the user a weight increase of from ten to twenty pounds within a few weeks. Sargol does not of itself make flesh. It is a small tablet which readily dissolves in the stomach and, mixing with the fats, sugars and starches of the food you eat, prepares these flesh making materials into a form where the blood can easily absorb and distribute them throughout the body. It is really amazing how quickly and easily lost flesh and weight return when Sargol is used with your meals. With returning normal weight comes too a corresponding return of health, spirits, ambition and vitality and you soon feel your old self again. Leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend Sargol and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol is also widely used for overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles its action in increasing weight is so practically certain that its use is not recommended to those who are not willing to put on ten or more pounds of flesh.

Genuine Wit.

Benjamin Moore, the second bishop of New York, was a man noted in his day, for his ready wit—a quality that his wife apparently shared with him. A dinner was given by some one of Governeur Morris' friends when he was about to depart for Europe. Bishop Moore and his wife were of the party. In the course of the conversation Mr. Morris observed that since he was going abroad he had made his will and, turning to Bishop Moore, said to him:

"My reverend friend, I have bequeathed to you my complete stock of impudence."

Bishop Moore replied: "Sir, you are not only very kind, but you are very generous. You have left me by far the largest portion of your estate."

Mrs. Moore immediately added, "My dear, you have come into possession of your inheritance remarkably soon."—Youth's Companion.

Fascinated by His Model.

The weekly meeting of the Married Ladies' Society For the Better Control and Guidance of Husbands had just been called to order by the president.

"Members will now tell their troubles, one at a time," said the chair.

A meek looking little woman stood up in a far corner of the room.

"My husband," she quavered, "is in love with his model."

The hum of gossip suddenly ceased, and all eyes were turned upon the speaker.

"But your husband is not an artist," argued the president. "He runs an iron foundry, doesn't he?"

"Yes'm," said the meek lady, "but all the same he loves his model. You see, he's a self made man."—London Standard.

An Ancient Phrase.

The frequently quoted "I do not pin my faith upon your sleeve" is traced in sentiment to feudal times, when the partisans of a leader used to wear his badge pinned upon their sleeves. Sometimes these badges were changed for specific purposes, and persons leagued to doubt; hence the phrase, "You wear the badge, but I do not intend to pin my faith on your sleeve."—New York American.

What Hurt Most.

"Why are you crying so bitterly, little man?" asked the kind hearted old lady as she patted the tearful youngster on his head.

"Bill Jones hit me on the nose," was the boy's reply.

"Did he hurt you much?"

"Naw; he didn't hurt me at all, but he run away before I could hit him back."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Golden Fleece.

The noted Order of the Golden Fleece is a military one instituted by Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, in 1429, on the occasion of his marriage with the Portuguese Princess Isabella. The order now belongs to both Spain and Austria.

BRAVERY IN BATTLE.

After the Fighting Has Begun the Officers Give Few Orders.

An officer in our regular army who saw fighting in the Spanish war pointed out the other day that most persons had a very wrong conception of how soldiers fight in modern battles.

"After a regiment has wheeled into position to attack the foe and the actual fighting has begun," he said, "the officers really have little to do with the proceedings. There is so much noise, for one thing, that commands cannot be heard, and for this reason whistles, in many armies, have been substituted for bugles, because their shrill blast carries better than the heavier notes of the brass. Beyond giving the signal for the charge the officers can do little. The men, once they see the line of the enemy in front of them, know what is expected of them and carry out their work with surprisingly few orders.

"Skirmish drills in times of peace have taught the troops how to act together, and it is amazing to see how quickly the men adapt themselves to the conditions of actual battle. It is the corporals and sergeants who are in the line with the men who are the real signifying influence in a fight. They know the characteristics of the individual private in a way that the commissioned officers can never know them and are prepared to give a calming word to this or that one when the emergency arises.

"In my own experience I have known a private who had served three enlistments to take charge of a company in a charge, and the officers and sergeants were very glad to leave it to him. After the scrap was over he became a private once more, but while that row was on, so far as actual command went, the man was considered, he was of a great deal more importance than his captain. The way that man could wriggle into cover was a revelation, and he went through three campaigns without a scratch. His example in the regiment was a big asset.

"Bravery in battle, according to my experience, is very much a matter of temperament. Some men are carried along by a sort of ecstasy, others hold themselves to the work by sheer force of will, while others—and these are the best—go through a fight with a sort of grim interest as if it was a highly amusing though somewhat dangerous sport they were engaged in, like polo or football."—New York Times.

CHARACTER.

Character is moral order embodied in the individual. Men of character are not only the conscience of society, but in every well governed state they are its best motive power, for it is moral qualities in the main which rule the world.—Samuel Smiles.

THE VOGUE OF VELVET.

This Popular Fabric Smartly Combined With Fur in the Elaboration of Gowns.

Velvet has been extremely popular this season. Velvet for street or carriage gowns combines with fur to good effect. A striking velvet gown is pictured here. It is of white velvet, showing the narrow foundation skirt, over which is worn a coat short waisted and fitting snugly over the shoulders and buttoned at left side with huge velvet covered ball buttons. From this hangs a deep ripple tunic shorter than knee length in back and falling in a deep V to the front. An enormous flare collar is edged with sable, as are the long sleeves, coming well over the hands and with a band of fur extending to the elbow. A velvet cord hangs from the waist and is finished with two balls of sable, while a band of sable of unusual width encircles the entire tunic.

CARE OF COOKING UTENSILS.

The up to date housewife tobacco all heavy cooking utensils. Those of light aluminium, granite and double plated tin save energy.

Tinware may be cleaned with very little trouble by using dry flour applied with a piece of newspaper.

Pie tins greased with butter will make the bottom crust of pies flaky and prevent them from being soggy.

When using a double boiler the food will cook more quickly if the water in the outer vessel is salted in the proportion of a fourth of a cupful of salt to one quart of water.

An oven that is constantly in use requires to be kept scrupulously clean. It should not only have the shelves scrubbed out with soda occasionally, but in addition the shelves should be painted with quicklime two or three times a year. An oven treated in this way never becomes caked with grease, and there is no unpleasant smell when it is being used.

Mahogany Frames

Small furnishings add so much to the beauty and comfort of a room that they are always especially tempting to the wise shopper. There are some charming little mirrors set in mahogany frames and hung from mahogany frames on a little cross bar swung in two uprights. It is just like a big picture, only that it stands not more than ten inches high.

Children's Storm Capes.

There is a new storm cape for children. It is so long it is practically a sleeveless raincoat. It is full rubber lined on the inside and plaid cloth on the outside.

CORRECT FOOTWEAR.

Button boots are the correct style.

Brown shoes are used as much as black for afternoon wear.

Fashion demands that every gown shall have shoes to harmonize.

Walking shoes are made with cloth or buckskin tops in pale shades of gray or tan.

If the heel of a low shoe slips line the inner sides of the heel with velvet, which will cling to the hose.

For every day shoes it is better method of dressing a child's feet than in brown, black or white shoes, with socks to match.

Don't expect too much from frail humanity. Accept gifts gracefully and flattery in the same way.

Don't Burn and Ruin The Hair With Hot Iron

Straight, lank hair is becoming to but few women and there's no excuse now for anyone looking homely and unkempt on that account. Those who have forsworn the curling iron because of the damage it does by drying and breaking the hair, will be glad to hear that plain liquid silmerine will produce a far better and more lasting effect, without any injurious result whatever. If just a small quantity be applied to the hair at night with a clean tooth brush, a lovely curliness and natural wave will be in evidence in the morning, and there is nothing streaky, sticky or greasy about it.

A few ounces of liquid silmerine, obtainable at any drug store, will prove a welcome addition to many a dressing table. It is best applied by dividing the hair into strands and moistening each of them separately from root to tip. The beautiful wavy effect will last for a considerable time.

Tenniel's Mustache.

The later portraits of Sir John Tenniel, the famous cartoonist of London Punch, show him wearing a full beard and mustache, but his most familiar appearance was with a mustache only, a long and curly specimen, worthy of one of Ouida's guardsmen. The story of how he came to grow it is interesting.

After the Crimean war the return of the soldiers with full beards started a fashion against which three Punch artists protested. One day, being out on horseback together, they solemnly halted at crossroads and swore on their uplifted hunting crops never to wear hair on lip or chin. Tenniel was one of the party, Leech another and R. T. Pritchett the third.

Leech alone remained true to the vow. Pritchett went to Skye, and on his return with a mustache called on Tenniel. He thrust his head in at the cartoonist's door and dumbly waited. "You scoundrel!" was Tenniel's exclamation. "Then I, too, must!" And he did.

He Ought to Know.

Lady—I should like to look at a flat which I see is for rent in this building, but no one has answered my bell.

Man—I'll show it to you. Right this way, mum.

"Well, this is something like it. The rooms will suit, I'm sure. What sort of a janitor have they here?"

"The very best in the city, mum."

"Obliging?"

"The kindest hearted gentleman to be found anywhere, mum."

"Honest?"

"As the day is long, mum."

"Is he attentive to his duties?"

"He's just workin' himself to death, mum. 'Always thinkin' up some new thing to make folks comfortable."

"Well, I declare! I wouldn't lose this flat for the world. Where is the janitor now?"

"I'm him, mum."—Kansas City Star.

Perversity.

"One peculiarity of melancholia," said a specialist, "is that the victim of it actually enjoys the despondency and often doesn't want to be cured. I once told a young woman who had this disease that she must be careful of her digestion and eat nothing fried. After that she tried to eat only fried food. Not only did she insist on having her potatoes and meat fried, but didn't want to eat bread unless it had been fried in a lot of grease."—New York Tribune.

Wrong House.

It had been a hard day for the book agent. Sales were desperately slow, and as a last resort he decided to try a nearby house despite its shabby appearance. "Have you a Charles Dickens in your home?" he asked politely. "No," she snapped. "Or a Robert Louis Stevenson?" "No." "Or a Walter Scott?" "No, we ain't; an' what's more we don't run a boarding house here either. If you're looking for them fellows you might try the house across the street. I understand they keep boarders."—Argonaut.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet despite the commonality of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your druggist can supply these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Alison Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE.

SERVICEABLE BLOUSE FOR BOY.

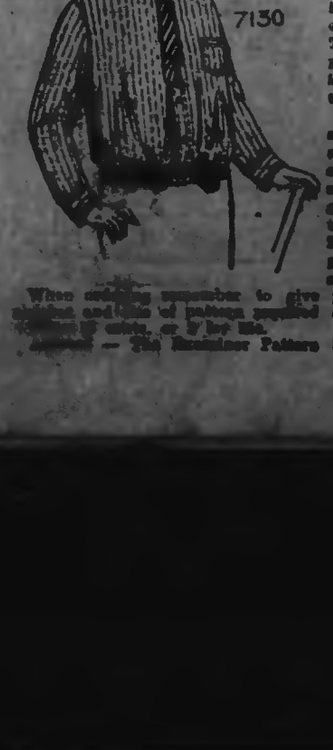
By Anabel Worthington.



Cheap ready made blouses for boys are, unfortunately, cheap looking; not the material, perhaps, so much as the workmanship. Made at home these same blouses in inexpensive materials are quite acceptable to the most refined taste and cost conservatively about thirty-five cents. So they are well worth the trouble of making. The accompanying design is ideally simple, as well as correct from the tailored point of view. The standing collar is detachable, and if preferred plain white collars may be used instead, as there is a neckband finishing the blouse.

In the small front view the blouse is shown in sporting style, with short sleeves and an attached round collar, and slightly open neck. Any of the regular shirtings would be appropriate, or striped gingham, plain chambray and similar materials. For eight year size 2½ yards of 27-inch material would be required. This pattern, No. 7,130, can be obtained in sizes from 4 to 14 years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

BLOOD THIN AND WEAK TOO NERVOUS TO SLEEP

Here is Another Case in Which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Proved Its Great Reconstructive Influence

Thin blood and exhausted nerves usually go together. A considerable portion of the blood is constantly consumed in keeping up the vitality of the nervous system. Once the blood is deficient, either in quantity or quality, the nerves suffer and bodily pains result. Headaches, neuralgic or sciatic pains are the indications in some cases, while in others weakness, nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness are the most marked symptoms.

Mrs. E. F. Catlin, Elm Springs, Sask., writes: "For years I was troubled with nervousness, and could not sleep nights. Also had lack of colour as a result of the blood being thin and weak. My husband saw Dr. Chase's Nerve Food advertised, and got some for me, and wanted me to try it. I did so, and it has proven a wonderful help for me. By enriching the blood, it has restored colour to my face and has built up the nervous system so that I rest and sleep well. It is a pleasure to recommend so excellent a medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes direct to the formation of pure, rich blood, and for this reason is the most certain means of increasing the quality as well as the quantity of blood in the human system. The feeble, wasted nerves are restored, and through the nervous system new vigor and energy is imparted to every organ and member of the body.

You will be surprised at the way this food cure puts new strength and vitality into the weakened body. And the best of it is that the benefits are both thorough and lasting. In this the Nerve Food differs from mere stimulating medicines which give you up hope and when discontinued leave you as weak as before. Put this great restorative treatment to the test and prove its merits in your own case. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Peterboro' Boy Meets Death on Battlefield

FIGHTING NIGHT AND DAY FOR THE YPRES POSITIONS

Artillery and Infantry Counters Follow Each Other and Both Sides Are Being Heavily Re-inforced---Germans' Night Attack Repulsed With Heavy Losses, the French Artillery Catching Them on the Flank.

NEW ATTACK ON THE BRITISH LINES

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, France, May 5.—French official communication.—The fighting for the positions dominated by Ypres continues without any let up day and night. Artillery and infantry encounters follow each other, and both sides are being heavily reinforced. The allies' lines have now been straightened out, the war office says, and all of the new positions are being well maintained.

The Germans have brought up a new force which has attempted to break through the southern part of the British lines. In a night attack last night the Germans were repulsed with very heavy losses, it is stated, and as they were retreating the French guns caught the Germans on their flank, killing and wounding many of them.

THE EASTERN SITUATION

PETROGRAD, May 5.—Desperate fighting with Russian successes at most points, is reported from the battle line, which now extends from Gourland to the southern side of the Carpathians. The Germans, it is freely admitted, succeeded in forcing the passage of the Donajec River, in Galicia, but they have been held to their new positions for three days, and have suffered heavily from the Russian gunfire. The fighting all along the line from the Vistula to the Carpathians in Galaicia, has been of the zig-zag variety, first one side and then the other gaining an advantage.

The Germans have been strongly reinforced with artillery and have been prodigal in their fire. Despite this fact, however, it is claimed that only a few of the Russian front line trenches have been ceded, and they simply because it would have meant annihilation to try to defend them.

SINKING THE TRAWLERS

LONDON, May 5.—The German submarines are running amuck to-day among the North Sea trawling fleet. Seven Hull and two Grimsby trawlers are reported to have been sunk yesterday and to-day, with serious losses in killed and drowned. The fact that the Germans have ordered the destruction of the entire North Sea fishing fleet is admitted at the Admiralty, where there was displayed to-day copies of a German Admiralty communique issued from Berlin on April 17th. It said: "The object of our aerial and submarine efforts must now be to sink the fishing fleet. As the English designate the starvation of Germany as their chief objective, it is naturally our duty to interfere with England's food supply by all of the means in our command."

TO-DAY'S CASUALTIES

TORONTO, May 5.—Five killed in action, and 46 wounded (mostly from Western Canadian and Montreal battalions) were the total of names in the casualty lists issued to-day.

Among the casualties issued to day are: Second Battalion, wounded, Bugler C. J. Banks, Huntsville; Private Leonard Haynes, England.

ABERDEEN, May 5—That the German submarines operating against the North Sea fishing fleet are disguised, was the charge made to-day by Alexander Robb, the engineer of one of the trawlers which have been sunk. He says that the destroyer belched forth black smoke through the funnels that had been painted to resemble a British destroyer.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Memorial service Thursday, 8 p.m., George Street Methodist church.

This service has been arranged at the suggestion of the officers of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough, by the Peterborough Ministerial Association. It is felt that all the citizens of Peterborough will desire an opportunity of doing honour to the memory of their fallen heroes.

The 57th Regiment and Band will be present.

"Not a dirge but a song, for the memory of their deeds makes us desire to emulate them and helps to dry our tears."

HOW THE GUNS OF 3RD BRIGADE WERE RESCUED

A THRILLING STORY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 5. — How the guns of the Third Ontario Artillery Brigade were saved in the terrific battle of Langemarck, is told to-day in a cable received by the Toronto Star, from its London correspondent, who interviewed at Clievden Hospital Driver Algred J. Wheeler, of that brigade, who was reported wounded in the official list recently. The cable says:

Driver Alfred J. Wheeler, who was reported recommended for the Victoria Cross, is a lithe, brown-faced, cheerful warrior, now resting at Clievden with a smashed right arm.

"There were three of us," he said, "Johnston, Brown and myself. We were with ammunition in reserve, and saw from the rising ground the Germans advance upon our artillery. The shell-fire was terrific. Our own boys, standing by our guns, were killed where they stood. Then came our infantry advance, and recaptured the guns. All the horses of the Eighth "Hamilton" battery were killed.

"Our officer said to us: 'Well boys, do you see those guns. If you like you can try to get them.'

"Two large ditches and a field of grain lay between us and them. The German fire was pouring around. We galloped off. Johnston was in the lead, Brown in the centre, and myself on the wheel horse. We were tickled to death at a chance of getting through. One horse was shot, and the shrapnel caught my right arm, but we got one gun and brought it back. We returned for a second gun, then a third and a fourth one. A shell killed Johnston and killed the horse of the lead team. I was thrown from my horse, and the gun wheels passed over my wounded arm, smashing it. Brown was badly wounded, and is in a hospital in France to-day. I am going to get better and hurry back to the front again."

ONCE MORE IN ACTION

Canadian Forces Again Engaged Militia Department at Ottawa Announced To-day

THE LANGEMARCK LOSSES

LONDON, MAY 5. — IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS UNDER-SECRETARY TENNANT ANNOUNCED THAT THE TOTAL CASUALTIES OF THE CANADIAN DIVISION ARE 252 OFFICERS AND 6,024 MEN. THE PRINCESS PATRICIAS REGIMENT ALONE LOST TWENTY OFFICERS AND 308 MEN.

OTTAWA, May 5.—That the Canadians have again been in action, as stated in a despatch from Dunkirk, is confirmed by messages by the militia department.

It is understood, however, that the losses were comparatively light as compared with the fighting in the battle of Langemarck.

It is considered likely that the troops engaged were battalions which did not take part in the Langemarck engagement. Gen. Hughes is of the opinion that the Canadians have no reason to be discouraged over what has taken place so far. The Germans by their own admission lost 12,000 dead in the battle in which the Canadians were practically their only opponents.

Major Mills And His Son Are Both Safe

Message Received From Quartermaster of 2nd Battalion To-day

"Bruce safe, also Ackerman and Green."—Jos. Mills.

This welcome message came to-day in a cablegram from Major Jos. Mills of Peterborough, quartermaster of the 2nd Battalion, and received by Mr. Mills' son-in-law, Mr. B. D. Hall, president of the Board of Trade. The cablegram was filed at the Field Post Office on the 30th of April, but only got through to-day owing probably to the congestion of messages. The Bruce referred to is Pte. Bruce Mills, Major Mills' son, and formerly of the 57th Regt. bugle band. He is a private in the 57th's detachment in the 2nd Battalion. "Ackerman" refers to Lieut. Chas. Ackerman, but there is a doubt as to whether "Green" is an error in sending Dr. Greer's name, or else means Lieut. Elliott Green, formerly of the C.G.E. and well known here. The news from Major Mills will be gladly received.

IS PROUD OF CANADA'S EXHIBIT

"It was a pleasure to be able to say 'I am a Canadian,' and to know that our Dominion's exhibit was the best within the grounds."

Mr. I. W. Brisbin, a well-known insurance man, who makes his home at Lacolle, Que., thus expresses himself on his return from the Panama Pacific Exposition. Mr. Brisbin admired not only the Canadian exhibit, but the Canadian railway service. In a letter to the Grand Trunk System, he says: "After a trip to the Panama Exposition, during which we travelled over eight different railways, I wish to express to you our appreciation of the very excellent service given by your train, The International Limited. During our journey to and from Chicago, we occupied a very clean and comfortable observation Pullman car, found the service in the dining-car all that could be desired, and all the men in charge were most courteous and obliging. The service of the G.T.R. is not excelled upon this continent."

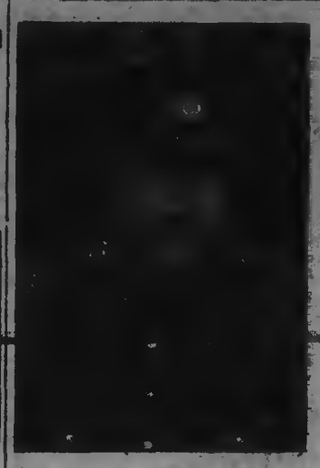
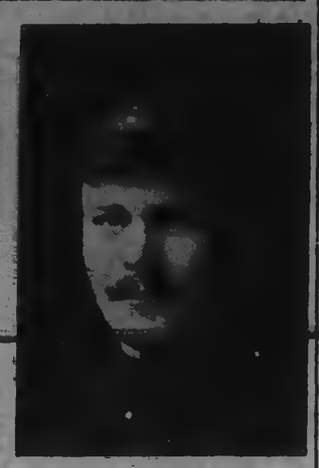
PRIVATE HEBER ROGERS KILLED AT LANGEMARCK--SOLD LIFE DEARLY



PTE. A. W. PHIPPS
Of Fradette Ave., formerly No. 2 Company, 57th Regiment, reported wounded at Langemarck.



PTE. HEBER ROGERS

Cablegram From Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers Tells of the Death in Action of Well Known Peterborough Boy, Son of Mr. B.B. Rogers

A FAVOURITE EVERYWHERE

"HEBER SOLD HIS LIFE DEARLY AT THE MACHINE GUN".

This message, received last [illegible] H. Rogers, formerly in command of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, and second in command of the 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., brought the first intelligence to Mr. B. B. Rogers, 147 Hunter Street, East, that his son, Pte. Heber Rogers of the 57th detachment, 2nd Battalion, had been killed during the Canadians' great stand at Langemarck. The sad news, which became quickly known last evening, brought universal grief in the city, for there was no better known or more popular member of the rank and file of the Peterborough quota than Pte. Rogers.

Member of No. 6 Company.

The latter had for several years been a member of No. 6 Company of the 57th Regiment. He received his first military training in the Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute, in which he took a prominent part, and some three years ago joined the Rangers with a number of the bigger boys from the Collegiate. He was always an enthusiastic member of the 57th. Probably he inherited the fighting blood of the Rogers family, making soldiering particularly appealing to him. When the war broke out Pte. Rogers was as usual spending the summer at Kawartha Park, but hearing that a detachment for overseas service was being sent to the front from the 57th Regiment he at once returned to Peterborough and enlisted. He had just reached his nineteenth birthday at that time. He went to Valcartier with the 57th detachment, but at Salisbury Plain, shortly before the Canadians crossed to France, had an opportunity to join the machine gun section of the 2nd Battalion, which he eagerly accepted, and it was while exacting a toll of lives from the German hordes that he was struck down.

Was Born Here.

Pte. Rogers was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Rogers, and was born here nineteen years ago. He was educated in the Ashburnham school, and afterwards in the Collegiate Institute, although he had not completed his course in that institution, and would have returned last Autumn if he had not headed the call of King and country. By no one except his relatives will he be more deeply missed or sincerely mourned than by his fellow pupils at the Collegiate Institute. His unfailing good nature, his amiable qualities and his proficiency in sports made him one of the most popular students. During his last term at school he was captain of the Collegiate Rugby Club, and led his team to victory in a memorable game against Lindsay at Nicholls Oval. He also played for the Peterborough Rugby Club in the Junior O. R. F. U. the season before last. He was an expert swimmer and paddler and was a prominent figure at the different [illegible] around the Kawartha Lakes during the past

This is the latest addition to the casualty list of the 57th Regiment's detachment in the 2nd Battalion. The information came from various sources, that in regard to Pte. Rogers being cabled by Lt.-Col. C. H. Rogers, the news about Phipps coming in a message from the Adjutant-General, and the other names appearing in the published lists.

Victor Gifford.

Private Victor Gifford of Lydland, Dorset England, boarded at 130 Park Street and was a member of No. 3 Co. of the 57th. He is listed with the 2nd Battalion's wounded.

Pte. Henry Caillard.

Pte. Henry Caillard reported wounded in yesterday's list was a member of the local staff of the Bank of Montreal, and had been in Peterborough only about three months when war broke out, and he immediately enlisted with the 57th detachment. He came to Peterborough from the Almonte branch of the bank and had formerly been in the bank's branches at Cornwall and London, Ont. His father lives in Hove, Eng., and the young private had no relatives here, although he had made many friends during his residence in Peterborough. He boarded on Brock Street.

PTE. A. W. PHIPPS.

We regret to announce that Arthur Phipps is officially reported wounded. This is the message that was received by Mrs. Arthur Phipps, 2 Fradette Avenue, this afternoon. The first news almost prostrated the mother, who, for many long days has been anxiously awaiting news of her son. A few days ago Mrs. Phipps cabled the War Office for particulars, but as yet has received no reply. The announcement referred to above came from Ottawa. After the first shock Mrs. Phipps sought consolation in the fact that her son had not been taken prisoner—a fate which she regarded as more to be concerned over than being wounded.

LT.-COL. ROGERS IS PROMOTED TO COMMAND THE 4TH

Former Commanding Officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons of Peterboro' Succeeds Lt.-Col. Birchall

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

TORONTO, May 4—Lieut.-Col. C. H. Rogers, in a cablegram which was recived from him by his wife last night, announces not only his safety, but also that he has gained promotion on the field of battle, and is now in command of the 4th battalion. While the cablegram contains this cheering information, it also announces that Private Heber Rogers, who was well known in Toronto and Peterborough, fell during the great struggle at Langemarck, while working the machine gun of the 2nd battalion. The cable, which is dated "Field Post-office, April 30," indicates by its delay in arriving the great number of messages which have been sent by the army during the first few days that followed the terrible engagement. The message read as "First real fight; came through safely. Heber paid dearly with his life with machine gun. Now in command of 4th battalion."

Lieut. Col. Rogers is the son of Mrs. R. B. Rogers and of the late Col. B. B. Rogers who was at one time in command of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, with headquarters in Peterborough. Lieut. Col. Rogers succeeded to his father's command, but when the war broke out accepted a subordinate position in the first Canadian overseas expeditionary force, taking the rank of Major and going as second in command of the 2d Battalion. By his promotion he succeeds to the command of the 4th Battalion, which includes the quotas supplied by the 13th York Rangers and the 3rd Peel Regiment.

The home of Mr. W. Austin, 208 Perry street, was the scene of an enjoyable gathering last evening, at a party given in honour of Farrier Sergeant Harry Gamble, of the 30th Field Battery, C.E.F. The evening was spent with music and dancing till the "wee sma' hours" of the morning, when friends wished Sergeant Gamble a safe return home from the trying expedition so many brave Canadians have undertaken.

There was a big turnout of the 57th Regiment last night and the marched down town through crowded streets. The overseas contingent of the 57th Regiment marched at the head of the regiment. On the return to the armouries, company drill was practised, several of the companies using the outside parade ground. The regiment will attend the memorial service in Geo[illegible] Street Methodist church to-

PRIVATE HEBER ROGERS.

The Examiner cordially joins with the general public in extending to Mr. R. B. Rogers and family, earnest and heart-deep sympathy on the occasion of the death of their youngest son, Private Herber Rogers, at the battle of Langemarck; and without inconsistency might be added congratulations, for the young man died the death of a hero, doing his duty as a soldier of the King, in keeping with the best traditions of Canadians, and with the military spirit and record of the Rogers family. The death of Heber Rogers attests the truth of the poet, Young's, saying—"death loves a shining mark." Mr. Rogers was in every way a fine and noble young men. He was a universal favourite among his school-mates—he was little more than a school boy, only nineteen years of age. He was beloved by all that knew him for his manly qualities, of character, his genial good nature, and all-round estimable high character, shown in all his social relations—at play in the field of sport, and in the more serious duties of life. While we are thankful for such a life, we cannot but have the deepest regret for the early ending of a gallant young life, cut down

In the very May-morn of his youth,
Ripe for exploits and mighty enterprises.

ULTIMATE VICTORY.

The war drags wearily on, and to the anxious thinker the outlook seems sometimes dark. This is natural under the circumstances, but the explanation, as far as Britain is concerned, is simple. There can be little doubt of the outcome of the struggle; the element of doubt alone enters into the duration of the war. There has been delay on Britain's part, inevitable and inavoidable. Britain intent on peace, and on promoting the activities of peace, was not ready for the war precipitated by the mad ambition of Germany. Great Britain was ready with her navy, which has been such a strong tower of defence; but she had to make an army. It was less work to get the men than to equip them, and provide the necessary ammunition, so prodigally used in the terrible fighting of modern times. Work at feverish pressure is going forward to secure the necessary ammunition, and when that is ready we shall begin to see more decided results. With equipment provided Great Britain and her Dominions can put a million soldiers in the battle line, with a million more in reserve to fill the casualty gaps, and to keep up a strong aggressive, and in cooperation with the allies, successful driving campaign. In the far-flung battle fronts there will, for a time at least, be an ebb and flow of victory, but there is no doubt that in the main progress towards the victorious end will be made. Canada is concerned directly and grievously in the terrible struggle. The casualty lists containing the names of our sons and brothers, relatives and friends, and fellow-Canadians, are heart-rending; but these sacrifices are the price we must pay for the glorious results of doing our duty. We are in the struggle till the victorious finish; and we must make up our minds to pay the price, in the death toll and in money. We have all a work to do. Our wounded soldiers, make fresh and insistent demands upon us to provide in larger degree, the hospital and nursing supplies, needed in the work of healing the wounds of war. We are called upon to give, apart from the necessary routine of business occupations, our whole time, and our whole energies, to the work of performing our share of help in waging war. That is the call to the individual, to the community, and to the nation. It may be long and weary work; but it must be done. In doing our share, even in the most modest way and in the humblest capacity, we are helping our duty and sowing the seeds of the harvest of victory—the reaping many endure for a night; but joy cometh in the morning."

HELP THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

The request of the Peterborough Health Association to the City Council to aid its work financially is not only reasonable, but exceedingly worthy of granting. In last night's issue of The Examiner was printed a detailed account of the work of the Association. From that one can easily see that the money of the people could not be more humanely and advantageously expended—could not be better used to promote the highest interests of our citizens, the preservation and restoration of the health of the people. The health of a man or woman, or child, is the most important asset; without it wealth, position, and honours are worthless.. The city helps the work of the Board of Health, whose functions, while exceedingly important, do not appeal so directly to public interest as the work of the Health Association. The work of the Board of Health is preventive more than remedial; the work of the Health Association is the cure, nursing and help of those afflicted with disease; in a word it compensates for the failure of the Board of Health to provide greater immunity from disease. The Board of Health is, theoretically, at least, responsible for the conditions—to a large extent unavoidable—with which the Health Association has to deal. Its work, at the present time, when the public mind is stirred to its depths by the thought of healing the wounds of our soldiers, very directly appeals to all of us. The sick, at home, with the added handicap of destitution, the, otherwise, helpless in the grip of disease, come under the benign abelter of the noble work of the Health Association. One would find it difficult to name an organization that can offer a more worthy appeal to the City Council, for material assistance, than the Health Association. It operates in the interests of the whole body of citizens; it does the duty that appeals directly to every individual citizen, that of helping the unfortunate, and so obeying the divine injunction to love one's neighbour as oneself. The members of the Association are no more called upon as a strict matter of duty to do the work they do than the ordinary citizen. But they are organized to do it, and to do it effectively. They work without fee or reward, except as to the salaried nurses. Too much credit and praise cannot be given the physicians who do more than their share in the work, and give their services free with no other payment than the sense of accomplishing a noble duty. The members of the Association are doing a work which should, and might be done, if circumstances permitted, to the extent of his ability, by every individual citizen. If by circumstance the general body of citizens cannot do this work, it seems fair to demand that the general body of citizens shall do their share by providing material help. It is difficult to imagine a single ratepayer objecting to the City Council liberally assisting with a monthly money grant, the splendid work of the Health Association.

NEED OF FORESIGHT.

It is a valuable quality in a man to be able to see beyond the length of his nose; that is to have the faculty of prevision—seeing ahead, and providing for the contingencies that crop up under all human conditions, and in all human enterprises. A man who has not this gift of foresight is unfortunate; but a man who is wilfully blind as to the proper discharge of his duty is in another class. The Street Railway is to be extended westward on Charlotte street, and to provide for the widening of the throat, caused by the too close approach of the sidewalks at the intersection of Charlotte with Park street, the sidewalk has to be moved on the south side. It will cost money to rip up this sidewalk and to replace it with a new one. This money, which will amount to perhaps $50 or $60, as absolutely wasted, deliberately wasted. When the present sidewalk was laid a few years ago, the Council of that time knew that it was not in the right place; that building it on that site, made the exit of Charlotte street upon Park seven or eight feet narrower between curbs than the rest of Charlotte street; that a private property owner was permitted to encroach upon the street and crowd the sidewalk out of proper line. The Council of that time knew this. It was pointed out in The Examiner, and personal attention of the city authorities, was called to the matter. Yet the city persisted in laying the walk in the wrong place. It has to be shifted now, and the money thus spent is absolutely wasted. This may be a small matter, in itself, but $50 or $60 wasted here and there, in similar careless or wantonly wrong work, would amount to a great deal. If much of such work is done in the streets of the city, it is no wonder that our tax-rate is so high, with comparatively so little, lasting results to show for the expenditures made. The incident related teaches a lesson in exercising prudent foresight. In the sewage disposal plant enterprise [illegible] upon a work that involves expenditure to which we do not [illegible] a limit. The problem is a different one; there are so many [illegible]; there is so much trouble to [illegible] difficulties; there is so much uncertainty in the preparation of plans, from the fact of nobody, either the Provincial Health authorities, or the city authorities, knowing just what they want and what they can do—there is so much uncertainty that it is evident that the city in order to protect the interests of the ratepayers in the matter of expenditures, both now and in the future—must give the most mature and earnest consideration to the situation before embarking upon a very large expenditure of money. The situation has so many sides, bristles with so many difficulties; involves [illegible] expenditure, that there is necessity for the most careful consideration and the exercise of the greatest possible foresight—for counting the cost in every sense.

A GENERAL ELECTION A PARALLEL TO NERO FIDDLING WHILE ROME WAS BURNING

It is an apt illustration that a contemporary gives when it likens the scheme for an election to the action of Nero, who fiddled while Rome burned. As it says, there is a certain section of the Conservative party that would have Canada "fiddle over party politics while an Empire, of which we form a part, is being scorched by the fires of Prussian militarism." Sir Robert Borden and his more responsible colleagues still hesitate to submit to the demands of the election-mongers. Meanwhile the agitation is allowed to go on, business to be disturbed, party feeling to be aroused, and the impression to go abroad that Canada is divided on its war policy—especilly after he Battle of Langemarck.

The pretence that is made is that the Government cannot properly carry on their work because of Liberal criticism. We think, however, that every honest man will have to admit that the Liberals have contributed in notable measure towards cooperating in the war policy of the Government, and in making it more efficacious and complete than it would otherwise be. The Liberals to a man have voted with the Government in all their measures for helping in the war. They have voted to a man [illegible] of the vote for all war supplies. The criticisms they have made have all been to an end to secure greater efficacy in carrying out the war measures. Those criticisms have resulted in the taking ways of the middlemen being exposed. Without them Sir Robert Borden would not have named a commission to purchase war supplies.

By his speech at the close of the session, by his action in appointing a commission to make war purchases, Sir Robert Borden has testified to the benefits of the Liberal criticism, and has given tacit recognition to the Liberal motto, as expressed by the Hon. G. P. Graham: "Millions for war, but not a cent for graft." With all the necessary credit for continuing Canada's war measures, with the united support of the people of this country, Conservative and Liberal alike, for aiding to the utmost of Canada's power, in the great struggle, is a halt to be called, is co-operation to be shattered, in order that politicians may fiddle while the Empire burns?—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

TWO OF A KIND.

People who engage in frivolous amusements during war time are not a bit worse than those who are striving to throw the country into the worry of politics.—Toronto Star.

TIME WORKS WONDERS.

Hon. Bob Rogers complains that the Senate is not so pliable as the majority in the Commons, and whines because anyone objects to the Government's nominating sufficient new Senators to put the Conservatives in control. When Sir Wilfrid took up the reins of power he too found an antagonistic Senate. He just had patience. We recommend Mr. Rogers to follow his example.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

THE COUNTRY WILL BE PATIENT.

Defeat of Naval Bill in Senate, May 30th, 1913.

Declartion of War, August 4th, 1914.

Interval between the two events, thirteen months.

Sir Robert Borden promised to appeal to the country if his naval proposals were killed by the Senate.

The Hon. Robert Rogers said yesterday that the outbreak of the war prevented Sir Robert Borden from dissolving Parliament and appealing to the country last August.

As the country was not consulted for thirteen months after the Senators put their feet down, the country will not feel hurt if it is not consulted for thirteen months longer, particularly as there are a thousand reasons more against holding an election now than there were in August. This Parliament's natural life does not end until October, 1916.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

How the War Makes More Work For the Canadian Women

Special to the Examiner.

TORONTO, May 5. — "Upon our women the spirit of Florence Nightingale has descended." In this way did Mr. N. W. Rowell, in a speech given to the Business Women's Club on Tuesday evening, pay tribute to what the women of Ontario and Canada have been doing as their share in the burdens of the war responsibility. "Scores of women," continued Mr. Rowell, "have gone as nurses, and the rest have been unceasing in their efforts to provide clothing and comforts for the men at the front, to furnish the Red Cross with necessary supplies, to assist in the equipment of our military hospitals, to support all movemens for the relief of distress among war stricken peoples and to care for the wives and families of those who have gone to the front. In the heroic courage of the mothers of our people we have the proof of the strength and vitality of our race."

"Notwithstanding all that the women have given and done, however," warned Mr. Rowell, "still more must be asked. This war means, if possible, more to the women of our land and of the world than to the men. Innocent, but ravaged and ruined women proves what a cruel, brutal, and remorseless thing Prussian militarism is. Let the women of Belgium tell their tale of woe. If the forces which have destroyed Belgium triumph, if we have a world in which Might is recognized as the supreme right, where the State is non-moral, and those who represent it are not bound by moral sanctions either in peace or war, women must relapse into the old pagan position of servitude and oppression. The place of women in the modern world demands the defeat of militarism, and its pagan law of force demands that the rights of the weak shall be protected against the aggression of the strong, and that sanctions of Christian morality shall be binding upon nations as well as upon individuals.

"For the wives and mothers and children, not only of the present, but of the future, let us count no sacrifice so great which will in any way contribute to the defeat of Prussian militarism to the redemption of Europe and the establishment of a just and lasting peace."

LECTURED ON BATTLESHIPS

Mr. S. Keyes of the Normal School favoured the Pennant Club of Murray Street Baptist Church, last night, with his splendid lecture on "British Battleships." The speaker began with the dug-out used by the warriors in the stone age, and led his appreciative audience through the progressive stages of naval equipment to the present floating fortresses. From here he branched off and described minutely the four different classes of fighting ships which are now being used by Britain in protecting herself and her allies from the invader. These four classes are, first, the Dreadnought; second, the cruiser; third, the destroyer; fourth, the submarine.

Mr. Keyes illustrated his lecture by a most complete set of coloured slides, which he collected himself, and of which he may justly be proud.

The evening was a most enjoyable and profitable one and was drawn to a close with musical selections by members of the Pennant Club.

A KINDLY REFERENCE TO THE EXAMINER

In a letter received from Lt.Col. Ponton, Belleville, in which he states that his son, Lieut. Dick Ponton, of the 2nd Battalion, is so far safe, and refers to the admiration his son had for Major Bennett, Col. Ponton says of the Monday issue of the Examiner 'What a splendid issue of the Examiner; this is enterprise and broad local patriotism."

Mr. Louis Yeotes is to have a team in the City Baseball League after all. Although at a meeting of the League some weeks ago when it was decided to have only four teams, Mr. Yeotes' team, the Marathons, were voted out, he has since been elected manager of the Thistles' team and will give that club his support, financially and otherwise.

At a meeting held after practice at Riverside Park yesterday the following officers were elected

Hon. President—N. Dyuros.
President—C. Paton.
Sec'y-Treas.—Gordon Matthews.
Executive committee—Horace Walkey, N. Phelan, Harold Long, F. D. Craig.
Manager—Louis Yeotes.

The Thistles practice again to-day and to-morrow and should be in fairly good shape by Saturday.

YESTERDAY'S BASEBALL GAMES

BOSTON, May 4.—Foster, ably supported at critical moments, outpitched Walter Johnson to-day, and Boston won from Washington 2 to 0. Speaker's triple scored Hooper, who had been passed, in the first, and Lewis' triple and Hoblitzell's single counted again for the Red Sox in the seventh. Score:

| | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Washington | 0 | 6 | 1 |
| Boston | 2 | 4 | 3 |

Batteries—Johnson and Ainsmith and Williams; Foster and Thomas.

At St. Louis—Vitt and Cobb scored in the first inning of the Detroit-St. Louis game to-day on Spotten's fumble of Veach's fly. A home run by McKee in the sixty completed the scoring for Detroit, which won, 3 to 1. Score:

Pirates Defeat Cardinals.

Pittsburg, May 4.— In a drizzling rain Pittsburg defeated St. Louis today, 4 to 3. The contest was stopped twice by the rain and was called finally in the last half of the eighth. Both Harmon and Perdue were hit hard, long hits being numerous. Score:

Tracey Will Not Play This Year

Hamilton Spectator: Another Hamilton player, Bdavener, reported this morning, and it is expected that every train now will bring players here for the big muster which takes place to-morrow. Cristall has been busy getting things in shape at the grounds for the players and they will have their first practice to-morrow afternoon. Cristall received word this morning from Tracey saying that he would be unable to play this year owing to his wifes' illness and on top of that news he received a letter from Dolan saying that he would not be able to report until the day before the league opens. Cristall will bring on the other aspirants for a place on the pitching staff, and if they make good there is a chance that Mr. Dolan may be told not to come at all.

OPENING OF CITY LEAGUE ON SATURDAY

The City Baseball League will open with appropriate ceremonies on Saturday. There will be an automobile parade from the Y. M. C. A. to the grounds. Mayor Buller will pitch the first ball. The players of the different teams and the fans will be asked to pay a tribute to Peterborough soldiers at the front by standing with bared head while the National Anthem is played by the band. The Classics and East Citys come together in the first game and the Thistles and Empires will meet in the second.

First Workout of St. Peter's Young Men

Thirty-six of St. Peter's parish young men attended the first workout at Riverside last night. Ten of them were lacrosse men, and the rest played on the diamond. The workout was quite promising.

China Bold To Japan

Time of Reply to Mikado's Ultimatum Said to Preclude More Parleying

London, May 5—The Times' Tokio correspondent cables this morning: "I am authoritatively informed that the tone of the Chinese reply to the Japanese demands precludes further conversations. China refuses in language distinctly provocative to concede article five.

"China's attitude since the presentation of the modified demands became decidedly less conciliatory than at any time earlier in the negotiations when Japan's proposals were much more exacting."

Gave 48 Hours

Tokio, May 5—It is rumored that at a special meeting of the cabinet yesterday it was decided to send an ultimatum to China giving her 48 hours in which to acquiesce in Japan's demands. The Japanese consuls in China have been instructed to be ready to return. Freight rates are increasing in anticipation of a call by the government for ships for transport purposes. Tokio remains absolutely calm, the universal believing that the Japanese progress through China will be a "military procession."

Germany in It

It is stated here that President Yuan Shi Kai bases his refusal to yield to Japan upon his determination not to break with Germany, China having leased Tsing Tau to Germany for 100 years. Japan insists that China shall repudiate this lease.

MONTREALERS HAVE MANY CASUALTIES

Lists For Several Battalions Reach Ottawa—Major Dillon, Ottawa, Lieut.

Ottawa, May 5—A list containing the names of nearly two hundred Canadian casualties was issued this morning. Heavy losses among the Fourth, Tenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Battalions are recorded, the list of killed in the Fourteenth, which comes from Montreal and other eastern points, being the most extensive in any one battalion list so far received. It is expected a heavy list of members with Canadian addresses will be given out to-night, when confirmation of notification of next of kin has been received by the casualty office.

That the Princess Patricias have again been in a heavy action is evidenced by the heavy list of wounded among this corps, which has been doing great work in the trenches about St. Eloi. Losses among the artillery brigades are beginning to come in.

The name of Lieut.-Col. Watt of No. 3 Field Ambulance, which has suffered so severely, appears in this morning's list among the wounded.

Lance-Corp. Mitchell, Toronto, 7th battalion and Pte. Alexander Ramsey, 10th, address unknown, have died of wounds.

Pte. Kirkwood, Toronto and Lance-Corp. Jamieson, Fleshertom, are reported dangerously ill, the latter with gas poisoning.

A private cable announces the death of Major W. P. Dillon, M.D., of Ottawa, at No. 3 Canadian General Hospital in France, with which corps he went to the front.

Lieut. James Scott of Brantford has been killed in action at the front, according to a private message. Major M. A. Colquhoun, also of the Dufferin Rifles, is reported wounded, in a private message.

Lieut. Lovelace of St. Catharines is also wounded, according to a private message.

Britain Takes All Meat

Commons Hear Also That Reprisals For Gas Outrages Are Considered

London, May 5—Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons last evening that the British Government had requisitioned the entire supplies of meat from Australia and New Zealand. The supplies that were not needed for the army, Mr. Runciman added, would be marketed for the civil population to prevent increases in price from shortages.

H. J. Tennant, Parliamentary Secretary of the War Office, said that Great Britain had under consideration the question of employing "similar expedients" against the use by German troops on the battlefield of asphyxiating gases.

Wilson's Fateful Protest

President Wilson and cabinet discussed yesterday the case of the American tank steamer Gulflight and the death of its captain and two of its crew, on the evidence so far that the attack was by a German submarine. The purpose of the president is to make one case for the purposes of a protest, the Falaba, and all other vessels on which American citizens were killed and American property destroyed in the so-called German submarine war zone. The tone and quality of these representations will determine whether a crisis with Germany is to develop.

MILKMENS' PARADE SATURDAY, MAY 15TH

One week from Saturday there will be a milkmen's parade on the market square, at which all or most of the milk vendors in the city will be present. The object of the parade is to demonstrate to the public the manner in which the milkmen are endeavouring to serve the public by providing themselves with first class sanitary milk vehicles. A number of the milkmen have either provided themselves with new vehicles or have had the old ones repainted and repaired. The agitation re-sanitary is so universally approved that Saturday's parade was arranged for a parade on the market square.

The De Laval Dairy Supply Company have signified their intention of presenting the owner of the best rig with a single valve oil engine built by them.

Asphyxiating Gas A Normal Procedure

Sir John French Thinks Protest Over German Outrage is Useless

London, May 5—A report by Field-Marshal French on the use of poisonous gases by the Germans says: "Gases have been ejected from pipes laid into our trenches and also generated by the explosion of shells especially manufactured. The German troops who attacked under cover of these gases were provided with especially designed respirators which had been issued in sealed pattern covers, a fact which points to long and methodical preparation on a large scale.

"Since the enemy first made use of this method of covering an advance by a cloud of poisoned air, they have repeated it, both in offense and defense, whenever the wind has been favorable.

"The effect is not merely disabling or painlessly fatal, as suggested by the German press. Those victims who do not succumb in the fields but are brought into the hospital suffer acutely. A large proportion die a painful lingering death. Those who survive fare little better, for in the case of injury to the lungs it appears that they become permanent invalids for life.

"These effects were known to the German scientists who devised the new weapon and to the military authorities who sanctioned its use. I am of the opinion that the enemy have definitely decided to use these gases as a normal procedure and that protests are useless."

Submarine Fired on Open Boat

Seven members of the crew of the trawler Cruiser, of whom four were wounded by the shell fire of a German submarine, have been landed at Aberdeen, Scotland, after their open boat had been fired upon by a submarine. The trawler Scottish Queen has been sunk by a submarine fifty miles off Aberdeen and the crew landed at that port.

The British steamer Minterne from Cardiff with coal for South America was torpedoed off the Scilly Islands Monday. Two firemen were killed.

Life Insurance In a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was labouring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policy holders upon application.

To-day when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is to-day saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.

Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.

Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.

The need for LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

Catholic Ladies Making Many Dresses For Destitute in France

Hundreds of Articles of Apparel for Women and Children Being Made Up—Belgians Were Also Assisted.

Working two days a week until 10 o'clock at night, the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's Cathedral are sewing hupdreds of dresses and other apparel for destitute women and children in France. They are assisted by ladies from the other two Catholic parishes. As a result the number of willing workers who gather at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum every Tuesday and Thursday is all that was expected. They bring their tea with them and this is the sole break in the afternoon and evening's activities. The material for the dresses has been received from Toronto, but the Peterborough ladies provide trimming and other extras. The completed articles are for women and children in the northern part of France, in cities and towns which suffered more or less severely by the passage of war. The ladies have been working several months with the present materials, and expect to be in a position to make up their parcels in a short time. They will be sent to Toronto, and from there forwarded to France. The Ladies' Aid, of which Mrs. Justus Dunn is President, have also worked extensively for the Belgian poor.

Prisoner Says He Is From Walla Walla

Gave a Different Name This Morning and Confessed That He Escaped From Jail—Got Another Month at Hard Labour

AN ABLE LINGUIST

"I could not very well have a job, I just finished a two-months' term in the County Jail and was brought right down here by an officer and charged with vagrancy again," said John B. McLaren in Police Court this morning, when Magistrate Dumble read the charge to him and asked if he had work.

It will be remembered that Arthur Forknell, alias McLaren, was brought to the city a couple of months ago by a County Constable. He could not give a satisfactory account of himself at that time, and was sentenced to two months at hard labour by Magistrate Langley. He gave his place of birth as Australia and said he had been in the Department of Education in Germany for five years. He was able to speak several languages. When arrested he was making a nuisance of himself to some C. P. R. sectionmen near Havelock.

When Chief Thompson went to see him this morning he had a different story, and he may prove to be an escaped convict from Walla Walla. The Chief had written to the Chief Constable at Queensland, Australia, where Forknell, as he gave his name when first arrested, said his father was a commissioner on one of the large railroads, and that a brother was a high municipal official. There was no answer from Australia, and the prisoner admitted this morning that there would not be any as he had given the wrong name, and his correct one was John B. McLaren. He said he had been sentenced to from 1 to 14 years in Walla Walla prison, Washington, on a charge of burglary, with a man named King, and he had escaped. The Chief, accordingly laid a charge of vagrancy and Forknell or McLaren, got another month on the hill at hard labour, while further inquiries go forth.

The prisoner had a two months' growth of beard this morning, and in his blue-striped overalls he did not make a very presentable picture. He had a cynical smile when he heard the charge against him. He may prove to be a valuable prisoner for the local police.

Does Not Want Any Fire Drill

Mr. Kenner Objects to Adoption of Recommendation of Inspector

The Board of Education last night had a communication from Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, commenting on the report of the Provincial Inspector, who recommended that Fire Drill be practiced in the local Collegiate. Mr. Kenner feels that there are enough interruptions at the Institute at present, and had a list of objections to fire drill there.

The Committee of the Whole will discuss the matter at a later date.

Supervised Playgrounds

Justice Choquette, of Montreal, who presides over the Jevenile Court, recently spokes as follows of the custom of children playing in the street: Since I have been judge of this court I have been struck with the number of children who have been brought before me and charged with playing in the roads. Children would get into far less mischief if proper recreation grounds were provided for them.

No large city has more playground than Chicago, and they have all been acquired of recent years. The taxpayers in practically all the wards demanded them. One of the most pleasing features of the establishment of playgrounds in Chicago has been the reduction of the child death rate, while the moral uplift has been the subject of frequent comment.

During the midsummer months the schools are closed and the children whose parents are not wealthy enough to afford an outing to the lakes are running the streets. Their energies must have some outlet so they can amuse themselves by racing carts on the walks, playing ball and other games on the streets; destroying flowers and lawns and by swimming in forbidden places. Now the best way to train a girl or boy to do right is not to be continually lecturing them on wrong-doing, but to show them the delight and happiness of honourable conduct. One means of doing this is supervised playgrounds. Come out next Friday night to the Y.M.C.A. and see beautiful slides illustrating these playgrounds. A silver collection in aid of the playground will be taken up.

Hear what Jane Adams says about our duty in providing peasures for the young:

"We have no sense of responsibility in regard to the pleasure of young people, and continually forget that amusement is stronger than vice, and that it alone can stifle the lust for it. We see all about us much vice, which is merely a love for pleasure gone wrong,' the illicit expression of what might have been not only normal and recreative pleasure, but an instrument in the advance of higher social morality. . .

"We may either smother the divine fire of youth or we may feed it. We may either stand stupidly staring as it sinks into a murky fire of crime and flares into the intermittent blaze of folly or we may tend it into a lambent flame, with power to make clean and bright our dingy city streets."

Scout News

About thirty-five to forty boys attended the regular weekly meeting of the P. B. S. on Friday last, at the rmouries, where drill took place under the command of the two Assistant Scoutmasters. All orders were given concerning the three days' hike which will take place in the coming month. A big time is in store for the P.B.S. and other troops which will be present, to have a big time with us. Now is your chance to join this troop if you want to have a good time. Apply at the Armouries on Friday nights if you want to join.

The Crew Patrol's Hike.

The three Scouts slept soundly till about midnight, when Joe Watson was awakened by a roar and a yelp nearby. He saw a pair of fiendish red eyes glaring at him. He soon recovered his lost senses, and then he thought upon a plan to attack the enemy. He advanced toward the fire, took up a flaming torch and advanced toward the brute. Being a good shot he caught the brute squarely in the face and sent it yelping to its neighbours.

By this time Wallace was awake, and as he perceived the sight he burst into a fit of laughter. They soon went to bed again and slept till daybreak without any more intrusions.

After breakfast they started to relate their experiences to Harold Jackson. "Seems kind of funny," said he, "that I should not wake up."

They all laughed at this and Wallace said "Say, Harold, I believe you could sleep through the Battle of Waterloo and then not know the difference."

Harold washed up his dishes and prepared to go fishing. He had no special agling utensils but he secured a kite string, a lone fish hook, a cork and a cedar limb. He caught small frogs and used them for bait. He succeeded in catching a barbut, a bass, some pike and a small 'lunge. While he was fishing the other two Scouts were busy exploring their new home. They explored creeks, paths, and even a blazed trail. At last they began hide-and-seek. Wallace hid while Joe tried to find him. Wallace came to a path covered with bushes. He followed this and was indeed surprised when he came to an ivy-covered rock. He mounted the rock, but [illegible] of it, fell through. They proceeded to descend into the cave, and when both were down they carefully covered up the hole.

(To be continued next week.)

All the boys of the Signalling Corps are asked to meet at the Armouries on Thursday, May 6th, at 7.30 p.m. Please bring your own flags. All are asked to turn out at one and all of the meetings.

RAILWAY MUST REFUND IN THIRTY OR SIXTY DAYS

Ruling by Commission in Reference to Unused Tickets

OTTAWA, May 5.—If the railway companies in Canada fail to refund the price of an unused ticket within thirty days from demand on one class of ticket, or sixty days on another, they are liable to a fine of $25.

The Railway Commission has so ruled. An order just issued by Chief Commissioner H. L. Drayton and concurred in by his brother Commissioners reads as follows: "That every railway company subject to the jurisdiction of the board repay to every holder of a ticket over its railway within thirty days from demand in the case of a single-line ticket, and within sixty days from demand in the case of a joint ticket, the cost of said ticket if unused in whole or in part, less the regular fare for the distance for which such ticket may have been used.

"That every such railway company failing to comply with the foregoing regulation be liable to a penalty of a sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars ($25) for every such failure."

COUNTY PUPILS TO BE EXCLUDED IN SOUTH END

The Accommodation at the King Edward School is Being Overtaxed—62 County Pupils Are in Attendance There

TO TAKE EFFECT SEPT. 1

Owing to overcrowding at the King Edward School the County pupils attending there will be excluded after Septemberu 1, at the discretion of the Public School inspector, in accordance with the regulations of the Department, governing the exclusion of County pupils.

Mr. John Crane presented a report at the meeting of the Board of Education, last night, from Inspector Mowat, who finds that the capacity of the school is being overtaxed, and if there is even half the number of additional pupils at the beginning of the Fall term that there has been previous years there will be no accommodation for them if something is not done to make room. The only alternative is to exclude a certain number of County pupils, and it was the feeling of the Board that the trustees at Browntown should be given sufficient time to prepare for the additional number that they will have to accommodate.

At the present time there are 326 pupils on the roll at the King Edward School, and 62 of these are County pupils.

During 1913 there were 89 County pupils, and in 1914 there were 63. It is not the intention of the Board that those in the higher classes shall be excluded if it is at all possible to accommodate them, but some of those in the lower grades will have to go, and no more County pupils will be received for he present.

There is a regulation which provides that taxpayers, paying on a certain amount of assessable property, in the city, and residing outside the city limits, shall have the privilege of sending their children to the city schools, but this regulation is not very definite and before the Fall term is commenced it is probable that an amount will be fixed and adhered to.

In discussing the question at the meeting last night Mr. Hill said that we could not include our own children. "We must rather exclude the pupils of non-taxpayers. This might be a good time to refer to the wisdom of the Board of Education of eight years ago. At that time it was felt that a four-roomed school would do for the South End for at least ten or twelve years. A twelve-roomed school was built in spite of opposition, and now, only a matter of eight years, it it is not large enough. This was a saving to the ratepayers of something like $25,000.00."

It is positively not the intention of the Board that the County pupils shall be excluded before the end of the present term, but the matter is being acted upon at this date to give the County Trustees an opportunity to provide teachers and accommodation for the additional number which they will be called upon to take care of at the beginning of the Fall term.

few years, winning many prizes. In wrestling, too, he was no mean adversary and during the voyage across to England on the Cassandora he won the midleweight wrestling championship of the 2nd Battalion against many older and heavier men.

Medal for Bravery.

The young hero has early showed the bravery that made him work his machine gun to the last on the Langemarck battlefield. When he was only ten years old he saved from drowning in the Otonabee River, at the risk of his own life, Harold and Wilfred Adams, the twin sons of City Treasurer Adams. For this brave act he received the Royal Humane Society medal for life saving, which was presented to him at a public function in St. Luke's Church. Some time after he showed even greater bravery in attempting to save from drowning a Toronto teacher who lost his life in Sandy Bay, Clear Lake.

It seems hardly necessary here to say that Pte. Rogers came from a fighting family. The name of Rogers has won distinction on many a field, and in many services, and in the present war many relatives of Pte. Rogers are at the front, a number of them in the Imperial service. One of his brothers, Lieut. Harry G. Rogers, is [illegible] to go to the front with the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and his cousin, [illegible] H. Rogers, is also preparing for active [illegible].

The late Heber Rogers is survived by his parents, two brothers, Lieut. H. G. Rogers, 8th C. M. R., and Mr. George Rogers, Frankford, Ont., and three sisters Miss Edgerauther, Miss Lillian and Miss Lucy Rogers, all residing in Peterborough. He was a member of St. Luke's Church.

PETERBOROUGH'S CONTRACT FOR STREET PAVING

Compares Favourably With Special Offer Submitted to Lindsay —Flushing Paved Streets

Foley and Gleason, paving contractors, have submitted a proposal to Lindsay, agreeing to construct a minimum of 20,000 yards of paving at $2.10 a yard. The last pavements that were laid there cost $2.75 a yard. In Peterborough the same company is constructing asphalt pavements similar to those proposed for Lindsay at a cost to this city of $2.15 and $2.19 a yard. This is nearly as good as the company's special offer to Lindsay, which is open for ten days.

In his offer to Lindsay Mr. Gleason states that things are dull all over the country, and cities are deciding to undertake street paving as a means of improving the towns concerned, and providing work for the unemployed. The Council will consider the matter at a later date.

WILL DEFER PAYMENTS.

A Lindsay exchange gives the following account of Mr. Gleason's appearance before the Town Council:

In part Mr. Gleason stated that he did not know whether the town intended to lay any more pavements this year, but if so he was prepared to give the town a bargain. "Things are dull all over the country and cities are deciding to go into paving. We have large contracts in London, St. Catharines, Preston and Hamilton. We are ready to lay a limited amount of pavements and we are not going to press you for payments. I am prepared to lay a pavement of 5 inches concrete, a half-inch binder coat and a two-inch surface. This will be laid complete for $2.10 a yard and the last time we laid pavements here it cost $2.75. I will not want payments until December. Every load of gravel you put on your streets here it will cost you to remove. If we come here we will spend a lot of money and your merchants will benefit. We will lay a heavier pavement; we will supply our own engineer, surveyor and other officials, lay our own stakes, etc."

Mr. Gleason—"Not less than 20,000 yards. The curb and gutter will be the same as last year."

Deputy-Reeve Baker—"That would be $42,000."

Mayor Beal—"I would not like to see Mr. Gleason ask us to pay any interest until January, 1917."

Mr. Gleason—"I am giving you the limit. In December if I don't need the money I may extend the agreement into May. I believe your pavements here will last 25 years. You should have a binder coat, however, on any future streets paved. Your have cracks in your pavement, which are caused by the concrete and the moist earth underneath. Cracks do not hurt the surface and they will work in and join together in hot weather. I am really giving you an inch and a half more pavement for the same money as last time. With a binder coat there would be no cracks."

FLUSHING THE STREETS.

Ald. Nicholls—"Does flushing the streets hurt the pavements?"

Mr. Gleason—"No. Let some person get up early in the morning and flush the streets off into the gutter. The dust you have is caused by the mud being carried in from the side streets. If the dust is swept off every second or third day you would have no dust. In many cities now they are not sprinkling, simply flushing the streets and sweeping the pavements."

How to Grow Roses

To obtain most satisfactory results Roses should be planted just about this time, in rich, deep, well-drained soil and severely pruned before buds start. In severe winters some variation means down if unprotected. An excellent plan to winter successfully is to knock out the heads of old nail kegs and slip one over each bush just before winter, filling the keg with fine earth. In early spring take off the keg and prune off the wood above the keg—which would be about the right height to prune. In this way roses can be grown anywhere.

Local Boy Joins Aviation Corps

Mr. Norman Geale One of a Number of Recruits for Britain's Air Squadrons

Mr. Norman Geale, of this city, who graduates this year at the School of Practical Science as a civil engineer, has enlisted with an Aviation Corps which is being organized in Toronto.

Referring to the call for recruits, the Globe this morning has the following to say:

"Young Canada having made a name for itself in land warfare is now turning its attention to the air. The British Admiralty has called to the Dominion for airmen, and to-morrow morning, at Toronto Island, some twelve or more recruits for this service will begin a course of instruction which will fit them for commissions in the Royal Naval Air Service in three weeks or a month.

"Vice-Admiral Kingsmill of Ottawa was in Toronto yesterday enrolling pupils, who will be trained under the supervision of Mr. J. A. D. McCurdy. The preliminary instruction will be given in a Curtis flying boat, for which a hangar has been built at the western sandbar. Mr. McCurdy is planning to get a second boat. The training course will conclude with land flights in a biplane at Long Branch.

"Flying is a very arduous and dangerous undertaking, and there were not hundreds of applicants making enrollment from Admiral Kingsmill yesterday, but those who presented themselves were of a splendid type, men who would see the thing through."

Died as Result of Injuries--Was Kicked by Horse

Wm. J. Deen of Warsaw Knocked Down and Trampled on by Horse—Received Internal Injuries

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, May 5.—Wm. John Deen died yesterday at his home, one and a half miles west of this place, on the Peterborough road, following an accident which occurred on Thursday last. On the day above mentioned Mr. Deen drove to a pasture lot some two miles east of here, and while hitching his horse the animal became frightened, knocking him down and apparently trampled on him with the result that many bones were broken and internal injuries inflicted. The first knowledge of the accident came with the runaway horse returning homeward through the village. Mr. Deen was found unconscious and conveyed to his home, where medical aid was summoned, and though consciousness was regained, the system did not recover from the shock, and death occurred on Tuesday afternoon.

The late Mr. Deen came here from Quebec about 30 years ago, and has resided in this neighbourhood since. He and his brother Richard conducted the Warsaw - Peterborough stage route for some years. Mrs. Deen and one son John are the survivors of the family, with one sister, Mrs. H. Smith, of Lakefield, and one brother, Mr. Richard Deen, clerk of the township of Dummer.

The funeral will take place on Thursday at 2 o'clock p.m. to St. Mark's Cemetery.

EDWARDS GIRL PLACED IN CUSTODY

LINDSAY, May 5.—Properly looked after and in a room of detention is the Edwards girl, who was a ward of the Children's Aid Society, and by which she will be protected until placed in such environments as suits her particular case and where her wild freaks of fancy can be corrected.

The girl, who is about 16 years of age, had received the attention of a soldier for some time, who is stationed at the Armouries in Lindsay. His attentions were such that they won the heart of Miss Edwards, who left her place of employment one afternoon on the 23rd day of April with her new found lover. Making her exit through a partly raised window she left one day without bidding even a formal good-bye. Since that eventful day she has wandered around the town and country, having been out driving in company with the soldier on different occasions.

Chief of Police Short was detailed on the case, making a still hunt, but as the girl kept away from town the Chief could not possibly get his eye on her. About noon Monday Mrs. Sharpe, secretary of the Children's Aid Society, received a 'phone message from Mr. Jas. Robertson, Reeve of Ops, informing her that Miss Edwards had been at his home during the forenoon. It was then that Night Constable Weeds came into the lightlight when he donned his uniform and went on duty on Monday night, with the information that the girl was in town. The constable scanned the faces of every female on the street (which he was forced to do) and was successful in spotting out the Edwards girl about 11 o'clock in company with two other females on Cambridge Street.

The adventures of ten days was pinned, as stated above, and will be looked after more closely so that her escape will be impossible and her wild fancies or love's young dream will be diverted to more profitable channels of thought.

COLLECTING THE PROVINCIAL TAX

The so-called war tax of one mill on the dollar will in Peterborough be collected in the same manner as the ordinary taxes. On the tax notice there will be a separate column for the tax. Practically the same system is being adopted in other Ontario towns and cities.

Concert of the Kitchener League

On Friday evening, May 14th, the Canadian Kitchener League is holding a concert in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, consisting of the best talent obtainable.

Bridegroom of 76 Gives Rules For Finding True Love

CHICAGO, May 5.—Back from his third honeymoon, Dr. Alfred B. Westrup, seventy-six, has made public some of his rules for love-making. His bride, Miss Maud Denning, also tells of the basis upon which she and Dr. Westrup entered their matrimonial venture.

"I accepted his offer of marriage because I felt the spirit of the young man to whom I was engaged, and who died a month ago, approved it," she said. "We had a ceremony performed, because of convention, not because of conviction. When we cease to love one another, either is free to go."

Dr. Westrup gives these rules for the finding of "true love:"

"Be perfectly frank. Have no secrets.

"Caress one another during courtship to learn whether [illegible] is magnetism and natural [illegible]

"Be liberal—if a girl—with plenty of [illegible]

"A girl should veto smoking and drinking, as the two habits which interfere with promotion of love by [illegible]

Girl Begs To Die, Slain By Stepmother

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 5.—"She begged me on her knees to kill her. She said she would rather die than have her father know. She let me blindfold her and tie her arms behind her. Then she put out her tongue and I poured the acid down her throat."

Sitting placidly in Sheriff Collins' office, Mrs. Albert Steele watched the autos passing in the street outside and calmly and without emotion confessed that she had killed her eleven-year-old stepdaughter, Evelina Marie Steele.

In a little cottage, at No. 45 Acorn street, the slain child's father paced [illegible] in and out of the room where his [illegible] body, wringing his hands and crying out his fury against the woman who robbed him of his little one.

"She murdered my little girl because she was insanely jealous of her," he cried. "She flew into a rage every time my daughter showed her affection for me."

Calmly Tells Story.

While the officers sat listening in dumb amazement to the horrifying story of crime, Mrs. Steele, her serenity not once disturbed, told how she had killed her stepdaughter and buried her nude body in a shed, afterward digging it up and throwing it into an alley, that her husband might find it.

Her defence is one never before advanced, so far as can be learned, in a Michigan murder case—justification because her victim begged for death.

Here is her story in her own words:

"Evelina came to me two months ago and told me that she was in a delicate condition. She wanted to die. She could not bear to face her father. She said she would rather die than have him know. I had no intention of killing her that day before her father left for work.

"But after he had gone she told me she could not stand it any longer. She got on her knees and begged me to kill her. She urged me to buy some acid to kill her with. I told her to go to school, but she kept on begging and telling me she wanted to die.

"I had some muriatic acid in the house. I did not have to tie her hands. She was perfectly willing. She asked me to blindfold her. I got an old rag and tied it over her eyes as she sat in a chair, dressed in her school clothes.

Dug Hole for the Body.

"I got the acid and poured out a teaspoonful. She got out her tongue and I poured the acid down her throat, just one teaspoonful. She swallowed it.

"It took no force or effort. I did not have to hold her. She never struggled once, and she died in about five minutes without saying a word.

"I waited about an hour, and then went out and got a rope, undressed her, tied her hands to her sides and dragged her into the shed. I dug a hole there, I don't know how deep, and put her into it."

After she had made her confession Prosecuting Attorney Galpin confronted her with the record of the autopsy proceedings, which disputes her story of the girl's reasons for wanting to die. But the woman insisted that her story was true.

"She asked me to do it," she replied. "I did it to please her. If I hadn't some one else would have."

Banks Pay $250,000 To Federal Treasury

OTTAWA, May 5.—The first payment by the banks under the special war revenue act was made on May 1st, and the Treasury was enriched by some $250,000. The act provides for a taxation equal to one-fourth of one per cent. upon the average amount of the notes of the bank. The payment on May 1st was for the first three months of the calendar year. It is expected that the revenue from this tax will amount to about a million dollars for the year. When the bill was passed it was made retroactive as far as banks and financial institutions were concerned so go into effect from January 1st.

The trust and loan companies also paid into the Treasury on May 1st their first payment under this act. It is understood that the amount received in will up to the mark anticipated by Hon. W. T. White. These companies are taxed one per cent. upon the gross amount of

(A) Interest [illegible] the property of the company from [illegible] and investments in Canada, and

(B) Income [illegible] than interest on business [illegible] within Canada.

OUR HEROES.

Our heroes we mourn
Who will never return,
And sadly droops at half mast the old flag on the tower,
While slowly the bell
Tolls a dirge and knell
For souls passing, sword shed, in firm manhood's fair hour.

But though by grief bowed
Throbs every heart proud,
O Canada joy, thy brave sons scorned to yield,
They the fiery Huns,
And their deadly guns
Defield, and died dauntless on honour's high field.

On the roll of fame,
Bright shines their name,
And glory's star gemed, lustrous immortal wreath,
Now is theirs by right
Who at Ypres' fierce fight,
So gallantly died a true warrior's death.

Mid the surging swell
Of battle they fell
Where carnage rolled wildly, a red gory wave,
What tho' o'er their bier,
Falls no loving tear,
And nameless they sleep, in a far foreigns grave.

Still no marble they need
For remembrance to plead,
Nor fashion's frail garlands, which soon fade away,
For their valour enshrined
In the heart and the mind
Of the nation, shall flourish forever and aye.

But loud to the skies
For with vengeance cries

Stock Markets

New York Stocks

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 5.—The bear element had the run of the market today, especially towards the close, when many of the leading issues sold off from the opening prices. It was evident that the technical position of the market was materially weakened by the recent short covering and foreign as well as home liquidation by people who did not quite agree with the ultra-optimistic sentiment. The decline of the past two or three days might be considered a natural consequence of recent market activities.

The international leader closed within five and a half points of the low for the year. The opening was 163 and the close 158 3-4. C. P. R. is not the only one that suffered. The weakness was reflected throughout the whole list, including the war specialties. The market closed weak and it would not come as a surprise if it should open up much stronger tomorrow.

Many Canadians Are Reported Among the Victims of Lusitania Disaster--Survivors in Pitiable Plight

Big Canadian Liner Was Hit by Two Torpedoes---Ship Almost Broke in Two by Terrific Explosion---Passengers Smothered With Fumes.

Crew Orderly and Gave Every Assistance

Special Cable to The Examiner:

London "Bulletin," May 8th---The total casualties in the loss of the Lusitania are declared by the Admiralty to be 1,502, according to the latest figures available at 9 o'clock. The figures as made public here are as follows:

Total passengers and crew on board---2,160. Known passengers and crew rescued---658. Total feared to have been drowned--1,502.

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—Special Cable.—At least 1,300 lives were lost when the Cunard giant Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine off the south coast of Munster, according to the best information available here at 7.30 a.m. to-day.

Among the victims are many Americans and Canadians, survivors of the Lusitania assert. Charles Frohman, the play producer, according to the survivors, perished. There are conflicting reports regarding the fate of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, but several survivors say they saw him enter a life boat, and that in all probability he was landed elsewhere on the coast.

The Lusitania carried 2,160 passengers and crew. At this hour only 658 survivors have been brought here alive, although a patrol boat is reported to have picked up 52 others, and it is assumed that other life boats unloaded at other points along the coast.

Twenty-two of those brought here during the night have since perished from exposure and the shock of the disaster. In addition to these known dead, 45 bodies were put ashore here during the night.

Three vessels now approaching Queenstown harbour signalled that they are carrying one hundred more bodies.

Most of the survivors are in a pitiful condition. All agree that the liner was torpedoed without warning while approximately 15 miles from the coast, and that she sank in less than twenty minutes.

An official statement from the Admiralty here early to-day said that all of the rescue boats except the Heron had returned, landing 653 living and 45 dead from the sunken Lusitania, at Kinsale. The fishing boats may have saved a few more, it was thought.

Later the Heron and two trawlers signalled, saying they are bringing in 100 more bodies.

The total number of persons aboard the Lusitania is officially announced as 2,160.

TWO TORPEDOES STRUCK HER

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—The latest advices from the scene of the Lusitania tragedy say that the crew was orderly during the final moments of the tragedy, and did their best to launch the boats.

"Dastardly Outrage Deserving Condemnation of the Whole Civilized World" Says Survivor

Survivors Tell Tales of Nerve Racking Experiences Through Which They Passed—"Had Water Been Rough All Would Have Been Lost"

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—D.A.Thomas, a Welsh colliery owner, who was among the saved, told a succinct story of his experiences. He said:

"Many of the passengers ran here and there about the decks, although Captain Turner and his officers tried their best to pacify them. Many of the women, however, were hysterical, and some of them with infants in their arms caught at the fastenings of the boats and hindered the launching. Altogether ten boats were finally swung off. We had no warning and the big steamer sank within ten or twelve minutes after we were first hit.

"It was a dastardly outrage, deserving the condemnation of the entire civilized world. It was a beautiful sunshiny day. The sea was smooth and to that is due the fact that anyone was saved. Had the water been rough or had it been night everyone would have been lost. I doubt very much whether any of the port side boats were launched. They were in such a position that they could not be swung over the side. The steamer was headed for the 'Head' the moment the explosion took place.

"Captain Turner stuck to the bridge to the last and was picked out of the water three hours after the Lusitania foundered.

The German Ambassador Can't be Found

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 8. — Count Von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, placed himself incommunicado a few minutes preceding the arrival in this country of the first news regarding the sinking of the Lusitania. Up to midnight last night no trace of him could be found. From Washington it was learned that he left for New York city at 12.30 noon. When in this city the German Ambassador lives at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. At the hotel to-night it was stated he was not there. "He is in Washington," it was stated.

Sunken Steamer First and Finest of Great Liners

Lusitania Established a World Run Between New York and Queenstown in 1908

The ill-fated steamer Lusitania, one of the finest and fleetest of the trans-Atlantic leviathans, was the acme of The vessel was launched June 7th, 1906, at Clydebank and was christened by Lady Inverclyde. The Lusitania was the first of the "giant" type of ocean craft to establish a record run between New York and Queenstown in 1908, which since has never been surpassed by any of the larger vessels built in recent years.

SPEED BIRD OF THE SEA.

The Lusitania covered 2,814 miles in four days and fifteen hours. Her nearest competitor was the steamer Mauretania a sister ship, which two years later covered the same distance in four days, ten hours and forty minutes. The records in both cases were made under unfavourable weather and fog conditions.

The Lusitania was a quadruple screw turbine of 68,000 horsepower and was equipped with Marconi wireless telegraph and submarine signalling apparatus, Sperry-Lloyd water-tight doors automatically operated from the navigating bridge, and other modern scientific appliances. The equipment of the vessel was most complete in every detail; in fact all the luxuries that the tourist was privileged to enjoy at home and in leading hotels of the continent were to be found on this vessel.

The monster of the sea, as she was fondly known ever since she slid down the ways, was capable of attaining a speed of thirty miles an hour. She was 790 feet long, breadth 88 feet, depth to boat deck 80 feet, draught (fully loaded) 37½ feet, tonnage 32,000 and a displacement of 45,000 tons. The spaciousness of her passenger cabins and public rooms, promenade decks and lounging rooms, was remarkable. Her passenger capacity was 550 first-class passengers, 350 second-class passengers, 1,300 third-class passengers and accommodation for a crew of 900.

Baby's Eczema
Cured by Zam-Buk

Mrs. Elgin Cossett, Jemtis Bridge, N.B., says:—"When my little daughter was five months old a rash broke out on her face and body. I called in a doctor, who stated that it was eczema, and treated her for it. His treatment, however, did not bring any relief, and the child got worse. I then tried a great many salves and so-called eczema cures, but nothing proved of any benefit. The sores continued to spread, and became one large mass. One day a friend advised me to give Zam-Buk a trial. I did not have much faith in Zam-Buk working a cure, but as there could be no harm in trying it, I obtained a supply.

At that time the disease had defied all remedies for over a year. By the time I had used one box of Zam-Buk there was a marked improvement. I continued the Zam-Buk treatment and day by day the sores showed signs of improvement. Finally Zam-Buk banished every trace of the disease."

For fourteen years he had pezzled over the problem, how to cut a ladies' coat without seams. One night, as he was asleep, he saw himself making the coat, and when he awoke he was overjoyed to find that he remembered the secret.

Shapiro also dreamed that his invention brought him riches. To give this latter part of his dream chance to come true, he has applied for a patent.

Is 83 Years Old
And Her Heart Does Not Bother Her.
Thanks to MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. McLaren, Commanda, Ont., writes us under date of February 9th, 1914. "Sixteen years ago I took bad with my heart and nerves, and was not able to do anything. I tried a good many doctors, but they did me no good; in fact one doctor gave me up to die. I heard about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I thought I would give them a trial, and after using a couple of boxes I saw that I was improving. I kept on using them for quite a long time. I am eighty-three years old and my heart does not bother me at all.

"I am raising a little girl who was never very strong, and the doctor said that she had palpitation of the heart, so I started to give them to her. She is now twelve years old, and they are doing her more good than I can possibly tell you. I would advise anyone who has a weak heart to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, as they have done wonders for me."

Too Much Prize Money For Sailors

A British naval expert writes: "For a variety of reasons it is regrettable that the Admiralty cannot see its way clear to distribute prize money as it is available, for not only is it keeping it back from the men and their dependents at a time when it is badly needed, but we are likely to revive old scenes after the war."

Talking to a warrant officer on the subject, he said, "there will be a holy flare up after the war when this prize money comes to be paid; a good many of the 'skates' (the sailorman's modern sobriquet for himself) will paint the town red when they get hold of it," and I fear that is what will happen. Human nature is pretty much the same in all ages, and the reason the modern sailor does not indulge in the carousals of his predecessors is because both opportunity and cause are lacking. In eighteen-hundred-and-war-time we used to keep men continually on board ship for years at a stretch under a brutal discipline and horrible food arrangements. Occasionally a ship would pay off, each member of the crew having his pocket full to overflowing with several years' wages, and sometimes prize money also.

The natural and inevitable result was a reaction of feeling and a "glorious bust," which rarely came to an end till women and wine had exchanged the cash, unless by chance the Press Gang interrened! Twenty-five years ago we kept men on board for weeks at a stretch, then paid money and gave forty-eight hours' "general leave." Off went the men, they knew they wouldn't get on shore for another month, so they made the

OLD-TIME RECRUITING

When our ancestors wished to obtain recruits for the army they issued posters which painted pleasing pictures of the gay life of a soldier, and endeavors were made to round up laggards by promises of cheap beer and the possibility of marrying an heiress. Here are two typical recruiting announcements which decorated the walls of English cities one hundred years ago:

"WANTED, ABLE SUBSTITUTES

To serve in the 52nd Battalion of Militia for three years. Commanded by the worthy Lord George Sutton, and now quartered in the delightful and plentiful Town of Kingston-upon-Hull, where excellent ale is sold at only

Another advertisement issued in 1801, by the Colonel commanding the Light Dragoons, says:

"You will be mounted on the finest horses in the world, with superb clothing and richest accoutrements. Your pay and privileges are equal to two guineas a week. Your society is courted. You are admired by the fair, which, combined with the chance of getting swished to a buxom widow or brushing with a rich heiress, renders the situation truly enviable and desirable.

SOUP AS A RATION

The French Are Very Fond of It But British Prefer Solid Meats

The Frenchman's fondness for soup is proverbial. It is strongly in evidence among the soldiers at the front, who subsist largely on soup or on stews, which amount to practically the same thing.

English military experts are inclined to think that this as a serious mistake. They believe that such quaintness of diet leads to staleness among even the healthiest of men, and that the French would fight better if they ate more substantial food, such as the roast beef and mutton chops of which the English are so fond.

But although the English believe their soldiers are better fed than the French, they have to admit that they owe the present excellence of their military cuisine to a Frenchman. While England was fighting in Crimea sixty years ago Alexis Soyer, the celebrated chef, went there and, with nothing but the regular rations to work upon, soon revolutionized the army's methods of cooking.

He found the camp-cooks at Scutari and in other parts tying the joints intended for boiling so tightly that the outside was cooked while the inside remained raw. He found cooking going on in huge copper cauldrons so dark that it was not possible to see whether the tinning was intact, whether the water was not contaminated with verdigris.

He found them marking their rations, "lest they should be confounded in the kettle," by attaching to them pieces of red cloth, a string of buttons, knives, forks, scissors, pairs of suspenders. He found them throwing away the fat from the coppers, three inches thick, for they did not know that they were thus destroying "a little sea" of excellent soup. He found them sometimes cooking with smoke, dust and steam intermixed instead of fire, and ever encouraged "a fabulous quantity of [illegible] fuel."

MAN FOR THE OCCASION

Mr. Graeme Thomson Spoken of as "Greatest Transport Officer Since Noah"

A few months ago the name of Graeme Thomson would have conveyed nothing to the great British public. To-day it suggests the sudden and well-merited rise to reputation of a man who has done the State great service. The hour produces the man, and at the Admiralty, as well as at the War Office and in the field, the right person has appeared in not a few instances. In a memorable statement Mr. Churchill let the Empire know to whom it is indebted for the unparalleled feats of sea-transport by which Britain's navy has been kept in abundant supplies and her vast armies carried overseas without the loss of a single life or mishap to a single ship. That man is Mr. Graeme Thomson, who a few months ago was superintending clerk in the Admiralty transport under Rear-Admiral H. W. Savory, and who is now director of that department.

Mr. Churchill has alluded to him as "one of the discoveries of the war." That discovery began when Mr. Thomson, as superintending clerk, first came into contact with the First Lord, who "marked him as a very likely man." Very soon he was placed in full control of a section of the transport, where he showed such mastery of detail and administrative ability that he was promoted again. It was not long before the First Lord, now assured of his man by daily consultations, put him in his present position of huge responsibility. His rise was extraordinarily rapid—it probably creates a "record"; but Mr. Thomson earned it all.

He is a native of Cheshire; but, as his name implies, he is of Scottish lineage. His record is now before the world in Mr. Churchill's eulogy: "A man who stepped into the place when the emergency came, who has organized and presided over performances and transactions the like of which were never contemplated by any State in history." Mr. Thomson is not yet 40; and he is the youngest director of naval transport the British Admiralty has had. He wears his blushing honors modestly. "There is really nothing in it," he said to the inevitable interviewer. Over one million men, to say nothing of colossal stores, carried without mishap in the face of the enemy, is a considerable performance. At the Admiralty they are said to parody Sir George White's epigram on Sir Edward Ward and to call Mr. Thomson "the greatest transport officer since Noah."

Why do You Say "Sub Rosa"?

A good many hundred years ago when a Spartan general intrigued with Xerxes to betray the Greeks to the Persians they met in a temple roofed with roses to make their plans.

Because this historic meeting was held "under the rose," intrigues and plots and secret plans are said to be carried on "sub rosa" or under the rose.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Germs and Disease: In my health articles, extending over a period of at least two score years, I have steadily taught temperance, cleanliness, rational diet and exercise with cheerfulness and freedom from worry as the fundamental requisites to good health. That no germ can cause a disease unless the suitable soil or ptomaine is already in the system. At the present time it can be safely stated that there are many laymen who are as well, if not better posted upon matters of vital importance to their physical well-being than were many of the doctors of 50 and 100 years ago, all of which is due to the broad-minded physicians who have during recent years been teaching the layety the fundamental principles of health and disease. It will be a long time, however, before the "bug theory" of disease is overcome, but it will be. A New York correspondent of "The Nautilus" for April contributes the following interesting evidence:

"As a medical man I assert that vaccination is an insult to commonsence," Dr. Charles Creighton, an eminent English physician, once declared. "It is superstitious in its origin, unsatisfactory in theory and practice, and useless and dangerous in its character." He testified before the British Royal Commission on Vaccination that, in his opinion, vaccination affords no protection whatever. He has written several books ial study of epidemics. He was engaged to write an article for "The Encyclopedia Brittanica" on vaccination. At that time he was a believer in it, but changed his views when he investigated the subject. What he wrote was omitted from at least some of the American editions.

The foregoing paragraph is quoted from an article on "Germophobia," by Helen S. Gray, in the October "Forum," which presents the views of several distinguished physicians on cause of disease, contagion, infection and immunity. "Some of the leading physicians of all schools predict that the day is not far distant when the contagiousness and infectiousness of disease through germs, vaccination, the infection of serums, as preventives of cure, and the resorting to the use of medicines by deluded people as a substitute for correcting their habits of living will be generally regarded as superstitious. When that ray comes, we shall cease this Pharisaical self-righteous attitude, this dread and suspicion of others as germ-laden, and face the truth that we build our own diseases."

Speaking of the examination of cats' whiskers and fur by some Chicago doctors to find how many virulent varieties of germs there were on them, she says: "From Topeka came the report that six different kinds of deadly germs had been found on a cat's fur, and that the Board of Health had, in consequence, issued a mandate that Topeka cats must be sheared or killed. But why stop with shearing them? There are germs on their skins. And now public penholders in banks and post offices are under suspicion. An investigation is being made by the Kansas Board of Health. 'The St. Louis Republic' stated, and supplied. From time to time a health official or some other doctor gives out a statement for publication condemning handshaking as a dangerous and reprehensible practice. . . . . Verily, a fool and his time are soon parted!"

Nature's Remedies

Apples, for gouty persons and sufferers from constipation.

Bananas, for sufferers from chest complaints.

Carrots, good for the gout and indigestion.

Celery, an excellent nerve tonic, and contains sulphur in a form that helps to ward off rheumatism.

Cranberries, credited with being helpful in case of erysipelas and malaria.

Grapes, soothing to consumptives. They are also laxative.

Lettuce, has a soothing effect on the nerves.

Parsley, preventive of dyspepsia.

Spinach, excellent for kidney troubles. It also has great aperient qualities and is better than most medicines for sufferers from constipation.

Potatoes, very fattening.

Pineapples, better than parsley as a preventive of all forms of indigestion. The heartiest meal may be eaten with impunity when pineapples are consumed at its close.

Strawberries, helpful in restoring complexions that have been ruined by cosmetics.

Tomatoes, excellent for torpid livers, but should be avoided by gouty persons.

Watercress is one of the best-known blood purifiers.

A SIMPLE SILVER CLEANER

Whitening made into cream with diluted ammonia, or alcohol, or water, rub all dark or stained pieces well. When each is covered with a thin, milky coat, leave it to dry while you go on with the rest.

When all are dry rub off the whitening and then polish with a leather; lastly, rub all vigorously with a brush, to remove all the cleaning material from crevices. The brush also cleans and polishes the chasing where the leather is useless.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Language denotes the man—Don't "cuss."

Set yourself a good example, for you are more likely to follow it than to set by any one else.

Be rude to none. Rudeness harms not the humblest, but injures him who exhibits it.

To understand people takes more wit than to condemn people.

A man suspects he is a fool at 30, knows he is at 40; and reforms at 50.

One to-day is worth to-morrows.

The troubles we carry are not all our own; some are borrowed and some are even stolen.

There is no blessing so great as a stout heart.

The stomach and the heart are the Damon and Pythias of the human frame; when the heart is wretched the stomach will often console it.

Freshly-grated horseradish with a little whipped cream stirred into it makes a nice sauce for boiled meats.

And delicate fabric may be cleaned with equal parts of ether and alcohol without danger of fading.

Should ants get into the refrigerator or pantry, a saucer of tartar emetic, mixed with sugar, will drive them away.

Liquid bluing, which never settles, is made by dissolving one ounce of Prussian blue and one-half ounce of oxalic acid in a quart of cold water. Be careful of the acid— it is deadly poison.

BITING THE FINGERNAILS

Biting the fingernails is far too common a fault among nervous children, although why their nerves should strike upon this particular habit as an outlet is a mystery. The constant wetting with the saliva so weakens and softens the nail that it has not strength enough left even to grow properly, becoming wilted and dead-looking, sometimes even crumpling up.

Most people do this half-unconsciously, anyway. The quickest cure is to paint the end of each finger with liquid quinine. It will be harmless to the finger and its excessive bitterness will punish the lips the moment they touch the nails.

With this liquid quinine on the nails every day it will not be more than a few weeks before all inclination to bite them will have disappeared. Then you should begin treatment for your nails to restore them into normal health.

Perspiration Odour

The odour of perspiration is unpardonable. When bathing, dissolve a tiny bit of ordinary washing soda in the water. After using the bath towel dust well with a powder made of 100 grains of salicylic acid, 300 grains of powdered boric acid, and 7 ounces of powdered talcum.

The liquid preparations for this purpose are powerful astringents, perfectly safe to use, but not the sort of applications that can be compounded at home, since they contain very strong ingredients.

To diminish and give elasticity to the skin, put some of this mixture into your bath each morning, having the water just tepid, put ounce: tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; tincture of myrrh, one-half ounce; rainwater, six ounces. You can purchase both powders and pellets, which are more expensive, are delightful in their effect.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES

Chocolate Marshmallow Cake.
(Requested.)

Two-thirds cup butter, 1 cup sugar, yolks 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup hot mashed potatoes, 3 ounces chocolate melted, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 2 slightly rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, 1 teaspoonful mace, 1-2 teaspoonful cloves, whites of 4 eggs. The first cup of sugar is added to the creamed butter, the second cup to the yolks, beaten light, then the two are combined and the other ingredients are added in the usual manner. Bake in layers. For both filling and frosting use:

MARSHMALLOW PASTE — Three quarters cup sugar, 1-4 cup milk, 1-4 pound marshmallows, 2 tablespoons hot water, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Put sugar and milk in a saucepan, heat slowly to boiling point without stirring and boil six minutes. Break marshmallows in pieces and melt in double boiler, add hot water and cook until the mixture is smooth, then add hot syrup gradually, stirring constantly. Beat until cool enough to spread, then add vanilla.

VEGETARIAN TURKEY.

One-half pint mashed potato, 1-2 pint shelled English walnuts or pecans, 1-2 pint pint lentil pulp, 1-2 pint graham flour (coarse grains sifted out), 2 beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 small onion minced, 1 seasoned parsley and 2 tablespoons butter. Mix ingredients, press in pan and steam one hour. Let cool, mold in shape of turkey and bake until brown. Baste with butter or meat stock. Serve with cranberry sauce.

Baked Shad Creole.

One fresh shad, 3-4 lbs.; 2 tablespoonfuls melted butter, salt, pepper; 1 onion, 1 green pepper, 3 tomatoes, finely choped; 4 olives, chopped; 1-2 cupful stock or water, 2 level tablespoonfuls butter, 2 level tablespoonfuls flour.

Clean and split shad. Place in a greased pan, sprinkle wih salt and peper, brush with melted butter; bake in a hot oven about thirty minutes. While fish is cooking prepare sauce. Cook onion and pepper in butter, without browning, 10 minutes. Add tomatoes, cook five minutes; all olives, flour and stock. Stir and cook until thick. When fish is done place on hot platter, pour around the sauce, garnish with parsley.

NICE GINGERBREAD.

One-half cupful of sugar, one-half cupful New Orleans molasses, one-half cupful of sweet milk, one-half teaspoonful water, one tablespoonful [illegible], one teaspoonful ground ginger, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, one and a half cupfuls of flour, one beaten egg.

Sift the dry ingredients together into a bowl. Add molasses, milk and shortening. Beat well. Then add the egg. Bake slowly in a loaf, in a flat pan or in small patry cake pans.

Cheap Salad.

Have you ever tried this salad? It is very good. Chop one small onion up fine, add three boiled potatoes and two hard-boiled eggs cut in dices. Cover edge of dish with lettuce leaves and on them lay sardines.

Real Irish Stew.

Cut 2 pounds of lean mutton into inch cubes, put them in a casserole, cover with 1 quart of boiling water and cook half a hour. Add 1 dozen button onions and 1-2 cup of diced carrots and cook one hour; then add 1 dozen small potato balls, season with pepper and salt and cook until tender. Brown 2 tablespoons of butter, stir in 2 1-2 tablespoons of browned flour, add slowly 1 cup of brown stock, stir until smooth and thick; pour the sauce into the casserole and cook 10 minutes longer.

Potatoes With Cheese.

Split Irish potatoes which have been baked and sprinkle with grated cheese, return to oven long enough for the cheese to melt. Serve hot. Before baking and after potatoes have been thoroughly washed, roll them in salt. This adds greatly to the flavour of the potato.

Cocoanut Rice Pudding.

Wash thoroughly, 1-2 cup of rice, add 1 quart of milk and let stand two hours; then add 3-4 cup of sugar, 1 cup of cocoanut, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon of salt. Turn into a buttered dish and bake in a slow oven stirring occasionally during the first half hour.

Laundry soaps are made from dead animals. Hardly nice things to use on dishes.

CHINA—THE ENIGMA

By DR. THOMAS E. GREEN.

The nation that could put the greatest army in the field of any of the nations of the world is the most peace-loving of all the nations. If China armed its citizens as Germany does, it could assemble the greatest army the world has ever seen; but China is too peaceful even to resent insults.

Furthermore, China is the great enigma, the mystery nation of the world. The greatest ethical leader the world ever saw could be spreading his doctrines in the interior of China at the present time, without the rest of the world being any wiser. But he would find a fertile field in the great Asiatic nation of idealists.

The Chinese character and Chinese ideals are the result of centuries of the most remarkable devotion to standards of life and morals that any nation has ever possessed. Far more complete and consistent has been the Chinese obedience to the models of conduct inculcated by their ancient teachers and philosophers than has been the accidental fealty to its precepts of faith and life.

By means of a literature unique in its lucid completeness, China — the China of which we have little or no conception—has been a nation influenced and dominated not by arms and military authority, but by the highest type of ethical ideals. For more than 3,000 years that literature, perpetuated by the art of printing, invented and developed in China centuries before our occidental civilization brought it into existence, has been the foundation of Chinese standards.

No nation of ancient or modern times has produced more finished or erudite philosophers, or loftier conceptions of individual or national life. Our idea of "John Chinaman," the painstaking laundryman, or of "Ah Sin," the deft-fingered, tricky gambler, is a sad travesty on the real dignity and erudition of intellectual China.

Of no nation on earth have we a more limited conception, a more partial and erroneous understanding. There are about 100,000 Chinese in the United States, 30,000 of whom are in San Francisco. Nearly all of the Chinese in the United States come from the single province of Kwang Tung, the most populous of all the eighteen provinces. Its capital is Canton. Six counties of the province—whose people seem always to have been adventurous and addicted to travel—have furnished nearly all of the Chinese emigrants. Though not of the educated class, 90 per cent. of them can read and write, and they support a daily newspaper in San Francisco. But these Cantonese are not China. They bear about the same relation to the representative Chinese that the swarthy Neapolitans do to the Italians of Florence and Lombardy.

China's development, like China itself, has been an enigma. Silence is the genius of the Orient. Save to those who had kept in touch with the esoteric forces that brought it about the climax was a startling surprise. On 12th February, 1912, the oldest monarchy in the world became by declaration of its own people a republic.

The new China, the China of the twentieth century, is not the result of the adoption of occidental statecraft and militarism, but has come from the gradual study and assimilation of modern science and literature. The real leaders in the Chinese reform movement have been the men who reanimated the ancient philosophy of their historic wisdom and made it the inspiration for a renaissance of national life. Not China alone, but Japan as well, has drunk deep of the wisdom of Confucius and Lao-Tse and of the later thought and theory of Wong-Li-Chow and Wang-Yang-Ming, great economists and philosophers of the seventeenth century.

Significantly potent in the creation of new thought and theory in China is the work of men like Yen-Fu, the translator and expositor of Huxley, Spencer, Darwin, Adam Smith, and Montesquieu. Sin-Cchin-Nan has given to the libraries and readers of China the works of Scott, Dickens, Hawthorne, Dumas, and Victor Hugo. The nationalist cause has in wide measure used the press. Daily and weekly newspapers, monthly magazines, and reviews, edited with a rare and comprehensive ability, have become tremendous forces in shaping and moulding public opinion.

The awakening of China has been primarily an intellectual evolution. Four hundred millions of the earth's people are beginning to think in terms of modern erudition. A titanic republic is clothing itself in the habiliments of neoteric knowledge.

It is probable that much of our accepted fact regarding China is as erroneous as our knowledge of its people. The most recent calculation as to the area and population of the republic comes from Mr. Rockhill, formerly our Minister at Pegin. It is his judgment—and he is accepted as an authority—that the population of China proper, exclusive of Tibet and Mongolia, is, in round numbers, 325,000,000. Of the eighteen provinces the area is 1,532,420 square miles. According to the estimate of the Chinese customs, there were in 1913 in China 144,754 foreigners, 75,210 Japanese, and 45,000 Russians. Of Americans there were 3,500.

In 1898 Great Britain obtained a ninety-nine year lease of territory on the mainland opposite the island of Hong Kong, which had been a British possession since 1841. In 1898 France obtained a similar lease of the bay of Kuang-Chau-Wan. In 1898 Japan received the island of Formosa as part of the spoils of war, and in 1905 Japan and Russia divided between themselves various leases and concessions in Manchuria, agreeing to restore to China the administration of that province, which, however, has never been done, Great Britain by the same agreement taking over Wei-Hai-Wei.

It is here that there comes into play the danger side of China's development—the double danger of European greed of territory and from China's automatic inoculation with occidental militarism. It is possible that a great ethical leader, a great peace propagandist, might make the Chinese the leaders in the steps toward universal peace, but there also is the danger that China may awake to its power and may arm itself as the European countries hve armed.

During the last summer, I was much in the company of one of the leading and most influential Chinamen in the United States, Dr. Ng-Poon-Choo, editor of the Chinese daily paper of California and the intimate and confidential associate of Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen.

As are most, if not all, of the leaders in the republican movement in China, he is a man of liberal education, a graduate of one of the great American universities. A representative of the intellectual school in Chinese statesmanship, he was an ardent believer in and an earnest advocate of peace. But he voiced also the universal fear and conviction of his compatriots when he outlined the imminent danger of wholesale confiscation of territory by the great nations of Europe and the necessity of resisting the insatiate greed by learning the very methods of this indefensible spoliation and developing as rapidly as possible a strong and thoroughly modern military and naval establishment.

"China," said he "must keep what is its by the same force that would take it away."

Should Read Books

TO obtain a comprehensive idea of the grandeur of Isaiah's character, one should read through the whole of the book named after him. One can see and hear that stern, lonely, majestic figure, denouncing with fiery passion the people of his own generation. As one reads, they realize that if he were here with our own generation, there would be much the same cause for holy invective.

Thundered forth, the keynote of his message was: "Fear none but Jehovah only; fear Him, trust Him; He will be your safety." Isaiah was Adviser, Judge, and Prophet of his people. All of his "Vision" was connected with Judah, but in his prophecies, however, he never lost sight of the actual present.

Under Uzziah there had been much prosperity; the fortifications had been strengthened; castles had been built; considerable success in war gained. With this arose much evil. It was Isaiah's duty as a public reformer to come forward, girded in coarse, dark haircloth, with the divine message. As Smith says:

"In spite of his country's worldly prosperity, Isaiah would see the land laid waste, and Zion left as a cottage in the vineyard. They might go on with their ritual worship, but the stain of innocent blood was on their hands; the weak were oppressed; there was bribery and corruption in the administration of justice.

"Heathenism was flooding the land with charmers, with silver and gold, with horses and chariots, with idols. 'O my people, thy leaders lead thee astray, thy princes oppress; what mean ye that ye grind the faces of my poor? saith Jehovah. Look again at their ladies with their jewels and their headgear, and their fine dresses and their trinkets! Jehovah will take all of it away leaving to them only shame and sackcloth. Yes, Zion shall lose both sons and daughters (so many as they who offend), and bereaved of all shall sit on the bare ground.

"His denunciation of idolatry was prefaced by a vision of the exaltation of the mountain on which Jehovah dwells, about all others, to become the source of light and moral transformation to all mankind."—I.H.N.

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills

If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. Yorke, at Bathrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 15 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 15 years with my Kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pains I had through my back and shoulders and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a few yards, the pain was so severe. I doctored and tried lots of remedies but got no relief. I did not realize the harm it was doing me. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My pains are all gone and I can do my work with ease. I recommend GIN PILLS to my friends as they are worth their weight in gold."

HOW YOU MAY REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

Overfleshiness is a very unwelcome condition especially in the present day, when slender figures are so fashionable, and every reader of this paper has noticed the tendency of some people to put on an excessive amount of fat.

If you happen to be one of those whose weight is more than it should be, don't try to starve yourself, eat all you want, but go to your druggist and get a box of orlene in capsule form and take one with each meal.

Oil of orlene increases the oxygen-carrying power of the blood and decreases the fatty tissue, so many cases go nearly the rate of one lb. per day. Be sure to get oil of orlene in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any good druggist has it, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address B. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1340, Montreal, Can.

Got the Answers Mixed

TWO correspondents wrote to a country editor desiring to know, respectively, "the best way of assisting twins through the teething" and "how to rid an orchard of grasshoppers."

The editor answered both questions faithfully, but, unfortunately, got the initials mixed, so that the fond father of the teething twins was thunderstruck by the following advice:

"If you are unfortunate enough to be plagued by these unwelcome little pests, the quickest way of settling them is to cover them with straw and set it on fire."

The other man, who was bothered with grasshoppers, was equally amazed to read: "The best method of treatment is to give each a warm bath twice a day, and rub their gums with India rubber."

IN making a flower bed, select those varieties of flowers in which colors will not clash.

Keep the garden free from weeds

Keep a dust mulch over the surface.

Pick flowers every day and the plants will keep on blooming.

Protect the earthworms; they enrich and improve the garden soil, ventilate it, and act as miniature plowmen.

Protect the toads; they eat cutworms and many insects.

Protect the birds; they eat caterpillars and other insects in immense quantities. Coax them into your garden by providing food, houses or a shelter, but keep your cats away. The birds will help you, if you will help your friends.—A.A.F.

Nurse Paints Pictures of Awful Horrors

It is probably impossible for the human mind to grasp the full horror of the war in Europe. Mercifully so, perhaps, although out of the stunning knowledge might arise such a universal demand for peace that it could not go unheeded.

Here and there a flash comes of true conditions at some point. The truth often is shrouded in a cloud of baseless charges. But occasionally out of the maze of lies one may find a true picture of a part that Europe's fighting peoples are enduring from the awful scourge of war.

Such a picture recently has come to a New York woman in the form of a series of personal letters written by Miss Annie Lewis, an American nurse in the American Ambulance hospital, that finely equipped institution at Neuilly-sur-Seine, near Paris, which is being so nobly supported by the contributions of large hearted Americans.

It is a commentary upon the ability of the human mind to become insured to suffering constantly under the eye that Miss Lake writes dispassionately of the scenes in which she is a daily witness, but her very soul is moved by the far greater suffering in Servia, among conditions not alleviated as in the American hospital, by all the devices of modern surgery and sanitation.

She finds time from her own heavy duties to make an appeal to the American people, not for her own wounded, for whom medical science is doing all in its power, but for the poor Servians, typhus swept and dying by thousands, on no more sanitary hospital beds than heaps of filth carrying straw.

The true spirit of the American nurse also is shown in her desire to go there; to lend her own personal aid in Servia's extremity, and failing in that to bring the great need of Servia.

Miss Lewis's first letter follows:

"The American Hospital of Paris,
"Section for the Wounded,

"January 15, 1915.

"Just 1 a.m. and I have finished midnight supper, so you will see I am a thing. If it were quiet I could stay awake beautifully, but now have to do a little of everything to keep going. It was my own wish to go on, for I am going to take French lessons and try to at least understand the language. First I hope you will both write to me about the doings in your world.

"Now 4 a.m. and not a bit of study. Les blesses arrived and I have been working hard and now must shorten this, as the morning's work begins at 5. The wounded have been coming in for three days from Sejaunes and, oh, dear, such wounds. To-night we got a priavte who was wounded at Christmas and only now has been sent on, covered with wounds, head, arms, legs, feet. One wonders how he could be alive. The marvellous thing is that they will pull through and have greater resisting power than any other nation. I meaned French for this hospital is filled with French, Arabs and very few English.

"It is so sad to see the young boys. Three came in with frozen feet, and all had to be amputated. If you hear of any wealthy persons who would like to do a good work get them to give an artificial limb to this hospital. They are trying to send them out with good ones instead of the old stumps they gave them in former years.

"One poor fellow said, I would be willing to go back to the front if I could have my leg again.' I tried to console him that the loss of his leg was not as bad as some terrible cases we have. It is a greater mercy to let them die than to keep them alive, disfigured so. With it all they are most wonderful to me, so philosophical, calm and courageous; and the French woman is a wonder. No nonsense, but as brave as the men. They are all so willing to help and some of the orderlies work through the day and come here at night to help, getting some sleep between times. As I write the orderly for this division is having a good sleep on one of the stretchers.

"This is all about my doings, but it is very real work and I am glad I came. I watch eagerly for the post from America. Save all your pennies for the Belgian kiddies.—Buffalo News.

To Have Perpetually Wavy, Curling Hair

Perpetually wavy, curling hair is now within the means of every woman to possess. All one need do is to get a few ounces of plain bayrol almondine at any drug store and apply a little of it occasionally. This is remarkably effective in dressing weather, producing a beautiful curliness and satiny gloss which bear no evidence of artificial making. It is neither sticky nor greasy, and it will not streak, stain or injure hair or scalp in the least.

After one trial, the scorching, hair-destroying curling iron will never more be used. The best way to apply the almondine is with a clean tooth brush, drawing the strands of hair from root to tip. If this is done before retiring, a look into the mirror in the morning will afford a most agreeable surprise.

WEED ERADICATION

COOPERATIVE experiments in weed eradication have now been conducted for three years in Ontario through the Experimental Union, whose members live in all parts of the province. The object of this work is to have carried on by men on their own farms experiments in the eradication of weeds, the results of which will furnish data from which definite statements may be made regarding the best methods of controlling the various bad weeds. At the present time we have very little reliable information concerning the best methods of dealing with our various and under various conditions of cultivation and cropping, and hence the necessity for such experiments.

This work has progressed rather slowly. It has been hard to get men to cooperate in it for various reasons, and even harder to get them to carry out the directions for the experiments and make satisfactory reports of the results they obtained. However, sufficient experiments have been successfully carried out and reported upon during the past three years to furnish considerable valuable information about the eradication of the various weeds experimented with.

The reports received of these cooperative experiments indicate: First, That good cultivation followed by rape sown in drills provides a means of eradicating both Perennial Sow Thistle and Twitch Grass. Second, That rape is a more satisfactory crop to use in the destruction of Twitch Grass than buckwheat. Third, That rape gives much better results in the eradication of Twitch Grass and Perennial Sow Thistle when sown in drills and cultivated than it does when sown broadcast. Fourth, That thorough deep cultivation in fall and spring, followed by a well cared for hoed crop will destroy Bladder Campion. Fifth, That mustard may be prevented from seeding in oats, wheat and barley by spraying with a 20 per cent solution of iron sulphate without any serious injury to the standing crop or to fresh seedings of clover.

Points on Mustard Spraying

Points of interest brought out by the experiments in spraying with iron sulphate to destroy mustard were:

1. The necessity of spraying early, just when the plants are coming into bloom. If the spraying is left too late, the older plants will not be destroyed by the solution, and will form seed, and hence the experiment will not be entirely satisfactory.

2. To spray thoroughly, and with a good pressure. In order to spray thoroughly with an ordinary broadcast attachment, it is necessary to keep the horses walking very slowly. If an attempt is made to cover the ground quickly, some of the plants will be missed, and the results will not be satisfactory.

3. In regard to the cost of spraying with iron sulphate it was found that the cost of material per acre varied from $1 to $2.40. If the iron sulphate is bought wholesale, it can be purchased at $1 a cwt., so that $1.50 to $2.00 an acre should cover the entire cost of spraying.

These cooperative weed experiments will be continued this year. The weeds to be experimented with are Perennial Sow Thistle, Twitch Grass, Bladder Campion or Cow Bell, Wild Mustard and Ox-eye Daisy. All who have any of these weeds on their farms are invited to write to the Director of Cooperative Experiments in Weed Eradication, O.A.C., Guelph, Ontario, who will gladly furnish information concerning this experimental work.

THE war has led to some good advertisements, but the following which is displayed in the window of an English ear merchant, will want some beating on the score of originality. This is it: 'We scora the foreign yolk."

The ratio of lead poisoning in storage battery manufacture in the United States is about 16 to each 100 employees; in Great Britain, 3 to the 100, and in Germany, less than one in each 100.

CHAPTER VIII.

Jean Darnell's Rose.

"This must be Miss Gallon," said a pleasant voice.

Ruth looked up to see a woman of florid beauty and [illegible] extravagant style [illegible] out of great, showy, [illegible] Western head, Ruth responded suitably to this salutation, [illegible] that [illegible] was one more token of John Dorr's gentleness of her comfort and safety. To her inexperienced eyes this woman represented the tremendous city to which she was going. Her dress, her manner, her jewels, the evasive perfume that she affected were all strange and impressive to her. She moved over a little to allow Mrs. Darnell to sit down.

"John never spoke of you," said Ruth simply. "I did not have the faintest notion that I was to meet any of his friends. He was [illegible] in New York."

"Yes, I live in New York. I happened to be in Chicago, and through Mr. Everett I heard from John."

"Oh, you know Mr. Everett?" cried Ruth. "He is the man I am going to see in New York," and she went on to tell, as best she could, the gist of her mission.

It was typical of the woman to whom she was talking that she did not interrupt this naive narrative. She sat in silken silence, occasionally allowing her great eyes to rest on Ruth's fair face with an assumption of affection. As a matter of fact, she was profoundly interested. Life had taught Jean Darnell a great many things, and among them had been the great lesson of self preservation—the saving for herself of money, of comfort, of health and of good looks. Now it was a question of money, rating among them all, and her rather keen wits saw precisely the chance which Wilkerson was taking. She recalled his oft repeated statement that there was money in "The Master Key" and his latest letters imploring her to help him get control of the stock.

When Ruth ended up with a gentle "And so I told John I'd come and see what I could do," the elder woman smiled gently. Times were not so good with her as they had been, and if Harry Wilkerson could put this deal through and make money for them all well. Yet there was something in the tone that warmed her heart to this effulgent creature. At least, she was not going into the great city all alone, nor confront Mr. Everett by herself. Mrs. Darnell made her feel that she was competently protected.

When they arrived the next morning at the Grand Central station in New York city Mrs. Darnell quietly introduced her to a slim, rather handsome young man, who seemed ill at ease until he had drawn Ruth's companion aside for a moment for a chat while the porter collected their luggage.

"I don't just like this game," he said. "In the first place, Everett is a big man in the city, and this Miss Gallon doesn't look to me like a girl you could fool long. Anyway, I can't understand what you are trying to do, Jean. You must know what sort of a fellow Harry Wilkerson is by this time. Why play his hand for him?"

"I don't notice you holding any trumps in your hand," she returned gently, but with a faint gleam in her eyes which made him draw back. "This is my game, and I expect you to play your part. You come on now and be George Everett. The girl is as innocent as a pigeon. Remember what I told you."

"About that stock?" he said sullenly.

"Yes, the stock. You understand that she came to New York simply to raise money for this mine. You are supposed to handle the business for her. If you don't learn all that is to be learned about 'The Master Key' mine in the next two days you [illegible] than the last I take you for."

Are you [illegible]?

His story [illegible] him back to where Ruth stood amid the suit cases and said [illegible] and said: "Miss Gallon, Mr. Everett has been telling me that he, too, has heard from John Dorr about your coming."

Ruth seemed him politely. But the interest died in her eyes when she saw what sort of a man he was. He might be a friend of John's; he might be the man to rescue "The Master Key" from bankruptcy, but he did not interest her.

Drake, trying to play the part of the easy broker and, being thoroughly and temperamentally an actor, felt the chill of this lack of interest and would certainly have fallen down on his part and he not been prompted by Mrs. Darnell. He was glad to hasten away to find the elusive Earl.

The real George Everett got out of his limousine on the corner of Vanderbilt avenue and hurried through the revolving doors; brisk, debonair, alert, decided; with that happy style which denies foppery and avoids surveillance. It seemed strange that he should have a photograph in his hand at which he looked intently until he got in the concourse. There he stopped and, with the picture still in his hand, commenced watching the faces of the people thronging through the gates under the vast dome. As he waited he frowned slightly. "Why had John Dorr sent this girl on a wild goose chase?" He thought of this particularly and then smiled to himself. "A wild goose!" he muttered. It brought up darkling sunset Villa, lotos smooth as quicksilver under the evening sky, and slim, gray, beautiful birds booming downward. The frown left his forehead.

"After all it will be good to see somebody from out of doors," he said to himself.

Half an hour later he discovered that he had irretrievably missed the arrival of the Chicago express and with it Ruth Gallon. He went back into his car and drove to his office. Once there he called his head clerk, an ancient and fragile man, as crisp and bloodless as the money that passes on Wall street, and told him to see at what hotel Miss Ruth Gallon was stopping. Then he wired John Dorr:

John Dorr, "Master Key" Mine, Silent Valley, Cal.:

Could not find Miss Gallon at train. Am seeking for her, as it is important that the business be settled immediately. Wire any possible address.

GEORGE EVERETT.

Far out on Broadway, above the eighties, an operator was ticking off another message addressed to Harry Wilkerson. It read:

5 A West Eighty-fourth St., New York.
Harry Wilkerson, "Master Key" Mine, via Valle Vista, Cal.:

Everything all right. George met Ruth. She is now with me and waiting further particulars. Have seen Everett under guise of prospective purchaser of stock. The girl is charming.

JEAN DARNELL.

Some houses, like some people, should never be illumined with sunshine, and Mrs. Darnell's residence, overlooking the Hudson, was of this type. Its dull, red stone front, pierced by windows that seemed blind to all that went by, was not distinctive in that neighborhood. A thousand doors within a mile would have suggested to the passerby nothing more nor less than the great oak portals within which she lived. To Ruth Gallon, of course, the house seemed tremendously formal and stately. Within she found an atmosphere so absolutely strange and alien to all she had ever known that she shrank within herself and had nothing to say until she had been conducted to her own room on the third floor and a discreet maid was busy unpacking her things. Ruth felt that society had already laid its restrictions on her. She recognized the maid as the "gown and hat" policeman.

This silent, but exceedingly obtrusive personage having retired at last, Ruth studied her surroundings. When she had completed her survey she thought to herself that there were two things wanting. One was a silk haired Persian cat and the other a flaming colored scarf across the bed that completed the altogether of an apartment severely luxurious. Then she tried to analyze the odor, delicate yet indistinct, which she was ever afterward to associate with Jean Darnell and her experiences in New York.

At last she traced it to some pallid flowers in the great green and dark red vase, whose unwholesome beauty was that of plants whose roots have never been in good, sound soil. They looked to her much like lilies, whose pads had floated on some dark and opalescent pool, vivid with edges of the night. She was still staring at these and smiling their scent through widened nostrils when Mrs. Darnell knocked on the door and entered slowly. She had changed her street gown for a negligee, which instantly caught the girl's appreciative eye.

"You look beautiful," she said quietly. Jean Darnell turned her shiny eyes on her and smiled faintly.

"I am not usually up until noon," she responded, "and—I am getting old, my dear." She threw out her hands with a sparkling gesture of half comic resignation. Ruth laughed.

"John Dorr says everybody gets old in New York. Don't you like him?"

Mrs. Darnell looked into the clear eyes of the girl and almost shrank to follow her inner instinct. Just at that hour there was the heavy guilt of "The Master Key." As if it had an unnatural power, the sight of that lay behind the door of her heart. "Of course I like John," she said coolly. "We must get everything fixed up with Gallon will be here—George Everett, of course. I mean—bother! and just and he can talk the business over."

"You know, we simply must have the money," Ruth returned quizzically. "The mine isn't paying now, but John knows where we can find the richest hole again; then we'll all be rich."

"Shall we?" Jean Darnell [illegible] "Have [illegible] [illegible]?"

"I own it all," Ruth returned proudly. "It's my mine. My father left it to me when he died." She did not see the [illegible] hatred that slowly flamed until Jean Darnell's eyes fairly blazed.

In her own room she stood a moment breathless. Then she tore off her fleecy negligee in an intensity of silent rage and despair, seen only by the mercenary eyes of the god whom she had defied.

It is wickedness, not virtue, which is theatrical, and at this moment Jean Darnell study herself into her own position with all the abandon of the tragedian, only her voice was almost inaudible: "Tom Gallon, Tom Gallon, dead though you are, I'll have revenge!" When her fury had spent itself—and, the all physically indolent woman, she could not yield long to emotion—she prepared her campaign.

First she called up George Drake and made certain that he would be at her home for dinner that evening. Then she called up two old acquaintances who were always glad to fill empty chairs at her well set table. This settled, she again sought Ruth and persuaded her from going down immediately to Everett's office.

"You must be very tired, my dear," Mrs. Darnell purred. "And, anyway, you know, in New York young ladies do not go about unescorted to men's business offices, and I cannot go with you until tomorrow or next day."

"That will be too late," cried Ruth.

Mrs. Darnell opened her eyes wide, as if in surprise. "Mr. Everett is engaged [illegible] "Mr. Everett is engaged [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

MANY CANADIANS ARE REPORTED AMONG THE VICTIMS OF LUSITANIA DISASTER--SURVIVORS IN PITIABLE PLIGHT

Most of the survivors agree that two torpedoes struck the Lusitania, one of them completely shattering her engine room.

The first torpedo struck absolutely without warning in the stokehold. Splinters of steel flew high in the air and the great boat shook from stem to stern. Almost immediately afterward another explosion followed.

The second torpedo completed the tragedy. Fumes from the explosion permeated every section of the smashed steamer. Many of the passengers fell to the deck unconscious. Others staggered to the boats and were helped on board. The steamer was listing to starboard, and many of her boats were useless.

ALMOST BROKEN IN TWO

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—Mrs. M. N. Pappadopoulo, of Athens, Greece, faced death in the sea for more than an hour. Although she was an expert swimmer she was totally exhausted when landed here. On the rescue tug she had been given a sailor's sweater and a pair of trousers to replace her wet clothing. Her husband, whom she had vainly tried to save, probably was lost.

"I was ordering coffee in the saloon," she said, "when the ship was almost broken in two by the force of an explosion. I put on a life belt and so did my husband. I tried to help him after we got into the water. He was no swimmer, however, and I fear that he was lost. Only the thought of my babies in Athens buoyed me up, until finally I was picked up by a fishing boat." Mrs. Pappadopoulo will live, the doctors say.

BESIEGED THE CUNARD OFFICES

LONDON, May 8.—Special Cable, May 8.—An enormous crowd besieged the Cunard offices all night and increased as day broke. All were anxious to learn the fate of relatives on board the lost Lusitania. They pointed out that it had been known for a week that an attack was to have been made on the big liner but that not a single British destroyer, the real foe of the submarine, had been detached to act as an escort for her from the Atlantic.

TOTALLY DISCOURAGED BY NERVOUS PROSTRATION

After Many Weeks of Doctoring a Friend Recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and She Was Cured

There is nothing more discouraging than Nervous Prostration. Because of the exhausted condition of the nervous system, weakness and helplessness take possession of the body. The faculties of the mind as well as those of the body are affected and hope and courage disappear.

The patient, often appearing well, gets little sympathy, and few doctors understand diseases of the nerves well enough to treat nervous prostration intelligently. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is founded on the prescription of a great nerve specialist, and hence its wonderful success in curing ailments of this nature.

Mrs. Edith May Williams,, Tilsonburg, Ont., R. R. 3, writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I suffered for years with my nerves, and at one time I was confined to my bed with nervous prostration for several weeks. I cannot just explain my feelings, but I was weak and helpless and so discouraged and despondent that I thought I would lose my mind. I doctored with several doctors and received but little benefit. At last I became very much discouraged and thought I would never get better. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before I had finished the first box I knew that it was helping me. It took several boxes of the Nerve Food to make me well and I can truly say that it is a wonderful builder-up of the nervous system."

It is only wise to prevent such dreaded diseases as Nervous Prostration, Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia by keeping the nervous system in good condition at all times. When you cannot sleep well, have headaches and indigestion, be warned of approaching dangers and restore the nervous system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

This charming little sacque can be developed in a number of ways. One would be dotted lawn with allover embroidery for collar and cuffs, another French flannel with buttonhole stitch on collar and cuffs and a third cotton crepe with satin trimming bands. In other words, the design is very adaptable. The sleeve may be made full length and gathered into a wristband or elbow-sleeve length finished with a turn-back cuff. The collar is square and may be in one of the graceful regions, which dips to the back and curves in the front, in oval direction.

With ten or fifteen cent material, the sacque might cost from forty to sixty cents, and might even go under that if a bought table were taken into consideration. The ribbon trimming is not necessary. For medium size 3½ yards of 27 inch material would be required. This pattern, No. 7,106, cuts in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure.

In ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

THE GERMANS CONTINUE UNSUCCESSFUL EFFORTS TO DISLODGE THE BRITISH

Artillery Duels Reported on Meuse Heights---Situation in Italy is Becoming Intense---Deeds of Desperation.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS May 8.—Two German attacks of minor importance, one of them west of Perosne and the other at Beausejour, in Champagne, are reported by the War Office. Both attacks were repulsed, the bayonet supplementing artillery fire in the defence. Violent artillery duels on the heights of the Meuse are also reported.

The very bad weather prevented all infantry action yesterday morning. Further assaults on Hill 60 Thursday night were repulsed.

At which angle of the slope up to the crest position on Hill 60 was essayed by the Germans is not hinted at in the official despatches. As the allies hold Ypres the advance would naturally be through the wood of Zwartelen, which could afford good cover for the advance of the gas-throwing implements and as a field artillery base. Hill 60 is defended by a series of trenches encircling the height. Those from which the Germans were ejected when the hill was captured by the British were in the southern and southeastern side—direction of Hollebeke and the German retreat was to the north, along the Zillebeke road. The crest of the hill is presumably well fortified, but the gas attack cannot be withstood when the wind favours it.

As the official reports do not state that further progress has been made by the Germans in ascending the hill, it is probable that gas will not be used again, as it clings to the earth in a choking cloud from five to six feet high, and requires an exactly favourable wind for its success. In this case the struggle which continues is one of guns and rifle fire and the bayonet.

BIG GUNS DESTROYED.

A news despatch received here from Dunkirk says the battery of 15-inch German guns which bombarded Dunkirk several days ago was located by an aviator, who flew over the spot at a height of 450 feet. The airman took photographs showing the exact position of the guns, after which 2,000 shells were fired on the casemates sheltering the cannon, which are supposed to have been destroyed.

SITUATION BECOMING TENSE.

ROME, via Paris, May 8.—The situation is rapidly becoming more tense. The press considers that only a miracle now can keep Italy out of the war.

Deputy Cirment yesterday expressed the opinion that the action of the Government indicated that a rupture of negotiations with Austria was not only certain, but imminent, and the belief is expressed in diplomatic circles that the Italian Government, in view of the postponement of the date for convening Parliament, desires to confront Parliament with an accomplished fact.

King Victor Emmanuel as early as eight o'clock yesterday morning was in consultation with the Minister of War, General Zupelli, and an hour later Premier Salandra and Foreign Minister Sonnino went into consultation. Shortly afterwards the Secretary of the German Ambassador, Prince von Buelow, arrived with a letter, the nature of which has not been disclosed.

Finally a Cabinet Council was held at the Ministry of the Interior, and continued for several hours.

SAVAGERY MEANS COLLAPSE.

OTTAWA, May 8.—That the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine is only in line with the use of poisonous gas and other extreme measures resorted to ,and indicates that the German case is in the preliminary stages of collapse, was the opinion expressed by Gen. Sam Hughes last night.

The Minister of Militia was asked for his interpretation of the efforts now being made by Germany in all fronts. "I think it indicates that the Germans are in the first stages of collapse," he said.

"First come the use of poisonous gases, another resort to which goes beyond the days of savagery. Then there is the rushing to the front of the surplus men who had been training during the winter. Last comes the submarine warfare against merchant ships of which the sinking of the Lusitania as the latest sample.

"But, as the news indicates, the British are everywhere holding firm, and after a few weeks of the smashing they are getting and the heavy losses they are suffering along the western front, the Germans will lose heart. In the final analysis it is patent to any student of events that all this is only a spasmodic attempt, with the object of influencing Italy, and I should not be surprised if it were followed soon by the final collapse."

"Dastardly Outrage Deserving Condemnation of the Whole Civilized World," Says Survivor

PITIFUL SCENES

The steamer Heron and two trawlers returned to Queenstown at 6 o'clock this morning with more than 100 bodies, of whom the majority were women. All are being taken to the temporary morgue at the town hall as fast as recovered and the Admiralty has ordered that every effort be made to secure all the victims. The scenes on the quay here as the survivors arrived were pitiful in the extreme. Women wet and bedraggled, their faces lined with terror from the experience that they had been through, were clinging to men, many of whom wore only shirts and trousers. Many still had their life belts encircling their bodies. Nearly all were without shoes. Little tots clung to their parents and cried bitterly. Two little tots helped ashore an elderly lady who had been a long time in the water and who collapsed on the pier.

THOUGHT IT COULDN'T SINK

Julian Alvala, the Cuban consul at Liverpool, was most cheerful, although he was suffering from a great gash in his leg from which the blood streamed.

"I boarded three boats before I finally got away in safety," he said. "The only reason I was saved was that I remained quiet and trusted in the Lord. I prayed that I might be spared for the sake of my three children who were in a convent in Liverpool. I believe that there were many on board who made no effort to get into the boats, believing that the steamer could not sink."

Third Big Liner Lost Since the War Started

LONDON, May 8.—The Lusitania is the third big trans-Atlantic liner lost since the war started. The others were the White Star Liner Oceanic, wrecked off the north coast of Scotland, September 8 last, and the North German-Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, converted into a German auxiliary cruiser, sunk by the British cruiser Highflyer, August 27.

A fourth big steamer, the mammoth Cunarder Aquitania, was severely damaged in a collision with the [illegible] coast in the latter part of August.

The Oceanic was taken over by the British Government and made an armed cruiser upon her arrival at Southampton August 8, from New York. She ran ashore on the coast of Scotland and was a total loss. All her officers and crew were saved.

The destruction of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was announced by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons. The steamer, a vessel, of 14,000 tons, had been fitted out with ten four-inch guns. Her survivors were saved before the vessel sank. The Highflyer had one killed and five wounded.

The Aquitania collided with the Canadian, also fitted out as an auxiliary cruiser, while both were patrolling the coast of Ireland. So severe were the Aquitania's injuries that she was laid up undergoing repairs all winter. She was reported recently to be in condition for service.

He was not very sober and had ridden for an hour or two in the taxicab when the chauffeur stopped. "How much do I owe?" asked the passenger. "Eighteen shillings and sixpence, sir," was the reply. There was a pause, then: "Well, look here, driver," said the passenger, "just back up and keep going backward till you come to two shillings—it's all I've got."

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season. Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-saving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PARENTS OF LOCAL MAN ON LUSITANIA

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Copping Were Passengers on the Ill-Fated Steamer

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Copping, 72 South Drive, Toronto, and parents of Mr. Russell Copping of this city, were passengers on the Lusitania. As a list of the rescued has not yet been issued, it is not known whether they are among the saved or not.

Bloom of Youth Now Easily Attained

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and near-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed—and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth! Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolised wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret wasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half-pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say!—there's nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines.

Death is Certain

Life Insurance In a Crisis

Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.

When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.

When seven years ago the financial world was labouring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policy holders upon application.

To-day when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.

It is to-day saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment but actual failure.

LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.

HORRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE IN SINKING OF THE GREAT STEAMER

Only a Few of the First and Second Cabin Passengers Are Accounted For So Far---Sir Charles Beresford Will Ask Caustic Questions in the House of Commons.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERESFORD'S QUESTION

LONDON May 8—Lord Charles Beresford announced to-day that he will question Premier Asquith in the House of Commons on the sinking of the Lusitania. It is understood that he will ask why an escort of destroyers was not provided for the liner.

A POLITICAL CRISIS

LONDON, May 8.—Special Cable.—The sinking of the Lusitania has brought about a political crisis in England. It is already certain that the government will be swamped with pointed inquiries when Parliament reconvenes on Monday. Already Lord Charles Beresford has announced that he will interrogate Premier Asquith. There will be a volley of questions for the officials of the Government as a number of the members favour reprisals of equal violence directed against Germany. The officials are anxiously awaiting information as to what action Washington plans to take. They want to know to what extent President Wilson plans to follow up his threats in the note addressed to Germany last February. It is understood here that the Government here will exchange views with Washington during the week-end so that an understanding can be reached before Parliament re-opens on Monday.

'ASK FOR A REPORT

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The State Department today asked Berlin for a report on the Lusitania disaster. It expressed the desire that it be based on the statement of the submarine commander who made the attack, assuming that the liner was sunk by a submarine.

THE KNOWN SURVIVORS

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—The known survivors among the cabin passengers are First cabin passengers, 391; believed to be saved, 53; unaccounted for 338. Second cabin passengers, 601; believed to be saved 29; unaccounted for 572.

BERLIN IS GLOATING

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—The Berlin newspapers today proclaim in headlines of colossal type the torpedoing of the Lusitania and declare that Germany has registered a new triumph for her naval policy. The editorial comment generally declares that England received what she deserved.

LUSITANIA NOT ARMED

LONDON, May 8.—The admiralty at 1.12 this afternoon issued an official denial that the Lusitania was armed.

BODIES OF THE VICTIMS

QUEENSTOWN, May 8—The big town hall here has been placed into temporary morgue. Lines of coffins bearing bodies of victims of the Lusitania tragedy are being placed in the main room.

It is announced that all will be taken there for identification and that as fast as the names are ascertained they will be made public. It is now proposed that the funerals of the victims will be held on Sunday.

PROMINENT MEN GONE

NEW YORK, May 8.—It is now conceded here that Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Charles Frohman, Charles Klein, and other prominent United Statesers, are among the lost. It is estimated that at least 190 citizens of the United States perished.

MORE MEN WANTED FOR MOUNTED RIFLES

Chance For Few More Local Men Who Would Like to Join B Squadron---May Apply to Lieut. Rogers.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Word has been received that a few more local men will be accepted to join B Squadron Mounted Rifles, which was recruited here a little time ago, and are now in training in Ottawa. This is a very popular branch of the service, and Lieut. Rogers, who is recruiting, will have no difficulty in securing all the men he requires.

RECRUITS TO PARADE.

Col. Smart and Medical Officers of the 39th Battalion are in the city to examine the local recruits for overseas service. The recruits are asked to parade at 7.15 o'clock at the Armouries.

Local friends will be interested in learning that Ptes. Tom Jolly and Frank Richardson of the 57th Regiment detachment in the 2nd Battalion, recently reported wounded, are in hospital at Cardiff, Wales. Pte. T. Parrington is in the Cliveden Hospital. The whereabouts of the other wounded Peterborough men has not yet been ascertained, but the Examiner will publish the hospital addresses as soon as they can be obtained.

The Examiner has learned some further particulars about Pte. Chas. Jeffries of the 2nd Battalion, reported in yesterday's issue as wounded. He had been employed on the farm of Mr. George Armstrong, in Smith and had been in Canada about two years. He had not seen any previous active service as stated, but had had some training in the Territorials. His brother, Mr. George Jeffries of Indian River, was in the city to-day.

Mrs. S. Thomas, wife of Sergt. Sam Thomas, and Mrs. C. Manners, wife of Signaller C. Manners, returned yesterday from Kingston, where they saw and said good-bye to the Peterborough boys of the 21st Battalion, which left on Wednesday night for Montreal. Kingston certainly gave our boys and all the Battalion a good send-off. The ladies received many hearty hand-shakes from the boys and lots of promises of German souvenirs. There was one other Peterborough woman there, the wife of Private White. Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Manners received many messages to deliver to the wives and friends in Peterborough.

The Sewerage Disposal Site

Provincial Board of Health Will Not Insist on Present Location

That the Provincial Board of Health will not be insistent as to the present proposed location of the site for the city's sewerage disposal plant is borne out by the fact that the Board has addressed a communication to the authorities of the Township of Otonabee intimating their willingness to have the site located elsewhere providing satisfactory arrangements can be made. A similar communication has been received by the city and it is probable that at an early date the Council will meet and discuss the matter.

SATISFACTION IS GREAT OVER THE BRITISH BUDGET

Gave a Striking Picture of the Almost Insolent Ease Wherewith Britain Bears the Gigantic Burden of the War

T. P.'S WEEKLY LETTER

(Copyright, 1915, Central News, by T. P. O'Connor.)

LONDON, May 8.—Lloyd George's budget created immense satisfaction throughout the country, mainly because it gave such a striking picture of the almost insolent ease wherewith England bears the gigantic burden of the war. The announcement of the readiness of England to lend £300,000,000 to pay the expenses of the Allies suggested to everybody the analogy of the Napoleonic wars when England's big purse maintained for twenty years the European combination which finally ended with the overthrow of Napoleon.

Even the ever cautious Westminster Gazette declares that England to-day stands ready to carry on an equally long and gigantically costly war if necessary to crush German militarism.

The news from the different fronts varies daily with transient spasms of depression and exultation, but never bringing the slightest doubt of ultimate victory. It is generally interpreted that Germanys big attempts to crush her enemies on both fronts is attributable, first, to a desire to influence wavering neutrals like Italy, and for this reason the consequences of the German offensive [illegible] are always subject to a severe discount, and, second, to deliver her blows while her [illegible] comparatively unprepared [illegible] the

LOCAL PEOPLE HAD RELATIVES ON BOAT

Parents of Mr. Russell Copping of the Brinton Carpet Company Were Passengers on the Ill-Fated Lusitania.

MR. LOCKHART'S FATHER

A number of Peterborough people are vitally interested in the Lusitania disaster. Among them is Mr. Russell Copping of the Brinton Carpet Company whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Copping, of Toronto, were passengers on the ill-fated liner.

Mr. and Mrs. Copping who lived at 70 South Drive, Toronto, were on a business trip to London. Mr. Copping is the head of the firm of George E. Copping and Sons, located in the Manchester Building. They expected to be away for about six weeks. Their summer home is on Centre Island, where they have a lovely cottage on the lake front. They have two sons, both of whom are married. The eldest, Mr. Norman Copping, lives in the Upper Canada Apartments. The younger son, Mr. Russell Copping, resides here.

Another local man who is affected is Mr. R. Lockhart of the C. G. E., whose father, Mr. R. Lockhart of Toronto, was a passenger.

It is likely that J. G. Watson, accountant of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, was on the Lusitania. He was a member of the Naval Reserve and had been recalled for duty. He was to have sailed from New York on an Anchor Line steamer, but as it is stated that the latter was commandeered by the British Government and her passengers transferred to the Lusitania, it is quite likely that he was aboard the lost vessel.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews and her son, Gordon, were to have sailed on the Lusitania, but the news that Lieut. Harold Matthews had recovered, changed their plans.

Anniversary Services At St. Andrew's

The Rev. Dr. Clark, of Westmount, Will Be Special Preacher

The founding of St. Andrew's church in the year 1854, will be suitably observed at the services to-morrow. The special preacher for the day will be Rev. W. J. Clark, D.D., of St. Andrew's church, Westmount. Rev. Dr. Clark is admittedly one of the outstanding preachers of the Presbyterian church in Canada. His messages are like himself, strong and winsome. Dr. Clark is a man of rare personal charm and has been a commanding figure in the General Assembly for several years. He is convener of the committee on Church Union of the General Assembly, having succeeded to that position after the death of Principal Patrick. There will no doubt be many who will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Dr. Clark on the occasion of his first visit to Peterborough.

The choir, under the leadership of of Mr. Herbert G. Treasur, will render special music.

Mr. Treasur's numbers on the organ will be: At the morning service, Mendelssohn's "Sonata, Op. [illegible]," Guilmant Scene and Finale, Op. [illegible]; and in the evening, 'In the Twilight Lange'; Offertory in E flat, Bohlsie, and Fanfare, Goulo.

Miss Helen McLaren's morning solo will be "Hark, Hark My Soul," Newton, and in the evening Miss McLaren and Mrs. Rotsten, nee Howell, will sing "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," Lasclaser.

The anthems will be, morning, "I Am Alpha and Omega," Steiner, and evening, Stan, Rodney, and Mr. Treasur will sing "Army, Arm Ye Brave," Handel, at the evening service.

FIRST CASUALTY IN LOCAL ARTILLERY

Sergt. Geo. W. Allen, Chamberlain Street, Who Left With the 39th Field Battery Detachment is Officially Reported Wounded.

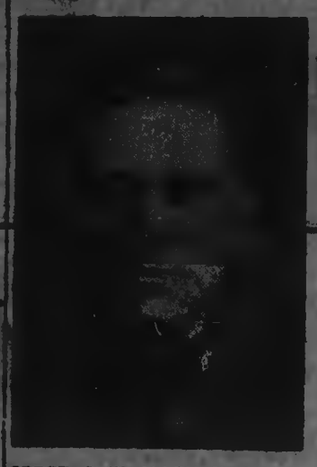
SERGT. NICHOLLS ON LIST



SERGT. G. W. ALLEN, 535 Chamberlain Street, the first of the local artillerymen to appear in the casualty list. His wife received a wire from Ottawa this morning that he had been wounded.

The first casualty recorded among the 39th Field Battery detachment in the First Contingent, was received today when news arrived of the wounding of Sergt. Geo. W. Allen. To-day's list also contains the name of a well-known non-commissioned officer of the 57th Regiment, in the person of Sergt. Ernie Nicholls.

Sergt. Geo. W. Allen.

At 535 Chamberlain street the wife of Sergt. Geo. W. Allen, with her three small children, are anxiously waiting further particulars about the wounding of the husband and father, who was this morning officially reported wounded. Mrs. Allen received a telegram from the Adjutant General's Department at Ottawa to the effect that her husband had been wounded, but there were no particulars.

Sergeant Allen enlisted with the 39th Field Battery at the outbreak of the war, and was attached to [illegible] Battery, Third Brigade. He was a South African Veteran, but has not been connected with any military organization in this city up to the time of his enlistment with the First Contingent. He was born in England, and is a carpenter by trade.

The last letter Mrs. Allen received from her husband was dated April 18. At the time of writing he was resting up and was expecting to go back to the firing line in a few days. The soldiers were not allowed to go into the villages or towns about as so many Germans had been caught masquerading in uniforms of the Allies. Sergt. Allen was one of the best known members of the Choral Society.

Sergt. Ernie Nicholls.

Sergt. Ernest Nicholls, who is officially reported wounded, was one of the best known non-coms. of the 57th Regiment. He was a sergeant of No. 3 Company of the 57th, and was a tower of strength. He had formerly been in the Royal Marines. Lieut. Tomlins, of No. 3 Company informed The Examiner to-day, that Sergt. Nicholls was a splendid soldier and had been of the greatest assistance during the 57th's stay at Petawawa Camp last June. He boarded at 188 Reid St., from which boarding house went Pte. Geo. Brunton, Frank Dudley, and Frank Richardson, previously reported wounded, and Sergt. F. Stevens. Nicholls' relatives are in England.

ANOTHER CASUALTY.

Pte. Leslie Ryan is reported as being wounded. He was a member of the First Canadian contingent. For some time Pte. Ryan lived in Peterborough, subsequently removing to Midland and thence to Detroit.

The Examiner's new serial story will be commenced on Wednesday next. "Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle" is the title and it will be found a little different from the serials that have been running lately, although not behind them in merit. Written by Robert Alexander Watson it is a novel, breezy story of the American west, and there is not a dull moment anywhere. Readers of good fiction should not miss this remarkable story. It begins in Wednesday's issue.

THE LUSITANIA.

"Horrors on horror's head accumulate." The wanton sinking of the steamship Lusitania, with its precious cargo of human lives, most of whom are lost, is so far the crowning feat of German "frightfulness." It puts Germany out of the question of consideration as a civilized country. It was a deliberate act of wholesale murder—sheer obedience to the beast instinct of destruction. It served no military purpose. There is no doubt that the German Admiralty had given orders for the destruction of the Lusitania. The German Embassy in New York, knowing these orders, published warnings against taking passage on the doomed steamship, knowing that its destruction would be attempted. By this act of wanton destruction, Germany has completed the condition of arraying the whole world of civilization against her. Germany has entirely seceded from the roster of civilization. She has cast aside all consideration of the conventions of civilized warfare. Germany has made some attempt to justify her submarine destruction—it is aimed at shutting out food supplies—to starve Britain in reprisal for the blockade that prevents food supplies and munitions of war reaching Germany. The destruction of the great steamer had no justification—it was sheer wanton wilful murder—war on defenceless men, women and children. The Lusitania carried no food supplies. Germany has prostituted civilization by turning the science of civilization to the destructive work of barbarism. The sinking of the Lusitania will not daunt Britain nor British dominions. It will only inflame the determination to put forth every effort to crush a monster, as merciless as Moloch, with immense capacity for destruction; and on that account to be more relentlessly combatted. The United States is most deeply concerned in the latest act of satanic destruction. Most of the lives lost were of citizens of the United States. Uncle Sam went to war with Spain to the slogan "Remember the Maine." The slogan now made for itself is "Remember the Lusitania," whose sinking constitutes an infinitely greater insult, an infinitely more cruel attack, than the sinking of the Maine. What will the United States do? Sit down meekly under the outrage? Germany has tested the patience of the United States with many minor outrages against the dignity and interests of this country. Will the crowning outrage rouse the sleeping lion—will it break the spell of pusillanimous submission to German insult and outrage?

THE COST OF BAD ROADS.

In the welter of this horrible war, in the midst of wholesale piratical murder on the high seas, we must [illegible] all life. We are fighting for a higher civilization; and the [illegible] of the advance of civilization in a community is the condition of its roads—its streets and [illegible] on this battle line, good roads [illegible] to favour the successful prosecution of [illegible] Ontario, good roads [illegible] a bar to progress.

The cost of good roads is an important question; but a still more important one is the cost of bad roads—"what do bad roads cost?"

It is pointed out that one of the causes of young men leaving the farm is bad roads; bad roads in the country impede social intercourse and enforce the deadly isolation of farm families, which is one of the most dreadful features of farm life.

Bad roads also reduce the profits of the farm. The added cost of transportation of farm produce decreases the profits. A comparison by a competent authority of the weight of load one horse can draw on good and bad roads is interesting. It varies from nothing to 800 pounds on very bad roads; on a smooth dry earth road, 1,000 to 2,000 pounds; on a gravel road in bad condition, from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds; on a gravel road in good condition, 3,000 pounds; on a macadam road, from 2,000 to 4,000 pounds; on a brick or concrete road, 5,000 to 8,000 pounds.

From these figures it follows that the cost of hauling increases or lessens with the good or bad state of the roads of a country. In 1906 the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture, analysed nearly 3,000 county reports, and deduced the fact that the cost of haulage of a ton of farm produce per mile over bad or good roads varies from 66.75 cents on very bad roads, to 9.88 cents on perfect roads. Thus is seen the immenses loss the farmer suffers, from the existence of bad roads, a loss ten times greater than the increased taxes he would pay for the construction of good roads.

The same applies to city streets. The loss that the users of wheeled vehicles suffer from bad streets in the way of wear and tear of horse flesh and vehicles is incalculable. The life of an automobile is greatly shortened by bad bumpy streets and high shouldered crossings. This shortened life of vehicles of all kinds, costs money; and it is safe to say it costs much more than the money that would be required to pay the taxes to meet the interest on the cost of good streets, no matter how great, within reason, it should be.

It is no matter of dispute that users of vehicles including autos, would save money and avoid loss by having good streets. The loss they suffer in deterioration of horse flesh and vehicles, not to speak of loss of time, discomfort, rasping of temper, etc., is many times greater than the taxes they would have to pay to insure general good repair.

Drivers of autos say that if they want to enjoy a drive they have to get off the city streets and upon the country roads, which, though they are far from being up to a high standard, are far better than the city streets.

These conditions should not exist. We do not take the best of care of our streets; do not keep them level and free from holes, as could easily be done. At the city improvement "love-feast" in the Oriental hotel, a year or two ago, there was a great programme of feasible measures for improving the city, thrashed out; there was great enthusiasm, that unfortunately evaporated as rapidly as ether. At that meeting Mayor Buller gained great applause by declaring that he would employ dump-carts and horses, and men, to go over the streets and fill holes, and keep the streets in smooth condition in the interests of comfortable traffic. The scheme has not materialised; and it is not particularly Mayor Buller's fault; he was caught in the reverse current of the enthusiasm and good resolutions that come to nothing.

We could have better streets, even with their imperfections of construction, by the expenditure of very little money, associated with a little care and system. It would cost little to get Mayor Buller's dump carts busy making the streets level; then with the road grader judiciously used, and the steam roller got out of the garage, a tremendous improvement would be effected at moderate cost, and the community would get the benefit.

From generation to generation we have neglected our streets. We have spent a good deal of money from year to year, but not wisely. We have gone on the principle of a man who would begin construction of a building at the roof. We have patched the surface of our streets without providing proper foundations—good grading and surface drainage are the synonyms of foundations for streets.

Our surface drainage is sadly neglected. After last night's rain a short stroll on the streets revealed continuous stretches of water blocking the gutters. On Homewood avenue east, from Monaghan road to Belmont avenue, there was an almost continuous pool of water in some places, encroaching five or six feet upon the street. At the curve of the road at the junction of Belmont avenue, there was a good [illegible] water to the curb where an inlet would [illegible] in water, and just south there was an immense pool of water. This water can only get away by absorption by the street, making the surface spongy and facilitating the cutting up of the street by wheels. The conformation of the streets makes drainage easy; but obstructions of leaves, rubbish, and choked culverts, form effective dams.

All this deterioration of our streets could be prevented by expenditure of very little money. But the blight of lack of system and organization the city has suffered for years, still rests upon us. It is gratuitous waste of time to find fault, without suggesting a remedy; and the remedy in most of these matters is easy—reducing street work to a system, and the general doing of little things, to keep our streets smooth and easy to use, which would make things smooth for everybody, including our civic representatives. Keeping even the imperfectly built streets in repair, would not only be an easy thing, but an immense improvement.

Interesting Details of the Needs and Progress of the Red Cross Work

TORONTO, May 8.—The following interesting letter has been received by Mrs. Plumptre, Secretary of the National Service Committee, from Mrs. McLaren Brown, hon. secretary of the Ladies' Committee of the Y. W. C. A. The people of Canada, who have taken a great interest in the work of the association throughout the Dominion, will read this letter with interest.

The letter, which is dated London, April 21, is as follows: "We have today finished the week's work of unpacking about eighty cases received from Canada, most of which have come through your Halifax Office.

"Colonel Ryerson has paid several visits to the Ladies' Committee of the Association, and is, I think, quite satisfied that we at our end are doing our best to finish worthily the work which is begun and carried through at your end.

"As you know, the British War Office has now requested that only socks and handkerchiefs be forwarded to the troops at the front. The warm weather coming on and the prospect of the terrible trench life coming to an end makes it unnecessary to supply supplementary garments in such quantities. But socks and handkerchiefs we still need and shall continue to need week by week so long as the war lasts. All over the United Kingdom the various societies for sending comforts to the front are busily engaged in ripping up woollen garments so that the wool obtained can be converted into socks.

"It sounds rather terrible that the result of so much time and labour should be thus ruthlessly pulled to pieces, but wool is scarce and dear. Body belts, scarves and helmets will not be needed for many months to come and socks are needed every hour of the day. So we have fallen into line and interested our friends in knitting for the Canadians and most generous has been the response to our call for voluntary workers.

"Every country in the competition [illegible] are busily engaged in winding wool. Then the balls are brought back here, sorted and arranged according to weight and colour, then weighed out into 5 and 10 pound lots. These we send all over the country. It is perfectly astonishing what we go through. Of course we have not depleted our stores entirely, and the last two weeks the ladies' committee have been tremendously busy repacking for summer storage, in addition to unpacking as the goods come in.

"We keep a large emergency supply in our store room here. The garments for storage are numbered and packed in layers of tar paper and carbon, and sent off to our various warehouses until such time as the cold days come again. In the cases we have unpacked during the last ten days we have found a number of individual names written on cards attached to the various garments. These cards, we, of course, leave pinned on, and no doubt the recipient is doubly pleased to get a little personal message attached.

"This last consignment, I am thankful to say, largely of socks, comes from many places. The following seem to be the principal ones: Mrs. Langeuil, Merritt, B.C.; Lucy Smith chapter, Sackkville, N.B.; Mrs. Kay, Nicola Valley, B.C.; Municipal chapter, I.O.D.E., Montreal; Mrs. Barrett The Manse, Langdon; Port Elgin, N. B.; Mrs. Green, Greenwood; Kenora, Canada;; Women's Institutes of Ontario, and others.

"I am writing to the individual chapters of the Daughters of the Empire wherever the name and address is given, but I should be very glad if you think it worth while if you would let your splendid band of workers which extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific know how very grateful the Canadian War Coningen Association is for all ha they have done and are doing.

"Col. Ryerson said it delighted him more than he could say to see how swiftly and carefully the things that Canadian Patriotic Leagues sent to us were needed on the last stage of their journey to the men who needed them whether at the front, at the base, in camp or in hospital.

"I do not know whether I told you that the Queen's Canadian Military hospital is putting on two additional wards with 100 extra beds. We are also installing a new surgical bed and so man Canadian friends have sent us $25 to name and equip one of these beds that we will be able to put them in all over the hospital. Unforunately, they are rather longer than the ordinary hospital and call for 116 in. sheets.

These are of course six inches longer than the ordinary hospital sheet and have to be made. The Scottish branch of the Red Cross Society has been like a guardian angel to us and when they heard of the addition to our hospital had 100 of these sheets, and quilts to match, made to our order and sent them off to us with a splendid donation of other hospital supplies as well.

"In our hospital, as in all others, we find that towels have to be got in literally by the cartload, and, of course the laundry work and strenuous washing. However, we are doing splendidly and already Canadians at the front are trying to get the wounded who come back put under our care.

"The hospital is in a beautiful spot and on the warm sunny days which come to the south coast about this time we are able to carry all but the very sick patients down on stretchers and put them on the lawn, where they can enjoy the sea breeze and the bright sunshine.

"I am directed by my committee to thank you most gratefully for your wonderful kindness on behalf of all the Canadians on this side of the Atlantic and to thank you specially for all that you have done for the Canadian War Contingent Association.

"I wish you could see our rooms, downstairs. It is quite a sight to watch the baling of the things for the front and the counting and sorting of things for the hospital, things for emergency. Sometimes we get as many as 27 cases done in a morning, and some of us work in the afternoons, too. Of course it is a bit of a strain to put in more than three or four hours at a stretch."

The Bombardment of Dunkirk.
With High-powered Guns

The distance from Westende, the extreme western point of the German lines, to Dunkirk, is sixteen and a half statute miles. This distance, ordinance men say, is readily covered to-day in ranges attainable by 13-8-inch guns and, for that matter, by 12-inch high powered guns, says a writer in the New York Herald. Westende is in railway connection with Antwerp, Brussels, Liege and, Essen, and 13.8-inch and 12-inch guns can be transported directly from the Krupp works to the coast by recourse to special types of heavy gun carrying railway cars.

It is not believed the Germans have placed any heavy guns very close to the shore line, since the navigation charts show that six and a half fathoms of water can be carried to within seven miles of Westende, and light draught craft can approach even closer. A depth of six and a half fathams is ample water for the heaviest ship afloat. The German line as it swings southward from Nieuport slightly increases the range from Dunkirk, but in no circumstances should the distance exceed seventeen miles.

Mile to Inch of Calibre.

It has long been a rule of thumb in ordnance work that modern rifles possess a range of one mile for every inch if calibre diameter of bore. This would mean a range of 13.8 inch gun it should not be difficult 12 miles from a 12-inch gun. As a matter of fact, the rule underestimates the extreme range possible with the latest weapons, and for a 12.5-inch gun i should not be difficult, it is declared to attain a range of 18 miles. This assumes the mounting of the gun will admit of extreme angles of elevation for fire — something which is not always possible with the standard forms of mounts on board ships and in fortress emplacements. Where extreme ranges have been striven for on the proving ground recourse has been had in some instances to special skid carriages.

As early as 1909 a Krupp 9.45-inch [illegible] degrees, attained an actual range of 23,120 yards, or more than twelve miles. The projectile in its flight attained a maximum elevation of 6,840 metres and occupied 70.2 seconds in making the flight.

Could Be Easily Managed.

The British fired a long-range shot at Meppen some time later and attained practically the same range with a similar calibre gun. The experiments in both cases were carried out to prove the correctness of the plotting of the artillery calculations. Ordnance men say that so long as the Germans knew the exact distance to be carried they could figure out with mathematical correctness before any gun was mounted whether the range could be attained, and, secondly, just where the shells could be dropped. It is not believed the distance of fifteen to seventeen miles has been covered by the 17-inch siege guns of the type used at Liege, Namur, and Antwerp, but rather by long calibred guns of the navy type such as Krupp has been building during the last two years for the newer vessels of the German fleet.

It is said that at long range firing the shells must ascend to a very great elevation and that the downward rush of the projectile at the end of the flight gives it a tremendous power of penetration, which causes the shell to enter deep into the ground, and that the succeeding explosion has all the effect of a huge mine. This is the reason for huge craters where the shells have burst.

Military men say that in the United States the long range work of one of the naval guns of the Union fleet at Charleston marked the modern use of heavy artillery against towns and cities. The Union gun was worked far out into the marshes, and mounted on an improvised foundation. The range demanded of it was approximately five miles. This range was obtained, but after a few shots the gun burst.

Fuses Well Timed.

The modern long-range gun projectile is armed with a steel cap, which enables it to penetrate masonry as effectually as armour plate, and the delayed action fuses in use are as a rule so mechanically correct in functioning that it is possible to delay the burst of the mine charge in the shell until there has been a sufficient [illegible] point of original impact. As against earthworks or masonry foundations, this delayed action of the fuse enables the shell to bury itself sufficiently deep in the ground to insure a good tamp, and this tamp is essential, as all miners know, to insure the full disrupting power of the burst being felt.

Washing Cars Is Declared To Be An Art

Some Pointers on Manner to Keep Fine Body Lustre

The maintaining of the original gloss on the automobile is regarded as most important, and that the best way to accomplish this is by means of pails of water and sponge.

It is said that there is a growing sentiment in favour of this means of cleaning cars. It is held that car finish represents an investment on the part of the owner of no small value. When it is understood that anywhere from fifteen to twenty-five applications of expensive material are required to complete the finish on a first-class car with the involved labour being paid for at a high rate, the finish is more appreciated.

That the dealer believes that much depends upon the proper way in which a car is cleaned as apparent from the following general statement which he has prepared as best explaining the way to get results from car-washing:

"After concluding the first or preliminary washing of the surface a new sponge and a new pail should be taken and the surface again washed with a fresh supply of clean water. A soft wash brush, oval in form, and chisel pointed, should be used to tool around surface ornaments, mouldings, panel corners, and other attached body fixtures. Such places cannot be effectively reached with the sponge.

"Use the same care and precautions in washing the chassis, and under no circumstances employ for the chassis the tool used in washing the car body, and vice versa. In this way avoid transferring grease, and oily stains from one part of the car to another.

"To attempt to wipe the car perfectly dry in all parts will result in injury to the lustre of the finish. An erosive effect in washing the car must at all times be avoided.

"Mud in its various forms in drying on a body of varnish takes up the oil from the varnish, and in so doing destroys the lustre. Road dirt or dust picked up on highways largely given over to horse travel is often strongly saturated with ammonia, and all such accumulations are especially destructive to the finish. Such road refuse, if left to dry upon the finish, not only spots the varnish, but fractures its film, and causes it to decay and crumble away.

"Mud and dirt from roads traversing lime districts are likewise highly destructive to both the lustre and the fabric of varnish, the latter disintegrating under the effects of the lime. Some varnishes will spot under the effect of soapy or dirty water, the alkali and capillary mediums contained in these waters going at once at the lustre of the varnish.

"Provided the car has been put away for the night unwashed, and the mud and other road refuse allowed to dry on, it will harm the varnish to apply water, and attempt to remove these dry, crusty accumulations at once. All such surfaces should have plenty of fresh, clean water run down in an easy volume over the finish. Continue this practice until the dirt-encrusted surface is thoroughly soaked up. Then let the work stand for 15 or 20 minutes, for the water to no act on the body of dirt and mud that under a fresh flow of water it will freely run away without injury to the finish.

"In many of the leading garages use of the hose is strictly prohibited. In establishments where the hose is tolerated it is usually provided with a rose, which serves to break up the power of the stream. In this country the indiscriminate use of the hose often, unfortunately, entrusted to the hands of persons with little knowledge concerning the washing of the car, and less appreciation of its importance, is responsible for the early decay and lack of durability of the finish."

"WHAT'S the idea, George?" inquired Mr. Washington. "Why do you chop down this cherry tree? Have you anything against cherry trees?"

"No, sir."

"May be you are in favor of deforestation?"

"No, sir."

"Doing this for a moving picture concern?"

"By no means."

"Then why chop down a tree?"

"I just thought [illegible] the stump," replied [illegible] his sanctum. "[illegible] resistance [illegible]

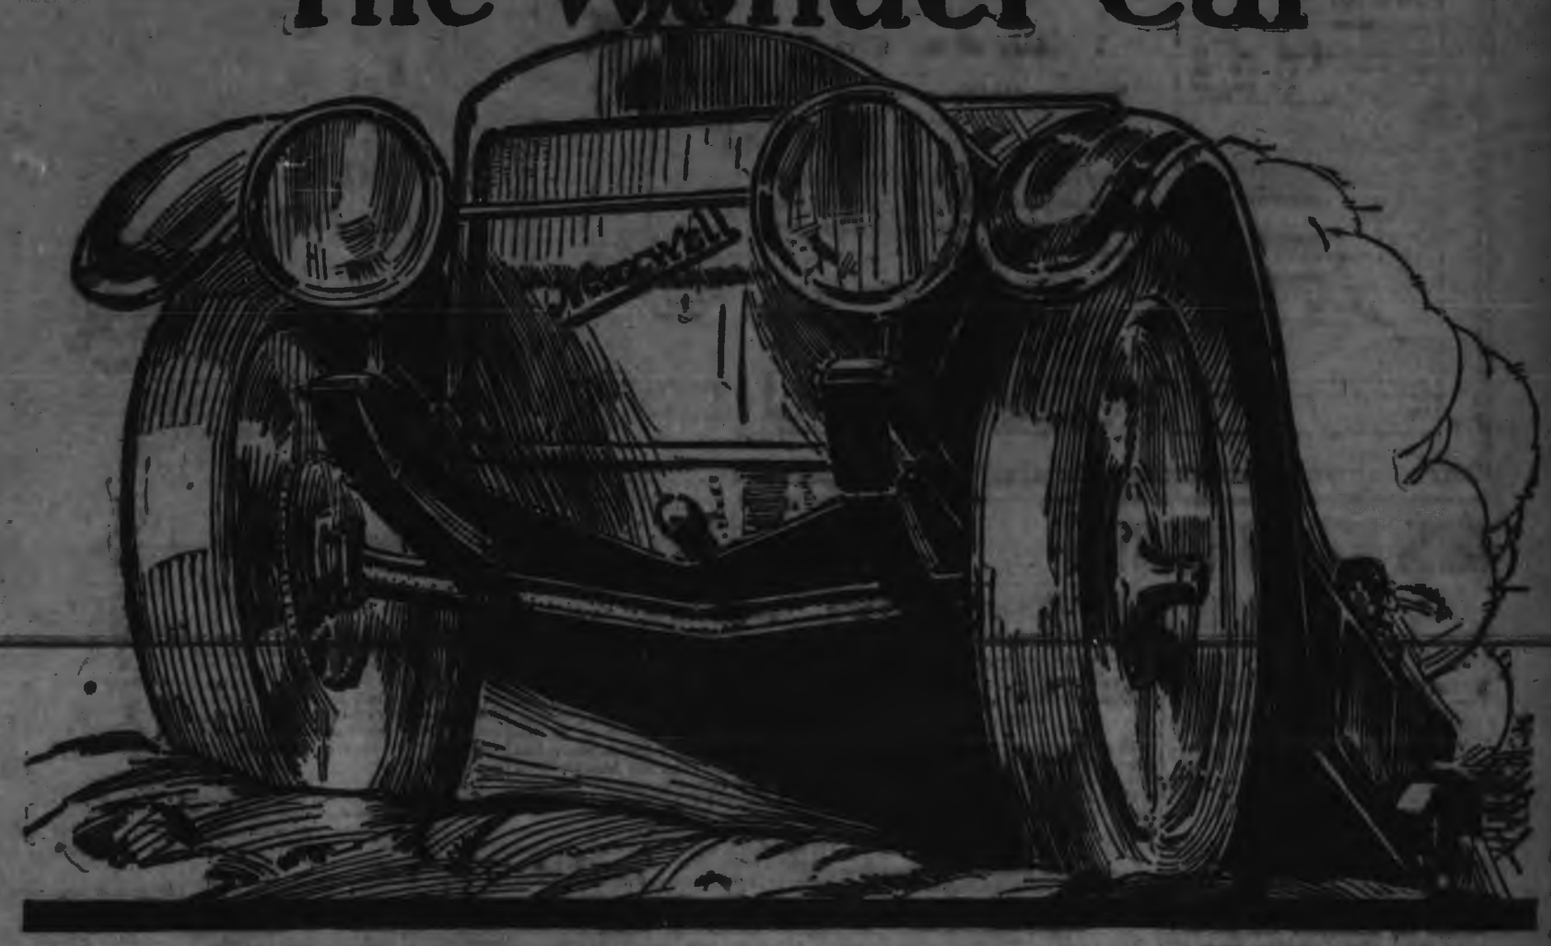
Maxwell
"The Wonder Car"



Only a Blindfolded man would buy an automobile today without looking the Maxwell over

There's no excuse today for any man who is "jollied" into buying a car before he looks over the 1915 Maxwell.

We give you the two vital things in this Maxwell Car and then the 17 new features that have made the 1915 Maxwell the most talked-about car ever produced.

Here are the two vital things that any same man wants when he buys an automobile

In the first place
—a handsome, real automobile that he can be proud to ride in.

In the second place
—a powerful, fast, economical automobile that will take him anywhere and bring him back.

We give you these two vital things, and then just about every other detail of refinement, comfort and endurance that you can think of.

Take power and hill-climbing ability, for example—when you buy a 1915 Maxwell you buy an exact duplicate of the stock Maxwell cars in which "Wild Bill" Turner and "Billy" Carlson broke two World's Records in two of the toughest, roughest mountain hill-climbs ever made—Mt. Hamilton and Mt. Wilson.

Take speed and endurance, for example—when you buy a Maxwell you buy a car made by the same designers—the same chief engineer—from the same Maxwell Laboratory, heat-treated, tested steel, that was used in the Maxwell Racers in which Barney Oldfield and "Billy" Carlson both broke the 300-mile non-stop race records in Corona and San Diego.

Read This List of Expensive Features. The 1915 Maxwell Has These Features And Many Others.

Attractive Streamline Body
Graceful streamline body; graceful crown fenders; all rivets concealed. All the latest style [illegible] that you will find in any of the highest priced cars.

A High-Tension Magneto
Nearly all the high priced cars have high tension ignition. A high tension magneto gives positive ignition. The Simms magneto, with which the Maxwell is equipped, is recognized as one of the best magnetos built.

Left Side Drive—Central Control
Left side steer with gear shifting lever in center of driving compartment—centre control—has been approved by leading members of expensive automobiles as the safest and most comfortable for the driver; that is why the Maxwell has it. The Maxwell is so easy to drive and control that a child can handle it.

Three-Speed Sliding Gear Transmission
All high priced cars have a sliding gear transmission. It is easily to make, but it is the best. If the motor has the power, sliding gears will pull the car out of any mud or sand. The Maxwell uses a three-speed selective sliding gear transmission because Maxwell engineers do not consider any other type to be worthy of the Maxwell car.

Double-Shell Radiator with Shock Absorbing Device
The Maxwell radiator is of handsome design, gracefully curved, and it is built to be trouble proof. It is the expensive double shell type and has ample cooling capacity. The radiator is mounted to the frame by means of a shock absorbing device on each side, which relieves the radiator of all twists and distortions of the frame, caused by roughness of the road. The shock absorbing device also minimizes the possibility of radiator leaks.

The Roomy Full-5-Passenger Body Adjustable Front Seat
The 1915 Maxwell has a full grown 5-passenger body. The front seat is adjustable, you can move it three inches forward or backward. This makes the car really comfortable for the driver. No cramped legs for tall people or uncomfortable reaching for short people. Most drivers' seats are made to fit anyone—so it no one.

Low "Up-Keep" Carburetor
The carburetor used on the Maxwell was especially designed for it other cars and never tested under every conceivable condition. Reports from [illegible] by hundreds of dealers and owners in different sections of the country have proved its efficiency, its quick response to throttle and its extremely low consumption of gasoline. It has been termed the "low up-keep" carburetor.

Irreversible Steering Gear

Decided To Remain in City

Mr. John Allan Will Not Accept Western Offer

At the St. Paul's choir practice last night Mr. John Allan told the decision he had come to regarding going west. When he announced his intention of remaining in Peterborough, his announcement was received with loud applause.

Mr. Allan said the great interest shown by the entire choir and the splendid loyalty and support they had always without end, given him had not a little to do in enabling him to make up his mind to stay, and he desired to express his warm appreciation of it.

Mr. Allen also wishes to thank all those who either by letter, 'phone or verabally expressed their hope that he would remain in Peterborough.

The City Will Advertise For Tenders

List of Streets That May Be Paved This Year—A Minimum of 30,000 Yards

A special meeting of the City Council was held last evening to consider the advisability of continuing street paving operations. Messrs. Driscoll and Davis of Foley and Gleason paving contractors were present, and declared their intention of giving the best possible price and workmanship should the city decide to undertake additional paving. In the paving constructed to date the best materials procurable have been used and the result is claimed to be equal to anything that can be found elsewhere. Any paving that proved defective would be replaced without cost to the city, in accordance with the five-year guarantee.

Suit To Recover Sick Benefits

Mr. Wm. Kemp is Endeavouring to Collect $36.00 From C.O.F. --Judgment Reserved

The Division Court case yesterday afternoon, before His Honour Judge Huycke, in which Mr. Wm. Kemp, a member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, was suing the Foresters for sick benefits, to the amount of $36, followed by a large number of people, who are interested in the outcome, as it is understood that this case is merely in the nature of a test case, and will decide what notice of sickness has to be given the Court in future. Judgment was reserved by His Honour Judge Huycke, while he goes more thoroughly into the reading of the Constitution and By-laws governing the order.

According to the evidence, Mr. Kemp, who has been a member of the C. O. F. for a number of years, was suffering from an ulcerated stomach. He made periodical trips to his place of business and if help was needed for a few minutes to serve customers, while he was there he would probably assist his clerks. He was also a baseball fan and often went to the games, as he said, to take his mind off his business. He was being treated by Dr. Morgan, but always went to the office of the physician for his medicine. Dr. Morgan considered him a very sick man as far as a medical diagnosis went.

There was evidence for the defence contradictory to that of the witness for the plaintiff.

The Constitution read something to the effect that a member who became ill or injured and wished to be placed under the protection of the Lodge for Sick Benefits must notify one of three officers mentioned or a member of the Sick Committee, or if outside the locality of the Court in which he belongs, he must notify an officer of the nearest Court, also state the nature of his illness or injury.

His Honour Judge Huycke found that two defences were put in, namely "That Mr. Kemp was not ill and following his usual occupation, and no notice of illness had been given, according to the Constitution and the by-laws."

As to the first he believed he must find in favour of the plaintiff, according to the evidence of the physician and other witnesses. He wished to go further into the reading of the by-laws and reserved judgment.

In summing up the case His Honour remarked that the term 'Brother' had been used very frequently in Court during the hearing. He thought the feeling exhibited in the case was most 'unbrotherly.'

Mr. W. A. Hollingdrake of Brantford, represented the Canadian Order of Foresters, while Mr. Jos. Wearing, of Messrs. Wood and Wearing, conducted the case for the plaintiff.

Scout News

After covering up the hole Wallace started to explore the place, but was called back by Joe. "I say Wallace," he said, "we had not better explore this place without a torch." Joe went out into the open and came back in five minutes with a couple of pine knots in his hand.

He lit their torches and then covered up the hole again. They explored the Hole, going toward the river. They found several avenues leading from the cave. They took one lane, but were soon driven back by a swarm of large bats. They tried another avenue, but had the same luck. They tried the third and found it to lead far down in the earth. It was almost pure rock. They followed this and found an old flint-lock, a box of rags, and a flint box. They ascended again with nothing disturbed in their wake.

When they returned to camp they told their experiences to Harold, who gazing at Joe, could hardly believe their story. "Well," he said, "we can use it as a private place of meeting, like the pirates used to do." So it was decided to use this place as their home. Joe and Harold lit big fires in the place, while Wallace brought their provisions. They used the main cave as the kitchen, and they used one of the avenues for their storehouse. They used the hole in the top as a chimney. They did not sleep in the cave that night, because it was so damp. Before going to bed they each got a torch to explore more carefully the interior. They found nothing more, as they rolled up in their blankets before the great camp-fire once more. Before Wallace went to sleep he brought the canoe up the bank for safety, though likely enough he suspected no danger lurking about.

According to a German rubber expert the best way to preserve tire tubes is to partly inflate them and hang them in a darkened room in which there is a dish of unslacked lime and one of ammonia.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION HELD MEETING

Reports of Year's Work Shows Progress—Address by Member of Dominion Council, From Toronto Was Enjoyed.

In spite of the inclement weather the annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association last evening was a decided success, and though the attendance was not very large, those who were there made up for that part by their enthusiasm. The reports of the different departments as read showed a very progressive year, and the address of Mrs. Franklin Johnson, from Toronto, a member of the Dominion Council of Women was much appreciated.

Miss Dickson, President of the Board of Trustees, occupied the chair. She called upon Rev. J. P. Wilson, who was present for the scriptural reading and prayer. Rev. Mr. Wilson said he would not take much of the time of the meeting with a speech, as he knew those present were all waiting for the address of Mrs. Johnson.

Miss Dickson in her address remarked that there had been a sustained and largely increased enthusiasm in the Association during the last year. The work was assumed more as a sub-work to the churches. The Association hoped to install a swimming pool during the year, but owing to the financial depression it was felt that a public appeal would not be quite in order, and this could not be done very well any other way. The time was not ripe for a public appeal, but one will be made in the near future.

As to the Boarding Home a public appeal was not necessary. It was self-supporting. Several people did not know this, and she was glad to be able to state it.

The President attributed much of the success of the past year to the Secretary, Miss Peacock, and to her faithful and competent assistant, Miss Best, who has been there since October last.

She was pleased that several girls' organizations had used the building for holding their meetings, and hoped that more would make use of it.

The treasurer's report, by Miss Morrow, showed a deficit for the year of $100.72.

Report from Secretary.

The report of the Secretary, Miss Peacock, in part, was as follows:

"It is not easy to give a report of a work that stands for the building of character, and has for its aim, the presenting of Jesus Christ to young women for much of that which is most interesting cannot be written. A report may be given in five minutes, it is only the written symbol of 365 days of work and much prayer.

It is indeed gratifying to know that the year now closed has been one well spent, not that we are in any degree satisfied with the progress made on the work accomplished, but we are gratified that we have not lost ground, but have made a decided advancement.

To call you of the different departments one has flowing glimpses into a year crowded with thought and effort.

Religious.

Recognizing that the spiritual needs of the young women of to-day, have never been exceeded, the Religious Department is one of vital importance in association work. A vesper service has been arranged for each Sunday afternoon, after which the girls have been asked to remain for tea.

There has been one Bible Study class, taking the book, "The Will of God."

Education.

During the winter Mr. Morris, of the Collegiate Institute, took the leadership of a class studying Browning's Poems. The evenings spent were a very treat to all those who attended.

Junior Association.

Thursday last night the Juniors in First Aid and Home Nursing conducted an At Home.

The first examinations for First Aid and received diplomas, and eight took examinations on Home Nursing.

Library.

There are at present 864 books in our library—488 books have been in circulation during the year. The "Library Tea" given by the Girls' Auxiliary added about one hundred books.

Gymnasium.

There have been three gymnasium classes with an enrolment of 87. About 100 were present at the closing.

Employment Bureau.

During the year there have been 185 applicants for work, and 122 ladies have applied for maids.

Membership.

The membership of the Association has not increased as we would wish during the year. We have had 117 none-renewals and removals with 108 new members added, the total paid up membership being 229.

Junior Work.

The work in the Junior Department has been a decided success. The work has been well organized and well carried out, under the excellent management of Mrs. Middleton and her staff of workers from the Girls' Auxiliary, and volunteer workers.

Children to the number of 287 have been enrolled with an aggregate of 1,488. One cent each Saturday was given by the children, which amounted to $13.80.

A number of organizations and clubs have made use of the rooms during the year, The Red Cross, Kitchener Red Cross Auxiliary, Business Girls' Club, and a number of others.

Social Work.

A number of small socials have been held among the clubs and classes during the year.

Girls' Auxiliary.

The Girls' Auxiliary, which has held eight regular meetings during the past year, has a membership of 45. The chief work undertaken is the Saturday afternoon classes for children.

Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson was glad to be present, bringing the greetings of the Dominion Council of the Young Women's Christian Association, as fostering the different branches of the Association in Canada. The Council was not so very close to the different branches, but she was pleased to learn, from the reports as read, that the Peterborough branch was doing good work.

At this time the question was often asked, "What is the keynote of this age?" It would be probably most commonly answered that the keynote was the "spirit of Destruction." She believed the great keynote was just the opposite, namely, "Conservation." The spirit of the old age was perhaps, "Oh, let it go," but now it was very different. We had to keep things that we have—preserve them. Even to the babies. It had been said that the women of to-day were the mothers of to-morrow. The babies used to just grow, but now they were "brought up." The milk had to be boiled for them, in fact everything had to be boiled but the babies. The speaker was pleased to know that the city was to have a Supervised Playground this summer. Children needed play, and when they were under supervision at the same time their parents could rest assured that they were all right. When the girls got older and away from the Supervised Playgrounds they could be taken into the Young Women's Christian Association.

Conserve the Girls.

Like a good government, conserving the forests and waterways, the lives of the young girls must be conserved. When the girl got older and went out into the world she wanted a home, and the Y.W.C.A. could provide that. It was quite natural and proper that young men and young women should wish to be together, and in the association this would also be another purpose accomplished.

Many very true forms of amusing girls, those who could not afford this kind and those who did not. There were some who endeavoured to help their fellow-members, and some who sat back and did not take any interest in anyone around them.

The World's Y. W. C. A.

There was no plan better than the Y. W. C. A. for the girls to keep in touch with things mentally, morally and physically. How lonesome a girl was who came into the city with nowhere to go. The large house in connection with the Y. W. C. A. in this city provided a place for so many, but she wanted to take her hearers to a wider place than the little sphere here to the "World's Y. W. C. A." Last year on June 10, at Stockholm, Sweden, there was a meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association of the world. Over 1,700 persons were present, representatives of countries now at war. The women would be the first to heal over the breach of the world's differences. Was it not good to think that they would have a place in the world's peace.

She wanted to draw the attention of the listeners to the name of the Association. The women had never had such power as now. She was not a suffragette nor a suffragist. They were associated together. When those who were at war came back, and wanted a wife, they would pick from those who had their womanhood built up as by the Young Women's Christian Association.

Drawing to Church.

The Association was drawing the girls to the church. Some branches relied on a Religious Secretary. Every member should do her part. There were religious meetings held in some branches where no girls of the boarding home were present. These girls should be brought to the meetings, and if they were bringing the girls of the house and the church organizations together, they were serving their purpose.

But the saving of ourselves was first, and this was by service. Could this not be seen at present when so many were serving on the battlefield.

"A girl is not like Apples, or anything that is between earth or sky, because she is sweetest when she is green."

Board of Trustees.

The following ladies were elected to the Board of Trustees for the ensuing year.

Miss Dickson, Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Cressman, Miss Morrow, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Roger, Mrs. Hill Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. (Dr.) Morrison, Miss Wood, Mrs. Nugent, Miss J. Hall Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Chisholm, Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Gardiner, Miss Rush, Mrs. Scott, Miss Aldridge, Mrs. B. Neil, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. Denham, Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Switzer, Miss Florence Cameron, Miss Williamson and Mrs. Adam Hall.

After the address by Mrs. Johnson, refreshments were served.

A Resolution of Condolence

City Council Extend Sympathy to Relatives of Those Who Lost Their Lives in the Service of the Empire

At last night's meeting of the City Council it was moved by Ald. Duffus and seconded by Ald. Manners, and the late Pte. Nicholls for the loss they have sustained upon the battlefield of Flanders and elsewhere, while in defence of their country and that this Council wishes to express its very great appreciation of the noble sacrifice of its most respected and highly regarded fellow citizens in nobly and heroically laying down their lives in the defence of the Empire.

Trades and Labour Notes

By The Officialdiscribe

The attendance of delegates this week was again very good, most of the locals being represented. There were some, however, who probably felt that it was time the garden was planted, thereby causing their organization to be unrepresented. For instance one hotel in the city has the business agent of a sub-prime non-union barber posted around its bar-room, and there was not a representative of the bartenders' union present on Wednesday to meet the charge and investigate, as per union fair wage principles. Likewise a certain clothing firm who makes a great point of its union made clothing, could not produce when asked for, a pair of overalls with the garment workers' label affixed. Customer had to leave and consequently found the goods labelled as desired elsewhere. Here was a case the representative of the Tailors' Union could have enlightened by his attendance at the meeting.

The Municipal Committee.

The chairman's report was very interesting this week, inasmuch as it described the stand taken by the Mayor and Aldermen on the point raised by the Labour men, viz., that since a non-resident day labourer could not work for the city, the same principle should apply to those higher up. Alderman Langford and Evans were the only ones who remained firm speech, and although Alderman Stratton did not vote, yet he was of the opinion that the motion was just. Now it will be the Municipal committee's duty to follow up other officials who pay township taxes while taking the city's money as pay, but these come under other influences outside of the Council proper. The Police Commissioners and the Board of Education will be the next authorities to visit.

The Municipal committee told of the Health Association's demand for assistance—$30 a month for necessaries—the Association finding the equipment, tents, bedding, medical attention, etc. This report, coupled with the testimony of a member who had been helped in time of need by the Association, caused the Council to loosen up, and $5.00 was voted the good cause.

Income Tax Delinquents.

The Municipal committee expressed their gratitude at the manner in which City Clerk Armstrong had met their request for a list of those who paid income tax. That obliging official took a lot of trouble and the lengthy copy now in the hands of the committee.

A Voice of Cheer.

Representative Wm. I. Lucas of the International Moulders' Union, is again a visitor to the city, being called chiefly to adjust a slight difference in a local shop. Mr. Lucas always gives a good line of talk and his message was one of good cheer. He had abundant proof to show that things were looking up and the present slump could soon come to an end. The Westinghouse people of Hamilton have lately put on 300 more hands, owing to the awakening of the west, therefore that should also be felt by the Canadian General. Galt was also beginning to feel the boom. The Niagara belt is promising great things. As to his own profession, pig iron is regarded as the barometer of rising and falling business. There are only four blast furnaces in Ontario, one in Port Colborne, the other three in Hamilton. The one at Port Colborne has been working full blast for some time now, and two out of the three at Hamilton are in the same happy state, and a prominent official had told him (Mr. Lucas) that the third would shortly follow suit.

Labour Educational Association.

[illegible] chosen to represent Peterborough's Trades and Labour Council at the annual convention at St. Catharines on May 24th. Chas. Crowe, of the Moulders, is alternate.

The Helen Brown Case.

The representative from the Council who attended a meeting of the Local Council of Women at its request, gave his report, which was to the effect that the matter had been thoroughly gone into with the assistance of expert advice from Toronto, and the result was that insufficient evidence was found to be the reason the case could not be gone on with at present.

Next meeting May 19th.

Satisfaction is Great

English, and perhaps some neutrals throw additional millions into the struggle, who must turn the scale eventually.

Odds Against Germany.

Although Germany may win a victory here and there, the gigantic assembling of overwhelming odds against her continues steadily and without pause. Lord Kitchener declines to allow himself to be hurried or hurried over his two million new soldiers, intending them to be thoroughly drilled and equipped before sending them to the front. But the two millions will eventually go, and a third million, if it is found necessary.

No English newspaper attempts to discuss what action America may take against Germany for the latest outrage to her shipping, but we are human enough to rejoice at the ever widening circle of fierce hostility which the German piratical methods are producing in all neutral countries, such as Norway and Sweden, as well as America.

Ireland finally set the seal of her opinion on Germany's behaviour by finding the first "wilful murder" charge against German pirates who sank a vessel and drowned the crew.

Coalition Ministry.

There were some whispers of a renewal of the attempt engineered by Lord Northcliffe and other powerful Unionist journalists some weeks ago to force on the present cabinet a coalition ministry, but I see no signs of such a project materializing in the immediate future. The extraordinary unity of all parties in this country remains, despite the occasional outbreaks of some newspapers. The impatient criticism directed especially against Churchill emanates probably from retired general and admirals, who hold forth in club smoking rooms. These criticisms meet with the strongest condemnation from responsible Unionist organs like the "Spectator."

The end of the week finds us plunged into the old maelstrom of perilous controversy about liquor, one of the hottest and most bitterly contested issues in British politics. Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George strongly favours universal prohibition as the only effective way of dealing with the drink question, and he is supported by a large number of Liberals. Although Lloyd George, with characteristic obstinacy, adhered to his proposals the ministry offered in substitution that the government be given powers to take any steps necessary, even to the extent of closing all public houses in the armament regions, in cases in which it was proved that drinking interfered with the work. The episode momentarily humiliated the government, but the matter will be forgotten in a few days in the absorbing excitement of the war.

The Irish mission to Paris proved a success beyond our wildest hopes. Every Frenchman told us that our reception was the most enthusiastic given any body of politicians in the history of France. Ministers, ex-ministers, and half a dozen former premiers of France, attended our banquet, as did also every imminent French political figure, whether Catholic or Free Thinker. To our surprise we found the French, especially the French Catholics, exceedingly grateful to us for giving them an opportunity to proclaim to all the world the sacred unity of all France in the present war.

Thus our mission, intended primarily to give Ireland a platform for proclaiming her support to the Allies, became also a French platform for making the same proclamation. The extraordinary popularity of our mission was due not only to the awakening of the old passionate affection between France and Ireland, but also because the occasion presented such a splendid opportunity for proclaiming French unity. Even the English Unionist newspapers remarked upon this first appearance of the Irish nation in international politics since the passage of the Home Rule Act.

DANDRUFF ON HEAD IN DRY CRUST

Hair Came Out. Scalp Itched and Burned. Scales Like Sawdust. Cuticura Healed in Six Weeks.

The Pas, Manitoba.—"Four years ago I began to lose my hair. It used to come out any time that I combed it. I think it was because my head was full of dandruff. Whenever I brushed it the scales flew off like sawdust. My scalp also itched and burned and my head was like a dry crust. The dandruff showed very plainly.

TO-MORROW AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

The sermon at St. John's Church, to-morrow night, will deal with the religion of Russia and its relation to the war. No other country is probably so little known as Russia and the war has cast much light upon the Czar's domains. In the morning the subject will be "God's Care of the body," in connection with Rogationtide, when divine blessings are asked on the corpses. There will be special praying in connection with the marine disaster.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT SALVATION ARMY

To-night the open air service, at the corner of Hunter and George streets, will commence at 7.15, sharp. The inside meeting at 8 o'clock, will only continue for three quarters of an hour.

The Band and Corps will march to the Grand Trunk Station to meet Colonel Hammond and Brigadier Rawling, thence to a great open air service at 9 o'clock, at the corner of Simcoe and George Streets.

At 11 o'clock on Sunday morning a great self denial Altar service, which will be unique in character and influence. All welcome.

OUR SEVEN WARS.

The British Government is at present carrying out seven distinct campaigns:

1. France, where Sir John French reports a success purchased at the cost of "very heavy loss."
2. Dardanelles.
3. Egypt, where Suez Canal is being held against Turks.
4. Persian Gulf, where the Admiralty's oil field is being defended against the same enemy.
5. German East Africa, where a reverse was sustained by the British troops in November, since when complete darkness has fallen upon the operations.
6. German South-West Africa, where a success by the Union troops is reported to-day.
7. Cameroons, concerning which nothing has been heard of for months.

It seems an unaccountable story, but it is related that a special agent, inspecting a manufacturing plant with the workmen on a strike, pointed to a portable fire extinguisher and asked the watchman if it was kept charged and in order. "Two [illegible] on duty for a couple of [illegible] and this watchman, "and [illegible] when the devil does come [illegible]."

ACCORDING TO OFFICER FIRST ESTIMATE LIKELY TO BE GREATER

First Officer Tells Story of the Awful Disaster to Lusitania —Terrible Suffering

New York, May 8—The bullet [illegible] wallet at the Cunard offices early this morning that the dead in the sinking of the Lusitania would eventually prove to be nearly 1,500. This belief was based on the fact that 14 hours had elapsed since the sinking of the Lusitania and that practically all of the boats had had plenty of time to come ashore and be heard from. Assuming that 700 had been landed at Queenstown, 250 at Queenstown and possibly 150 at Kinsale, this would leave nearly a thousand still to be accounted for. All the reports indicate that many injured and some dead have been brought ashore.

First Officer's Statement

It was impossible early this morning to obtain a reliable estimate of the number of persons saved from the Lusitania. The following cable message received at midnight, from the company's offices in Liverpool contained the only authoritative information which the officials of the line had received. "Queenstown wires: First Officer Jones thinks about 700 to 800 were saved. This includes passengers and crew and is the only estimate we are able to make. In the meantime we are going through the hotels and lodging houses to-night and will wire to-morrow the fullest possible list. Meanwhile the injured and dead are taking all our attention." This message was sent from Liverpool at 9.17 p.m. When the attention of the Cunard officials was called to the fact that they had previously reported 300 landed at Cloonkilty and that the London Times had received a despatch from Cork saying that 70 had been landed at Cloonkilty, they replied: "This estimate by first officer Jones is the only authoritative one we have been able to get. The statement that 300 had been landed at Cloonkilty was merely a report which had been sent to our office in Queenstown. We have no information as to its accuracy and we know nothing about the report from Cork that 700 were landed at Cloonkilty. To-morrow we hope to have definite information but until that comes we can make no estimate of the number saved." Another cable message timed 9.45 p.m., at Liverpool, said: "Queenstown wires as follows: The tug Stormcock landed 150 passengers and crew. It is reported by the Admiralty that the trawlers Dock and Indian Empire have about 200. The tug Flying Fish has about 100. Three torpedo boats have 45 and four dead. We are putting those landed up at the hotels and boarding houses but we cannot get a list of survivors before morning, as the passengers are in such a state that their immediate wants must be our first consideration." The Cunard officials were unable to say whether the reported [illegible] to these reports by First Officer Jones or not but, they were inclined to believe this was merely confirmatory of Jones' despatch.

Suffering Hinted At

London, May 8—Suffering and hardships for passengers and crew of the disaster were hinted at in a despatch to the Admiralty from Queenstown reporting that between 500 and 600 passengers had been landed there. This despatch stated that "many hospital cases were included, some of whom have died." A later despatch to the Admiralty from the Admiral in command of the fleet at Queenstown stated that the injured were being sent to the naval and military hospitals for treatment. The Admiral's report gave no names of victims nor did it state their number.

The first estimate warning that the loss of life might be heavy came from the Cunard office in the following bulletin: "There is reason to hope that many passengers have been saved." Cablegrams flooded the offices of the line inquiring for the safety of hundreds of prominent persons aboard. Throughout the night there was a steady stream of officers at the Cunard offices. Many of them were in evening dress. The crowd in Cockspur Street assumed such proportions that a special staff of police was employed in directing the long stream of motor cars and guarding the doorways.

Atrocious Criminals

London, May 8—The following message were received this morning on the sinking of the Lusitania from prominent men of Great Britain: Lord Weardale, "Language is inadequate to condemn the atrocious crime [illegible]." Admiral Cyprian Bridge: "This outrageous crime outdoes the [illegible] in the [illegible] previously known." Lord Sydenham: "America will now realize the depth of Germany barbarism and respond to the call of humanity." Sir Gilbert Parker: "Germany has reached a point where the nations of the world must [illegible] or the name of civilization will be stained forever. Germany will atone for this crime in blood and tears." Sir Hiram Maxim: "Civilization demands that German imperialism shall be crushed."

"Titanic" Weather

London, May 8—The Admiralty received a report from Queenstown that several boats, supposed to belong to the Lusitania, had been sighted nine miles southeast of Queenstown. At the time of the disaster the weather was fine. The sea was heating down hotly and a gentle breeze was blowing. Weather conditions were similar to those prevailing at the time of the Titanic disaster.

ONTARIO CITIES GREATLY AFFECTED BY CATASTROPHE

Toronto, May 8—Not so much excitement has been seen in Canadian cities since war was declared as yesterday afternoon when the sinking of the steamer Lusitania was bulletined in the newspaper offices. The arrival of the news that the giant liner had been torpedoed was met with incredulity, which quickly gave way to grave fears for the safety of her passengers. The Canadian passengers of whom about 115 were from Ontario were principally from Toronto and Montreal. Among those were the following: Mrs. Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson and daughter, Laura, are mother and daughter of the late Captain Ryerson, who was killed in the second battle of Ypres. Mrs. Ryerson and her daughter made the voyage to join Lieut.-Col. Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross, who is in England. Leonard McMurray was making the trip in the interests of the Gutta Percha Rubber Company.

On Their Wedding Trip

Mr. Frank Hogarth, merchandise manager for the Robert Simpson Company, was married to Miss Agnes Hill, daughter of W. J. Hill, registrar for West York, on Thursday last, and sailed on the Lusitania on his wedding trip. Mr. Walter Rumble is a buyer for the John Macdonald Co., and was going to the Old Country for the firm. Mrs. Josephine Plank is the widow of the late Mortimer W. Plank. W. R. E. Kaebie, the London representative of McKim, Limited, advertising agents, had been in Toronto on a two months' visit with his brother. Mr. R. H. Lockhart was going over on a business trip in the interests of wholesale clothing. Mrs. H. Loudon and her 11-year-old daughter, were on a visit to relatives in South Hackney, London, England.

After War Relics

Mr. Percy Roggers, the assistant manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, sailed to England with the expectation of going from there to the battlefields of France and Belgium to make a collection of German war materials and machines for this coming year's exhibition. James Gray and his wife were bound for Kilmarnock, Scotland, to see his father, who has been ill of late. William Dale was on leave, and was on his way to visit his brothers and sisters, [illegible] home to live. He was bound for the first to visit his parents, and his intention was to remain at home, as his father owns a factory in Belfast.

Two of the faculty of Trinity College were on the Lusitania. They are Rev. Carlton Morris, lecturer in divinity, and Prof. O. Wordsworth, lecturer in classics. The latter is English, had been on the faculty of Trinity for one year, single, about 28 years of age, and was returning to England for a vacation. Miss Wordsworth, returning from Japan to England, was with him. Rev. Carlton Trinity for a year, and was to spend his vacation in the old country. Miss Dorothy Braithwaite, of Montreal, who was a passenger on the Lusitania, was on the way to England to be with her sister, Mrs. Guy Drummond whose husband fell in battle in France. Miss Braithwaite is a sister of Mrs. Trumbull Warren, of Toronto, whose husband was recently killed and who has just returned to Toronto. Mr. James Bohan, of Bohan Bros., woollens, was a passenger on the Lusitania on his way to pay a visit to the mills in Scotland.

Other passengers included: Fred Hammond and wife, Toronto; Mrs. Herbert, Miss McBeth and Mrs. Gray, London; Mrs. R. Pirie, and Mrs. J. M. Young, Hamilton; Judy Allan, Montreal; Miss Douglas and W. A. Emond, Quebec; Dungall Stewart, Montreal; Ernest Townley and Mr. and Mrs F. G. Webster, Toronto.

Among the passengers from outside points in Ontario and Quebec booked through the Toronto shipping agents: Mr. G. Sidewell, Hamilton; Mr. J. Dansereau, Montreal; Mr. Allen B. Barnes, Berlin; Mr. [illegible] Falls; Miss Hilda [illegible] Miss A. Delphia, St. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster, St. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Bartley and two children, Welland; Mrs. Osborne, George Rolfe, S and Mrs. Critchlaces and son, A. Tucker, J. and Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. W. Smith, F. Stretton, Miss Meyers, Miss M. L. Boyd, Julius Strauss, Rathbone Firis, Reuben and Mrs. Burleigh, Miss Doris Burleigh, Reginald Burleigh; Mrs. A. H. Nail, Miss Fanny Marshall, George Sidwell and Sergt. J. H. Oliver all of Hamilton; William York, Brantford; Hugh McPadyen, Galt; Prof. J. P. Marichal, wife and three children and Mrs. G. Miles and son of Kingston, and A. B. Burns, Berlin.

Twenty-sixth Victim

London, May 8—The Lusitania is the twenty-sixth vessel to be sunk or damaged in the first week of May by the Germans, war zone about the British Isles. Most of these vessels were torpedoed by German submarines, although in some cases it has not been established whether the damage was inflicted by mines or submarines.

Purchasing A Memorial Tablet

Granite Monuments Made in Peterborough the Equal of Any Produced in Canada

It seems quite unnecessary to repeat that every dollar sent out of Peterborough carries with it a value that rightfully belongs to the community. Every dollar spent at home with your home dealer helps to build up your own interests. As one business man said to an out-of-town shopper: "If you buy out of town and all your neighbours buy out of town, what is to become of our town?" In this connection [illegible] know that there is no need of buying anything in the monument line out of Peterborough. The Coughlin Monumental Work of 214 Hunter Street can fill any order, large or small, of any design, at any expense, in any quality of work that can be produced anywhere else in Canada.

The opening up of spring is always an opportune time for the consideration of the purchase of a memorial stone of some kind for departed relatives.

Coughlin's Monumental Works are fully equipped for supplying granite and other monuments in any desired design and artistic finish. They have installed a new air compressor in their plant, which, with the increased power thus obtained, enables them to introduce a number of new pneumatic tools of various sizes for carving and lettering in a more rapid and artistic manner.

Additions have also been made to their polishing mill which greatly increases their capacity for handling granite monuments, either all polished models or hammered and carved.

Beautiful memorials from the Coughlin workshops may be seen all over this district, which have done credit to the skilled granite cutters they employ—some of whom are real artists in their work who learned their trade in the great granite shops of Scotland.

Coughlin's Monumental Works have recently placed an order for a carload of granite from the celebrated Ebony quarries of Mount Johnston, near Quebec. This granite is considered the best rough granite in the world for the production of beautiful granite monuments. They have also placed orders with the Barrie Vermont quarries for a number of carloads of rough granite, which is used principally for hammered finished monuments. Anyone contemplating placing an order for a memorial tablet should arrange for an inspection of the Coughlin works and secure a personal interview with Mr. Coughlin. If desired, a representative will call at any address with the latest designs and models, an which prices can be quoted that will effect a substantial saving, as well as the duty and the freight.

It is an important advantage to be able to place an order for a fine memorial tablet of the very newest designs at hand, instead of buying the stock monuments which our cemeteries are now ever-crowded with. Besides [illegible] saving of duty and freight, the Coughlin Works saves their patrons the middlemen's profits on imported monuments.

To patronize home industries is a duty every citizen owes to himself and those he would like to see practice the Golden Rule. 2d-103-1w-16

POTATOES ARE DOWN IN PRICE

Were Selling This Morning at Fifty Cents a Bag—Eggs Twenty Cents a Dozen

New rhubarb made its appearance on the market this morning. It found a ready sale at five cents a bunch. Tomato plants and spring flowers were also plentiful. Butter sold at twenty-eight and thirty cents a pound, and eggs at twenty cents a dozen. Fowl supplies were light, and what was offered was not very eagerly picked up.

Potatoes were selling at fifty cents a bag. This was not unexpected. The farmers have been holding on to their supplies all winter in the hope of realizing higher prices, but without result. A few apples were sold at two dollars a bag. They are readily picked up, even though the quality was poor. A few lots of a better quality sold for two-fifty a bag. The apple season is on its last legs, and the orchard product will soon be replaced by rhubarb and other spring and early summer products of the farm.

Contract Is Nearing Completion

At a special meeting of the Council last night, the paving matter was gone into. Foley & Gleason have almost completed their contract and are getting ready to lay off all their men, and the Council feels some steps should be taken at once to arrange for continued employment of the labouring classes. There has been some talk of the city laying the concrete pavements by day labour, but considerable objection to this class of pavement has been registered on the streets proposed to be laid with concrete, preference being given to an asphalt surface. It has also been found that unprotected concrete is not suitable for city streets. One of the main reasons why concrete was mentioned was that the Council felt they would be favouring local labour by adopting same. After investigating the matter, they find that the asphalt contractors will employ the same amount of local labour that the city would, in addition to the number of local men in the gang laying the asphalt surface, and also at the mixing plant, as well as men and teams digging and hauling sand for the asphalt surface, unloading rock, etc. After taking all these matters into consideration, the Council decided to advertise for tenders within the next two weeks. It is felt that the present form of paving is satisfactory and will be used on new work.

Conservatory Musical Events

The end of the musical season at the Conservatory of Music is indicated by recitals in various departments.

On Thursday night an unique event was the recital of the children's orchestra, a most interesting example of proficiency and excellent training. The playing of the orchestra was remarkably good and promising timber for the adult orchestra was developed. The little soloists on various instruments give splendid evidence of good instruction. Sam Swarts, not much higher than his violin, a pupil of Miss Laura Logan, in his violin solo gained great applause. The following is the programme:

"March of the Belgians" (Sutton)—Orchestra.

Piano, "Robin's Lullaby" (Kregmann)—Madeline Kindred.

Violin, "Waltz" (Ducalla)— Fred Morrison.

Piano, "Naika" (Lichner), Ellsworth Deyell.

Flute, "Intermezzo" (Mascagni), Billy Mowat.

Piano, "Village Dance" (Pennington)—Jean Kidd.

Piano, "La Secret" (Gautier)—Donald Carmichael.

Trombone, "Message of the Violet" (Laders)—Harold Lancashire.

Toy Symphonie (Chenkel)—Orchestra.

Accompanists— Isobel Baird, Agnes Logan, Helen Thompson, Josh Elliot, Otto Gliddon, Paul Gliddon.

God Save the King.

Last night a very interesting violin recital was given by Miss Lottie Logan, assisted by Miss Ada Richardson, vocalist. Miss Logan played her numbers, of classical calibre, with artistic finish and feeling and easily established a claim to rank as one of our most capable local violinists. Miss Richardson in her vocal numbers accentuated her well deserved reputation as an accomplished vocalist. This is the programme:

Piano ..... Sonata: Op. 26"
Recitation ..... "Lochinvar"
(a) David D. Slater—"A Sheet of Music"
(b) David D. Slater—"Bells of Gold"

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—One of the most connected and thrilling stories of the Lusitania tragedy was related here this afternoon by young Myer of Stratford, Ont., who was en route to join the British navy as a Cadet. "We were about 200 yards away in a lifeboat when the Lusitania sank. The shrieks of the people as they were drawn down by the suction was appalling. We had to pull away as hard as we could to get away, and not be drawn under. We saved as many as we could our boat being crowded to capacity. The ship really sank like a stone at the finish, her entire bottom being literally torn out by various explosions. The scene at the end was terrifying. Although many of the passengers had adjusted their life belts they were drawn down like stones by the terrible suction of so large a steamer. Mothers with their babies still clasped in their arms were found by the fishing fleet which finally rescued us. They were unable to get on board of the boats in time and they drowned when drawn under the surface by the underdrag of the vessel."

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION

PETROGRAD, May 8.—Desperate fighting continues in the south about the line from the junction of the Donajec to the Carpathians. The latest report from the war office deny specifically that there has been any retreat of the Russians. They have withdrawn at certain points to new lines but are now opposing the the Austro-German offensive. The losses on both sides already are enormous and the battle is still far from entering the decisive stages.

MORE SURVIVORS REPORTED

LONDON, May 8.—It was officially announced this afternoon that 45 additional survivors from the Lusitania have been landed at Queenstown from a drifter. This brings the number of known rescued up to 703.

TORONTO, May 8.—That the torpedoing of the Lusitania is not an act of war in the technical sense, committed by the Germans against the United States, is the view of Mr. McGregor Young, Professor of International Law, in the Toronto University, as expressed by him to-day. "Certain acts," he said, "are acts of war in a technical sense; acts that is to say which touch the state 'qua state.' But torpedoing of the Lusitania does not come within that category so far as the United States is concerned. It is not an act such as is not compatible with friendly relations between that country and Germany. The Lusitania was a British ship, and the American passengers on board her were really an incident as it were. Whether it would be consistent with the United States' self respect to put up with the Germans' action is another matter. That is a question as to which a nation must judge for itself."

REGAINING POSITIONS.

PARIS, France, May. 8.— The British have carried a part of the line of trenches previously lost to the Germans, at the point of the bayonet. The Germans have lost very heavily, according to the War Office. The British have now regained part of their original position at Hill Sixty, southeast of Ypres.

Berlin, via wireless to London, May 8—The Russian Baltic Seaport of Libau was captured by the Germans, according to an official statement from the War Office this afternoon.

ROME, May 8.—The announcement that reopening of Parliament has been postponed until May 20, is interpreted to-day as meaning that further negotiations are to be attempted with Vienna.

How Sergeant Victor Was Injured

Is Explained in a Letter From the Front—Peterborough Boy Hit by Sharpshooters

The following letter from "Pete" Grant, now at the front, has been received by his sister, Mrs. George Cohoon of the 6th. It refers to the manner in which Sergeant Victor of Peterborough was injured:

Dear Sister: I received your most welcome letter, and was more than pleased to hear from you. Jack and I are well, and hope you are all the same. I have written two or three letters to you, but I guess they must have gone astray or maybe the censor did not like them and destroyed them. We have to be careful what we say, as all the letters are read by the censor before leaving here.

We just came out of the trenches last night. We were in four days and the German pigs shelled the trench nearly all the time, even at night, but they can't scare this bunch any. As soon as a shell would burst near us we would yell back at the Huns, who can hear us as our trenches are not very far apart. Some of the things we say about the Kaiser are not fit to write in this letter.

It is no game as they make them. A Sergt. Victor and Jack were out in front of our trenches in broad daylight in full view of the German lines, which were about six hundred yards away, or less than that. They were fixing our barbed wire entanglements which had been broken by German shell fire. They were all alone, and the German sharpshooters soon got to work sniping at them. They fired 14 shots and the fourteenth shot broke Sergt. Victor's leg above the knee, and he fell into the barbed wire. Jack coolly bandaged the wounded wire, got Victor out and carried him to the edge of the trenches with the German fire [illegible] all the time. Then a Gloucester hero helped him over the parapet with him, and of course he got all the credit for bringing him in. He told about Jack's [illegible] was quite enough to go on [illegible] on the wire when [illegible] ordered to go. I was told all about it by each fellow in the Company, who say the whole business. I was nearly a quarter of a mile from Jack, we are both on the same job, wire pullers we call it. We went out first at our end and fixed our wire, but they did not see us at all. I guess the Huns were at breakfast. Anyway the daylight was not as good. I am mighty proud of my brother. He is game to go any place that any other man will go, and Sergt. Victor was a prince — one of the best sergeants in our regiment.

ENGLISH CUP FINAL RECEIPTS

Clubs Will Get What's Left After Paying All Expenses —Dicky Bond Enlists

There is a lot of discussion among football followers as to the manner in which the gate receipts in the F. A. Cup are disposed of. As there has been an important departure this season from the practice that has been followed for several years, it is advisable to explain the course that is being followed. In the Qualifying Competition all the receipts were divided among the clubs after the expenses of the matches were met, and a similar plan was followed this season until the semi-final ties were reached. In response to a request from the clubs in the Competition Proper, submitted through the two principal Leagues, the F. A. Council agreed to forego its five per cent. of the gross gates in all matches in the first four rounds of the competition proper, and also its five per cent. of the net gates of the semi-final and final ties.

A Big Change.

Last season the percentages from the first four rounds paid to the F. A. amounted to £3,865, and as this sum all went into general account—and it was necessary to allocate some of the final tie money to the same account, to balance income and expenditure—when it was decided not to levy the five per cent. this season there would have been a big deficiency to be made up from the semi-final and final tie receipts, if the Council had not taken drastic steps to reduce general expenses. The clubs have had all the money raised by the competition prior to the semi-finals and finals, but with regard to these the F. A. takes the whole of the gate, and places it to the credit of its general fund.

When the accounts for the year are audited the whole of the surplus will be divided among the clubs taking part in the semi-final and final ties, always provided that a club shall not receive more than half the actual net receipts of the games in which it has played.

The 1910 Record.

The largest sum distributed to clubs taking part in the semi-final and final ties was in 1910, when the following payments were made by the Football Association: Barnsley, £5,280 9s. 9d.; Newcastle United, £4,201 9s. 9d.; Everton, £1,320 19s. 1d.; Swindon Town, £831 19s. 9d.; total, £12,634 19s. 9d.

Dicky Bond Enlists.

Two leading professionals of the Bradford City Club, in Richard Bond and Harold Walden, have joined for the front. Bond, who has a number of international caps, has been one of the best wing players in the country for some years. He served years ago in the R. F. A. Walden, formerly of the Cheshire Regiment, and one of the smartest instructors in the army, was given the rank of sergeant on being sworn in.

"They're six fine sons ye have, Casey," said Denis Flaherty to his friend. "They are," replied Casey. "Do you have any throuble wid them?" inquired Denis. "Throuble?" repeated Casey. "I've nivver had to raise me hand to one uv thim, except in self-defence!"

Montreal Nurses Were on the Transylvania

New York, May 8—During the German submarine blockade, despite the disaster to the Lusitania, the Anchor Liner Transylvania, leased by the Cunard Line, sailed last evening for Liverpool. The Transylvania, which is a new steamer, got under way at 8 o'clock. Of her total of 870 passengers, twelve cancelled passage because of the sinking of the Lusitania. The liner carries 117 first cabin passengers, 119 second cabin and 469 third. Her crew numbers 363, a grand total of 1,414. "I have no fears of submarines," said Commander John Black, as the Transylvania prepared to get under way. "I won't fly the American flag either, but will have the British flag up all the way across. I think I'm a good enough seaman to outmanoeuvre any German submarine." Among those on board were a number of Canadians. Twenty-three nurses from the Royal Victoria Hospital of Montreal, were among the passengers. Several of the nurses called Montreal up on the long distance phone when the disaster to the Lusitania became known and asked for instructions whether or not to sail. They were told to follow their own judgment and all decided to go. The passengers were all depressed upon sailing.

London at Jarred

London, May 8—It is also apparent that the sinking of the giant Cunarder has jarred the British capital as severely as any incident of the war. Fear that all the horrors of the Titanic disaster are again to be recounted with fresh coloring lent by the tragic glint of war time events, seemed to still the crowds that packed the corridors of all the leading hotels until long after midnight. Awe-stricken watchers hovered about the sources of official information grasping eagerly at wild rumors and authentic bits of information alike.

Lusitania Described

The Lusitania was one of the largest of transatlantic liners, as well as one of the speediest. She was built in Glasgow in 1906. She was 785 feet long, 88 feet beam and 60 feet deep. Her gross tonnage was 32,500 and her net tonnage 9,146. She was owned by the Cunard Steamship Company, Ltd., of Liverpool. Her Captain was W. T. Turner. She cost about $7,500,000 to build. The Lusitania and her sister, the Mauretania, were built under British subsidy for the purpose of wresting from Germany the speed record across the Atlantic. Their entry into the trans-Atlantic passenger service was Great Britain's final challenge to German overseas supremacy.

Hubbard Was Jocular

New York, May 8—Elbert Hubbard, just before he sailed on the Lusitania, said, laughingly: "Speaking from a strictly personal viewpoint, I would not mind if they did sink the ship. It might be a good thing for me. I would drown with her and that's about the only way I could succeed in my ambition to get into the hall of fame. I'd be a real hero and go right to the bottom."

Punched the German

New York, May 8—The next time Henry Schultz does any cheering, he will do it at home. Schultz was standing in front of a Park Row bulletin board to-day when the news of the torpedoing of the Lusitania was posted. With a wild "Hoch," he threw his hat in the air, and indulged in the German version of an Indian war dance. A bystander caught the hat and began tearing it up. Another baited Schultz'd gyrations with a straight left to the jaw. Schultz dropped, and about ten others forgot all about their neutrality and began kicking him in the face and ribs.

What Will Uncle Sam Do?

Washington, May 8—As there were 188 American passengers on the Lusitania, Secretary Bryan was pressed for information as to the attitude which this government would take on the ship's destruction without search or warning. "The department will have nothing to say until it knows all the facts," was the only statement Mr. Bryan made.

A Dreadful Sight Says The Steward

London, May 8—The first story by survivor came from a ship's steward who was among 100 landed by the tug Stormcock at Queenstown. Many women were in this party. The steward said: "The passengers were at lunch when a submarine came up and fired two torpedoes which struck the Lusitania on the starboard side, one forward and the other in the engine room. They caused terrific explosions. Captain Turner immediately ordered the boats out. The ship began to list badly immediately. Ten boats were put into the water and between 400 and 500 passengers entered them. The boat in which I was approached the land with three other boats and we were picked up shortly after 4 o'clock by the Stormcock. I fear that few of the officers were saved. They acted bravely. There was only fifteen minutes from the time the ship was struck until she foundered, going down bow foremost. It was a dreadful sight."

Lusitania's Cargo

The cargo of the Lusitania was valued at $750,000 and fully covered by insurance. It contained various munitions of war and other supplies for the allies including 120 packages of "military goods," valued at $62,321 and 1,271 cases of ammunition appraised at $47,624, both consigned to Liverpool and 4,200 cases of cartridges and ammunition valued at $153,600 consigned to London. Other items and their value were: Precious stones, $13,250; sheet brass, $49,565; furs, $119,220; leather, $47,000; copper, $20,995; geese, $33,234; bacon, $1,502; copper goods, $21,000, and dry goods, $19,696.

The Lusitania's passengers were listed as follows:

|---|---|
| First-class | 291 |
| Second-class | 290 |
| Third-class | 361 |
| Crew | 316 |
| Total | 3,067 |

There were 184 Americans on board the Lusitania. The other passengers included 961 British, 27 Russians, 6 Persians, 6 French and 8 Greek and 2 Mexicans.

Sunk Without Warning

Liverpool, May 8—S. J. Listen, general manager of the Cunard Steamship Company at Liverpool, gave the following statement last night: "We have received information that the Lusitania was torpedoed at 2.32 o'clock to-day when ten miles south of Old Kinsale Head. Just previously the Lusitania had sent out a wireless call, 'Come at once, we have begun to list.' That was the last heard from her. It is apparent that the Lusitania was sunk without any warning."

Could Accommodate 2,605

New York, May 8—Life boats and rafts carried by the Lusitania were said to accommodate 2,605, the Cunard Line stated. She had 22 life boats with a capacity of 52 to 69 each, twenty collapsible boats, with a capacity of 49 each, twelve rafts with a capacity of 24 each, an two rafts with a capacity of 43 each.

Subs Were Waiting

London, May 8—Kinsale is a town on the southern coast of Ireland, 12 miles south-southwest of Cork. It is southwest of St. George's Channel through which the Lusitania would

Mines and Submarines

For several days German submarines have been operating in the waters along the south coast of Ireland. At first the public were skeptical, believing it was impossible for German submarines to catch the big liner unawares. The Admiralty has been at special pains to guard the Lusitania and other big liners in the belief that their services might be needed later. Not only were warships sent out to guard the Lusitania upon her arrival, but special precautions were exercised to protect the liner.

Anonymous Warning

New York, May 8—Before the steamer Lusitania sailed last Saturday, 50 anonymous telegrams addressed to prominent persons who had taken passage on the ship, warned them that the vessel would be torpedoed and sunk before it reached Liverpool. Following the telegrams there came a number of mysterious men who passed among the passengers and their friends on the Cunard pier to whom they whispered in foreign accents that death would accompany the Lusitania on her voyage and telling them not to go on her. Among the recipients of the telegraphic warnings was Alfred G. W. Vanderbilt. His telegram read "Cancel passage at once. Have learned on best authority that the Lusitania is to be torpedoed. (Sgd.) Merle." Capt. Turner and other officers of the great liner do not fear any trouble from submarines upon the Lusitania's present trip.

Nothing Stops Botha

Cape Town, May 7—It is announced officially: "General Botha has occupied the important railway junction of Karibib and other stations (German Southwest Africa). Seven locomotives were taken.

"The town was occupied after a forced march of 25 miles over a waterless waste, under conditions of heat, thirst and hunger which called for the greatest resolution and grit."

Premier Hearst Better

Toronto, May 8—"Premier Hearst's condition is very satisfactory," will the encouraging report given by Dr. Adams Wright, the Premier's physician, late last night. "So far as we can tell," the doctor continued, "all the danger symptoms have disappeared."

Crop Situation Is Satisfactory

Mr. Blewett and Mr. Armstrong of Smith Township Express An Opinion

Speaking of the crop situation Mr. Sidney Blewett, who lives on Rural Route No. 1, Township of Smith, says the crop outlook so far is very good.

"As to hay," said Mr. Blewett, "the grass is growing alright, but all the new seeding was dried out last year and it was up to the year before. I ploughed up from 30 to 35 acres, which I had seeded. There is hardly a field around here seeded last spring that is any good."

Mr. Blewett has about 56 acres in grain crop this season and about 13 acres left for hay.

J. G. Armstrong.

"The crop outlook is very good," said Mr. Armstrong, Jr., to the Examiner. He resides on Rural Route No. 4, Smith township.

The winter crop in his section is pretty good. As regards the outlook for hay, the old meadows are shaping up in a promising manner, but the new seeding is practically all killed out.

Mr. Armstrong has about sixty acres in crop this season, about the usual acreage.

Mr. Killen said this morning that he had seen several farmers in the north part of Smith Township plowing up what looked to be first-class fields of fall wheat. On enquiry he was told that a worm was working at the roots and destroying it. He thought the heavy rain of last night might check the ravages of the worm.

To Commence His Pastorate In Park St. Church

Rev. Dugold Brown arrived in the city yesterday and will commence his pastorate at Park Street Baptist Church to-morrow, where he will occupy the pulpit both morning and evening. The annual meeting of the Church was held Wednesday night, and the reports showed a most commendable activity in every department of the Church work. Everyone connected with the Church is most enthusiastic over the prospect of the new pastorate. Mr. Brown is one of the prominent ministers in the Baptist denomination of Ontario, and he has built up a splendid reputation as a strong preacher and a conscientious Pastor. The anniversary services for this year will be held a week from to-morrow, when Mr. Brown will be assisted by Rev. J. R. Webb of Murray Street Church.

On Monday evening, May 17th, a reception will be given to Mr. and Mrs. Brown by the congregation and a most interesting time is expected. The ladies of Murray Street Church will join the ladies of Park Street Church in serving supper, and afterwards addresses of welcome will be given by different ministers of the city.

Special music will be furnished by the Choir and Male Quartette.

Timber Thefts in the Future

R. Peters and G. Reynolds Were Committed for Trial in Apsley Yesterday on Charge of Theft From Timber Limits.

At Apsley yesterday Robert Peters and Gordon Reynolds, of Township of Chandos and Anstruther, respectively, were committed for trial at the next Court of Competent Jurisdiction, by Magistrates C. R. U. Booth and O. A. Langley, on a charge of theft of timber from the limits of the Peterborough Lumber Company Limited, in Cardiff Township.

The Court room was crowded to the doors when the Court opened at 1:00 p.m., the case being of such importance to the residents of that community. Mr. D. O'Connell, in the absence of Crown Attorney Hatton, conducted the case for the prosecution, while Mr. C. R. Widdifield, of Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, appeared for the defendants, in whose behalf he declined to elect or plead.

The Evidence.

The first witness called was Mr. Alfred Dane, woods superintendent for the Peterborough Lumber Company, in that vicinity, who stated that on March 27 last, he saw both Reynolds and Peters at a point indicated on the map, on Eels' Lake; also saw 45 logs and 15 pieces of square timber. He said he was told by Reynolds that part of these logs were for the bridge at Danes, and that he was taking the rest along as they might come in handy.

Found the Stumps.

The witness found out afterwards, where the timber was cut and traced the sleigh tracks from the place where he found it, to the stumps.

The next time Mr. Dane saw Reynolds, was on the Cardiff Road, and told him on this occasion that he had received instructions from the Peterborough Lumber Company that the logs were not to be cut and they were to be left at the Lake. Mr. Reynolds [illegible] instructions from Reeve Bullied to drive it. Witness took two men and marked the timber with the mark "P.L." of the Peterborough Lumber Company. On his return to Cardiff on April 12, the timber had been partly driven down to the bridge. Witness saw the two defendants cutting up the boom sticks that were used at the dam.

The witness had no doubt that the timber in question had been cut off Lot 7, Con. 3, and Lot 7, Con. 5.

Drew the Logs.

Mr. Wm. Kidd swore that he drew logs from the vicinity of Lot 7, Con. 3, in March last on instructions from his father, Mr. W. R. Kidd. He drew about 10 loads. He had not been paid yet for drawing these logs.

Mr. W. R. Kidd, father of the previous witness, stated that Reynolds instructed him to draw logs, and he had sent his son to do the work.

In cross-examining this witness Mr. Widdifield endeavoured to show that it was customary for settlers to take trees and timber from the limits.

Must Have Consent.

Mr. A. Stevenson, Crown Timber Agent for Central Ontario, on being sworn, declared that no person could cut timber on Crown Lands without first having obtained the written consent of the Department of Lands and Forests. He also declared that the Rathburn Co. had not abandoned their holdings in that township.

No Permission Given.

Mr. Dickson Davidson, President of the Peterborough Lumber Company, swore that no permission had been given to either Mr. Reynolds or Mr. Peters to cut timber on this limit at any time. The limit was the property of the Company he represented.

After the timber had been marked by Mr. Dane and seized by the Company, Reeve Bullied telephoned the office of the Company and offered to buy it. No arrangement was made then but when Mr. Bullied came to Peterborough with Mr. Reynolds and arranged for the purchase part of the timber which was used for the construction of the bridge, in order that the work would not be delayed.

Would Prosecute.

Witness told both Reynolds and Bullied in the office in Peterborough that no matter what arrangements were made with the County for the purchase of this timber, it was most certainly the intention of the Company to prosecute. This practice had been going on so long that it had to be stopped and the only way to do it was to go to Court. It was not a monetary consideration—the practice must stop and the Company found that criminal prosecution was the only way to do it.

Gordon Reynolds, called by Mr. Widdifield, acknowledged that he had cut the timber in Cardiff. He thought he was on the Rathburn Limit and that it would be easier to settle a trespass with the Rathburn Co. than with the Peterborough Lumber Co.

To Mr. O'Connell he stated that he had to go around the Lake six miles. Peters was cutting with him in both places.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Ald. McIntyre has completed arrangements whereby the carters may park their vehicles on the market square. For this consideration the city will pay one dollar a week to the Market Clerk.

A Farewell

Dr. A. W. McPherson, Medical Officer of Health, visited the city hall this morning for the last time. He will leave for overseas service this evening.

Annual Inspection.

If there are any repairs needed in the north ward, ratepayers having notice of such, will confer a favour by notifying Ald. McIntyre, some time before the annual inspection of the Board of Works, which will take place at an early date.

THE UNITED STATES TO REMAIN AT PEACE

Five Assaults of the Enemy Repulsed in One Day

Lack of Arms to Decide War Says Surgeon

CHICAGO, May 10.—Leavitt Gordon Starr, M.R.C.S., attached for the last eight months to the British army in France, who has just completed a hurried trip to Canada in connection with the medical and surgical equipment of the Canadian forces destined for the front, declared in an interview that peace between the warring powhaustion of ammunition by one side or the other.

"I am not prepared to say which side will suffer most in the tremendous conflict now impending in France," said Dr. Starr. "The fact is that if England had but herself to supply she would be perfectly safe.

"There is no doubt that Russia is having a hard time to maintain her artillery ammunition supply, and it is the shortage in that direction which has given the Germans advantage in several engagements, simply because it has been simpler for the Russian generals to retire out of positions of doubtful value than to endeavour to retain them at the cost of heavy expenditures of shells.

"The reason we are banging away at the Dardanelles is that Russia requires ammunition for her guns, and guns as well, for that matter, just as badly as we require the food supplies which Russia has in abundant quantity to exchange.

"What has been demonstrated beyond all else in this war is that artillery wins. That is, artillery wins if you have enough of it and shells enough to feed it. That is why the armament factories are running night and day in England and why more are being established under government supervision.

"Neuve Chapelle showed the truth of modern military teaching. I mean by modern what we have learned since Teige. The lesson is that if you can concentrate enough artillery on a given point in any line or any trench or any fortification you can go through it. Nothing can live under such a concentrated fire, and nothing can be defended. The hail of shells reduces everything to powder except human bodies, and these it makes hash of.

"Let me illustrate: If you hit a wall with a stream of water from one line of hose with a good force behind it you simply sprinkle the wall. If you concentrate twenty lines of hose with the same force on one spot in that wall for a little while the wall will collapse. That is what happens under modern military fire using concentration tactics. You pick out a place to batter and then go for it with all the guns you can bring to bear. In a few hours you toss in your infantry and there you are. The resistance is smashed.

"Now the question is who can bring up the most ammunition for immediate use. The campaign is about to reach its critical phase. It will be a campaign of concentrated artillery attacks and rushes."

Germans Have Been Forced Back Two Miles On a Four-Mile Front

Further Gains Are Reported North of Arras--Furious Attacks on British to East of Ypres Fail--Enemy's Losses Have Been Heavy.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 11.—The success of the allies to the north of Arras proves to have been more important than Sunday's despatches indicated.

The magnitude of the success, in these days of trench fighting, in which the advance of à few hundred yards is triumphantly proclaimed in Berlin, is indicated in the statement that the trenches captured were more than four miles long and in some places covered territory of two and one-half miles in width. The number of prisoners taken—more than 2,000—also indicates an engagement of considerable importance.

[illegible] several German counter-attacks the allies have maintained all their gain of Sunday to the north of Arras, and enlarged it at certain points, and their success is developing. The total number of prisoners exceeds 2,000, including 40 officers, one of them a colonel. More than ten cannon have also been captured in the last two days.

Field Marshal Sir John French, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces on the Continent, reports no change in the general situation yesterday.

"Our line to the east of Ypres, in spite of repeated attacks by the enemy during last week, is substantially the same as that to which we withdrew on the night of May 3-4," he says in his report to the War Office. "During the fighting in this quarter Sunday the enemy made five unsuccessful attacks, and his losses in these failures were very heavy.

"On the front of the first army the fighting yesterday has been confined to artillery action."

Attitude of United States Will Not Be To Take Up Arms

President Wilson Says His Country Will Endeavour to Show Germany the Enormity of Her Methods---"Americans Do Not Need to Use Force to Prove They Are Right."

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—President Wilson uttered two sentences in a speech here last night which were interpreted as a promise of peace by the fifteen thousand persons who heard him. He said:

"There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

To those who had expected some strong statement of a determination to adopt aggressive measures for the maintenance of the rights of the United States in the face of Germany's submarine outlaw, as in the cases exemplified in the sinking of the Gulflight and the Lusitania, or even a definite indication of the policy the Government will follow, the speech was a distinct disappointment.

He spoke by implication, and his hearers interpreted his remarks as meaning that, while the United States would remain at peace, it would seek to convince Germany of the injustice to mankind of the tragedy of last Friday.

TOUCHES ALL NATIONS.

"America," said the President, "must have the consciousness that on all sides it touches elbows, and touches heart, with all the nations of mankind. The example of America must be a special example, and must be an example not merely of peace, because it will not fight, but because peace is a healing and elevating influence of the world, and strife is not." The President made no direct references to the Lusitania tragedy, but the audience did not hesitate to read the application of his statement.

Mr. Wilson spoke calmly and as if his thoughts regarding the Lusitania incident had been clarified in the isolation at Washington in which he has pondered over the crisis facing this Government. There was no suggestion of heat or an inclination toward aggressive measures, and at the end, when his remarks regarding peace had been approved so distinctly by his audience, he declared that his spirit as an American had been renewed by the opportunity which had been furnished him to sense the thoughts that are moving in the public mind, a thing which, he said, it was exceedingly difficult to do at Washington because of the propensity of many people to send him reports which are inaccurate.

WARNING TO TEUTONS.

The high note of the President's speech did not relate to the Lusitania crisis, but to the thinly veiled warning he gave pro-German agitators who have sought to stir up the loyalty of German-Americans to a pitch where their patriotism as Americans is endangered. To the newly-naturalized citizens sitting in front of him he said:

"A man who thinks of himself as belonging to a particular national group is not a true American, and the man who goes among you to trade upon your nationality had no true place in the land of the Stars and Stripes.

"The man who seeks to divide you, group from group, nationality from nationality, and interest from interest, is striking at the very heart of this nation."

His expression was almost vehement as he spoke this warning.

Mr. Wilson said his respects in passing to any man who may attempt to make political capital out of the existing crisis.

"I am sorry," he said, "for the man who seeks to make personal capital out of the passions of his fellow man."

LOWER PRICES FOR FRESH FISH

Are Looked For This Year—Serious Situation in the Lobster Trade

The chief item of interest this week is the advance of one prominent tea concern in the price of package tea. The company have increased the price on their teas 5c a pound to the consumer. Their brown label tea is now 40c a pound—to the retailer 33c—and their higher grades are correspondingly increased in price. It has been pointed out for two or three months now that at the prices at which tea was being bought in London and Colombo at the auctions, it was impossible for tea men here to sell to the trade at the levels at which they had been selling, when teas cost them as much as 10c less than they do now. It is not expected that teas will remain very long at the advanced price. A still further increase will, no doubt, be announced, soon. So long as tea cost in the primary market as much as 1s per pound for the very lowest grades — and those are not much as Canada consumes—the tea houses are not making any money when they are selling tea which goes to the consumer for 40c a pound.

There is a very serious situation in lobsters, says the Canadian Grocer. Apparently there is a glut on the market. The foreign market is closed to canned lobster and last year's pack is not yet disposed of on that account. Meanwhile the number coming forward this year is greater than ever. A shipper who shipped 150,000 the other day, says that he will lose $30,000 by the transaction. Numbers of men are not going into the packing industry this year because of the jam of last year's canned stuff. That means, indirectly, low prices for this year's fresh caught fish. Present is a very low level indeed, as 10c a pound at this time of the year for lobster is extraordinary and unusual.

Last Honours Paid to Victims of the German Pirates Sixty-four of Them Unknown

Special to The Examiner:

QUEENSTOWN, May 11.—Reverently and mournfully Queenstown yesterday paid the last honours of the nation to 140 bodies of the 1,349 men, women and little children who lost their lives when the Lusitania was shattered and sunk by a German submarine.

With all shops and all business suspended and only the tolling of bells and the dirges of bands to break the stillness of a perfect day, the entire city, and nigh all South and East Ireland, turned out. Soldiers and sailors escorted the plain brown coffins over the hills to the Sailors' Cemetery in the peaceful valley just outside.

But one had to know beforehand that those coffins were plain and brown, for yesterday they were draped in flags and hidden by masses of flowers, the gift of officials and sorrowing private citizens.

Of those buried yesterday 76 bodies had been identified and 64 were unknown. Every effort had been made to learn who all had been in life, but that was impossible. Every train was met at the station, every one of the delegations which arrived from every corporation of the country was asked to help if they could, but there was no result. The 76 will lie near the graves of the French sailors who perished off the coast in a sea battle with the fleet of Napoleon—the others will share common graves, the little children together, except where mother and child were united in death, the women in another and the men in still another.

LOOKING AFTER CANADIANS.

An early morning train yesterday brought nearly a hundred friends or relatives of passengers from various parts of the British Isles. Among those who arrived was W. L. Griffiths, of the Canadian Office in London, who desired to extend aid to the Canadian survivors.

The coffins of the 64 unidentified dead were filed past by weeping men, women and children, who sought the last opportunity to see if there were among the dead those for whom they were searching. This delayed the funeral procession, the entire forenoon being devoted to last efforts to make identifications.

The churches in Queenstown, both Protestant and Catholic, all held memorial services yesterday morning. Assisting the bishop at the cathedral was Father Cowley Clark, of London, a survivor of the disaster. Participating in the Protestant service was the Rev. Mr. Swan-Mason, chaplain of the battleship Ocean, which was sunk recently in the Dardanelles.

SAVED BY PIANO.

E. M. Lassetter, an officer of a Scottish regiment, who was wounded early in the war and had been on a voyage of three months to recover his health, was saved, together with his mother, by the saloon grand piano of the Lusitania, on which they floated for three hours. Mr. Lassetter says he came up near his mother after the boat went down and sighted the piano, floating with its legs up. He lifted his mother on the piano and then climbed aboard himself. They found the unique craft well above the waves and perfectly seaworthy.

The Lassetters were less exhausted when taken aboard the trawler than most of those persons who had been in lifeboats.

Turkish Losses Reported to Be 45,000

Vigorous Bombardment by the Entire Allied Fleet of the Turkish Fortifications Along the Dardanelles

ATHENS, May 11.—A vigorous bombardment by the entire Allied fleet of the Turkish fortifications along the Dardanelles and sanguinary combats for strategic positions on the Gallipoli Peninsula were continued to-day.

The fighting for ferocity and continuity, has eclipsed even long drawn-out combats of the Balkan war, and the loss of life on both sides is much greater.. The Turks hold splendid positions, well protected by the artillery, and the Allies are compelled to advance a yard at a time, digging themselves in as they push forward. The Turkish losses in killed and wounded alone on the Peninsula number 45,000. It is stated that every hospital in Constantinople is filled to overflowing, and that temporary hospitals have been established. In order to prevent people of Constantinople knowing just how heavy their losses have been, many of the wounded are now being sent into interior parts for treatment.

MORE LOCAL CASUALTIES

Peterborough looms prominently again this morning in the list of casualties, five being reported killed, and one wounded. They are as follows:

Sgt. Arthur Field, Bank of Montreal, killed.
Lance Corporal E. E. Hayden, Gilmour Street, killed.
Signaller E. Brown, killed.
Pte. Jas. G. Newell, killed.
Gunner Joseph O'Toole, 26th Field Battery, wounded.
Pte. G. A. Boyce, wounded.

FIELD MANOEUVRES FOR MILITIA.

The National Guard will, this summer, for the first time in three years, go into camp. The legislatures of the Dix, Sulzer and Glynn administrations, with their peculiar idea of economy, saved a few dollars by depriving the militia of the training necessary to make it efficient. The money thus saved was used to create jobs for politicians. The people of the state believe in the National Guard and the action of the Legislature of 1913 in providing for the field manoeuvres this year and next will meet with popular approval.—Rochester Times.

Would Take a Year to Raise a U. S. Army

Many Britishers Still Insist That War Is Only Solution Compatible With American Honour

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 11.—Although many Britishers still insist that war is the only solution compatible with American honour, there is an increasing tendency observable both in the press and the public to let the United States handle the Lusitania situation in its own way.

This changing attitude is largely due to sympathetic appreciation by most of the British correspondents at Washington and New York of the tremendous burdens war would entail, complicated with the problem of German-American population. The American navy would not be needed, and it would require a year to organize and train an army sufficiently strong to be of any appreciable assistance to the Allies. One of the most popular suggestions here is that if the United States should decide not to go to war, she should diplomatically boycott Germany by withdrawing Ambassador Gerard and American consuls, and handing his passports to Count Bernstorff and all other German representatives in America.

Meanwhile Britain is puzzled how to accomplish the overthrow of Germany without conscription. Although enlistments have appreciably increased since Friday, Unionist newspapers are insisting on immediate parliamentary consideration of this question.

The Express says on its first page to-day in large type: "The only way is conscription."

FRANCE WILL ABOLISH ALCOHOL

Even beverages containing a slight proportion of alcohol, it is understood, will be prohibited.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

A POPULAR COMMANDER

General Rawlinson Honored by Superiors and Idolized by His Men

In command of the 4th British Corps on the Continent is Lieutenant-General Sir H. Seymour Rawlinson, whose troops gained the brilliant victory at Neuve Chapelle. On that occasion he did much to inspire the gallant conduct displayed by his men. In soldierly, rousing words he told the troops on the eve of the struggle that the army and nation were watching the result of the important attack they were about to make. "Sir John French is confident that every individual in the 4th Corps will do his duty, and will inflict a crushing defeat on the German corps which is opposed to us," were General Rawlinson's final words to his men. Right gallantly, as all the world knows, did the British respond to their general's call.

It is not surprising that a seasoned campaigner like General Rawlinson should be the idol of his men. He has served his country in the field for over thirty years. After leaving Sandhurst he was fortunate in gaining valuable military experience as a staff officer under the late Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener. "Bobs" was a great admirer of young Rawlinson, and at the time of the Burma campaign he made him one of his A.D.C.'s. Later "Rawley," as he is nicknamed in the army, served with Lord Kitchener in the Soudan, and was present at the battles of Atbara and Khartoum. K. of K. endorsed Lord Roberts' good opinion of Lieutenant-General Rawlinson by mentioning him twice in his despatches and treating this comparatively young officer as one of his right-hand men.

In the South African War Lieutenant-General Rawlinson served on the staff of Sir George White, and showed the utmost skill and gallantry in aiding Sir George to defend Ladysmith.

His first association with famous leaders has made Lieutenant-General Rawlinson a master of tactics. In the early days of the present war his knowledge of strategy on one occasion saved a regiment from being [illegible] ordered to carry out an attack which he seriously believed to be a hopeless and suicidal one. He therefore took the responsibility of questioning his superior's orders rather than sacrificing his men. Later it proved that his judgment had been correct, and his superior, in despatches, confessed that he had been in the wrong.

LANGUAGE OF FLAGS

To "strike the flag" is to lower the national colors in token of submission.

Dipping the flag is lowering it slightly and then hoisting it again, to salute a vessel or fort. A flag of truce is a white flag displayed to an enemy to indicate a desire for a parley or consultation. The black flag is a sign of piracy. The yellow flag shows a vessel to be at quarantine, or is the sign of a contagious disease. A flag at half-mast means mourning.

Fishing or other vessels return with a flag at half-mast to announce the loss or death of some of the men.

Flags are used as the symbol of rank and command, the officers using them being called flag-officers. Such flags are square to distinguish them from other banners.

The red flag is a sign of defiance, and is often used by revolutionists.

BRITISH MOHAMMEDANS

The Two Most Powerful Followers of the Prophet Protected by Britain

There are several reasons why the Turkish Sultan's call for a holy war went unheeded. One of them was that among the strict Mohammedans the influence of the Sultans had been declining, and that men like Aga Khan and the Chief of the Senussi, famous as much for their piety and strictness in religious matters as for their general ability, were regarded as the real leaders of Mohammedanism. The other was that such a "jehad" as that demanded by the Sultan was beyond the power of the average Mohammedan to understand. A holy war, of course, is a war against Christians, not against a particular Christian nation. Millions of Mohammedans might heed the call to fight against every Christian power. What they could not understand was a call which summoned them to fight against the British, the Russians and the French, but not against the Austrians and the Germans. It was plain that politics and not religion was the basis of the appeal, and it fell unheeded.

While some learned Mohammedans have always regarded the Sultan of Turkey's claim upon the Caliphate as weak, there can be no doubt that Prince Hussein, the new Sultan of Egypt, can qualify in the most important essential, namely, that he can trace his ancestry directly to Fatima, the favorite daughter of the prophet. Moreover Mecca, the most sacred city in the world to the Mohammedan, is in his possession. Another reason is that he is a British vassal, and that 100,000,000 Mohammedans are British subjects. There are 50,000,000 African Mohammedans, who recognize the Chief of the Senussi as their overlord, and the Chief in turn recognises the Sultan of Turkey as his ruler. The 10,000,000 Moslems in Persia are under the control of another British subject, Aga Khan. Finally, despite his English education, the new Sultan of Egypt is a strict observer of all the rules of Mohammedanism. If the Sultan of Turkey is deposed from his position as Caliph there is not likely to be any rival candidate of Prince Hussein as his successor.

PRIESTS IN BATTLE-LINE

Twenty Thousand of Them in the French Army

There are 20,000 French priests practically in the fighting line, either as actual combatants or as non-combatants, and their record in the war thus far proves that they are among the bravest of the brave.

Here is an instance:

During the retreat to the Marne a sergeant-priest and two men were holding a trench on which a veritable hail of rifle and machine gun bullets was pouring. The sergeant ordered the two privates to quit the trench and join him in attacking the enemy with the bayonet. The men refused, saying that to do so would be suicide. Thereupon the priest jumped from the trench to give them a lead, and in a minute had been struck by five bullets, one piercing within an inch of the spot of the heart. He fell, of course, but was dragged back into the trench. He and his companions were afterward rescued, and the sup[illegible]

Lieutenant B. C. Hucks, of the Royal Flying Corps, who, whilst scouting in France recently, had the unpleasant experience of having a shell pass right through the framework of his machine between his passenger and himself, is an expert at bomb-dropping. He used to practise this art in time of peace, and on one occasion it almost cost him his life. A bomb in the rear of his Blériot monoplane became jammed when he endeavored to drop it from a height of 1,000 feet, and exploded right in the centre of the tail structure. The force of the explosion severed the wires which controlled the rear planes, besides doing other damage. Hucks undoubtedly escaped death through the fact that he was alone in his machine, for with delicate manœuvring he was able to glide safely to earth without using the tail plane.

FRUITS OF LIBERTY

Germany Does Not Figure Largely in Big Industrial Inventions

A brief review of the sources of the important discoveries and inventions, which have made the industries of the civilized world vastly more effective since 1830 than they ever were before will convince any impartial person, says Charles W. Eliot, in the "Atlantic," that the means of improvement have come from the free countries, and not from the countries despotically governed. Going back to the latter part of the eighteenth century, we find that propulsion by steam on land and water was first made commercially successful by Englishmen and Americans; and that English and French chemists made the fundamental discoveries in chemical theory. In the early part of the nineteenth century, the development of the factory system with steam-driven machinery was an English achievement, and later an American. Coming on in the nineteenth century, it was Americans who developed the telegraph and telephone as industrial implements, and thereby changed in large measure the habits of industrial, commercial and financial life, and in many respects of domestic and family life also. It was an Italian who invented and made commercially practical electric lighting and the wide diffusion of mechanical power by electricity. The explosive engine was developed as an industrial agent in France; and the gasoline motor and the automobile have been French, English and American developments. The aeroplane heavier than air was invented by Professor Langley, when Secretary of the Smithsonian institution, and was developed for practical use by two other Americans—the Wright brothers. The cotton gin, on try is founded, was the invention of an American, as were also the sewing machine, the typewriter, and all sorts of shoe machinery.

SWORN STATEMENT

Of Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Who Gratefully Gives All Credit to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

It is one thing to make big claims for a medicine and quite another thing to produce irrefutable evidence that it actually cures in serious cases.

We prefer to let the cured ones speak for themselves, and that is why you find in almost every newspaper the report of someone who has been cured by the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. To-day we present the sworn statement of Mr. Wesley Maxwell. When a man goes to this trouble in expressing his gratitude there can be no question of the benefit he has received. Mr. Wesley Maxwell, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I must tell you that before I started using them I could only make water with the greatest difficulty, and had many severe pains in the back. I am completely cured now by the use of these pills. Before that I used a lot of doctors' medicine without any benefit that I could see. I am thankful for being cured, and can recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills very highly."

SWORN STATEMENT.

"This is to certify that I, Wesley Maxwell, of the Township of Caledon, was cured of kidney trouble by taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

"Wesley Maxwell."

(Sworn before me as correct this 5th day of January, 1915. — Wm. Hawkins, Sen. Justice of the Peace).

This statement is also endorsed by the Rev. Geo. W. Robinson, who is Mr. Maxwell's pastor.

This cure will interest a great many people who are suffering as Mr. Maxwell was with kidney and urinary troubles. It will only cost you a quarter to buy a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and put this medicine to the test. We are sure that you will be thankful to the writer for describing his cure to you. SOLDIER HAD ONE MORE SHOT BEFORE HE DIED.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE BRITISH ARMY, Northern France, May 1.—Here is a true story of the battlefield. A surgeon found a British soldier lying dying after an unsuccessful German charge. He had a bullet hole in his head, but refused to be made comfortable.

"For God's sake, doctor, give me one more shot at them; please don't fuss with me until I have had one more chance," he urged.

The bullet had completely blinded the soldier and he insisted on knowing the range [illegible] he demanded that the doctor fix the sights and hold him up.

The soldier fired, and fell back. In a few minutes he was dead.

To keep a man's head cool there has been invented a tiny electric fan operated by a dry battery, to be worn inside his hat.

London's annual fall of soot, according to careful estimates, amounts to from 25 to 35 pounds for each inhabitant of the city.

Under the direction of two experts from the United States, China will establish a school of forestry at Nanking University.

War's Greatest "Atrocities" Committed by Women's Needles

German Woman Says Great Conflict Has Caused Needlework in All Countries to Revert to the "Bad Taste" Period of Other Days.

(Special Despatch.)
BERLIN, May 2.

Among the many kinds of "atrocities" committed in the present war one particular species is discussed in an article by a woman writer in one of Germany's prominent periodicals. She applies the lash to her own fatherland, as well as its enemies, for crimes perpetrated in the protecting shadow of patriotism and under the counterfeit banner of art. She refers to the many varieties of militaristic fancy works, knick knacks, &c., which are flooding the shops of European cities these days. The needlework monstrosities of 1870-1871 are again presenting their ugly features, not exactly improved by the long repose of nearly half a century, in the show windows of Berlin and Paris.

"In Germany," she says, "some stores now offering for their patrons a 'charmingly original coin purse' consisting of a clumsy imitation of a gray military cap. The article is utterly impractical in itself and its very appearance is an indictment against even a rudimentary instinct of good taste. Purses of this kind also can be knitted by industrious ladies in their own homes, some obliging store clerk will tell you. Certainly. And in that case they will in all likelihood become worthy pendants to some of the quaint products of feminine handicraft which now and then are unearthed from the charity boxes at the front, that is, those grotesque exponents of an erratic conception of the human anatomy which sometimes, under the well needed explanatory labelling of socks or mittens are dispensed to the unsophisticated fighters in the trenches.

"In France one of the favorite novelties is a tobacco pouch made of red cloth in the shape of a trouser leg. A truly touching reminder of the brave red legged lads now treading the path of glory for their country. Then there are the cute bonbonnieres, the bonbon Joffre, made in imitation of a general's cnapeau, with white plumes, cords and all the rest of martial finery.

"Where the domestic art of needlework gets its most deadly stabs is in the patriotic pillow cases. On this score Germany lays itself wide open to a charge of unspeakable atrocity. The case against it is proven by the actual production of the corpus delicti. The poor iron cross is almost omnipresent in the pillow patterns and is maltreated in silk, linen, cotton or woollen thread, as financial circumstances or inspiration may dictate.

"Next in popularity as a target for the busy needles of the ladies is the proud imperial eagle. Well, a little heraldic knowledge is rather necessary to support the faltering imagination in trying to recognise the noble bird of the ether in the many disguises under which he masquerades on the aforesaid pillow cases. Consulting a natural history, under the chapter on ornithology, would in most instances leave no tangible results. Might at best, after due process of elimination, lead to an even toss between corvus corone (common carrion crow) and cathartes aura (American turkey buzzard).

"Quite often inscriptions are embroidered on fancy pillows and other works of textile art, in an endeavor to enhance their attractiveness. The legends are invariably of epigrammatic terseness, and are quoted from sources ranging all the way from the Hebrew patriarchs down to Treitschke, Max Harden and other modern preceptors of the public. Or one may find some famous saying by the Kaiser, the Crown Prince, von Hendenburg or von Kluck, wrought in colored glass pearls, entwining the decorative patterns."

Military paraphernalia are, of course, limitlessly depicted in the fancy works. Banners, guns, sabres, bombs, hand grenades and the like all come in for perpetuation in more or less recognizable form. Commercial ingenuity is even adding to the variety of the output, and the writer laments upon the apparent impossibility to get relief from these patriotic misfits, unless the public itself shakes off its misdirected sentimentality and refuses to be imposed upon any longer.

German Scientists Find Way to Produce Albumen from the Air

Combination of 100 Pounds of Sugar and 52 Pounds of Sulphate of Ammonia Makes 270 Pounds of Dry Feeding Yeast—May Affect Sugar Consumption.

(Special Despatch.)
BERLIN, May 6.

German scientists have discovered a new method of producing albumen, which is likely to have far reaching results. Its immediate effect in blockaded Germany is to increase the consumption of sugar and to make it still more valuable.

The discovery is told of in the Muenchne Zeitung, of Berlin, which says:—

"As is known, there are plenty of carbohydrates at hand in Germany, derived from potatoes, sugar and food beets. So far, however, foodstuffs rich in albumen, such as barley, we have had to import. Now the Institute for Fermentation-Industrie, at Berlin, has succeeded in inventing a process by which feeding yeast, with more than 50 per cent albumen, is produced from sulphate of ammonia and sugar.

"The new process is very simple and existing yeast factories can start immediately the manufacture of the new article without changing their installation. By the new process 100 pounds of sugar and fifty-two pounds of sulphate of ammonia yield 270 pounds of dry feeding yeast, containing 50 per cent albumen. Being in the position to produce ammonia from the nitrogen of the air, we may say in the future albumen will be made artificially from the air."

Germany has imported annually about 2,000,000 tons of feeding stuffs, principally barley for cattle. This amount of provender contains about 10 per cent or 200,000 tons of albumen. Accordingly it would require about 440,000 tons of sugar to replace by the new process the former which cannot be imported at present owing to the war.

The discovery is of importance to the United States, it is said, both in restricting future expectations of barley, as well as in affecting many industries, albumen being used in making photographic materials—plates and films—calico printing and in numerous other lines.

DIDN'T MIND LOSS OF "USELESS" LEGS

(Special Despatch.)
PARIS, May 8.

A French Deputy who is serving as a captain of artillery tells in a letter to a friend a story illustrating the bravery of the French soldiers. During a bayonet attack a shell exploded in the advancing line of French and took off the left leg of one of the soldiers. When an ambulance attendant ran up to the wounded man the latter shouted to him:—

"Hurry up and look for my leg; it is lying over there. Maybe I can have use for it yet."

After the soldier had been brought to the hospital the general commanding, who had heard of the incident, went to see the soldier and complimented him on his courage.

"Thank you very much, my General," the wounded soldier responded. "I have yet one leg for the service of my country, and I can even afford to lose that, too."

"But, my dear man"—

"Oh, I know what you are going to say," the soldier interrupted, "but really my legs are not so necessary in my profession, because I am a photo enlarger and my hands are enough for me to get along with."

PERFORATED, ANXIOUS TO FIGHT ON, HE STANDS AS RUSSIAN TYPE

Case of One of Tsar's Troopers Is Cited to Show That Petrograd Is Not Expecting Victory so Much Through Grand Battles as Through Stamina and the Power of Endurance.

(Special Despatch.)
WARSAW, via LONDON, May 8.—There can be no doubt now that this war is going to be decided, not by a series of brilliant, showy victories in grand battles, but by a trial of stamina and power of endurance between the Allies and their Teutonic enemies.

Nowhere do the conditions of war demand of the Allies so much patient endurance and indifference to great sufferings as on the eastern front, where the Russian army is laboring under most cruel disadvantages owing to scarcity of railways and almost total absence of good roads, while the Germans have in their rear the most perfect system of strategic railways in the world, built entirely for the purposes of an aggressive war against Russia.

Thanks to these wonderful railways, the Germans can concentrate large masses of troops at any given point on the frontier and make dashing raids into Poland many days before the Russians can bring up reinforcements from other parts of their long drawn out front.

That is why, whenever the Germans assume the offensive and make one of their characteristic "dashes" into Poland, the Russians find themselves temporarily in inferior strength. All they have to do under such circumstances is to stand up and unflinchingly receive punishment from the enemy until their reinforcements come up and with heavy interest repay the worn out enemy for the punishment he administered to their comrades. Thus, at the end of each impetuous German offensive in Poland, Marshal von Hindenburg finds his army much weaker, as compared with the Russian army, than before it.

For this trial of endurance and stamina the Russian army is eminently suited, both collectively and individually. There is no other soldier in the world who can stand so much physical pain and privation as the Russian, and all observers, both Russian and foreign, who have watched him at the front are filled with admiration for his wonderful stamina and power of endurance.

In this connection one may recall a characteristic scene described in the Russkoye Slovo, of Moscow, by its correspondent at the front.

The scene took place at a field hospital. In front of a large tent a crowd of wounded soldiers, straight from the trenches, were waiting medical aid. A kindly Russian priest was handing round mugs of tea, which he poured from a large samovar. The soldiers drank their tea with frank expressions of enjoyment on their faces—all except one. He first silently brushed aside the proffered hand of the priest, and when the latter pressed upon him a mug of tea mumbled dully:—

"Can't. The tooth aches. Please, can I see the doctor?"

The priest could not refrain from reproaching the big fellow for troubling the doctor with a toothache.

"Why," he said, "fancy a strong, healthy fellow like you coming here with a toothache, just after the battle, when the doctors are so busy with really important cases. Couldn't you wait?"

"It aches something awful," mumbled the soldier.

"Then, why didn't you come earlier, before the battle?"

"It didn't ache then. It started aching only when the bullet got in my mouth. It stuck there."

The soldier touched his cheek with his finger.

Only then did the priest realize how unjust he was in reproaching the soldier with malingering. He hurried for a surgeon, who hastily examined the soldier's mouth. The bullet could not be seen from the inside, but he could feel it through the cheek.

"Now hold tight, little brother," he said, arming himself with pincers, "and don't you move."

"Ready to obey, your honor," replied the soldier, quite briskly, forgetting the pain.

A most painful operation ensued. The surgeon made one pull, then another, and yet another, but all proved unsuccessful, and only the fourth pull brought out the bullet. With his mouth bleeding profusely, he asked the surgeon to let him have his bullet as a souvenir. Smiling and happy, he sat down to tea.

"Ah, it is good to drink hot tea now. I got quite cold. My back is wet and cold—all sticky."

"What is the matter with it?" inquired the priest.

"Oh, it must be a bullet—grazed my back," answered the soldier, quite indifferently.

The priest again called the surgeon. The soldier was quite upset to trouble "his honor" when he was so busy.

"A through wound," agriously remarked the surgeon, after a quick examination.

"Well, there you are," quite cheerfully, retorted the soldier; "she went in and out. So why waste time over her? No harm done. If your honor would only bandage it, I shall be all right."

The surgeon had to bring down the whole weight of his authority to prevent him from scooting back to the trenches with a fresh "through" wound in his chest.

This sturdy, simple hearted soldier, so indifferent to pain and privation, is but a type of Russia's peasant warriors. Against an army of such warriors all the impotent efforts of German engineering skill will break—as waves against a granite rock.

'Box and Cox' Are Britons' Best Friends at Front

Mess Tin and Enamelled Bowl, with Which Course Dinner May Be Prepared, Are the Only Two Things "Tommy Atkins" Always Clings To.

(Special Despatch.)
LONDON, May 8.

A writer at the front sends the following to the London Daily Express:—

"I want to write a little bit about 'Box and Cox.' This is the only despatch they are likely to be mentioned in, but they do deserve something.

"Box is my mess tin, army pattern. Cox is the enamelled bowl that every soldier buys in Belgium—and keeps. A man may lose his pack, and his equipment, and his putties. He may even lose his emergency ration. In fact, he always does. An emergency ration is a thing designed by a genius who ought to have passed in modal drawing before he entered the War Office. Then he would have known that an oblong tin of bully beef and an oval tin containing tea and sugar and beef cubes will not ride together nicely when slung from the belt in a sort of canvas sponge bag filled up with biscuits.

"A soldier is never supposed to eat his emergency ration except when he is quite, quite cut off or has an officer's permission.

"The authorities need not worry. He will not eat it. If he does he will have to be very hungry. For you must understand that when one has been up to a trench a few times on wet days—which almost certainly means a volplane or two into ditches and shell holes—the bully and grocery tins grind the biscuits like the upper and the nether millstone. Add mud to taste, and you have a sort of porridge that you might use to fill sandbags for the parapet or for cementing a gun platform, but you will not eat in a hurry. I have been very hungry in the trenches once or twice, but never hungry enough to think about the 'emergency bag.'

"Greased Lightning Stoves."

"That brings me back to Cox and his senior partner, Box. These two deserve mention in despatches, because they do more jobs between them than any conjurer's hat that will fry you an omelet or let loose a flight of pigeons.

"I live in a little back kitchen far enough behind the firing line for comfort, though they do pop a shell or two now and then past my curtained window to gee-up the supply wagons on the road to ——. In this kitchen, which costs me a franc a week and a soft answer to the camp commandant—because the billet allotted to me was a loft with a Valenciennes roof and a floor like blanc mange—is one of those greased lightning stoves that, for some reason, you never see at home. There is an iron bowl set out away from the wall, supporting one end of a flat, hollow platform big enough to cook a six course dinner.

"They are quick, these stoves. I wake up—the early morning shrapnel fired at the reconnoitring aeroplanes overhead is my alarm clock—and pop into the bowl two sticks, a lump of coal, two bits of cast off boots and a match. Then I run outside to warm the fire picket that the smoke issuing from my chimney does not really mean the village is on fire. That is a wee exaggeration, perhaps. But my stove is nearly as quick as that.

"Then Box and Cox take their turn of duty. Box boils my shaving water; Cox warms my tooth water. Item No. 2:—Box, properly cleaned up, boils again for my tea, while I take Cox for a walk to get the milk.

"Now comes a little juggling. The lid of Box takes the milk. Being really a frying pan with a collapsible handle, this lid is not patriotic to fetch the milk in; but, set flying on the table, it holds up well enough. Out, then emptied, comes my porridge.

"Luxury? Yes; but in this little town, which the Hun city I quite easily shell, I dare say, if they wished, you can buy champagne and cigars (this latest pique the Germans) and all the groceries and linen drapery you could wish. These Belgians see nothing quaint at all in shopkeeping within shrapnel range. One must live, even if one dies in the attempt.

"So Cox boils the porridge, and in goes the milk—part into Box, for the tea, and the rest into Cox. Then the lid of Box is free. In goes the bacon, and there you are—a meal complete.

"Afterward Box boils the water for washing up. At lunch Box's lid fries the potatoes, Box makes the stew and Cox boils up the dried figs.

"I only mentioned them in this despatch to show you what a Maskelyne and Devant training you get out here. Give a man a few sticks and one mess tin, and he will turn out a three course meal, juggling with the various courses until some of them seem to rest in midair like Mahomet's coffin or the conjurer's third top hat.

"At home an empty biscuit tin is an empty biscuit tin, and you let it go (to the dust bin) at that. Out here you cut two sides round the edges, turn them up to meet, sore a few holes around, and you have a fine brazier, with an oven underneath good enough to roast a stray fowl in.

"Mr. Edison Athins is every bit as much of a handyman as his comrade in arms of the North Sea fleet. If Jack is an able seaman, Tommy is an able landsman. Witness the roads. You never thought a mud lane could be made into a road with twigs and rubble? They do it in these parts. Fill in your ditches. Lay across them bundles of twigs—miles of them. You would think it needed a forest to supply them, but they find them somewhere. Scatter brick rubble over the top, and you have a ready made road that a motor lorry can manoeuvre on.

"Watch our khaki Escoffier in the trench. He digs a peg of wood into the mud wall. On it hangs a battered mess tin, picked from a refuse heap, full of holes. In a few moments the charcoal fire is glowing through the holes, and he is giving his section a meal of fried bacon, fried bread, fried chips, toast and cocoa—all done with a fire which you could almost put into a breakfast cup.

"Now, to conclude, a piece of news for you. 'Eye Witness' wrote, a little while ago, that an eternity of (alleged) plums and apple jam was the soldier's only grievance in the feeding line. That grievance is gone. Marmalade, apricot and greengage have made their welcome appearance: and to-day our quartermaster sergeant handed me—oh, rapture!—a pot of 'red gooseberry.' It may seem a little thing to you at home, but a change in jam is worth a franc a day out here.

"Now it only remains to see whether this, too, is descended from the mangold wurzel—parent of so many rotten jams—or whether it is the real thing.

"CORDONNIER.

"Later:—Eureka! It is the real thing. I can see the seeds."

ONLY ONE EMPEROR TO THE GERMANS

(Special Despatch.)
PARIS, May 8.

Paris is laughing over a report circulated there about two Americans in Berlin who were dining in a restaurant. During the conversation one of the men happened to say that the Emperor "was a big man." Two detectives who had overheard the remark approached the man and requested him to accompany them to the police station. In his defence the talkative American said that reference was to the Emperor of Russia and not the Kaiser. Then one of the officers exclaimed:—

"Oh, no; you cannot get away with that excuse. When you speak of the Emperor as a fool it is our Emperor you mean."

Thin, Run Down Men and Women

GAIN IN WEIGHT FROM TEN TO FORTY POUNDS

Sargol, The Flesh Builder Gives New Life, New Strength, New Vitality And Puts Firm Healthy Stay There Flesh On People Who Are Underweight

When I started takin Sargol I weighed 120 pounds. Now I weigh 155, says J. G. Wilson. It put new life in every nerve. Mrs. A. McCullars reports he gained 25 pounds and his health was nearly perfect, sleeps better and feels better than for 15 years. Miss Maud Rudisill reports a gain of 10 pounds and still gaining. Health greatly improved.

These and hundreds of other once thin, underweight people write to say that as soon as they began to make Sargol a part of their meals they began to get fat. Don't you think that there must be something in this widely advertised method of putting on flesh?

Don't you think you ought to try it, particularly as leading druggists everywhere sell it with the positive guarantee that unless it makes an increase in your weight you can have your money back?

You may say, "I am naturally thin. Nothing can make me fat," but until you have tried Sargol you do not and cannot know that this is true.

Thin folks stay thin no matter what or how much they eat and they begin to think food has nothing to do with flesh making. But they are wrong.

Thin people stay thin because the fats, oils, starches, sugars and other flesh and fat-making elements in their food are mostly passing out of their bodies as waste. Only enough nourishment is retained to keep the body going. Nothing is saved for flesh making.

Sargol of itself will not make fat. But it between meals and you probably will not gain a pound. But eat a single Sargol tablet with every meal and soon you may be gaining a pound of flesh a day. Sargol is the missing link between food-eating and fat-making. It makes the food of your meals put flesh on your body.

If the sugar you put in your coffee does not dissolve it does not sweeten the coffee. It is the dissolving, not the sugar, that makes the coffee sweet. It is the same with your food. Unless it is properly dissolved in your stomach, separating the flesh-making nourishment from the waste, and unless the blood absorbs its full portion of the fat-making material you must stay thin.

Here is where Sargol plays its part:

It acts on every mouthful you eat. It promptly stops the leakage of fats. It lets only the waste leave the body. It puts your food in a condition that means the perfect assimilation by the blood and the tissues. Then the whole system is started begin to thrive and you begin to take on weight quickly. It's not a theory—not an experiment, but a proved fact that thousands are trying every day. Sargol succeeds where all other so-called flesh builders fail because it enables you to get 100 per cent. efficiency from your food.

Your good common sense must prove to you that if the food you eat pays you only 25 per cent. of its 100 per cent. value, that you are cheating yourself just 75 per cent. You can never be the man or woman you should be and can be so long as you continue to live on a 25 per cent. basis.

No matter how thin you are or how long you have been thin Sargol should add pounds of solid, healthy stay-there flesh to your weight and make your figure plump and symmetrical. Get a package of Sargol from your dealer and prove it to-day. Use it as directed and watch your daily meals put pounds of flesh on your body. Sargol is absolutely harmless and is always sold on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back by

Two Other Girls Attacked By Ripper Escaped and Aid In Search For Slayer

NEW YORK, May 10.—The terror that has prevailed among mothers of the east side since a "Jack the Ripper" killed and horribly mutilated the bodies of Leonore Ann Cohn and Charles Murray, each five years old, was increased recently, when it was learned that ten minutes before he murdered the Murray boy on Manday night he had attacked Louisa Niedig, six years old, of No. 267 Avenue B, five doors from where the boy was killed. The maniac seized Louisa, but she broke from him and escaped.

Another girl of thirteen years, now accompanying the detectives in an effort to find the assassin, was similarly attacked Saturday night in First avenue, near the scene of the Murray murder, but she escaped by leaving a portion of her skirt in the man's hand.

These four attacks and two murders have so aroused the east side that mothers were not inclined to let their children go on the streets alone. Everywhere was the caution to watch for a strange man who might be a "Jack the Ripper" with a carving knife concealed under his coat.

Thousands of the curious besieged the hallway at No. 270 First avenue, where Charles Murray was killed, making it necessary to keep extra policemen on guard. Despite their vigilance, many carried away souvenirs of the ghastly tregady by wrecking the woodwork of the hall.

The slayer of little children, the police believe, is a maniac who is moved by a sudden degenerate impulse, which is shown by the fact that he tried to kill little Louisa Niedig before he killed Charles Murary. Apparently that murder satisfied his insane lust to kill, but there is no telling when the passion will again seize him.

The pity of the murder of Charles Murray was emphasized when it became known that the boy was a cripple, suffering with a hip affliction, that perhaps because of this infirmity he was unable to escape from his slayer.

That the slayer of the crippled boy is the maniac who killed Leonore Anna Cohn and mutilated her body on the evening of March 19, the police are convinced. They say the attempt on Louisa Niedig shows that the degenerate does not choose in advance his victims, but kills whenever the mania chances to seize him. The hope of catching the maniac before he kills another child lies largely with three little girls who worked for a large part with the one hundred picked detectives.

The girls are little Louisa, who has given them a good description of her assailant; Mamie Murray, eight years old, sister of the slain boy, who saw a "wild eyed" man run from the doorway just before her brother's body was found, and the girl, thirteen years old, whose name the police refuse to divulge, but who is said to have been attacked in First avenue near the scene of the crime in the first part of this month.

The description given by each of the children tallies, and the police are seeking a foreigner of slender build, weighing about 135 pounds, dark in complexion, with black moustache, dressed in a dark suit and wearing a derby hat.

How One Child Escaped Death.

Little Louisa Niedig, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Niedig, who own a bakery in Avenue B, has an aunt, Mrs. Josephine Larber, who works in the bakery of A. P. Haeusler at No. 280 First avenue. That is just five doors south of the scene of the murder. Late Monday afternoon the little girls went to the bakery and remained so long that Mrs. Larber was afraid to let her go home alone. Therefore, the child waited until half-past seven o'clock, when the bakery saleswoman quit work.

"I was standing in front of the bakery waiting for auntie to come out," the little girl said, "when this dark man with the moustache came up to me. I remember he had on a large diamond pin. He looked at me for a minute and then he came close to me and said. 'Where do you live, little girl?' I had been told by my mother not to talk to strangers, so I did not answer him. As I was turning away he grasped me by my right arm, jerked me a few feet to the front door of the tenement and 'knocked' me inside. He held my arm so tight that it hurt me ever so much and when he shoved in behind the door I began to scream. Someone called and asked me what was the matter, and he let go of my arm and ran out the door. I was so frightened I couldn't even answer the woman who came down stairs and couldn't do anything but cry."

Here the little girl raised the sleeve of her right arm and showed several blue marks on it, made by the vice-like grip of her assailant.

Mrs. Lillian Hussey, who lives on the second floor back of No. 270, said that she was dressing to go to a church service when she heard the child scream. "I hastened to the door and called down, 'What's the matter?' she said. "I heard the child crying and went downstairs. For a long time she could not tell me what had happened; then she said a man had dragged her in the hall, but had fled when I called. I took her to the bakery next door and her aunt took her home."

Mrs. Larber said that she took the child home before she learned of the murder, but she related the incident to her employer, who in turn informed the police.

After his foiled attempt on Louisa the police believe that the murderer still in the throes of his mania to kill walked north in First avenue and saw little Charles enter the street door of his home, followed him into the hall, seized him and then with his long knife made two slashes in the abdomen of the kind that ended the life of Leonore Cohn.

Joseph Flannigan, Mrs. Hussey's brother, told a reporter that he left his home at a quarter past seven, and as he passed the Murray home he saw Charles playing on the doorstep. He knew the boy well, because he was crippled and of a cheerful and friendly disposition. Mr. Flannigan spoke to him and stopped to talk to Adolf Masser, who conducts a grocery store in the tenement in which the murder occurred. "I talked to Mr. Masser until half-past seven, and when I left him I saw Charles still playing on the doorstep with a stick."

Pin Faith on Mysterious Girl.

The police regard Flannigan's statement as important in view of the fact that it shows the murder must have been committed in the ten minutes between half-past seven and twenty minutes to eight, when Bernard Gaffey, 10 years old, found the body.

It was about that time that Mamie saw the foreigner emerge from the door. He "almost ran," to quote her, "north in First avenue." She was looking for her brother at the time, and failing to see him in front of the doorstep, she went to the corner of Fifteenth street to see if he was playing with children there. Her description of the man she saw is identical with that given by Louisa.

According to Frank A. Lord, second deputy police commissioner, who, with Inspector Faurot, is in charge of the case, the police place hope of finding the murderer in the mysterious girl 13 years old. For obvious reasons he would not give her name. He said that one night the latter part of last week she was walking in First avenue near the scene of the present murder, when a young foreigner whose description is precisely that given by the two younger girls asked her where she lived. She walked away from him, and as she did so, he seized her short skirt. She screamed and wrenched herself free, tearing that garment, and the young man ran.

"Because she is older, perhaps this girl has a better memory for faces," Commissioner Lord said. "She says she will never forget the face of the man who attacked her and she is cheerfully accompanying the detectives in the hope that she will see him again. Inasmuch as the three children give a description of what seems to be the same man we believe that we will have a strong case against the man when the older girl points out and the younger girls identify."

Left No Fingerprint Clews.

Mr. Lord and Inspector Faurot said that all attempts to get fingerprints of the murderer had failed. As in the Cohn case, the only evidence of the tragedy which the murderer left was the body of his victim. No stains were found anywhere on the floor, stairway or walls, the only stain being in the spot where the little body lay.

Inspector Faurot took twenty policemen of the East Twenty-second street station out of uniform and placed them to work on the case because they are familiar with the neighbourhood. Eighty other detectives also were assigned to the case. Practically every lodging-house south of Forty-second street was searched. The police are looking for a part of the slain boy's liver which the maniac carried away with him, and they think they may find it in the place where the murderer passed the night.

As a result of the murder, Joseph A. Daly, who refused his address; Edward Gilmartin, of No. 746 Third avenue, and Atonio Cumonella, of the Olive Tree Inn, in East Twenty-third street, were arraigned in the Yorkville court before Magistrate Murphy. The first two were held in $1,500 bail and the last in $1,000 bail for a hearing. Daly was accused of brandishing a knife and threatened seven little girls, and Cumorella was found with a shoemaker's knife. A negro, John H. Robinson, who was arrested Monday night in front of the Murray home with a pistol, is still in Bellevue Hospital.

Rose Masler, 13 years old, of No. 278 First avenue, and Bella Belb, 12 years old, of No. 349 East Seventeenth street, told the police of a man who annoyed them in Stuyvesant Park in Mrach. The description they gave of the man does not agree with that given by the other girls and the police are not inclined to think that he is the man wanted.

Thousands thronged the streets near the scene of the crime, and it kept the reserves of the East Twenty-second street station busy making curiosity seekers move on. Many women were in the crowd and several of them wanted souvenirs of the crime. Just after 4 o'clock in the afternoon the slain boy's body was taken home from the morgue.

Won't Remove Faurot.

Arthur Woods, police commissioner, took occasion to review the recent work of the detective bureau and to express confidence in the work that the men of that branch are doing despite the number of unsolved crimes now confronting the police.

The commissioner said that an unusually large number of mysterious crimes had recently been perpetrated, and added that the fact that some of those responsible for them had not been arrested in no way reflected on the detective department. On the contrary, he said, the men have been untiring and have shown distinct detective ability. He also denied a report which had gained some circulation and which was to the effect that Inspector Faurot was to be relieved from command of the detectives.

"There is absolutely no foundation for that published report," he said. "The detective bureau under Inspector Faurot has done much good work. Lately there have been several desperate crimes, the perpetrators of which we have not found. They have been very difficult crimes to get leads on, and therefore very difficult to solve.

"There is always room for improvement," he continued, "and no matter how experienced a detective is, he can learn something new from each case. Improvement along this line is being steadily made. The fact that the detective bureau has not yet arrested the perpetrators of these crimes does not mean that Inspector Faurot may not be the best man to head the detective bureau, and it is wholly unjust to him and cannot but help to make his already stupendous task more difficult to have such a rumour in circulation. It is entirely without foundation and tends to cast discredit upon him which he doesn't deserve."

The report was to the effect that Inspector Cray might succeed Inspector Faurot.

"Inspector Cray's work is wholly distinct from that of Inspector Faurot," the commissioner said. "He handles the routine work of the bureau especially with reference to the operation of the nine branches. Inspector Faurot is in command of the bureau as a whole."

When Poland Drank Hard.

Poland was a great country for hard drinking in the old days. Its last king, Stanislaus II., was solemnly warned by the grand hetman, Branicki, that he must never expect to become popular unless he got drunk at least twice a week. Pan Kemarezewski, who could empty a bucketful of champagne at a draft without noticeable consequences, once in company with Pan Sosnkowski, high chamberlain of Volhynia, disposed of a whole butt of old Hungarian wine at a single sitting. One held his beaker under the bunghole until it was full and then drank while the other filled his beaker, and so, turn and turn about, they achieved the feat.—London Chronicle.

Australia.

Nobody quite knows who discovered Australia. The feat has been fathered on Chinese, Malays, French, Venetians and Spaniards, while dark hints about the existence of a southern continent were made by the ancient Greeks and Romans. Possibly the secret lies hidden in the archives of the Dutch East India company among the state archives at The Hague. The founding of the first British settlement at Port Jackson, near the site of Sydney, was on Jan. 26, 1788. But those earliest "settlers" were for the most part involuntary colonists, being composed mainly of transported convicts.—London Mail.

Scotch Profits.

"We have decided," said the head of a Glasgow firm, "to conduct our business in future on the profit sharing principle. We shall begin at once on the basis of last year's results."

"We are delighted to hear it," replied the foreman, speaking for the men. "May we ask what were the last year's results?"

"We lost a thousand pounds," said the employer, "and, therefore, on the profit sharing principle, there will be a reduction of 10 per cent in your wages."—Dundee Advertiser.

Military Music.

"No one in time of peace can understand what war is," writes Rev. Charles H. Jefferson in the Woman's Home Companion. "We may prepare for it, but we do not realize what it is we are preparing for. Military preparations are quite interesting, even exciting. Boys and girls are always fascinated by the paraphernalia of battle. Never have the instruments of war been so intricate and sparkling as now. All the trappings of the military world are alluring.

"Military music is full of piercing notes, which set the corpuscles of the blood dancing. But military music is not the music of war. The music of war is the groans of wounded and dying men and the sobs of broken hearted women. Military music is one of the embroidered veils thrown over the face of war to make boys think that war is glorious."

When Doing Hemstitching.

When drawing threads for hemstitching or drawn work, wet a small brush, rub it over white soap until it lathers, then scrub the threads that you are going to draw. You will be greatly astonished to find how easily they will come out without breaking when you treat the goods in this manner.

Seaming with hemstitched effect may be done on the machine by placing several thicknesses of blotting-paper, cut in narrow strips, between the two edges to be so joined. Stitch an ordinary seam. Tear away the paper and turn back each edge of cloth. Stitch close to the fold on each side of hemstitching. Curved seams may be hemstitched as easily as straight ones.

Apples as an Aid to Beauty.

Eat apples. The common kitchen apple is a great aid to beauty. To eat an apple the last thing at night is splendid for the teeth and helps to prevent decay. The acid in the apple cleanses the teeth of impurities and also aids in preventing tartar, which is at the bottom of most dental ills.

Chew the apple thoroughly, so that the acid juice will have a chance to do its work and get into crevices between the teeth.

Apples also help the complexion. All children love apples, and we have but to look at them to realise what an important place apples fill in their daily diet.

Flesh Food.

Here is the flesh-making cream: Two and one-half ounces of lanoline, one-fourth ounce sparmaceti, two and one-half ounces freshly fried mutton tallow, two ounces almonds, one-half dram of tincture of benzoin and 10 drops of oil of neroli.

To mix the ingredients melt the lanoline, sparmaceti and mutton tallow in a china basin and set in a dish of hot water. Do not let the fats become hot. As they often add the oils, remove from the heat and beat slowly, adding the benzoin and neroli. This should be a cream when cold.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

COAT ON NOVEL LINES.

By Anabel Worthington.

This attractive design for a top or suit coat is capable of several interesting variations. The most important is, perhaps, the length, which may be to the knee as shown in the main view, or considerably shorter, as the smaller front view indicates. The short length is very jaunty indeed, but may not be becoming to all, and for that reason the longer coat will have its admirers. For a top coat, the longer style only is appropriate.

Another variation is found in the manner of closing. The fronts may turn back in revers, revealing the blouse beneath, or can be buttoned to the throat where the band collar lays over in military fashion. There is a stylish tuck at each side, lapping over the sleeve top, and the armhole might be noted for being rather deep and distinctly smart in cut. The construction of the coat is odd in the respect that the back is in one piece, while the front has a body and a peplum portion or skirt, with a joining seam at high waistline. The sleeves are well fitted, having the regulation seams and back seams.

Cavert is one of the modish cloths to use for this kind of coat, also gabardine, serge and cheviot. Putty, gray and sand are fashionable shades to choose, though just as serviceable as midnight blue, taupe or moss do nicely. For the longer coat, medium size would require 3¼ yards of 54 inch material, and for the shorter coat 2½ yards. The pattern, No. 7,102, comes in sizes from 34 to 48 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age if child.

Price 10 cents, or 3 for 25c.

A Single Application Will Banish Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive. Mix some powdered delatone with water sufficient to paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be soft, clear and hair free. Use precaution to get exact directions and to avoid substitution, as delatone is said to get quick results.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Pretty Thin.

"My dear," said a thin little Brighton man to his wife, "this paper says that there is a woman down in Devonshire who goes out and chops wood with her husband."

"Well, what of it? I think she could easily do it if he is as thin as you are. I have often thought of using you to peel potatoes with."

The thin man laid down his paper with a sigh that sounded like the squeak of a penny whistle.—London Answers.

Rough on Rosebery.

Lord Rosebery has all his life been a wonderful orator, and he has probably made as many speeches as any politician living. He has told an amusing story against himself about a certain proofreader who, after he had read the proof of a particularly long speech of his lordship's, wrote at the end of it the words, "Thank heaven!"

The proof was duly returned to the printer, who set up these words in type. The next day the speech was published in the newspaper with the following startling ending: "At the conclusion of his speech Lord Rosebery left for the south. Thank heaven!"—London Tit-Bits.

GERMANS SUFFER A SERIES OF REVERSES ON THE WESTERN FRONT

Repulsed With Very Heavy Losses at St. George's—French Are Making Steady Progress North of Arras and Have Invested Carency on Three Sides—French Aviators Get in Telling Work Behind German Lines.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, France, May 11.—French official communique.—French airmen are dealing heavy blows on the enemy, and have dropped bombs at several points behind their lines. Their most conspicuous success has been at aMubeuge, where the Germans had established a dirigible station. A French aviator has been successful in dropping several explosive bombs there. While the extent of the damage is not yet known, the report says that the dirigible caught fire and it is believed that a Zeppelin destroyed. The Germans have suffered a series of serious reverses at various points along the battle line. North of St. George where the French and the British lines were in touch, the Germans attempted night attacks and were driven back with very heavy losses. It is stated that they have tried unsuccessfully to utilize their asphyxiating gases here.

The French are making steady progress north of Arras, where the German entanglements have been battered to pieces by the French artillery. The French have gained a foothold in the forward German trenches here and the fighting is continuing. Carency has now been invested by the French on three sides, and is being bombarded. The Germans were surprised there and rushed troops to the front in autos from the reserve base, but were unable to prevent the French forward movement. The Germans are also said to have lost heavily in a series of counter-attacks before Loo-Souchez-Neuville. They were raked from the front and flank by the French rapid firers and the light field artillery. The Germans began the bombardment of Bruges, which is still in progress.

NO SUCH BATTLE

LONDON, May 11.—The Admiralty to-day issued a categorical denial of the German wireless from Berlin which said that the British warships Superb and Warrior had been sunk, and the battle cruiser Lion and others damaged in a battle with the Germans near Bergen. The Admiralty says that no such fight ever took place.

RUSSIANS ON OFFENSIVE

GENEVA, May 11.—A despatch to the Tribune says the Russians have begun a strong offensive movement at Tarnow in Courtland, and on the Stry, driving the Austrian and German forces back with heavy losses.

LONDON, May 11.—The Times says it does not complain because of the lack of vigorous action at Washington, but says "we are concerned only to make the British people understand they must not look to the United States nor any other external factor, but must rely upon themselves and their allies."

TORONTO, May 11.—All doubt concerning the fate of Mrs. George Sterling Ryerson, wife of Colonel Ryerson, the Canadian Red Cross Commissioner, who was a passenger on board the Lusitania, were sadly removed to-day when her son here received word that the body had been identified and interred at Kinsale, Ireland. Miss Laura Ryerson, who was with her mother on the Lusitania, was undoubtedly saved, and has now met her father in London, whence he came from France yesterday. Mrs. Ryerson was on her way to England to see her son Arthur, seriously wounded at Langemarck, and now in an hospital at London. Another son, Captain Ryerson, was killed in action.

BOMBS IN ST. DENIS.

PARIS, May 11.—German airmen made a raid towards Paris today, coming as far south as St. Denis, the centre of the northern defences of the city. There were two Taubes in the party, and they dropped three bombs on the military barracks. Five of the soldiers were wounded.

President Poincare this afternoon visited the hospital, and expressed his personal sympathy to the wounded victims.

OTTAWA, May 11.—The following casualty list was issued this afternoon:

Second Battalion—Killed in action—Lance Corporal Donat Peiltier, Ottawa; Pte. Bernard W. Parsons, Ottawa; Pte. William Alexander Dargieisch, Ottawa; Pte. Archibald Hobin, Ottawa; Pte. Thomas Norton, Ottawa; Bugler Horace Hunt, Ottawa; Pte. Reginald Douglas Leal, Peterboro; Pte. Roger Preston, Edmonton; Pte. Henry Loutit, Edmonton; Pte. Stanley White, Quebec; Pte. Thomas Kennedy, Ohio; Pte. Russell J. Young, Hillier, Ont.; Pte. George Jarrett, Steelton, Ont.; Pte. Hugh Letts, L'Amble, Ont.

OTTAWA, May 11.—The government has started to pay the pensions under the new pension act. Only the present pensions to relatives will only be paid in the case of men dead. In the case of wounded, the government will have to wait to ascertain the extent of the injuries sustained before the pensions are granted.

LONDON, May 11.—It is announced to-day there will be no sailings of the Cunard steamships for the United States on Saturday. In addition the proposed trip of the Mauretania on May 29th, has also been cancelled.

LONDON, May 11.—The Evening Star, which represents the views of the British Government, in an editorial on President Wilson's Philadelphia speech, praises its calmness and moderation. "As we look over Europe and see the stormy sea of blood, we cannot blame the United States for nailing its fist to the mast of peace. It is not cowardice—it is courage. President Wilson has taken a lofty moral attitude, and it would be wrong to ascribe it to domestic emergency or electioneering. America is her own best judge of what affects her honour or her own moral responsibility. Whatever she does she does because she knows that America's soul is with the allies in their determination and liberty. The allies count America's moral support as much as her ships and men. DIED OF WOUNDS.

WOUNDED.

Pte. G. A. Boyce, North Monaghan, 57th Regt.

Peterborough's share of the price of Langemarck was increased by to-day's casualty list. In addition to Sergt. A. F. Field's death, news of which reached Peterborough last evening, this morning brought the sad intelligence that Gunner Jos. O'Toole, one of the well known members of the 26th Field Battery ranks, had died of wounds, and that Lance Corp. Signaller Brown and Pte. J. C. Newell, of the 57th detachment, had been killed.

SERGT. A. F. FIELD.

There were few more enthusiastic soldiers than Sergeant Arthur Frederick Field, of the 57th Detachment, who is officially reported killed. When war broke out Sergt. Field, who was accountant in the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, was enjoying his summer holidays up around Bobcaygeon. Upon hearing the news he paddled as far as Lakefield and completed the rest of the journey to Peterborough on foot. Arriving here he enlisted in the first Canadian contingent. While in training Sergt. Field sought to improve his knowledge of matters military by means of a close study. This no doubt hastened his promotion to the rank of Sergeant, which he received in France. While on Salisbury Plain Sergt. Field suffered a broken ankle which incapacitated him for some time.

The following letter from Sergeant Field was received by Mr. Paul Trebilcock, on Thursday last. It serves to indicate the optimistic spirit that permeated the winter as well as the rest of the corps:

"I rejoined my regiment last December and have been with them through everything. I have been platoon Sergeant since February. Our strength per platoon is about fifty-five men. So far we have done what we were set to do, but beyond holding trenches, redoubts, and pivot points with their attendant alarms, sniping and barbed wire episodes, we have not done much. I think we shall get a good chance to make Canada's name to be respected when the next war blows around. Our highest commander told us he had never seen in all his years (thirty years or more) of military service, the general salute of present arms done better than the first brigade did it when he inspected us. What would our home soldiers think if they averaged two hours sleep in the twenty-four for three or four days and then spend half the next night marching in

Send Off To 57th Detachment To-day

Twenty-two Recruits Off This Morning to Join the 39th Battalion Which is Expected to Leave For the Front Shortly.

CROWD AT THE STATION

Peterborough said farewell this morning to twenty-two of her citizen soldiers who are off for the front when the 57th detachment of what has been known as the fourth contingent left for Belleville, where they will join the 39th Battalion, shortly to go overseas. The gloom of yesterday's casualty list hung over the scene at the G. T. R. station, and although the men, themselves, seemed bright and happy to get away, their relatives were noticeably affected and the leave-takings among family groups were particularly sad.

The men fell in at the Armouries at 7.30 o'clock and a short service was conducted by Major J. C. Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment. In addressing the squad Major Davidson said that Peterborough was proud of the men she had sent out, and would be equally proud of those who were going this morning. He pointed out to the men that they would have other foes than Germans to fight; they would be called upon to meet temptations which, if yielded to, would pull down the strength they were so much in need of.

The short but impressive service which included the repeating of the Lord's prayer by the men, was brought to a close by the playing of the National Anthem by the Band of the Regiment.

A Charnel House of Dead and Dying

75,000 Have Died From Typhus in Serbia—Ranks Decimated More by Disease Than by the Guns of the Turks and Austrians.

A TERRIBLE EPIDEMIC

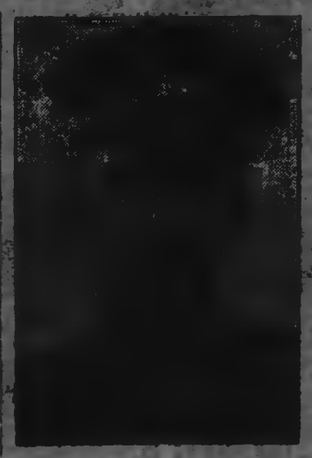
(By Henry Wood, Copyright 1915, by United Press.)

NISH, Serbia, by Courier to Saloniki, and by mail to New York, to avoid the British Censor at Malta, and the French Censor at Marseilles.

For three months all Serbia has been one great charnel house of dead and dying. The deaths to date have reached the grand total of 75,000. Although the epidemic of typhus is now declared to be under control, it is freely admitted that the grim harvest of 100,000 human beings will have been reaped before it can entirely be stamped out. This is the most optimistic view of the situation. Escaping from two Balkan wars with only slight epidemics of cholera, this heroic little state has been caught in her third war with an epidemic of typhus which has decimated the ranks of her population more than have the guns of the Turks and the Austrians combined.

Of 76,000 victims to date, 25,000 are among the Austrian prisoners of war. The epidemic was brought by them, the Serbians assert. It broke out early in January. The first real story of facts was taken to England by Sir Thomas Lipton, who made a personal inspection of conditions. Though shedding over British press censorship, he openly declared that unless most vigorous and extensive help was at once given the little Balkan state, that had twice defeated the Austrians in the cause of the Allies, stood to lose at least half of its population.



CORP. A. W. SAVAGE, of the 57th detachment, reported seriously wounded at Langemarck. He boarded for some time at the home of Mrs. Leal, Aylmer Street, whose son, Pte. Douglas Leal, was yesterday reported killed.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The heavy list of casualties received yesterday seemed to act as a stimulus upon local recruiting, and last evening there were some fifteen applications to join the Mounted Rifles and infantry detachments. Unfortunately the majority failed to weather the strict medical examination and only a small percentage got through. Pte. C. M. Drummond, who was accepted for the Mounted Rifles, left on the midnight train to join B squadron at Ottawa, and other Mounted Rifle men are awaiting transportation. As regards the infantry although a detachment was sent away this morning, recruiting will be continued at the armouries, and there is an opportunity for anyone who wants to go to enlist at any time. The pay starts as soon as the men have passed the medical examination and are sworn in.

A field post card has been received from Lance Corp. Harvey Yates of the 57th detachment, recently reported wounded. It was addressed to Mrs. Ward, Water Street, with whom Corp. Yates boarded and was written April 25th. The only information given is that the writer had been admitted to hospital and was getting on well.

Pte. E. S. Smith of No. 8 company of the 57th Regiment, who left this morning with the detachment for Belleville, was pleasantly surprised by his comrades in No. 8 company last evening when he was called into the company room and presented with a sum of money. Pte. Smith, whose home is on Carlisle Ave., has been a member of No. 8 company for the past four years.

That the splendid body of non-commissioned officers of A Company of the 2nd Battalion, of which Major Bennett was so proud, did not fail their gallant leader when the test came, is painfully evident in the casualty lists. Already Sergt-Major Howarth, Sergt. Fred Stevens, Sergt. A. F. Field and Lance Corp. Hayden have been reported killed, and Sergt. E. Nicholls, Corp. A. W. Savage, Lance Corps. Yates and Ellis have been reported killed. Altogether in the casualties received so far from the Langemarck fight, the 57th detachment has had 14 killed and 24 wounded. The total Peterborough casualties up to date from the Langemarck fight have been 15 killed, 29 wounded and one missing.

Local Boys Safe.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman received a cablegram this afternoon from Miss Housdry, a former resident of this city, which announces that Lieut. C. Ackerman, Sergeant Arthur Ackerman, Capt G. Greer, Major Jos. Mills and Pte. Bruce Mills are well.

The cablegram was from France.

Dr. H. A. Powell, College Street, Toronto, received word last night that his nephew, Corp. Joseph Adlum, a nephew of Mr. W. Powell, 983 George Street and of Mrs. Shark, and Miss Powell, 225 Dublin Street, of the 7th Battalion, was killed in action. He was a brother of Major Victor Adlum.

To-night at the TIZ-IT Theatre

Fifteen of our brave Peterborough boys are now fighting for the honour of the Empire. It is characteristic of the soldiers to face danger unflinchingly. They knew they fought for a cause and rarely thought of the sacrifice they made. It costs Great Britain millions, daily, to carry on this war, but only the mothers of Canada know what it costs Canada. Special pictures will be shown to-night and to-morrow at the Tiz-It.—H. Ingram, Manager.

REAL WAR TO COME.

It is quite in keeping with German ideals, that they should add insult to injury. After destroying by wanton murder 1,200 or 1,300 lives of non-combatants on the Lusitania, including two or three hundred citizens of the United States, and 200 babies, the German government has the tremendous impudence to send a message of sympathy to the United States over the loss of the lives of so many of its citizens. Cold blooded heartlessness could go no further. The Germans are brave fighters in the matter of brute courage; but they show themselves cowards by becoming baby-killers, and making war, or rather committing murder on women and children. The submarine is a legitimate weapon against battleships, but it is simply an engine of murder when used to destroy unarmed merchantmen and passenger steamers. That is the safe way for the Germans. There has been a continuous procession of troop ships, belonging to Britain and France, traversing the ocean; but they have not been disturbed, because they are escorted by armed ships that could resist or meet, and make attack upon German submarines. For the past two months German submarines have been confining their attention to defenceless ships. Germany for a long time, sought by the most ingenious lying and distortion of historical facts, to conciliate neutral opinion; to try to show that she is in the right and should have the sympathy of neutral nations. Now she has thrown off the mask and declares herself the murderous pirate she is. By throwing off all the trammels and restraints of international law, and all regard for the conveniences of civilized warfare, Germany has declared herself an international outlaw. She will be so looked upon by every neutral nation that has regard for its obligations to the demands of civilization and humanity. However, the policy and practice of murder will affect Britain and her colonies in quite a different way. They will stiffen their determination and nerve their arms to greater zeal in the fight to crush the Frankenstien, that German militarism has created, and which will ultimately crush and destroy its creator. Germany has made many diplomatic blunders, and learned many new truths of the temper of the adversaries her mad ambition has made. It is to learn a new truth that this war has only fairly begun; that it will be waged to the bitterest finish.

STAY AT HOME CANADA'S DUTY.

One of the frivolous, though at the same time one of the strongest excuses for indulging on a war-time election was the claim that criticism of [illegible] had made official life intolerable to the Borden Government, and that an election would have created a new atmosphere, of a new government, but with the same baneful instincts of seeking to promote the interests of the country by [illegible] supervision of the press of public administration. The Conservative press was also charged with [illegible] partisan matters. The press was to a certain extent guilty in this regard, but it was incited to it almost in self-defence, by the machinations of machine politicians who, for [illegible] and for months, have been playing for a political diversion. So long as these attempts, which meant a division on party lines [illegible] in his determination to help end the war, were persisted in, the party spirit was kept alive, and partizan discussion was inevitable. Of late it seems, though we have no specific assurance to that effect, that the idea of an early election has been abandoned, with the result that there has followed a great calm. The possibility that the country will not be racked in the throes of general election, has led controversial politicians and newspapers to push in the partizan stop. Both are engrossed with considerations of recent terrible happenings, and seized with a new feeling of the necessity of putting forth every effort to assist in the prosecution of the war; happenings and conditions that more than ever contra-indicate the folly of a general election while the war is in its acute stage. Though the talk of war-time election has died away, we have no official assurance that the mad idea has been abandoned. We have the possibility—remote it may be, but still a possibility—of an election being brought on, hanging over us like a sword of Damocles. Sir Robert Borden should state his intentions. If he abandons the idea of an early war-time election, the public mind will be set at rest, and the people will settle down to the legitimate work of the hour—helping on the war, with no distracting feelings or apprehensions. The people of Canada will be left free to wage a home crusade in the interests of the Empire and of Canada, as intense and effective in its way as the fight out brave Canadian soldiers are waging, with such a sad toll of death and wounds, on the battle fields of Europe. We owe them a sacred duty—to do all in our power to help in their work and help heal the wounds and mitigate the suffering incidental to their gallant discharge of [illegible] is to give the undivided attention of the whole Canadian people, free from any distraction, to the work of helping on the war. It would be unthinkable to expect a Canadian regiment halting in a charge upon the enemy, to pluck spring flowers. It is equally unthinkable for our home fighting Canadians to turn aside from the work that is laid upon us, to become engrossed in any lesser activity.

THE TEST TELLS.

An old English satirist said that one "could tell what the Lord thinks of money by the kind of people he gives it to." Like all sweeping implications, this has its exceptions. It is possible that if the pursuit of money hardens men's hearts and narrows their sympathies, that the possession of money will have a similar effect. We read in Holy Scripture of the kingdom of Heaven. We have an example of a noble and notable rich man forgetting his money and reaching the acme of human heroism. A Toronto lady, saved from the Lusitania, tells a grand, but simple story of the last hours of Alfred Vanderbilt, the United States millionaire, who perished in saving others. She says, as recorded in a London despatch:

"I saw him standing outside the palm saloon, on the starboard side, with Ronald Denyer. He looked on the scene of horror and despair with pitying eyes.

"'Find all the kiddies you can,' he said to his valet, who rushed off and collected the children.

"As the valet brought them, Vanderbilt dashed towards the boats with the children under his arms, two at a time. When he could see no longer find any more, he went to the assistance of the women and placed as many as possible in the boats, aided by Denyer. They continued their efforts till the end."

This simple relation tells its own story. It shows that a man may be inordinately wealthy and still have the "greater love." He saved others at the cost of his own life. No words can add to the greatness of our appreciation of the greatness of such a death, or emphasize the loss of such a life. If the two hundred odd of his fellow countrymen, who went down with the Lusitania, had each only one-tenth of the moral greatness of Alfred Vanderbilt, the United States cannot "stand by consenting," while a monster nation perpetrates an outrage that destroys such lives, and still claim to be influenced by the highest considerations of humanity, or even common courage.

It is in times of stress that men's real lives are brought out; their deeper characters revealed. Before this present war the ordinary man, the useful, even if humble, man, of the British nation, had daily contempt for the useless lives of the younger scions of the nobility; contempt for the idlers in a busy world; contempt for the sybarites of society, the dawdlers in drawing rooms, carpet knights, and parasites on society. But the story of the war shows that in proportion to their number, more members of the "[illegible]," than of any other class, took up arms; and the death roll shows that more of these men died [illegible] in action, than of any other class. It is only test that brings out the gold of human souls; and we find, as of old, that the highest element of [illegible] is found in

THE CROWNING BLUNDER OF GERMANY'S MANY BLUNDERS

It Stimulates Rather Than Stifles the Fighting Spirit of British People

The German military autocrats have perpetrated in their plans and policy a series of blunders that will secure for them in history a low estimate of their common sense and practical ability. They blundered when they assumed that Russia would not go to war for Serbia, and that, if she did, she would take so long to get ready that Belgium and France would be overrun before she could do Germany any harm. They blundered again when they assumed that Belgium would be terrorized into to weakly allowing her territory to become a highway for the German army into France. They blundered once more when they assumed that France was too unready to offer any formidable resistance to their highly organized and swiftly-moving army of invasion, and they blundered lastly when they assumed that the British people would not fight for Belgium, and that, if they did so, their small military contingent would add little in the way of increasing French and Belgian forces of resistance. [illegible] have given much time to the study of British history, could make so colossal a mistake in their estimate of British national character is absolutely inexplicable. They should have known that Great Britain went into the Peninsular war, and carried it on for five years, simply because she had made with Portugal, a century and a half before, a treaty of alliance for mutual protection, and that she had, during that war, appropriated half a million dollars for the relief of Portuguese sufferers. British history bristles with manifestations of the spirit that prompted these actions, which makes it easy to understand why such as occurrence as the sinking of the Lusitania simply hardens the British heart, intensifies British determination, and makes it more certain that the war shall go on until Germany asks for peace.

Ever since the war began representatives of Germany, official and unofficial, have been keeping up a strenuous and continuous propaganda to win for their country the sympathy of the American people in this great military and naval struggle. How far they may have succeeded, can never now be known, because the destruction of the Lusitania, and the death by violence or drowning of many American citizens among her passengers, have so exasperated even moderate and judicially-minded people that all efforts to counteract opinion hostile to Germany have been made absolutely futile. It will be a surprise to the whole civilized world if the President of the United States does not, in accordance with his warning of many weeks ago, hold Germany accountable for what has taken place. It seems quite apparent to all who are in close touch with the currents of American opinion that the people of the United States are prepared to go any length in support of the most drastic action their Chief Magistrate [illegible]

The latest and worst blunder of all was the destruction of the Lusitania by sinking her without warning and without giving her passengers and crew time to launch her boats. The unspeakable, unnecessary, and deliberate dastardliness of this incident makes it unique in the history of either military or naval warfare. The blunder is due to the failure to foresee the twofold effect it was perfectly calculated to produce; the intensification of the determination of the Allies to carry on the war to the bitter end, and the hopeless alienation of public opinion in the United States.

The publicity, if not officiality, avowed motive of the sinking of the Lusitania with thirteen hundred unrescued non-combatants on board was to shake the resolution of the British people, if not inspire them with [illegible]

THE GERMAN PLAN REGARDING PARIS.

The Matin, in an article headed "Seven Months After," recalls the German plan of campaign, which was both infamous and exceptionally skilful. It says:

"The Germans had carried foresight to the length of making preparations not only for the occupation of Paris, after what they presumed would be its easy conquest, but also for using their possession of the capital as a means of blackmail for imposing a shameful peace on France. According to the German plan, the great city was, in fact, divided into seven sectors, each of which was to receive a garrison of 100,000 Germans. Then the Kaiser, at the head of 1,800,000 men, was to appear before the fallen city and propose to what was left of the French Government a truce and pardon in return for provinces and gold, and perhaps also soldiers and sailors to help him in his invasion of England.

"Supposing the French Government refused, what then? A first military execution would be carried out. One of the sectors of Paris would be systematically sacked, public monuments destroyed, private banks robbed and then burned, and private houses turned upside down by the German troops. When this 'example' had been made, a fresh ultimatum would be presented.

"In the event of a second refusal another sector would be handed over to the military, and so on, from example to example and from looting to looting. They flattered themselves that they would soon have done with France. It would then be time to turn to that 'slowcoach' Russia, and bring her to her knees with all the forces set free by this first victory.

"Germany thought that Russia would be in need of ammunition and unable to hold out for three months. She similarly counted on the feelings of selfishness by which she supposed Great Britain was animated and her lack of preparation.

"The battle of the Marne changed all. Britain, unrivalled fighter and generous friend, threw into the scale her ships, her men, and her guineas, proving herself our brave comrade in the battles of the Aisne, Oise, Lys, and Ypar, while her fleet swept the seas of whatever German ships were left there."

BRITISH BANKS IMPREGNABLE.

It may be safely said that never in the whole of their history have the great banking institutions of this country been in a sounder and better position than at the present time. This is in the midst of the greatest war that the world has ever seen. The banks have their coffers overbrowing with gold, their conditions of working are normal, and the general trade of the country keeps them busily employed. —London Chronicle.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

AT HER POST OF DUTY

Heroic Manner in Which Girl Telegrapher Foiled Band of Train Robbers.

MARION LOWELL LIVINGSTON.

"You are not afraid, Esther?"

"Not a particle, Nettie. Why should I be? This is not my first time on duty here, you know."

"Yes, but at night, and all by yourself! I should think you would die with lonesomeness."

"What! With your dear brother Paul to think of? Why, Nettie, just imagine it—he may be a passenger on the very train I send speeding to the city at midnight."

Esther Manning mounted the iron ladder leading to the clock tower, half a mile from the nearest house of a small scattered settlement.

Her father had been dispatcher at Tower 10 for fifteen years, and before that in other employment with the Central Northern. He was something of an invalid, and in one month would be due for honorable retirement from the service and a pension, if nothing happened to spoil his record. During the past year, while not teaching school, his beautiful daughter, Esther, had learned telegraphy and had familiarized herself with all the details of her father's work. The night shift, with its chill hours and tiresome treadmill system, had been a hardship to old Mr. Manning. He was particularly indisposed this particular evening, and Esther had insisted on acting as his substitute.

She was engaged to Paul Reynolds, who had been for a year in the west and was expected home daily. His sister had accompanied Esther to the tower, as noted. The latter waited till Bruce Valiette, the day operator, was relieved by Esther. Then the two walked away, leaving Esther alone at her post of duty in the gathering dusk.

Tower 10 commanded the wires west thirty miles to Lyons Junction, and east past the dangerous curves and trestles of the next section. The track inspection patrol reported from that branch shortly after dark. Then Esther saw an accommodation through to the east, and by nine o'clock two freights in the opposite direction. Everything was now trim and tidy on the schedules. She had only the Night Flyer to take care of, due at 12:02. That crack train of the road usually went through clean as a whistle. All Esther had to look out for was cross orders from either end of the line.

Esther saw that the west semaphore was set for clear tracks. Half a mile distant where the big curve began was the east semaphore. She noted that the go-ahead white light showed. Some occasional messages went over the wires, but no call for Tower 10 through the evening hour.

"Now for a comfortable resting spell," reflected Esther; but the resting spell merged into a reading, and then into a thinking spell. It was pleasant to realize that she was doing her duty and helping her father; it was still more so to anticipate the home coming of Paul Reynolds. He had written a glowing account of his success as a gold miner, hinting at a

Esther roused from her day dream reverie with something of a shock. Very suddenly the trap door in the floor was given a great push, as if from a man's strong shoulder. Esther had taken the precaution to bolt it. She heard a muffled ejaculation of disappointment. Warned—more, alarmed—Esther sprang up quickly and threw the tin shade over the lamp on the operator's table.

She ran to the window and glanced down. It was just in time to see a lurking form steal from the tower base and slink over behind the cattle pens. Here he was joined by two men. They seemed to converse animatedly. Two of them leaped into the ditch at the side of the tracks and started in the direction of the east semaphore. The third man pulled back concealed by a great frame filled with hay used in the cattle pens. Esther wondered what these suspicious movements betokened. Just then she chanced to glance down the east tracks. A startled cry escaped her lips. The white clear signal was not visible. It had been changed to the red stop signal. Esther sprang to the semaphore levers.

"The wires are cut!" she gasped, white and trembling and almost overcome.

Within fifteen minutes the Night Flyer was due. The signal to come on was set and she could not change it. The clear signal had been tampered with. The Flyer would not discover this until its engineer had passed the tower. The train would hurl around the curve at a deserted spot, outside of any immediate help.

"Train robbers!" breathed Esther, aghast. "What shall I do?"

She imagined the Night Flyer at the mercy of Indian armed bandits. Esther glanced at the clock. In ten minutes the fastest train on the Central Northern would come dashing down the rails. She could see one of the men in that view, as if his special attention was to prevent her from interfering with his nefarious plans.

Esther summoned all her innate bravery and good sense. In one corner of the tower room stood a repeating rifle, a part of the furnishment of all isolated stations along the line. With pride and nerve she recalled some of her past proficiency in archery. She threw up a west window, took aim at the semaphore, and fired.

No result. Again—and there was a crash. She had shot out the white light signal! Surely the Night Flyer would take some heed of this circumstance!

A second rapid supposition came to her mind, that the first shot might mean a big bumble of red fire right from her.

Carrying these to the table, she selected one. Striking the bottom from the lamp, she flung the end of the fuse and gave it a fling. It landed, hissing and sputtering, amid the loose hay near the cattle pens. In an instant the mass burst into flames. Until the bundle was exhausted she lit and buried flames. It was not only a grand beacon, the blazing hay, but the glare spread red and warningly across the sky.

Bang—bang—bang! A ball of bullets from the revolver of the man left on guard rattled across the crashing windows of the tower. Then he darted down the rails in search of his companions.

Up dashed the Night Flyer. Esther was down from the tower, rifle in hand, a figure heroic as the train came to a stop and its crew surrounded her. In an instant an armed party was made up, proceeding to the east somewhere to investigate the situation at that point.

The bullied bandits had fled, but preparations were discovered to hold up the train in true wild western fashion—the train which carried in its express car over half a million in currency.

The leader of the investigating group was a young man from the west—Esther's lover. When the Night Flyer resumed its run, Paul Reynolds came back to the tower to greet the brave girl soon to become his wife.

The railroad company did something more than pension old Mr. Manning. They sent Esther a substantial wedding present as a reward for her heroic efforts in saving the Night Flyer.

THE MAN WITH THE ENTHUSIASM

What the Great American National Game Did for One Ardent Fanatic.

He had turned away from the front of a newspaper office, when he found a man at his elbow smiling at him, and, after a feeling of anger, he also smiled, and said:

"I see you have got on my curve. Yes, I turned aside to look at the baseball score, forgetting that the games were over for the season. Force of habit, you know. Been doing the same thing for months and months."

"You were an enthusiast?" queried the other.

"Say, I lived on it? I ate and slept with it. Every morning I made a bet and every evening I found I had lost it. When the games began last spring I had a hundred friends. When they closed I hadn't one. I had called them all liars and horse thieves over baseball, and they wouldn't stand it."

"You bet. I couldn't think of anything but baseball all day, and at night I dreamed of it, and cried out in my sleep. My wife refused to discuss the game, and the relations between us were strained. Our servant girl refused to argue, and I discharged her. My father-in-law said there was no game like poker, and I insulted him. On Sunday, when there was no game, the day seemed a week long to me. The boss offered to raise my wages five dollars a week if I would cut it out, and I told him he was no patriot."

"But it's all over now."

"Yes, and I'm glad of it. In another month I can get over thinking about it and turn to something else, and before the winter is over perhaps I can get interested in Shakespeare or history again. I may have to get out into the back yard and yell now and then as a safety valve, but I shall do it as gently as I can, and without threatening to knock the other fellow's head off."

Turkish Titles

"Pasha" is the only Turkish title conferred personally by the Sultan, and the only one which carries any precise rank. Originally confined to princes of the Blood, it is now conferred on military men, governors, etc., whose rank and merit are sufficiently high. All other titles—Aga, Bey, Effendi, etc.—are conventional additions to names, and obey no hard-and-fast rule. Governors of provinces are Beys, so also is any person of rank, many military men, and Government officials. An Aga might be one occupying a confidential position in the Sultan's seraglio or merely a retired official, an army officer, or a big landowner.

Laws Made in Germany

Most of us have felt sorry for the hardly-used Belgians, who are imprisoned for failing to salute or for laughing at a soldier, but it is only what the Germans themselves have to put up with.

A worthy citizen of Berlin was once imprisoned for a week because he laughed at the sight of a fat policeman chasing a student who had dined not wisely but too well; while a woman was fined $5.00 because she told a clumsy man, who trod on her foot in a 'bus, that he walked like a Hun.

Of course, one of the most heinous offences is to laugh at an official; but the unhappy citizen is fined for doing something, and another day for not doing it. A motorist went slowly through a little town in the evening without sounding his bell, and no one was about; fined. A week later he sounded it well; fined for doing it too vigorously.

If you hang your bedclothes out of window; fined. If they drop out as well; double fine—two offences. If you run for a car, and board it in motion; more money goes to the police exchequer.

WHY HE DESERTED

German Soldier Was Horror-stricken at the Devastation in Belgium

A German deserter who said at first that he had been forced over the border by Belgian franc-tireurs, appeared before the commandant of Sluis, Holland, and wanted to be interned. In his statement he said:

"I am tired of war, tired of being driven to the slaughter like one of a herd of cattle, tired of being at the mercy of men from whom all humanity has passed. What business have we in Belgium, after all? Why must we Germans bring this good-natured people to ruin and misery? I won't do it any longer. I must say good-bye to my country, but what of that? I have strong arms and can work and nobody will ever say that I am a coward."

He was asked: "Dislike of war—that is your sole excuse for deserting?"

"Oh, no; there is another—something that made me almost crazy with the horror of it all, for I have a wife and two dear daughters. I was quartered in a house near Blankenberghe, where a mother and her daughter lived. One night I heard a terrible noise. A sergeant and a soldier had forced an entrance to the house under pretext that there was a light, and the women woke me by their screaming. I jumped out of bed and rushed upstairs, asking the men what they wanted there.

"The sergeant was maddened by my interference, and promised me a punishment. This made me mad also, and I knocked him down the stairs. This was enough for the other man as well. But, the next day, I received and I deserted. Now, I feel myself another man, and not an instrument of murder. I shall not go back to Germany."

Geologists have estimated that more than $4,000,000,000 tons of coal remain to be taken from the fields in Wales.

Two [illegible] Received For Supply of Firemen's Uniforms

Fire, Water and Light Committee Recommend Purchase of Annual Supply of Uniforms at Cost of $549—Additional Fire Protection to be Provided—Will Reinstate Firemen

Tenders for firemen's uniforms were received by the Fire, Water and Light Committee at a meeting that was held last evening. The tenderers were T. L. Anderson and George Ball. The former for a lump sum of $540, and the latter for $572. This includes seventeen suits, extra trousers, and chief's uniform. The tender of T. L. Anderson was accepted on motion of Aldermen Dobbin and Alderman Evans providing the tenderer supplies mercerized lining as specified. A sample of the lining submitted by Mr. Ball will be forwarded to the successful tenderer as a criterion. Last year's tender was $540.

Alderman Evans, who conducts a tailoring establishment, gave expert testimony as to the quality of the cloth samples submitted to the committee. He was unable to submit a tender on his own account owing to his affiliation with the City Council, and the air-tight legislation which is created for that purpose.

Alderman Stratton was in favour of a scheme whereby the work would be handed around each year to the different tailors, so as to give them all a chance. The Committee approved of this suggestion and will probably act on it next time uniforms are required.

Tenders for Coal.

The matter of purchasing a supply of coal for the Fire Department was left with the chairmen of the Fire, Water and Light, and Property committees. Alderman Stratton suggested that tenders be asked for, but it was decided to write to each of the different coal dealers and ask for prices.

Fire Protection.

The question of providing more adequate fire protection for the Dominion Waterproofing Company, will be taken up with the Utilities Commission. The latter have practically agreed to extend the present mains, while the city will supply the necessary hydrant service. A hydrant will be placed between Park street and the Bonner-Worth factory on condition that the needed extension be made to the main.

Underground Cable.

Fire Chief Howard reported that the installation of the underground fire alarm cable is nearing completion.

The Chief reported a total of 49 alarms for one-third of the year with a total property loss of $4,185.

It was moved by Alderman Stratton and seconded by Alderman Green that three members of the Fire Department, who have enlisted for overseas service be reinstated within a reasonable time following the conclusion of the war.

Street Lighting.

Alderman Duffus, chairman of the Committee was instructed to obtain information respecting the extra cost of operating the whole of the Magnetite Arc lighting system. At present the lights are operated alternately.

Alderman Duffus was of the opinion that the Fire, Water and Light Committee should recommend additional street lights in some sections of the city. Some of the streets were dangerous for pedestrian traffic, and women were frequently molested. Portions of Wolfe street and Brock street were among the streets mentioned as requiring additional light.

Alderman Green agreed with the suggestion offered by Alderman Duffus.

Mayor Buller suggested that the committee select a good dark night upon which to undertake a trip of inspection in order to ascertain where lights are required. The suggestion was adopted.

Impossible to Tame This Shrew

Wealthy Young Man Brings Suit For Divorce—Couldn't Please Her

"He that knows better how to tame a shrew, now let him speak;
To tame a shrew and charm her chattering tongue—"
—Taming of the Shrew.

CHICAGO, May 10. — Herbert E. Royston, wealthy young wholesale grocer of Aurora, read Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." He read the latest and most approved books on domesticity. He consulted the most widely press-agented authorities on that subject. He searched the Scriptures.

And when all failed him he brought suit for divorce from Mrs. Hildegarde Hagen Royston on the ground of cruelty, acknowledging his failure in the words:

"She is a shrew I have found impossible to tame."

Royston is twenty-five years old. His wife, who has been called "The most beautiful bride in Aurora," is only twenty-two years old. Her dimpling face is almost cherubic in its sweetness. Her golden hair, violet eyes and graceful figure have been the theme of countless toasts, and when she was married to Royston in 1913, she left a trail of shattered hearts. But Royston now says:

"You never can tell."

Nearly twenty pages of Royston's bill of complaint are filled with recitals of her alleged cruelty. Once, he declares, he took an automatic pistol from her when she was raging at him. He says she broke open a chiffonier with a chisel to get the weapon.

Nothing he did ever pleased her, declares Royston. If he talked, he says she stormed at him, and if he kept silent she stormed some more. At home, he says, she made his life miserable, and if he left the house she locked the doors on him and stuffed the keyholes full of toothpicks.

Once, says Royston, he thought he had pleased her and was much elated. When they were married he employed a cook and a maid. There came the day when Mrs. Royston, he avers, asked that they be discharged, saying that she would do the work and that he should give the money to her.

"You're a dear, darling, economical wife," said Royston, or words to that effect. "I'll do more than that to please you," and he discharged the cook and the maid.

After that —! Royston says that during the three years they have been married she cooked only 280 meals. That would seem about 695 short of the full quota. Royston says he had to go out to get his breakfast in the morning and that Mrs. Royston would lie in bed and murmur:

"I should be agitated."

Berlin Paper's Frenzied Indictment of England

Britain Must Be Conquered at all Costs to Give Kaiser Room for Trade—"Britain's Life Interest"

The following tremendous indictment of England is translated from the columns of the officially inspired Berlin newspaper the "Voessische Zeitung":—

Addressed to the originator of the present war, words enough have been exchanged. The world may believe what it will! We know that we are in the right.

From the snow-capped summits of the Bavarian Alps to the breaking waves of the seashore, from the Vosges to the furthermost huts in the east, 65 million people (and in any brother country 80 million) know it. That suffices!

What a tyrannized people can do, France discovered a hundred years ago; the English oppressor discovers it to-day!

"Balance of Power."

The mouthpiece of Downing street said, "We fight for the balance of power." Our enemies, compared with us, occupy a territory with an access of 28 million square kilometres and 446 million inhabitants. In English eyes the value of German and Austrian culture and intellect must be highly appraised to equalize these figures. Either we have been flatteringly over-estimated, or the words "balance of Power" are an empty turn of speech.

Yet it remains unalterable that England, for the sake of this mysterious "balance of power," divided the Old World into two armed camps. She did it knowingly—as "spiritus rector" of Europe. Russia, Belgium and Japan. Wherever we look, England alone is waging war against us.

All of us, in the field or at home, know it. There is not a single bullet which makes cannon fodder of the plou-gios and the Cossack which is not aimed by the Britisher.

Britain's Life Interest."

When a nation seizes her weapons—nay, stirs up a world-war—as England has done, her life-interests would have to be seriously threatened in order to justify the action. What are England's life interests?

1. Uncontested rule of the seas — 70 per cent. of the world surface — in military and commercial respects.

2. The prior right to every climatically healthy and fruitful land which England declares "unoccupied" as long as the inhabitants cannot protect themselves.

3. The most broad and exclusive reversion of all such lands which in course of time might prove exploitable, whether they are adapted to colonization or not.

An English Globe.

England's interest may be thus shortly summed up—that the globe must become English.

More than a fifth part of the world's land is hers already. Over a great part of the remaining fourfifths—even if invisible, yet recognized by competent judges — the English flag already flutters.

Whosoever opposes England's efforts for the complete Anglicisation of the world, he is the enemy!

Ethnological superiority did not make England what she was, but the insular position in conjunction with its proper use for the acquisition of colonies and the extension of British commerce three hundred years ago.

English policy is as transparent in its duplicity as her means for carrying it out were simple. The "will to world-sway" underlies it; her geographical position — the gift of the gods — permitted its execution. Nature gave England the key to conquer the world and lock others out.

Some Angry Sentiments.

Luther's works were translated into English; since then the heavens themselves have become an exclusively British domain. England's will to the "arbitrium mundi" is the real cause of the war, not the supposititious desire to preserve the "balance of power."

Rome's Punic wars for the possession of Carthage resemble England's wars. These latter, however, are far more numerous, because the Carthage to be gained is ever changing. History knows of no country which throughout the centuries has carried on such an unscrupulous, unswerving policy. In the past there is hardly a counterpart in Rome — in the present perhaps only in Japan.

The German Fly.

In this web of the big spider, Germany is to be caught as the fly! Every implement of English diplomacy, clean or foul, from Boy Scouts to street corner poets, has been employed. Even friendly America had to be goaded into contempt and enmity against a nation which showed her nothing but kindliness. And so we see a nation of 68,000,000 people, which not so very many years ago, threw off the chains of British thraldom in the proud impetus of freedom, living unknowingly in the spiritual bondage of England.

Do not let us be angry with them. The day of awakening will come for them, too!

We, however, shall continue faithful to the verdict of an iron determination, by which the nation has sent its sons into the field to play their part in a war unequalled in the history of the world. This verdict is: "We must conquer — we wish to conquer—we can conquer."

The enemy is England. The prize is freedom. We will strive our utmost, because our whole nation has made up its mind, completely and firmly, to extend her forces freely in the future.

The world must not become a British prison! That is the thundered word and will of the German nation.

Letter From Local Boy Appears In Rochester Paper

Gunner Herbert J. Rush Writes of the Conditions at Ypres

The following from the Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat refers to a well-known Peterborough boy, Gunner Herb. Rush, who is at the front with the 26th Field Battery detachment.

Herbert J. Rush, who at the time England became a combatant in the European war, was a member of the choir of Christ Episcopal Church in this city, is now with the British expeditionary force in active service in Belgium, is in the trenches, and hopes the "boom, boom, boom of battle soon will cease."

So much is learned from a letter received yesterday from him by Mrs. Charles Richards, of No. 29 South Union street who was a school mate of Rush's mother, and which is written on stationery that bears the triangular emblem of the Y.M.C.A. It reads:

"I thought you would like to know something of what is going on at the real front. It is most tumultuous. I can assure you.

"The shells and bombs have been sailing around here for the last four days and nights, and Ypres has been almost vacated by its people and soldiers of the British army.

Heroism Among Wounded.

"Two of our boys were wounded last night. One showed great bravery. When the other fell he assisted him to his feet and also to the hospital. But when they arrived there the heroic assistant was found to be more seriously wounded. They are resting quite easily to-day.

"I was up at the hospital Sunday morning. It was pitiful to see the different wounded. One man's face was completely blown off, but still he was quite cheerful, waving to his comrades as they passed. Others had wounds in their arms and legs, but they bore them courageously.

"The civilians are coming out of the town in crowds through the day and go back at night to sleep in the cellars.

"The weather here is just like Canada now—lots of sunshine and dust. Daffodils are growing all over. They seem to be the prevailing flower just now.

"We are quite comfortable living in our huts. We have some hardships, necessarily, but they are included in this unpleasant game.

Many Canadians Fall.

"A number of Canadians have fallen. An old friend of mine was killed March 22nd (the letter bears the date of April 22nd) I was talking to him a few days before. He had been in the trenches and was quite jovial about it.

"You see the boys are under the wing of the Y.M.C.A. and it is very much appreciated. We have a library and can obtain a few necessities here.

"I hope this 'boom, boom, boom' note will sound to a close soon."

Rush, who is about 24 years of age, came to Rochester from his home in Peterborough, Canada, about two years ago and obtained a position with the Stromberg-Carlson company.

WOUNDED CANADIAN WRITES OF LANGEMARCK BATTLE

"CANADIANS DIED NOT IN VAIN"

TORONTO, May 11.—An account of experience at the Battle of Langemarck is given by Private T. W. Clarke, "A" company 7th Battalion, first Canadian contingent, in a letter to his father, W. H. Clarke, of Toronto. Private Clarke was twice wounded during the fighting, and wrote from No. 3 Convalescent Depot, Marlborough Boulogne, France, where he was rapidly recovering his strength. He expected to be fit again in a few weeks at most.

He expresses the hope that "Canada will seek consolation for the loss of so many of our fellows in the fact that the price was not paid in vain." He continues his narrative as follows:

"Our brigade was called out at midnight on the 22nd, and we went into action at daybreak of the 23rd. Every man knew what was in store, with a clean sweep of open country ahead of us and the Germans entrenched on a ridge; but we had all been brought home to the toll of misery that Belgium had been paying, and when the refugees around our billeting place showed a confidence in our fellows to keep the Germans back, our fellows didn't heed any urging to go anywhere, and every man would have died on the field rather than quit.

"We advanced our platoons at about 100 yards interval and our battalion was first in action on our lines of frontage. "A" Company was pretty lucky until we got about four hundred yards from their trenches, where I got my first 'German souvenir,' a ricochet bullet square between the eyes. We had just crossed a road, and as my right eye closed up almost immediately, I handed over my bandolier of ammunition and started to crawl to the ditch alongside the road. Our fellows were getting it on all sides now, and the machine gun and shell fire was sure hell. I got one through the left arm about half-way between shoulder and elbow, and had to let my rifle go then. Another fellow from my platoon and a stretcher-bearer who had been hit while carrying off wounded joined me, and we gradually worked our way off to the flank out of the hottest part of the shell fire.

"Private Clarke says that when he and his companions reached the field first aid station a regular stream of wounded Canadians was arriving. They were picked up by field ambulances and taken to the field hospital, where they were treated for infection, etc., and passed on to the shipping hospital, whence he was taken to Boulogne by a hospital train which he described as "a model of comfort." He spent the night at the 13th General Hospital at Boulogne, where he and others had to sleep on stretchers because every available bed was occupied by seriously wounded men, and next day was sent to the convalescent depot, where among the thousand men recovering from wounds he found twenty of his comrades.

Mourns Capt. Glover.

Private Clarke speaks of the death of Capt. Glover, the adjutant of the 4th battalion. "In him," he says, "we have lost the 'idol of the battalion'; none know better than the lads whom he often defended in their petty offences how well he deserved the name of gentleman and soldier, too, one of the finest fellows that ever wore a Canadian uniform. Thank Heaven, like so many of our lads, he died on Belgian soil!

"I suppose the Canadian people will be somewhat shocked over our heavy losses," he says in conclusion, "but they ought to realize that it was coming to our fellows, and, after all, is only a little, very little, of what the British regiments have been getting ever since the war started, so surely we can't complain."

The funeral of the late Glenford Sisson will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his mother's home in Cavanville to St. John's cemetery at Ida. # WRIST WATCH TO GEORGE CARTER FROM THE LOCAL POSTMEN

The postmen yesterday presented a wrist watch to their late fellow employee, George Carter, who went to Belleville with the other local recruits this morning. The affair was entirely informal. C. S. Stenton made the presentation, at the same time saying farewell on behalf of the postmen, and extending their wishes for Private Carter's safe keeping.

HEART WOULD PALPITATE.

HAD WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

Palpitation of the heart is one of the most common of all heart troubles. The heart will beat fast, sometimes, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over the system accompanied by faint and dizzy spells, making you feel that you are surely going to die. When you feel this way what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; and that will strengthen the weak heart and build up the nerve system. For this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was over so much better within a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been benefited with heart trouble ever since childhood and finds great relief in using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NO HAIR CROP FOR CONVICTS

OTTAWA, May 11.—Reform in the matter of the [illegible] service in Canada is under consideration by the Minister of Justice, Hon. C. J. Doherty. The draft of the new regulations which are to govern the penitentiaries in Canada has been prepared and submitted to the Minister's approval. While the underlying principle leads towards a more humane system of treatment for the convicts, it is not proposed that they be allowed to live a life of absolute ease.

Reforms to be Made.

Reforms which it is proposed to inaugurate include the establishment of reformatories for young prisoners and first offenders, a system of classification based on the conduct of prisoners, the abolition of the stone pile and the substitution of outside labour as far as possible, abolition of close cropping of the hair, of the housing of convicts as bathing, their confinement in cells and dungeons, and the establishment of separate hospitals for the criminal insane.

It is further intended to amend the Criminal Code to permit of indeterminate sentences.

marching order and ended up in a crowded barn, the straw in which, like Kipling's cat—"walks by itself". Of course we have also very busy days for a spell and do little but physical drill before breakfast, parade and drill from nine until noon, with another parade from two until five. The afternoon parade is often a route march or athletic sports. We do quite a lot of "doubling." Yesterday the platoon, in light marching order, did a mile on the road in eleven and one-half minutes. When you remember that it was a warm, sunny day and every man carries rifle, ammunition, haversack, water bottle, and trenching tool, you will see that we are in fair condition for a scrap. I am much heavier and browner than before I came, and by this time most of us find a rifle about the same weight as a cloak. You need to for you have to be quick with the bayonet. That is what I really wish to be in—series of charges, with an occasional bayonet fight; till then, you cannot be absolutely sure of your men; not that I doubt our infantry, but a man naturally likes to have his confidence in others proved good.

"It's the shell fire we are getting accustomed to that. Unless the bally thing blows right in on top of you there is no need to worry. We carry on here very much as we do at home. Occasionally you have to pull yourself together and keep smiling.

The Germans or "allyman" as they are called here, are a brave, chivalrous and cunning enemy. They are fearfully in earnest and, I believe, dislike us. They are said to fear the bayonet, but I have not proved that yet. As to their brutality of course an invaded country does not much of a time, and after you have marched through burning villages or flaming farms and have seen some other sights you realize that war is the depth of hell. These things look magnificent in pictures and read well, but the real thing is too real. Luckily I have no nerves to worry me, for if you let your mind dwell on all you see and hear you would soon be raving. You get toughened to anything and just go on with the game.

A friend in London sent me a magnificent pair of field glasses. At three hundred yards on a fine day you could spy a sparrow on a window sill. They are absolutely necessary in such fighting for you can have Germans seventy yards away for a week, day and night, and perhaps never see one of the beggars.

I do not think that the war will end soon and I expect to be here another six months or a year, provid-

Sergt. Field came to Peterborough in October, 1912, from Montreal. He originally resided in Barbadoes, West Indies. ### LANCE CORPORAL EDWIN E. HAYDEN.

The death of Lance Corporal Hayden, announced to-day, will probably leave the deepest heartache with the Old Country lass who was willing and eager to become his war bride last fall. hTey were engaged to be married even before the war broke out. Edwin Hayden had intended to return to England to marry his sweetheart and return with her to Peterborough. It was a rosy little dream for both of them. But then came the war clouds. Hayden who was an employee of the Peterborough Lock Works, enlisted with the first contingent. During his leaves at Salisbury his marriage was doubtless mentioned, but apparently he believed it in the best interests of his fiancee that she wait until he had returned from the war. In the event of anything happening to him he felt it would be best for her if she were single. Friends express these opinions, and in any event Hayden and his sweetheart did not wed. His old home is at 34 Monmouth Road, Lower Edmonton, London, Eng. He was about 34 or 35 years of age and boarded with Mrs. Parrish at 491 1-2 Gilmour Street. His happiest moments were spent in soldiering, and after his enlistment he was on edge to get to Valcartier. He joined the contingent as private and was promoted to Lance-Corporal. Somewhere between Langemarck and St. Julien he gave his life with so many other brave boys in stopping the German juggernaut's second attempt to reach Calais.

SIGNALLER EDGAR BROWN.

Signaller Edgar Brown, appearing in to-day's casualty list as killed, was employed as floor walker in the local store of F. W. Woolworth & Co., coming to Peterborough from the firm's establishment in Galt, where he had previously been employed. His relatives live in London, Eng. Signaller Brown had been a member of No. 8 Company of the 57th Regiment, and when he enlisted for the front decided to try for the signalling corps of the 2nd Battalion, and was successful in his endeavours. He was a genial, amiable young man, who made many friends during his residence in Peterborough. He was a member of St. John's church and of the local Y.M.C.A. Signaller Brown boarded at the home of Mrs. Shaw, 375 Sherbrooke Street.

LETTER FROM LATE MAJOR BENNETT

Was Written on the Eve of the Battle in Which Major Bennett Lost His Life

The appended letter was received from the late Major G. W. Bennett, by Miss Elsie Staples, aged ten years, and daughter of Mr. T. H. Staples, Rural route No. 8, North Monaghan. The letter was dated in Belgium April 22nd, or the day before the commencement of the battle in which Major Bennett lost his life.

The letter follows:

Belgium, April 22, 1915.

My Dear Ella,—I was very much delighted to get your splendid letter to-night.

I have been thinking of you all and home for several days. We have been having a rest-up and clean-up for a couple of weeks, after our hard service in the trenches, and are now moving up to the front where some fighting is going on again. I was so glad to hear you all were well so Mary has got going to school. I guess she has outgrown you, but you are able to wallop her yet, no doubt. I won't know the horses when I see them. You ought to see the farms in this country. I'll have great stories to tell when I see you about them. You know we soldiers are always billeted, (you will have to look that word up in your dictionary) with the farmers. There is a farm house here on every 5 or 10 acres, and the all keep cows, hens and pigs, and everything lives in the same building, which is built in the form of a square around a manure pile in the centre. The people here never set a table for meals, just cut a piece of dry bread and drink coffee, sitting around the room. There are no dishes to wash nor much cooking to do. I watched a great battle in the sky to-day, nearly over my head. It lasted for about two hours. A great many shells fell on a large town about four miles away yesterday, last night and to-day. About two hundred people were put out of business. The cannons are roaring now while I am writing this. I have just made my rounds to see that all my lads are in and lights out. It is just 8:30 p.m.; has been dark a few minutes. If our lights are not out we are likely to have hot shells for breakfast, as the Germans fire at any visible light they may see in the evening. I have lost about 20 men, by sickness since coming to this country, but have had them replaced nearly by others from England, and my company is now up to full strength. I am going to stay in this country for the war. I was over in England for the first time since I was in London, about Xmas. I am sitting on it now. It's a dandy, soft as dough. The spring wheat is about completed here. Every farmer grows hopse here, and drinks beer, and they keep cows, as the principal crop, making butter and beer, is the chief work. They all churn with a dog, and a great many do their driving to market with dogs. Every farmer has one horse or a donkey. The horse is as big as two of ours, and he hauls the farm waggon and ploughs as easy as a team at home. Now, Ella, be sure and write me again and tell Mary to write too. I want to answer many letters, as we are going up to the firing line to-morrow and do not know when we will get back, so I cannot tell you any more. Give my kind regards to your mother and father, and keep lots for the kiddies.

Yours affectionately,
G. W. BENNETT.

Fire, Water and Light Committee Recommend Purchase of 600 Feet

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council has recommended the purchase of six hundred feet of standard fire hose, three hundred feet to be purchased from the Gutta Percha Company, at one dollar per foot, and three hundred feet from the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Company, at one dollar and five cents a foot. A whole raft of representatives from the different firms who make a specialty of manufacturing fire hose, were present. They demonstrated the landscape in the vicinity of the city hall, until finally they were admitted into the aldermanic chamber, where they were permitted to waste much valuable time in an endeavour to verbally demonstrate the superiority of their goods over those offered by their competitors. Members were brought to a head when it was moved by Ald. Dowson, seconded by Ald. Green, that six hundred feet of standard fire hose be purchased from the above Gutta Percha firm.

A Peterborough deputation comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Messrs B. D. Hall, President of the Board of Trade; T. F. Matthews, W. H. Denham, City Clerk Armstrong, and a number of others are in Belleville in connection with the district meeting of the Hydro Electric Railway Association, which is being held to-day. Mr. T. F. Matthews is district chairman. The meeting is to be held in the city hall commencing at one-thirty o'clock this afternoon. Every municipality in the district has been asked to be represented by one or more delegates. The matter of the organization of the district or of its division into two or more districts, and other matters of importance will be considered.

The Objects.

The Hydro-Electric Railway Association of Ontario is an Association formed for the purpose of developing a system of railways in the Province of Ontario, owned by municipalities, and constructed and operated for them by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, under the Hydro-Electric Railway Act. The railways are intended to benefit the farmers by giving them more ready and cheaper access to markets, and supplying them with electric power for use on farms adjacent to the lines, and to benefit the urban communities by placing them in closer touch with the producers.

At the last meeting of the Association the Province was divided into a number of districts, one of them being the Trent Valley District, comprising the Counties of Frontenac, Lennox, Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, and Peterborough.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Isn't it hideous that Mr. Burnham unloads in last night's Review, a long line of literary drivel about politics, and states that he is in favour of an election. Who cares about an election, the National Transcontinental or anything else? Mr. Burnham says he was against an election at first, but frankly and honestly he thinks he is now in favour of it, and suggests that they keep out of discussion, the matter of the war. No doubt this would suit Mr. Burnham, that the graft, thieving and pillaging of the Dominion Treasury should be hidden and should not be discussed; but if there is an election, the story of Sam. Hughes' stenographer, who obtained a patent in eight days, through his influence, for a trenching shovel, and then the Militia Department buying thousands of these trenching shovels, will be very interesting discussion for the electors, as well as the thirty year old horses sold to the Government for cavalry purposes.

Mr. Burnham must think that there are more chumps in Peterborough than he had at first suspected, if he assumes that he graft of the war will be kept out of any discussion if an election is pulled off. Anyway, he need not concern himself much about elections, because he will be working with the rank and file and not as a candidate if I can read the signs of the times. It is pretty sure now that there will not be an election, because a large number of men were hired on the canal a short time ago when the thing was getting hot, and they were all let go the other day; so it is pretty certain that that there is no intention of having an election soon.

When the news came in the other day of young men killed in action, surely Mr Burnham can call off his offensive political suggestions for a few weeks until we have time for thoughtful consideration of the dark days that are hovering about us.

Yours truly,
"Conservative."

... ST. TEAM WON THE BASKET BALL LEAGUE

The Intermediate Sunday-School Basketball League was brought to a successful close last night when George Street and Knox, who were tied for first place, met to decide the league. But the South-enders proved easy prey for the North-end quartette, who piled up a score of 20 points to the Knox team's 7. The game was clean and fast all the way through. The George Street boys have put up the best brand of basketball right through the league, so that their victory last night was no surprise to their large group of followers. The league has been a very successful one, as it has brought out a number of boys who have found their ability in the game. A baseball league is to be formed for this semi-group of boys. Watch for the announcement of meeting.

Well Known Athletes Off To Fight The Germans

Two well known athletes left Peterborough this morning in the person of Pte. Stanley and Allan Wade, sons of Mr. Ed. Wade, London Street, who go with the latest 57th detachment off to the front.

Pte. Stanley Wade, the elder of the two, has distinguished himself in athletics generally. While at the local Collegiate he won the McDonald cup, emblematic of the junior athletic championship. He started his hockey career with the Alberdeens. Later he made his O.H.A. debut with the Peterborough Junior O.H.A. team. For several years he resided in Hamilton and played hockey for the Hamilton Rowing Club. At Hamilton, too, he broke into the rugby game and soon distinguished himself. The first year out he played for the Rowing Club juniors and the second season was at inside wing for the Rowing Club when they won the senior championship of the O.R.F.U. Pte. Wade on his return to Peterborough last winter, played hockey with the George Street church team in the Church Hockey League.

Pte. Allen Wade is a very promising baseball pitcher, and he showed his class last Saturday when he twirled a no-hit game for the Empires against the Classics in a City League fixture. He will be greatly missed by the Empire Club.

BASEBALL

The East City baseball team will practice to-morrow evening at Riverside Park at 6.15 o'clock.

In a scheduled game of baseball played yesterday afternoon on the King Edward school grounds, the King Edward team won from the Central school by the score of 9-4. The batteries were as follows: For King Edward, Fred Biondon, Phil Taylor and Jack Daynard, and for Central, Bobs Cavanagh and Galbraith.

South Central defeated Queen Mary on the grounds of the latter by a score of 15 to 4 on Monday evening.

South Central Batteries—Beiler, Butler, Montgomery.

Queen Mary Batteries — Dunnett, Pattinson, Pogue.

Umpire—Lloyd Stewart.

ONE GERMAN WHO IS WEARY OF THE STRUGGLE

One of the most interesting sidelights in connection with the desperate conflict in France and Flanders, and the outbursts of humour that takes shape even in the most tragic circumstances, is from the pen of Mr. C. G. Harper, English artist and author who is at the front with the British troops. In the letter to the Autocar he says:

There came slowly into view a straggling squad of bandaged warriors, with a guarded figure in their midst. He was bareheaded, he wore the gray trousers of a German soldier, and yet he had a short thick khaki overcoat.

What is it, Scotty?" asked one of the soldiers of the foremost among this new party, whose shoulder straps with the letters S. G. proclaimed him one of the Scots Guards.

"Search Me," Says Tommy.

Guess what it is, an' I'll give it yer, said Scotty, adjusting a bandage where his cap ought to have been. His hand came away from it red.

They've nailed some out of you, too?"

Yes, said Scotty, indifferently, caught it on the napper But you guess what his is, Adolphus, an' you shall 'ave it, and he jerked a head toward the prisoner, for such evidently he was.

Adolphus walked up to the prisoner, looked him up and down, and said, with characteristic humour: Don't want it; I've giv' up the entire business.

The prisoner puffed out with suppressed wrath at this, and uttered one ejaculation, 'Damfool!'

Gw! Adolphus sprang back with well simulated horror, it's alive! and then, with intense conviction, It's German!

Well, then, said Adolphus, I'll trade it away for a penny packet o' fags (cigarettes). Don't speak all at once, he added sadly when no offers were forthcoming. Look 'ere! suddenly to the German, Who did you get them togs off? That's a British khaki overcoat 'e's got on, he explained turning to me, That's what they do when they captures some of our chaps. Takes their overcoats and cuts them short like this, an' wears 'em. An' look at me!

Prisoner Some Object.

I looked as him as desired; he was well worth a glance. A military blanket with a hole cut in the middle of it for passing the head through served him by way of a flowing cloak until a belt restrained it at the waist. Convenient slits gave play to the arms.

You'd better off with that coat, again, he said to the German. Some of our chaps if they catches yer wearing it might shoot yer (The-neccessity made haste to take it off). Where are you going, continued Adolphus, interrupting to endeavour to impress as well as you or me. Ler', I'll 'ike to boot 'im, so I would, and he aggressively lifted one of his substantial ammunition boots.

Oh, some off it! exclaimed one of the group. Adolphus, accordingly, came off, and took the coat, grumbling. The German, thus stripped of his borrowed plumes, stood fully revealed.

Didn't Want to Fight.

Ow did yer get it? asked Adolphus of the Scots Guard, nodding toward the prisoner.

Picked 'im 'up lyin' on 'is face. Thought 'e was wounded, but 'e was only doin' a mike. Shammin' dead, wasn't yer? he said.

The prisoner smiled amiably, as though he was rather proud of it than otherwise. Je; you take me prisoner — I shall nodt wandt to fight, no; I do nodt wandt to be kicked. Gottordam! How hard the commandant kicks.

That was it. Here was one of the many thousands that the German military machine had put into the field against their will. He had been in Bloomsbury, he told me, before the outbreak of the war, lodging in one of the innumerable German boarding houses of that district, and reading at the British Museum. He proudly said he was doctor of philosophy, and his father was a Herr professor.

Defies Fateful Diamond, Weds Aged Owner

DENVER, Col., May 16—Weary of the solitude and loneliness which descended on his home and heart on the death of his wife, Maria Evaline Brind, November 8th, last, J. Fritz Brind has taken to himself a second wife, who was Miss Antoinette Le Brun of Chicago.

The drawing room of the Brind mansion, so recently the scene of mourning, was gay with Spring flowers, when Miss Le Brun, fair and forty, and Brind, brunette and sixty, stood before the Rev. George B. Vosburgh to be married.

The bride, a musician of distinction, a direct descendant of that famous beauty and artist of the court of Louis XIV of France, Mme. Vigee Le Brun, met Brind several weeks ago at the home of her sister, Mrs. Herbert De Bollar. The attachment between the lonely widower and the charming artist, based on kindred tastes and congenial temperaments, was a thing of sudden flowering.

Wins Fateful Diamond.

When he first met his bride Brind was passing through the unpleasant ordeal of contesting the will of the first Mrs. Brind, wherein he had been cut off with a humiliating bequest, amounting to $2,000, which, it was stipulated, was to be used in buying an automobile.

The balance of the estate, amounting to more than $10,000, was bequeathed to numerous charities in which Mrs. Evaline Brind had taken an interest during her life. The contest instituted by Brind resulted in his obtaining half of the property.

Included in the estate of Maria Evaline Brind was the famous Isabella diamond, once the property of the late H. A. W. Tabor, valued at many thousands of dollars, and guaranteed by its history to bring bad luck to any one possessing or wearing it.

This diamond, a large, pure white gem, of frigid beauty, is said to have gleamed from the white breast of Isabella, of Spain, in the days when that millionaire queen listened to the dream talk of Christopher Columbus. Its history, as related to the Colorado millionaires who wanted it for his beautiful bride, included a series of needless bloodshed wherever owned it. But against these traditions the hardy mine owners staked the Tabor luck—and lost.

ENGLSIH WOMEN AS FARM HANDS

The women and girls of England seem to be missing no opportunity to make themselves useful while the nation's peril calls so many men away from their usual occupations. The suffragists seem to have forgotten their "cause" for the time being and are as busy as any of their sisters in working for the comfort of the soldiers and caring for the wounded.

And now, with the planting season at hand, these women are cheerfully answering the call of farmers throughout the United Kingdom, who are hard pressed for help to get their crops planted. One of the important London daily newspapers keeps a register to facilitate such employment.

New introductions of willing women workers, most of them with useful experience, are made every [illegible] who are short of labour; earlier introductions having been made during the last fortnight, and resulting in engagements of women by farmers at an unusually rapid rate.

A gratifying development of the register is that, not only are women workers being found to take the places of men who have enlisted in the new armies, but farmers, seeing the enormous amount of women labour at their disposal, and the willing helpers introduced with such satisfactory effect by the Daily Express farm register to their neighbours, write that they now find they can release more men than they at first considered practicable.

The register, therefore, in addition to carrying out its original purpose by filling vacancies caused by men joining the colours, has also become a direct means of recruiting. The work on the farms continues just the same; the only difference is that women now till the soil and feed the stock instead of the men who are fighting.

Early in April the newspaper announced that more farmers were needed to avoid thousands of willing services on the land offered by hundreds of women on the register.

A few days ago this register called [illegible] for women on the [illegible] estate of a large institution which has its headquarters in London. The warden now writes that two of the candidates have already been engaged, two others are under consideration, and, what is still more satisfactory, additional posts can be allotted to women if similarly suitable applications are forthcoming.

A method for sterilizing against insect, germ and fungus life, the ground into which posts are to be set has been invented by an Austrian scientist.

... FOR HIS WIFE

... for his wife, a singer of local prominence. Shortly afterward Powell died and the late William Barth became the gem's owner. The tragedy clouding the last days of William Barth is of recent date, but some time before he died Mrs. Brind bought the Isabella and dedied the "evil eye" by wearing it on formal social occasions.

Whether Brind and his new wife will dare fate and their new-found happiness by continuing in possession of the Isabella diamond, they declined to say.

The Brinds are honeymooning in the luxurious Brind mansion, which it is claimed by their friends, will become the centre of Denver's artistic and musical life when Mrs. Brind opens its doors and bid society come in.

Arthur Fitzgerald Injured By a Fall

Right Arm Broken and Elbow Dislocated on Monday Morning

Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald, 6th concession Smith, sustained a broken arm and dislocated elbow when he fell yesterday morning from a load of hay on to the barn floor. He was obtaining the hay from a neighbour and was on top of the load trussing it with a stout cord which broke when he was pulling it to tie in. Mr. Fitzgerald fell to the floor, alighting on his head. He was unconscious for some time and was severely injured by the fall. His right arm was broken above the elbow and the elbow was dislocated. Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, attended him.

Seven Oaks to Be Transformed Into Lumber Very Soon

Seven Oaks, a familiar milestone on the Otonabee, between Hales and the second bridge, has begun to number its days. Arthur Thompson has purchased them and intends to cut them down for timber one of these days. At a point practically half way between Peterborough and Rice Lake the seven oaks rise prominently on the Monaghan bank. They form a scattered clump which attracted general attention and sheltered with their shade many a canoeist and camper.

Exiled Dog Dies of Broken Heart

NEW YORK, May 12.—Surrounded by her little friends, Edna Gilligan, owner of the Old Historic Inn at Clason Point, in the Bronx, yesterday buried her pet dog, which she said had died of a broken heart.

The day after Edna was born Mr. Gilligan presented to her Dot, a Scotch collie puppy. The little girl and the dog grew up together and when four Edna from drowning in Long Island Sound. Dot appeared to be ailing last week and Edna said she overheard her father say that he was to send the dog to Staten Island. Edna took Dot to her bedroom and told Dot to run away and come back every now and then and see her. The animal disappeared on Wednesday but returned Friday. Creeping up to the room of her mistress Dot died. After the dogs funeral Edna said:—

"Dot died of a broken heart because she couldn't stay with us any more."

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is sour in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, still a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of quieting it of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

Serious Anti-German Rioting Is Taking Place In England

Crowds of Men and Women Paraded the Streets, Breaking Windows of Several Butcher Shops Conducted by Men With German Names—Due to Lusitania Disaster

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 12.—Serious anti-German rioting was renewed to-day in East London. Crowds of men and women paraded the street, breaking the windows of several butcher shops conducted by men with German names, and throwing the furniture and supplies into the streets. The crowd also threatened the Germans with physical violence. The police were temporarily powerless. Several German butchers were mobbed in Smithfield market, and thrown into the street. One was chased to Farrington street station, and finally drew a revolver, with which he stood off a crowd that was threatening him with death, until a train came along, which he boarded and escaped, the rioting and anti-German demonstrations seem to be spreading throughout the Islands. At Liverpool Germans are unable to appear on the streets, and many have voluntarily sought internment in prison camps to protect themselves from violence.

DUE TO SINKING OF LUSITANIA.

LONDON, May 12.—Never since the war began has such a wave of anti-German feeling surged through the country as at the present time. It is due entirely to the sinking of the Lusitania.

Workmen in the industrial districts are refusing to labour alongside men of German birth, whether they are naturalized or not. In many towns the premises occupied by Germans have been stormed and damaged or destroyed, and even the exchanges in London and provincial towns, which hitherto had permitted persons with German blood in their veins to retain their membership, are taking the drastic steps of barring the doors to them, regardless of all considerations.

There have been riots in Liverpool, Manchester, Salford and Birkenhead. In Liverpool the Germans have been interned, and those who are naturalized subjects of Great Britain have been advised to go to interior towns or seek internment. Many of them have decided upon the latter course.

RIOTS IN EAST END.

The East End of London last night was the scene of serious anti-German riots, arising from the indignation over the sinking of the Lusitania and the air raid on Southend early Monday morning.

Mob attacks on German shops occurred in the Poplar, Limehouse, Stepney, Walthamstow, Bethnal Green and Camden Town, and other districts. Windows were smashed, shutters and doors were torn down and premises wrecked, and in some instances the inmates of the houses were maltreated. Large bodies of police were called out to suppress the disturbances, and eventually order was restored, but there is apprehension that the trouble will be renewed to-night in an aggravated form.

At Queen's Crescent, Camden Town, where an open-air recruiting meeting was being held, the speakers advised the crowd to refrain from attacks on Germans. This advice was unheeded, however, and directly the meeting ended, a crowd of about 5,000 persons made a move upon all the German shops in the neighbourhood and pelted the windows with brickbats.

The police were unable to control the rioters, and a squad of Territorials was brought to the scene, and, together with the mounted police, gradually restored order. This was not done, however, until a number of bakeries and other shops had been wrecked.

U. S. Will Ask the Kaiser To Guarantee Safety of American Lives

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 12.—President Wilson laid before his Cabinet yesterday the fundamentals of the policy he will pursue in dealing with the destruction of American lives on the Lusitania and other serious complaints which the United States has against German operations in the war zone.

The Cabinet discussed the policy for three hours and at the conclusion of the meeting members felt that the course which is to be followed by this Government had been decided upon.

This is a general outline of the policy:

The President will wait a day or two before making any definite disclosure of the steps to be taken. At the conclusion of this period a note will be sent to Germany carefully phrased so as to express the abhorrence of the United States at the sinking of the Lusitania and the resentment of this Government at the attacks of the Gulflight and the Cushing. At the same time every effort will be made consistent with firmness to avoid statements which might be construed by Germany as justification for a declaration of war.

In this note President Wilson, it is understood, will ask for reparation in the Lusitania and other cases involving the destruction of American life and property, and will call upon the German Government for assurances and guarantees in the future as to the protection of the lives of Americans upon the high seas. A formal disavowal of any intention on the part of the German Government to destroy American lives and property probably also will be sought.

Placed Onus on Germany.

If there is any previous rupture with Germany as the result of these representations that Government and not the United States will be responsible. The plan of the Administration in this note is to avoid any open break with Germany and to lay the entire onus on any warlike move upon the Kaiser's Government. If there is war between the United States and Germany it will be of Germany's making. The situation results from the note to be sent by the United States will be just as serious as Germany herself may desire to make it.

By delaying the note to Germany for a short time President Wilson hopes that the horror which the country now feels at Germany's acts will have cooled in a measure so as to permit of the consideration by the people of the country of legal points that have been presented as partial justification for the German submarine policy.

Should be Interned Until End of the War

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, May 12—So serious has the "alien enemy" problem become that a special cabinet meeting was called to-day to discuss it. There is a growing feeling that all persons of German, Turkish or Austrian birth, whether naturalized or not, should be interned until the end of the war. It is believed that the Cabinet will authorize such action as an internal peace measure owing to the growing anti-German riots throughout the country.

Germans Attacking Are Mowed Down By British Near Ypres

French Continue to Make Progress and Great Losses Are Being Inflicted on the Enemy—Many Prisoners Have Been Taken

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 12.—The most desperate fighting of the war is now in progress in France and in the Ypres district. The allies have assumed the offensive at various points along the line, and are inflicting great losses on the enemy, in addition to capturing many prisoners and have made substantial gains.

The battle might be divided into three sections. From the coast to Dixmude the Belgians, supported by French marines, have taken the offensive, and, besides repulsing German counter-attacks, have gained a footing on the right bank of the Yser Canal. Around Ypres, particularly to the east of that town, the Germans continue to attack the British lines, and are again using gas and a tremendous amount of artillery, but, according to the British version, without making any impression. Further to the south, as far as Arras, the French continue their offensive, and have made very material progress, capturing a number of Germans, with guns and machine guns.

The greatest importance is attached to the French operations, as it threatens the German lines of communications for the armies on the Oise and the Aisne. The result of this battle, which doubtless will not be decided for days, is awaited with deep interest.

According to the official report, the Germans, the railway lines having been damaged by allied airmen, have brought up reinforcements by motor cars. These have been met by the concentrated fire of the French artillery.

In fact, the artillery is becoming more and more the determining factor of the war.

Around Ypres the Germans, before launching their attacks, which have been delivered on successive days, thoroughly searched the ground with heavy and light guns, subjecting the British to a bombardment such they themselves received at Neuve Chapelle. Officers and men who have escaped from it state that the trenches were utterly destroyed and the ground churned up by the shells.

Nevertheless, the British found some kind of shelter, and when the German infantry tried to advance they were mowed down.

THE OFFICIAL STORY.

The French official communiques yesterday were unusually lengthy, and may be thus summarized.

To the north of Dixmude the Belgian troops, who have succeeded in throwing up a bridge-head on the right bank of the Yser, were subjected to violent attacks by the German battalions, but repulsed the enemy, inflicting upon him heavy losses and taking about 50 prisoners. To the east of Ypres the British troops were attacked again with asphyxiating gases. They, however, allowed the fumes to pass over under the protection of masks recently put into use, and by rifle and machine gun fire annihilated at the very point of their guns the German columns which had advanced in close formation.

Canadians Keen As Ever To Get Back Into Trenches

LONDON, May 12—Major Paul Hanson of the 14th Battalion, Montreal, and formerly of the Dunlop Tire Company of Toronto, has reached a private hospital at Kensington from Wimereux, France, where he had been in the Anglo-American hospital since he was wounded on April 22. It was while getting through a hedge single file that Major Hanson was hit by a bullet. Captain Knubley of Montreal (who was wounded later, losing a leg), passed through the gap first, the German shots missing him, but when Major Hanson followed a bullet went completely through his right thigh. This was on Thursday evening, when Major Hanson was leading his company close up to the Germans. Instructing the company to go forward Major Hanson was assisted by a trooper to crawl to a shell-hole, where he lay for several hours exposed to artillery fire. Later Private Matthews helped him back to St. Julien.

Major Hanson states that the enemy took possession of all his personal effects, including a stock of tobacco and cigarettes. The injury to his thigh has caused temporary paralysis below the knee, resulting in great pain, and it is possible that Major Hanson will be sent back for a prolonged rest.

Major Hanson states that his recommendation of a D.C.M. to Private Drake has been accepted. This will be the first award of its kind in the Canadian Division.

Col. Carson, just returned from the front, says that he found the Canadians as keen as ever to get back into the trenches. They are not in the least downhearted.

It is understood that the Canadians have just taken over again.

LOSSES OF GERMANS ARE OVERWHELMING

Russian War Office Admits a Gradual Retreat—Germans Maintained a Frontal Attack For 9 Days

CASUALTIES HEAVY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, May 12.—Although admitting a gradual retreat and very heavy losses to their own forces, the Russian War Office declared to-day that the losses of the Germans are overwhelming.

For nine days, the War Office says, a general frontal assault on fortified positions has been maintained by the Germans and Austrians. The enemy [illegible] the report says, and it has been necessary for the Russians gradually to retire.

In the movement the Russians have taken all of their cannon, munitions and camp equipment with them.

The many Russian prisoners taken by the Germans are said to have been for the most part wounded, who were unable to follow the gradual Russian retreat. The Russian lines in Galicia are now said to be holding new positions and checking the German advance.

In the Baltic Provinces the Germans are now reported to be slowly retreating. The Russian forces have been heavily reinforced.

Turned Turtle Near Omemee

Automobile Accident in Which One Man Was Seriously Injured

Examiner Special:

LINDSAY, May 12.—While motoring south of Omemee early yesterday, a Lindsay party met with a serious accident, when the auto turned turtle, throwing the occupants out into the ditch.

It is understood that the car was owned by Mr. Jack Perrin, while Mr. Morrison was at the wheel. Both are Grand Trunk brakesmen. The former is apparently the only occupant who suffered serious injury, and he is at present in Omemee under the doctor's care.

Just how the accident ocurred is not known, but it is understood that the party when running up a slight grade, failed to see the turn in the road and went over into the ditch. The car is said to have turned turtle two or three times. Mr. E. Lennie, of the Williams' Garage, went to the scene of the accident yesterday, and although the car was badly damaged, he managed to place it in running order again. There were three or four occupants in the car.

Called "Ripper" Nearly Killed

NEW YORK, May 12.—That section of the west side adjacent to the De Witt Clinton Park, Fifty-first to Fifty-fourth street and from Eleventh avenue to the Hudson River, has been greatly excited since the mother of the last "Jack the Ripper" victim said the next child he killed would be selected in that neighbourhood.

Hundreds of excited men and women and thousands of children mistook an innocent cobler from South Brooklyn for the "ripper" last night and he was almost killed before being rescued by the police.

A cry went through the district that they had the "ripper" and such large crowds raced through the streets that the reserves from two police stations had to be summoned.

New Zealand's last animal census showed that it had nearly 25,000,000 sheep.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking at its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), it's cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil.

The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WATSON

CHAPTER I.
PRIMIN' UP.

Ho! that's all nonsense. Styles change, but women don't.

You're overly young yet to speak out loud anyway—about such a subject as women. Young men know mighty little about women, which is probably why they're able to get along with 'em so well. On the other hand, us old fellers know all there is to know about 'em; and yet it's just remarkable how well they can get along without us.

No, I won't even admit, right now, that women are tenderer than men. A young eagle would tell you that the downy breast of his mammy was the softest, gentlest, tenderest spot the' was in the world; but if the next witness called happened to be Mary's little lamb, why you'd get a blamed sight different testimony.

You young scamps think that I allus must have been a babble-head, simply because once in a while you can get me so bogged down in a yarn that I'll let you loaf rather than break off in the middle of it, but I refuse to plead guilty. When I was a young chap, I couldn't have kept my ears any more cocked up and listenin' if I'd been an out and out echo, and by addin' on what my eyes reported, I managed to stake me out a purty comfortable sort of an edication.

Better 'n thirty years ago it was that a curious old bermit down in the Panhandle told me the truth about women. I scoffed at him worse'n you've just scoffed at me, though, havin' better judgment and better manners, I didn't brazen it out the way you did. "A man," sez this old feller, "at the very immostest centre of his heart, and under all his assumptions and a woman ain't nothin' more nor less than a she man. What is called character is laid on in layers like the drapery on a cabbage, with the layers gettin' looser and fluffier the farther out ya get. Now, when a woman is gettin' proper care she blossoms out with a heap showier outside character-wrappin's 'n a male human ever does wear but once she starts to do her own fightin', why these tender outside leaves shatter off like nuts after a frost, and she goes on the prod in a way to make the toughest man in the world feel like a hen pigeon.

I never believe any theory 'at any one tells me until after I've had a chance to test it out; but right at that time I had four good chances. One woman grew in a sheltered spot where the soil was good and the showers frequent and she was all festooned with rosy petals and scattered a restful sort of a perfume which was mighty pleasant; while the other three were storm-tossed and they paid more attention to thorns 'n they did to perfume.

Oh, it's all true what this old feller said; but the great comfort is, that just as soon as a woman gets transplanted into the proper garden or flower-pot or swamp, or wherever it is she is intended to grow, why, she begins right now to add on the soft, gentle, perfumed petals, and to hide away the thorns—where they'll be easiest got at if ever she needs 'em again.

It's curious how this discussion has brought those days back to me the same as if they only happened yesterday. As Isaac used to say: "Memory's nothin' but a cistern, overflowin' at times and settlin' down below reachin' distance at others; but recollection's the pump that'll fetch up water whenever you need it." The good Lord gave me a right sizeable cistern and I've tried to show my appreciation by puttin' in the best pump I could fix up—but she needs primin' at times, she sure does need primin'.

Now, you all know who Isaac was, 's well as I do. I've told you about him a dozen times and I don't intend to tell you again. He was the feller with the umbrella, down at the Lion Head Ranch — the cruelty-to-dumb-animals man.

If a cow tries to sit on a railroad track while a train's goin' by, why it's mighty likely to mess up the scenery consid'ble; but a horned toad can do it and never even suspect that he's runnin' a risk, and it was the same way with Isaac. He didn't have a mite of commonsense; but then on the other hand, he didn't need any.

That ain't the point at all. I'm not sayin' that I don't like to spin a yarn, 'cause when I can have my own way and time about it, I admit I do; but I am opposed to havin' a stranger bustle up to me and try to pull out a story the same as if it was an achin' tooth, and I'm also opposed to havin' a feller get me all warmed up in a tale and to then hop up in the middle of it to begin packin' up because his vacation has expired.

My sort of a story grows like a bush, shootin' out a root here and a twig there until it has grown to its full form; and I'm not in favour of leavin' out any roots just to let some hurried individual know what kind of a flower is goin' to grow on the finished bush. Fact is, I'd sooner graft than prune; so if you've got all the time the' is, I don't mind tellin' you about Isaac.

CHAPTED II.
PICKIN' UP A JOB.

Well, you see Isaac—but then truth to tell, Isaac wasn't nothin' but a sprout on this story, and if I was to tell you about him you'd ask so many questions about the others that I might as well begin at the beginning.

Thirty years loom up like an awful bunch when you're a young feller waitin' for 'em to come, but when you're an old feller lookin' back at 'em, why, they don't seem more'n a pocketful. I was workin' for old Cast Steel Jamison right here on the Diamond Dot in Wyoming, and when his daughter Barbie was six years old me and him had words about a pinto I had gentled for her.

That child was unusual in more different respects 'n airy other child ever I had doin's with, and I sawvied her gifts a heap better 'n her dad did; but I had also taken her age into consideration in gentlin' that pinto, and when old Cast Steel tied into me, why, I just nachely came back at him horns down, and the result was that I just loosened up and whirled off into space the way a drop o' water does when a buckboard tilts over so far on a curve 'at the inside wheels spin in the air.

I skirted the towns and rode solitary edgin' over a little to the east of south finally driftin' on to what was called the Goodnight Trail in Colorado and windin' up in the Panhandle of Texas at Jim Jamison's trail-camp after all signs of supper had been cleared away. Jim he sat by one small fire readin', out of a foreign book 'cause he was so home-sick the starch had begun to melt out of his backbone, and at the other fire two Greasers an' a half-blood Injun was playin' poker with a useless old party in whiskers who wasn't a ridin' man at all. Two men wer nrutsndin' to night-herd and the cook, ol' Monody, was asleep under the chuck waggon.

I've told all this before, but I've noticed in every group of three or more there's allus two kinds of listeners. One kind has to be told every detail or they'll interrupt at the wrong time, and the other frets so when stuff is repeated that they fidgit enough to make a depot dog nervous.

Jim Jamison, reverently called by me Jim Jimison, was a younger son of English gobility who had had enough gumption to decide that the assortment of relatives which had been wished on him was ample excuse for breakin' home ties; so he had invested a fortune his aunt had left him in a cow ranch on the Wichita, and was reapin' on a college education to boost him to the top of the heap.

That outfit was enough to make an old cow-pony die a-laughin'! The trail herd was composed of five-year-old steers; hog fat, but beginnin' to get pestered by the human coyotes who were herdin' 'em. Old Monody was a 'mix of Greaser, Nigger, and Injun, monstrous big and tall, and at that time he was so far out of humour that he couldn't have done a worse job o' cookin' if he'd had a barrel of dyspepsia medicine he was tryin' to sell out at a profit.

I know I've told ya about how it was then I won Monody's regard, and so all I'll say about that is, that when he started for me with a bear gun, I whistled and gave him a French kick on the point of his chin and then hammered his head with a quick-yoke until it was soft enough to absorb the idea that I didn't really wish him a mite of harm, but was only tryin' to introduce myself in such a way that he wouldn't forget me until we'd had time to get full acquainted.

At first Monody was inclined to be a bit resentful, and I didn't blame him for it in the least; but his head had been framed up for rough work and I had given him exactly the treatment he needed to break up his poutin' and turn it into a rage. That rage burnt itself out in the few minutes his head was throbbin', and then he grinned at me knowin', called me Kid, and agreed to throw in with me no matter what my game was.

Then after I had agreed to be the foreman right on the spur of the moment, I wormed out of Jim that my quick, nervous ways were about like those of the Panhandle Kid, and that struck me that I might just as well play I was him if that would be the easiest plan to straighten out the mess. Jim told me that in addition to the sorry lot in camp that night, two others, and about the meanest of all, had slipped away to give Satan a fair chance to find some work for idle hands to do; and these two arrived before mornin' in a condition which needed treatment but which I decided to overlook.

I allus like to be took by surprise after I have tried out all possible emergencies and have chose out the plan that best fits me, and the quickest way to switch all other outcomes into my own plan; so I lay in my blanket and chalked up what I had to deal with. There were eleven of us all told, Monody as free from morals as a range bull, but also as outspoken and free from treachery, Jim Jimison, the boss, a boy who would face death with a smile on his lips, but who also would be more likely than not to get in the road at just the worst time, the two who had been on night-herd and who were just bunches of tumble-weed blowin' any direction the wind did, and the rest. Well, I suppose the Lord must have had some use for the rest; but I didn't.

I stacked myself, Monody, and Jim again the other six with the two tumble-weeds as holdin' back until they saw what the outcome was to be—and the prospect pleased me. I had struck that camp in low spirits, for it allus was a wrench for me to leave the old Diamond Dot; but by sun-up I was as fit and eager as ever I was in the world.

I pretended to be sound asleep and stayed rolled up until Monody awakened me and his grin was so satisfied that I knew he had been plumb disgusted with the sorry lot he'd been trainin' with. I frolicked all durin' breakfast until I had Monody's wicked, kindly face churned up into a solid grin, and then I told 'em we'd rest there one day longer. The boss didn't think much o' this; but I didn't know where we were except that we were a heap out of the way from where the boss thought we were, and so I didn't have any time to waste on him just then.

I loafed around with Monody while he was gettin' the noon meal started, and did all I could to drive dull care away. After a time I winked and asked him what the game was anyway. After askin' this I gazed about innocent so he could have time to size me up proper.

He wasn't altogether sure what my own game was, so he budged around to a point where he could see the boss, and then he jerked his head in the direction of Jim and sez: "This here boss is a foreigner."

When I looked into Monody's face, I had to grin. It allus did amuse me to have anybody in this country, except an Injun, talk about foreigners; but lots o' fellers seem to think that callin' a feller a foreigner is accusin' him of a hangable crime.

"Was he ever convicted of it?" sez I, to Monody.

"He's proud of it," sez Monody: "he's proud of it."

"What you got again' foreigners, Monody?" sez I, curious to learn what this mixture of Greaser, Injun, and Nigger would regard as a foreigner, anyway.

"We ain't got no more 'n land enough for ourselves, here," sez Monody as serious as the skull of a buffalo while his eyes roved mechanical over rich, untouched range as free and as plentiful as air. A constant droppin' of water 'll wear away a rock, they say, which is the main difference between a rock and prejudice.

"What ya goin' to do to him for bein' a foreigner?" sez I.

"It don't look right for no foreigner to be havin' such a bunch o' steers as this, does it?" returns Monody in an injured tone.

(To be continued.)

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women To Take "Fruit-a-tives"

HASTINGSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 20th, 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

For The Pain In Her Back.

Many women suffer from an excruciating pain in the back. They are not even able to look after the common duties of their housework, and cannot even walk at times.

The whole trouble is that the kidneys have become affected, and when the kidneys get "out of kilter" the whole system becomes deranged. On the first sign of a weak, lame, aching back you should not neglect it, for if you do, you may be sure that some serious kidney trouble will follow.

What you want is a kidney medicine, for kidneys only. This you will find in Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's Kidney Pills know nothing but kidney disorders, because they're made for kidneys only.

Mrs. George Craigie, Rose Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I am writing to tell you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills did for me. I was suffering with a lame back, and for several days I could hardly straighten up for the pain. I had used quite a lot of other kind of pills, but received no relief. Just then my sister told me about what "Doan's" had done for her, so I decided to try them. I used three boxes and I am completely cured. I do not hesitate to recommend them to all."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

VERBAL ENTRAPMENT

Happy Outcome of What Appeared to Be a Hopeless Mix-Up.

By Henry Munden.

"If the firm doesn't raise my salary on October 19," said Allan Fielding, as he fitted the new wedding ring on his fiancee's finger, "I shall do something desperate."

"But why October 19, Allan?" inquired pretty Lavinia Holden, patting his hand affectionately. "Why not wait till the New Year?"

"Because," replied Allan firmly, "everybody asks for a raise at the beginning of the year, whereas I am the only member of the staff who secured the firm's employment on October 19. Just think, next week I shall have been there five years. And to get a beggarly twenty-two-fifty a week! Why, we can't begin to live on less than twenty-five."

"But Allan, dear, you mustn't going to do anything rash for the sake of two dollars and a half," said his fiancee. "Sooner or later they will do you justice, I am sure."

"You don't know old Briggs," replied Allan moodily. "No, it amounts to this, dearest. Unless he raises me to twenty-five our marriage must be postponed."

"Postponed!" exclaimed Lavinia in consternation.

"That's what I said. I'm not going to start life in a cheap flat with instalment system furniture and—why, which the matter, dearest?"

"If you think more of your old job than you do of me," sobbed Lavinia, "you may take your old ring and leave me forever." And, flinging the ring upon the table she hurried toward the door.

"But Lavinia!" implored the penny man. "Be reasonable!"

"It's you who ar'n't re-reasonable," she sobbed. "I'm not going to marry a man who says I'm unreasonable. If I'm unreasonable pray get some more reasonable girl." And she was gone, leaving Allan a prey to the deepest gloom.

For he knew that Lavinia, though sweet and loving, was of a disposition

Allan came to the conclusion that it would be best to settle his difficulty with his employer before attempting reconciliation with his fiancee. Accordingly, the next morning he requested an interview with Jeremy Briggs, the head of the corporation in which he occupied the post of assistant cashier.

"Mr. Briggs," he began, "I wish to apply for an increase in salary, to married shortly, and I find twenty-two dollars and fifty cents a week insufficient to support a wife."

Mr. Briggs spun round in his chair, his eyebrows lifted.

"How much did you say you require?" he asked.

"I'm Not Going to Marry a Man Who Says I'm Unreasonable."

"Twenty-two fifty," faltered Allan. "Weekly or monthly, Mr. Fielding?"

"Weekly, sir," replied the other, allowing a diplomatic smile to hover over his features.

"I did not know that, Mr. Fielding," replied Mr. Briggs. "I thought your salary was eighteen dollars. I should, perhaps, have been willing to increase it to twenty, but—no, Mr. Fielding, what you ask is impossible. Good morning, sir." And he returned to his papers, while Allan, too discomposed to utter the words which he had prepared for just such a contingency, retired to his work.

All was over, then. He must relinquish Lavinia and devote himself humbly to his firm's interests. He knew that the ultimate prospects were good; he was in line for promotion; he was too wise to carry out the

HEARS HALF MADE

But till these arrangements materialized he dared not ask Lavinia to be his wife. That evening, seated at the table in his little room, he wrote two letters. One was to Mr. Briggs, apologizing for his action. "I very much regret that we failed to reach a satisfactory understanding this afternoon," he wrote. "I hope you will forgive the unreasonable nature of my request and disregard the incident." The other was to Lavinia. In this he passionately announced at once his love and his determination, with the secret, unwritten reservation that he would some day return to claim her.

Then he went moodily to bed.

He knew Lavinia's stubbornness and pride. He knew that she would never be the first to make advances to him again. The dawn broke, and he rose, after a sleepless night, ready for the new life to which he had pledged himself—a life of renunciation and labor. The sun was warm, the air fresh and ozone-laden from a sea breeze. All nature was smiling that fair October morning, and Allan's spirits went bounding up again. Only yesterday all had been well. What an ass he had made of himself—what an incomparable ass! If only he had thought things over! Now he had injured his prospects of advancement and lost the girl whom he adored.

"Mr. Briggs wishes to see you in his office at once, Mr. Fielding," announced the office boy, as soon as he had taken his seat.

Fielding arose and went in to the interview. He cared little what the message portended. To his astonishment, however, Mr. Briggs was mild, almost apologetic.

"Mr. Fielding," he began, "we I wish to say that—er—with regard to your letter, we have decided that we can afford to increase your salary rather than let you go."

"My letter, sir?" exclaimed Allan, dazedly.

"This is your letter, sir, I believe," said Briggs testily, laying a missive before him. "And let me say, Mr. Fielding, that you have pleaded better with your pen than you did yesterday in person. A vacancy is to occur in the auditing department on the first of the month. It is worth thirty-five dollars a week, and—"

But Allan only heard dimly, for, stretched out before him, he read the words of his own letter:

"Mr. Jeremy Briggs,

Eastern Reserve Realty Corporation.

"My Dear Mr. Briggs:

"I must leave you at once. You will not see me again. Think kindly of me, for I gave you all my devotion, and my entire life and hopes were centered in you. Yours, brokenheartedly,

"ALLAN FIELDING."

Half a minute later Allan was at the telephone. Just forty-five seconds afterward he heard Lavinia at the other end.

"I shall be home tonight, Allan," she said sweetly. "Forgive you? Yes, of course I forgive you, dear. But you will have to explain just why you wrote me such a dreadfully formal apology."

Recipes For Wrinkles and Bad Complexion

Of all the beauty recipes that have been published, here are two that have successfully stood the test of time:

Wrinkle Remover—One ounce powdered saxolith, dissolved in ½ pint witch hazel. Use as a wash lotion. It brings instantaneous results.

Face Peeler—Pure mercolized wax, applied at night like cold cream, only not rubbed in; wash off in the morning. It causes the worst scarf skin to come off in tiny, almost invisible flakes, a little each day, until the fresh young underskin is wholly in evidence. The beautiful rose-tinted complexion thus obtained is not to be compared with one made over with cosmetics. If the old skin is marred with freckles, pimples or other blemishes, these defects are of course discarded with the skin itself. An ounce of the wax is sufficient in any case.

LOVE IS KILLED BY BEATINGS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 10.—Because her husband was most sweet and loving in the presence of other people and swore at her and beat her when they were alone, Mrs. Nona Croft was granted a divorce by Judge Morgan from Kenneth Croft, local promoter.

Mrs. Croft, who came to this city two years ago from New York, has gone much into local society. She is a skilled equestrienne, and with her sister, Miss Blanche Mally, has been seen much in the bridle paths of Golden Gate Park, which they declared surpassed anything they had found in Hyde Park, London, or Central Park, New York.

Mrs. Croft testified that her husband began ill-treating her a year ago. Since that time, she said, he has squandered most of his money in riotous living, and when she remonstrated he beat her. She cited one instance at the Palace Hotel last July, when she says they had quarrelled because he spent so much time away from home and he struck her in the face.

A maid corroborated this testimony.

The Crofts were married in New York City in October, 1912, and have one child, a boy aged three months, who was awarded to the custody of the mother, with $200 a month for his support.

ROOSEVELT ON THE WAR

He Pleads Righteousness Before Peace and Condemns German Brutality

When the great European war commenced it was no uncommon thing to hear Canadians express themselves as glad that Theodore Roosevelt was not President of the United States. They feared that he might prove erratic and unsympathetic in his feelings toward the allies and their cause. "America and the World War" a volume in which the ex-President expresses his opinion of the catastrophe, will indicate to many that they have misjudged him. In Canada we have been surprised to find leaders of a strong democracy considering first of all how their country can make as much money as possible out of the terrible events going forward in the Old World and protesting only when some action of the belligerents threatens to decrease their profits. Mr. Roosevelt makes it plain in his articles that his first consideration would have been righteousness. It need hardly be added, therefore, that he does not approve of the attitude of President Wilson towards Belgium. He believes that the example of the famous neutrals of the parable, who went by on the other side rather than help the man who fell among thieves, is not one which a nation aspiring to take its place among the great civilizing forces of the world should follow.

He says: "I put peace very high as an agent to bring about righteousness. But if I must choose between righteousness and peace I choose righteousness." Side by side with this high note he places his belief in preparedness for self-defence. He takes a logical position somewhere half-way between the ultra-pacifist and the man who glories in everything that makes for militarism. He takes the very sane position that it will be impossible for the leading nations of the world to lay down their arms so long as there exists one brutal and arrogant power that has no conscience or sense of honor to restrain its ambition. He points out again and again that the high national standards, the love of peace and the advanced civilization of the Belgians could not save them when a depraved and powerful nation willed to destroy them. Treaties were powerless, and Great Britain would have shared the fate of Belgium if it had not been for her mighty fleet.

His idea of the way the great nations may ensure peace is as follows: "From the international standpoint, the essential thing to do is effectively to put the combined power of civilization back of the collective purpose of civilization to secure justice. This can be achieved only by a world league for the peace of righteousness, which would guarantee to enforce by the combined strength of all nations the decrees of a competent court against any recalcitrant and offending nation. Only in this way will treaties become serious documents."

"Why don't you write your article?" asked the editor.

"Nothing to write," replied the "cub." "The groom committed suicide, and there ain't goin' to be no wedding."

Was Troubled With Eczema.
Would Nearly Veil With Pain.
BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS CURED HIM.
Mr. R. J. Soules, Harriston, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer with eczema. I tried all kinds of salves, but they did me no good. Sometimes I would nearly yell with the pain, and would pass little white worms. I was told to get at the blood, so I used four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it has made a complete cure."
All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, boils, pimples, eruptions, ulcers, etc., are all caused by the blood becoming impoverished, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble, and the entire system becomes affected.
Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all its impurities and by this means cure all skin and blood troubles.
This valuable preparation has been on the market for the last forty years, so you do not take any experiment when you give it a trial.

Life Insurance In a Crisis
Every time a great Crisis occurs LIFE INSURANCE has an opportunity to show what a giant of strength it is. Tremendous burdens are placed upon its shoulders, but it never shirks, never hesitates or groans.
When the Titanic took its awful plunge, carrying 1500 human souls into the deep, thousands of widows and orphans were left throughout the world. LIFE INSURANCE accepted the burden without the quiver of a muscle, and spread its protection around the Globe.
When seven years ago the financial world was labouring under an attack of indigestion due to undigested securities, and people could not get even their own money out of the Savings Banks, LIFE INSURANCE furnished spot cash to its policy holders upon application.
To-day when a gigantic struggle wages across the Seas and it is difficult to get loans from banks or money lenders, they find the solution again in LIFE INSURANCE.
It is to-day saving thousands of men all over the world, not only embarrassment but actual failure.
LIFE INSURANCE protects your wife and family.
" " will meet their needs when you are gone.
" " is always a resource.
" " contributes to your estate.
" " increases your savings.
" " increases the savings habit.
Money invested in LIFE INSURANCE is sure to come back to you or your family.
Your credit is made better by the amount of LIFE INSURANCE you carry.
The need for LIFE INSURANCE to every man with a family is as fixed as the daily need for bread, and that need is well met by a policy in THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

Petrograd, May 11.—As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their suffering is as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.

Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of those weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favourite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—removes pain and misery and brings back health and strength to nervous irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealers in either liquid or tablet form.

Dr. Pierce's Medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy. Adv.

Soldier's Account of Trip Across To England

Pte. Clarence Holdcroft, Son of Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock, is Now Stationed at Shorncliffe —Had a Delightful Voyage

HAVELOCK, May 11.—An interesting letter from Private Clarence Holdcroft describes his trip to his present quarters at Shorncliffe, Eng. It is as follows:

Shorncliffe, England,
April 19, 1915.

Dear Father,—I arrived safely in camp last night about 11.30, after a most phenomenal trip. Everything went as smooth as could be. The weather was very fine and the ocean calm all the way across, and our trip from Liverpool to Shorncliffe yesterday was delightful. It would be very difficult to get a first view of this country under more genial conditions.

On Friday night at 10 o'clock we sighted "Fastenel" lighthouse on the south west coast of Ireland. It quite relieved the monotony of the ocean to see even the lighthouse. All next day we sailed along the Irish coast, just in sight of land, and every now and then we would be challenged by a small coast guard boat.

On Saturday night all lights were out except the red light and green lights on the rear and front of the ship. No one either civilian or soldier was allowed to smoke or strike any kind of light whatever on deck. Military rule prevailed. At 8 o'clock that evening a special guard of about fifty men was detailed to guard every part of the ship. They were on guard an hour and off an hour, alternately, all night. I was one picket all Saturday and was also on all Saturday night. I was detailed to scout all over the ship, so I saw everything that went on.

Some of the men slept with their life belts on and were quite scared. During the night we saw several men of war, which were our escort. The lights from the light-houses of Wales were really magnificent. They are revolving lights and work by machinery. I suppose we could see a dozen at one time, all working backwards and forwards, casting their rays for miles over the water. It would be very difficult and disastrous for an enemy's boat to venture close to any part of the British Isles at night, because they would be spotted almost immediately. It is certainly wonderful the lighting system they have as a guard.

The big men-of-war glide silently but swiftly hither and thither over the Irish sea, and it is most impressing to see them with the glitter of their few lights on the long barrels of their guns and hear no sound to indicate their approach. About 3.30 a.m. we picked up the pilot to guide us up the river to Liverpool. Arrived in Liverpool about 5 o'clock Sunday morning and had to wait about three hours for the tide, so we could go into the dock. At last we were safely docked at Liverpool, having had a most delightful voyage of only seven days.

Next came the excitement of landing. After about two hours and a half we were marched down the dock and put on board the train. We remained there about an hour. Our Corporals bought cigarettes for us, because we were not allowed to break the ranks. Then we boarded the train. The trains here are quite a novelty, but they can surely travel some. We had our dinner at Crewe. They handed us ham sandwiches and a pint mug of tea. It surely tasted good. The people gave us a good welcome and gave the soldiers cigarettes, too. They seem to appreciate us more here than our own people do at home. There the war is brought home to them very vividly and they feel that the boys from across the sea deserve some consideration.

Arrived at Shorncliffe Station about 10 o'clock Sunday night, very tired, and very hungry. There were some transports at the depot to take our dunnage bags to the camp. We walked, carrying all the rest of our kit. It is about five miles from the depot, and we were quite tired when we got here. They have many shacks which hold thirty men each and in them we are quartered.

Our trip through England was the best trip I ever had. It is grand over here. Everything seems so systematical and is kept like one large estate. The fields are all green and the trees are full of tiny leaves. I had no idea things could be so lovely as they are in this place. If I am lucky and get through the war I intend to buy a motorcycle and tour the British Isles. Several of us are planning a trip. However, that remains to be seen.

I guess there is no more to write about now, so I will close. I hope you are well and feeling fine. Give my regards to any friends and my love to mother and Donald.

Your affectionate son,
Clarence.

Pastor Praises Marriage Bond In Beatitudes

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Rev. Edward J. Aikin, pastor of the Chicago Lawn Methodist Episcopal Church, has begun a series of sermons on "Domestic Life and Christianity." His first sermon was on "The Institution of Marriage." Dr. Aikin gave out the following as a modern set of beatitudes for married people:

Blessed are the married, who mother the coming race, for they are God's world builders.

Blessed are the married, for they may obtain perfection of human joys.

Blessed are the married, who, in spite of flaws and failures, make marriage a glorious institution.

Blessed are the married, for they may obtain a home like unto Paradise.

Blessed are the married who do not fight for the last word. It is loaded with dynamite.

Blessed are the married who sit tight and do not rock the boat on the matrimonial sea.

Blessed are the married who never have to smell the foul air of the divorce court.

Blessed are the married who are held by the ties of love and the bonds of service.

Dr. Aikin stated at the close of his sermon that two more sets of beatitudes are to follow on successive Sunday evenings. One will be for the direction of husbands and the other for wives.

Accusing Wife Transformed Into Defender

LOS ANGELES, May 11. — Love transformed an accusing wife into a solicitous defender and champion when Mrs. Fred Winstanley entered the court room of Justice Forbes as chief witness against her husband, who was held on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Winstanley, wealthy and prominent realty man and a member of several clubs, was pale and palpably nervous as he entered the court room. Mrs. Winstanley, who had preceded him there, ran toward him with outstretched arms and embraced him.

"Don't worry, Fred; everything is all right," was the comforting assurance she gave.

Then she took the witness stand and told how she had been mysteriously attacked and terribly beaten by an unknown assailant in the breakfast room of their home on the morning of March 17.

The police assert that when neighbours ran to the aid of the screaming woman she accused her husband of having beaten her and begged them to take him away. Winstanley denied the charge and declared that the assault had been committed by burglars, who, he said, had entered the kitchen.

Mrs. Winstanley was nearly unconscious and bled from wounds in the head. She had been struck from behind with a clothes hanger. Her jewels were found strewn about her dressing table.

Mrs. Winstanley took the witness stand and declared she had complete faith in the statements of her husband.

"I didn't know" there was anyone else in that part of the house. We had just eaten breakfast and my husband walked away. Almost immediately after I was struck. My husband has always been kind to me; we have been married twenty-one years, and were the best of pals, always. No woman ever had a better husband," asserted Mrs. Winstanley.

Winstanley vigorously denied the charge that he had struck the blows.

"I left the room and when I returned my wife was lying on the floor apparently dead," he declared.

Justice Forbes took the case under advisement, after declaring that he would hold Winstanley for attempted murder. The magistrate intimated, however, that he might order the defendant examined as to his sanity.

Special to The Examiner:

HASTINGS, May 12—An accident which might have proved very serious, occurred on Sunday, while Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Oliver, and two children of Percy were returning from the Church service. When almost outside of the Village the horse which they were driving started to kick. The boys were sitting on a small seat in front, and Virgil, the eldest, received a blow over the eye, close to the temple. The father at once wheeled around and rushed him to Dr. Edmison's surgery, where still unconscious, his wounds were dressed. Several stitches were necessary to close the gash which was very deep. The little fellow was very weak from loss of blood, but was conveyed to his home in Mr. Smith's automobile, where he is lying in a serious condition, although he has regained consciousness, and his friends are hoping for his recovery.

Neighbours Lynch Dr. Ward, White Man

NORMAN, Okla, May 12.— A dozen white men from Noble, eight miles away, took Dr. B. E. Ward, white, from the reluctant county jail here early yesterday morning and hanged him to a tree two miles south of the town.

A week ago he stabbed his wife to death in their home in Noble when under the influence of liquor.

The mob, with one of its members handcuffed, knocked on the door of the county jail. When the jailer opened the door he was overpowered, his keys were taken and Dr. Ward was seized. The perpetrators feared their victim would escape the consequences of his crime by being committed to an insane asylum.

SEIZED WITH PARALYSIS COULD NOT WALK

Most Extraordinary Cure Effected by the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

To have the nervous system paralyzed, to be unable to walk and scarcely able to talk, and then to be completely cured, is not a usual experience, but Mr. Hyatt tells in this letter what he passed through. Doctors told him that his case was hopeless, and when they gave up he turned to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and obtained complete cure.

Mr. Avery Hyatt, blacksmith, St. Anns, Lincoln Co., Ont., writes: "I am a blacksmith by trade and ten years ago became afflicted with paralysis. I could not walk or read or write, and could talk with difficulty, so that it was a hard matter to understand anything that I would say. Being only a young man I was nearly discouraged. Two doctors told me it was brought on by overwork, and that my case was hopeless.

"One day my father read about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and advised me to try it. I bought 12 boxes, and when the fifth was used I saw that I was getting better. By the time the 12 boxes were used I was cured. I am well and strong and working every day, thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

No ailment is more dreaded than paralysis. And yet how few people realize that paralysis of the nerves is only the natural result of neglected nervous troubles.

At first you do not sleep well, have nervous headaches or indigestion, find yourself easily irritated and annoyed, can hear noises which in good health you would never notice. You do not consider yourself sick, and yet you lack the usual energy and vigour and feel out of sorts.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

IN SMART BOLERO FASHION.

By Anabel Worthington.

The bolero is one of the new features, and, judging by present indications, it will be fashionable throughout the entire season. It is used for waists as well as for dresses, and for lingerie frocks as often as for silks and linens. The gown illustrated shows a modified form of the bolero, a separate jacket confined by a belt at front and back, but not at the sides. The skirt and sleeves are attached to an underbody made of lining material.

The two-piece skirt is very nearly three yards at the hem and flares gracefully. It is gathered at the back, but left plain in front, a compromise that suits the style of the bolero. While the dress is not high waisted in the extreme, still the waist line is well above normal, and should be kept there when the design is copied for the correct effect. Neither the gathers in back nor the belt will set properly if the waist line be lowered to natural or normal position. The sleeve is a one piece model with the seam at the back, and may be made either in full or shorter length, the shorter sleeve being finished with a cuff.

This design is very adaptable as regards the character of the material that may be used. It is excellent for dress woollens, like cashmere and gabardine, and splendid for silks, such as taffeta, crepe de Chine, faille and satin. Very little, if any, trimming is needed. For medium size 4½ yards of 40-inch material will be required. The pattern, No. 7,305, can be obtained in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 3 for 25c.

REMNANTS SANG POPULAR SONGS

LONDON, May 12.—(By W. A. Willison.) — If blood be the price of honour, Canada has indeed paid it in full. It is my privilege to send the story, so far as I have been able to gather it, of the Second Battalion, the men who have so worthily represented Eastern Ontario on the firing line.

The Second Battalion was in reserve at the first of the awful battle to the north of Ypres, but to be in the reserve trenches these dreadful days meant to be under persistent shelling and to incur many casualties. Later in the great battle it fell to the lot of this battalion also to make a charge against the enemy, a charge which in the words of one writer "made that of the Light Brigade seem feeble by comparison." In that charge Peterboro suffered heavily, when Keith Cumberland, Stuart Hayes, and many others lost their lives.

ONLY ONE LEFT

Two of the battalion's machine gun crews kept firing their guns against the advancing Germans, and went down, man after man, until Sergeant Gardiner alone was left. After he had used all his ammunition, he smashed one of his guns. The other had been silenced some time before by the enemy's fire. This done, despite seven wounds in his body, he went after Captain Hooper, who was dead when the Sergeant reached him. Gardiner got back without additional wounds despite the hail of shrapnel. It is rumoured in the battalion that he has been recommended for the Victoria Cross.

DIED LIKE A MAN

During all this desperate fighting the men were half dead from the effects of the gas sent down upon them from the German trenches. "Scotty" Cameron died while trying to bring in a wounded officer from a mustard patch. As another writer says, "One hundred V.C.'s were earned that day by the Second Battalion alone. The Canucks were second to none in bravery and bull dog courage. Heber Rogers died like a man."

GRAHAM A LIEUTENANT

Private Gordon Graham, a school teacher at Lakefield, near Peterboro, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant for conspicuous bravery. I have already told you of his escape from the nurses in the hospital to which he had been sent, just a short distance behind the firing line, and how despite his wounded arm, he rejoined his regiment in the thick of the fighting. To-day I was able to secure the full story. It now appears that Private Graham on his first escape from the hospital fell in with a French convoy unit but his wounded arm was so bad that he was advised to go back. Back he went wondering how he could get away again and fight with his own men. By this time there were so many casualties coming in that the hospital attendants had not eyes for him.

WALKED THIRTY MILES

According Graham, with a broken elbow, got away, walked 30 miles across country and rejoined his battalion for the last days of the fighting. All the men of his machine gun section (No. one) had stuck at their posts until at the end not one of them remained, until when Graham returned. Afterwards he went over the battlefield to look for his chums, but he was unsuccessful in his search. There were hundreds upon hundreds of dead bodies strewn thickly about, but the German snipers were too busy to permit of further examination.

IN ACTION ALL NIGHT

The Second Battalion was in action all the night of May 5th, under heavy shelling from the German lines. After the action the men sat around in groups singing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "My Baby." Then came the order to move and the battalion marched all night over the cobblestone roads of Belgium and the softer roads of northern France to take up a new position. They will not be on active service again for some time. The regiment is now being re-organized.

PTE. MILLS TELLS OF THE CHARGE OF PETERBORO' MEN

Well Known Local Boy Describes the Advance in Which so Many of Our Brave Lads Met Their Death

LAY THERE 16 HOURS

The following letter from Pte. Bruce Mills, son of Major Jos. Mills, of the 2nd Battalion, received this morning, gives the most graphic description yet received of the charge of the Peterborough men at Langemarck:

Netley, April 28, 1915.

Dear Brother,— To put it in mild term, it was dreadful. When the heavy firing started, we were in billets about five miles in rear of the firing line. The fumes from the German shells at that distance made the boys' eyes water. The same evening, (Thursday, April 22) we were told to get ready to move. About 8 o'clock we moved off. All the boys were in high spirits. We were marched up to within about a thousand yards from the Germans, where we lay flat and waited for dawn. It was here that Mr. Day, our platoon commander, was killed. About 5.30 we started to advance. We went in file there we extended along the German front. It was then we learned for the first time that A Company was to charge the trenches.

"THEN IT WAS HELL."

We worked ourselves up on our stomachs a few yards at a time until the Germans spotted us, and then it was hell. We kept on until we were within 60 yards of the trenches. We were getting it right and left, the Germans behind the trenches must have been six to our one. The order came from the left to retire, but never reached us, so we waited. In a few minutes it was broad daylight. It was then that poor Scoop (Pte. O. D. Taylor) got his. First a bullet through his hat and the next a bullet through his brain. He was game to the last. What he lacked in size he made up in courage and pluck a thousand times over. No one ever showed more pluck. Poor Buswell—he was killed a few seconds later, shot in the same place.

DUG THEMSELVES IN.

The few of us left managed to dig ourselves in, lying on our stomachs and digging with the small entrenching tool we all carry. After doing this all we could do was to wait for night. Such a day I never want to put in again. For 16 hours I lay doubled up. A move by any of us meant death. Both the Germans and our own shells were bursting above us and a bullet went through my water bottle. Never will I forget the groans of the wounded as they cried for water. One poor fellow got up and gave a comrade a drink and was shot dead. At 8.30 the few of us still living managed to crawl back to where the rest of the battalion had entrenched themselves during the day. I got through it all without a scratch, but my back was so strained that I could hardly walk. Out of our section of 12 men, I only knew of 4 living, two of whom are wounded. Of course some may have escaped, but I do not know. That is all I know about it and here I am in England at the Red Cross Society Hostels, Netley, Hants.

Private Hayes was educated at St. Jerome's College, Berlin, Ont. While

DEATH OF TWO MORE

Special Cable From W. A. Willison States That Lance Corp. Cumberland and Pte. Hayes Were Among the Slain

WELL KNOWN BOYS

The special cable published on this page from W. A. Willison, the London correspondent of the Toronto News, gives the first news of the death of two more well-known members of the 57th Detachment of the 2nd Battalion—Lance Corp. Keith Cumberland of No. 3 Fleming Place, and Pte. Stuart Hayes, son of Judge L. M. Hayes of Guelph and, until recently, of Peterborough. Mr. Willison mentions the two as among the many who lost their lives in the charge of the 2nd Battalion, at Langemarck. No official notification has been received by relatives, nor have the names appeared in the casualty list, but it is feared the cable is only too true.

KEITH CUMBERLAND.

Lance Corp. Cumberland was an enthusiastic member of No. 6. Company of the 57th Regiment, in which he held the rank of Sergeant. He was on his vacation when war broke out, and immediately returned to Peterborough and enlisted with his comrades in the Rangers. He was the son of the late David Cumberland, who was Manager of the Bank of British North America in Quebec at the time of his death. The young soldier was born in Canada and for a number of years resided in Lakefield. About three years ago he came to Peterborough, where he was a member of the staff of the Bank of Toronto. His brother, Mr. Eldred Cumberland, is a member of the City Engineering staff. One sister, Miss Phyllis, is a pupil at the Collegiate Institute, while a younger brother, David, attends the Central School. He was a member of St. John's Church, and was widely known throughout the city and district, and had a very large circle of friends.

STUART HAYES.

Although the report of Stuart Hayes' death os unofficial, it is apparently coming from the London correspondent before the Auditor-General's Department issues it. The prominent mention of his name with that of Keith Cumberland in to-day's graphic story of the part played by Peterborough boys at Langemarck on April 23, leaves little room for doubt that both these young men were killed. Stuart Hayes was the eldest son of His Honour Judge L. M. Hayes, who removed with his family a year ago, from Peterborough to Guelph, where he is sitting as senior Judge of Wellington County. Judge Hayes was one of the senior officers of the 57th Regiment, and held the rank of Major at the time or his elevation to the bench. Stuart was about twenty years of age when he enlisted. Early in 1914 he had gone with an engineering party into the north country, and when the news of the outbreak of war reached him, he telegraphed to Col. Clegg to keep a place for him in the 57th Contingent. His return journey from the north required some time, with the result that he did not join the contingent until they were at the Valcartier camp.

FRENCH OFFENSIVE IS MAINTAINED WITH UTMOST ENTHUSIASM

Smashing at the German Lines Between Lens and Arras Continues---Belgians Hold Bridge Head on East Bank of Yser and Fierce Fighting is in Progress Around Ypres Where British Artillery is Inflicting Great Damage on Enemy.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 12.—French official.—The German troops in strong force by a series of night attacks, succeeded in retaking a part of the trenches which were carried by the French yesterday, according to to-day's official communique. This however was the only point where the French have not either maintained the territory taken in yesterday's fighting, or made additional gains.

The French are continuing to-day their efforts to break through the German lines between Lens and Arras. Already material progress has been made. The French hold the first and second lines of German trenches and have been able to bring up additional artillery to break down the entanglements which prevent the carrying of the reserve lines by storm. The Germans have been rushing reinforcements from their positions north of Lens. They have been unable to check the general French offensive, which is being maintained with the utmost enthusiasm.

ARE ON THE OFFENSIVE.

Advices received here to-day show that all along the battle line from a point just west of Rheims, the French are on the offensive. Because of the nature of the ground and the almost impregnable positions held by the enemy the progress must of necessity be by inches and feet rather than by yards. And at every point the artillery must break through a way for the infantry who are held chafing in the trenches until the pathway can be made through the barricades. Up to the present the Germans seem to have reserved their asphyxiating gases for use against the British, French and Belgians on the battle line between the Belgian frontier and the North Sea. No attempt has been made to use it against the French lines inside of France or even in the Vosges operations.

From Rheims to the Vosges there have been only artillery duels, the last few days, but the reports indicate that the Germans are again moving troops from Metz, and another attempt to gain ground in the territory between the Meuse and the Moselle is looked for.

HOLDING THE BRIDGE-HEAD

In the north beyond Dixmude the Belgians were reported to-day to be maintaining their hold on the bridge head which was captured yesterday morning. They have erected barricades and have mounted heavy artillery commanding all of the approaches. It is said that a determined effort will be made to push forward at this point as success here would force the Germans to let up their pressure on the British position at Ypres where severe fighting has again been in progress for two days.

All around Ypres, but especially between that town and Hill 60, the Germans are constantly using their gas bombs without much success. The British have strengthened out their lines as their artillery is inflicting heavy damage on the Germans.

WILL ASK EXPLANATION

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Within a few days, possibly within 48 hours, President Wilson will ask Germany to explain the sinking of the Lusitania, with the loss of 115 American lives. He will also ask some assurance that instances of this kind will not be repeated. He will make no threats, it was stated, but will stand firm in his insistance that no unarmed merchant vessels carrying non-combatants be attacked in the future without first being visited and searched, according to the rules of international law. Under conditions it is considered certain will continue

Pte. Barney Quinn is Safe and Well —Lieut. Matthews Tells of the Work of the Canadian Artillery in the Great Fight—Other Boys Heard From.

SOME THRILLING LETTERS

Lieut. Harold Matthews' Vivid Story of the Battle of Ypres.

Mr. T. F. Matthews has received the following letter from his son, Lieut. Harold Matthews of the 2nd Battery, 1st Brigade.

April 30th, 1915.

My Dear Father,—As Mr. Mills has probably wired you by this time, you are assured that I am O.K.

At present I am having a delightful time at the Base Hospital, or rather at one of the hospitals here, recovering from the effects of German poisonous fumes. The hospital is a very fine hotel, taken over, and I am in the 6th floor with a very nice bed, and wonderful nurses.

A week ago Wednesday night orders came in for one section to move up in front of Ypres, and take over from one section of the 5th Battery, Major Hanson's Battery. Accordingly we left our billet about four [illegible] afternoon and [illegible] front of Ypres. I [illegible] matters whether I tell you the exact location or not because the Germans hold the ground we used on [illegible] present moment. However, we moved on from St. Julien a short distance to the right front and soon had our two guns in position while the other two guns had gone back.

The country about St. Julien is sandy and rather a light soil, and the billets few and far between. Most of the farm houses have been blown down. Accordingly we found only one farm house for the officers to sleep in, and the junior officers slept out. I slept under a gun with some of the men.

You have probably seen maps of the position at Ypres, and you have noticed the prominent horse shoe shape. Into this horseshoe the Germans poured more shell in a day than into our other position in two weeks. All night the firing continued.

Next day we improved the dugouts, and registered the trenches we were supporting, that is—got the exact range to the enemy's trenches there.

A Heavy Bombardment.

About 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon a very heavy bombardment commenced on our left, and almost as suddenly our throats got dry, and our eyes began to water. We were all crying so hard that we could not see through our binoculars to see what was going on, but nevertheless soon guessed, as very shortly French Zouaves began to run through our lines apparently in a very dazed condition. But we didn't know what had happened, and there were a good many conflicting rumours.

There was very heavy firing all along the line by this time, and we were doing considerable ourselves. However, the great surprise came when we were ordered to retire at ten o'clock that night, and our route of retirement was along the St. Julien road.

That was some retreat. The Germans were not 200 yards away from the road, but luckily were down in a hollow, and were firing up towards our trenches. Just in rear of our trenches and lower down was the road. So the Germans did not see us, and in firing at our trenches their bullets went high over us as a rule.

We started down this road going "Hell for Leather," the bullets whistling overhead, and the guns bumping over dead men and horses. The Germans got a good few of us, and a good many horses as well. My own horse was hit in the rump.

Take New Position.

When we had gone back as far as St. Jean we took a new position, and were just getting our guns [illegible] when the order came to go back as [illegible] Germans were, besides [illegible] of [illegible] did, but we went up past St. [illegible] man, but making a detour [illegible] came to two vehicles [illegible] horses [illegible] and got our guns in [illegible] were firing like [illegible] the day we got [illegible] As you can [illegible] arrived the [illegible] and men were [illegible] Monday night Bolger [illegible] as F.O.O. of [illegible] to [illegible] (Continued on Page 9.)

BLAME GENTLY.

There is sometimes a disposition to criticise unkindly many young men, who others think, should be in the fighting line. They are called "shirkers," and held up to reprobation as lacking in patriotism and loyalty, or courage. In some cases such criticism may be just, or would be just, if it were not made by persons who, themselves, are doing nothing to promote the cause of Empire in this war. But in thousands of cases it is unfair to brand stay-at-homes as "shirkers." Many who would willingly enlist know in their own physical defects that would, if they enlisted, subject them to the humiliation of rejection. Many others have enlisted and failed to pass the rigid physical examination. At the Armouries in the last batch of recruits, twelve out of fifteen were rejected as physically unfit. These men will, of course, have to stay at home; and it will need a good deal of restraint to prevent them being unfairly criticised. They did their best to serve their country, but were not permitted to do so. We should, therefore, blame gently, and cautiously. It would be cruel, in a citizen, seeing one of these men in the street, to point him out to a companion as a "shirker."

ROBLIN RESIGNS.

Sir Rodmond Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, for the past fifteen years, does not realize that his attitude of power with the honours of war. He retires, with his cabinet, a beaten man, beaten by his own wrong doing. For years the Roblin Government has been charged with misuse of official power; but by election methods, applied by a new member of the Borden cabinet, who "knows how to win elections," the Conservative Provincial Government has, on appeal to the country, been sustained, the last time by a narrow majority of seven. That this government, under the inspiration of Hon. Robert Rogers, has been corrupt, is proven by the fact, that it has at last collapsed under its own rottenness, the deciding factor in the resignation of the government being a Royal Commission to investigate a dishonest diversion of nearly 900 thousand dollars in the erection of new parliament buildings. Pressure brought by the Lieut.-Governor caused the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into charges made by Mr. A. B. Hudson, one of the Liberal members for Winnipeg. Attempts were made by the government to have the courts prevent the commission from proceeding. They were, however, futile; the investigation went on; and in desperate fear of the damning nature of the revelations, the government has resigned. If this resignation does not end the work of the commission, the Roblin Government and the Conservative heelers, evidently expect that they will stand a better chance in the hands of a pliable electorate, than in the hands of a Royal Commission.

PEACE WITH HONOUR.

While President Wilson of the United States speaks platitudinously of "peace with honour," one may well inquire with whom will rest the honour of a peace at any price at the present time? Not with the United States, it would seem. We know that that country is ill-prepared for war, but a firm stand, a belligerent protest against German atrocity, would have a beneficial effect. Will the United States miss the occasion? Will it humble itself so that the whole world will wonder, whether "such things can be, and overcome us like a summer cloud, without special wonder?" What does the United States flag stand for? We know that the British flag, while it stands for liberty, for humanity, essentially stands for the protection of every British subject. History attests, however humble the Britisher, if his rights are infringed upon, and his liberty assailed by even the highest station, or even the humblest, the protection of the British flag he is cared—his wrongs redressed. Will it require a war to give protection. The British flag is no [illegible] of Russians? It is a shield stronger than a targe of steel. What does the United States flag mean? Is the voiceless question of the scores of United States citizens, from the depths where they lie the victims of national murder, officially decreed and executed. Diplomatic relations with Germany on the part of the United States seem to be as inconceivable as diplomatic relations with the devil. Britain is great and strong, and an imperishable world power for good, because she has held, and holds, her honour sacred. "Peace with honour" cannot very well jump with peace with piracy, and murder, and their unavenged victims.

LEARN TO SWIM.

An eminent educationist puts forth this epigrammatic injunction, "Put the whole boy at school." This means that school children are not only to be taught the "three rs" thoroughly, but the complementary subjects whose knowledge constitutes an all-round mental equipment; and should receive the physical training that will realize in their cases, the ideal condition, mens sana in corpore sano. We have little fault to find with our schools in the matter of mental training, though it in some cases takes the form of mental congestion. But there is a regretful absence of moral training, not in dogmatic religion, but in the essentials of true social and moral culture; politeness, self-effacement, respect for authority, divine, civil and social. These things, though regarded as a minor part of ethical culture, are in their origin, in what lies behind them, only possible with due regard to the very basis of all religion—reverence. What boots it in the associations of life, if a boy or girl can "cypher" skillfully, and construe sentences grammatically, if the flower of demeanour, politeness, respect for sacred things, reverence for superiors and elders, is lacking? A mental development, so called, in a coarse outside, lacking in the commonest graces of refinement?

Our pupils get a good deal of physical training it is true; but there are some forms of it that are neglected to a most regrettable degree. Among these is the teaching and opportunity for learning the art of swimming. This cannot be very well taught in the schools with the existing equipment; but the school and civic authorities might take a deeper and practical interest. Last year we had a brisk agitation in favour of providing swimming places, but like a fitful many civic spasms, we are periodically seized with, it soon passed away. The City Council last year even went so far as to consider the selection of suitable city swimming places; but, alas; not so far as to get our boys and girls "in the swim." It is not necessary to touch upon the fact or a knowledge of swimming, contributing to the saving of life—of oneself, as well as that of others. The sinking of the Titanic and the Lusitania afforded many instances of where the ability to swim saved—lives. In the recent Lusitania disaster, Miss Laura Ryerson, of Toronto, with her mother, was thrown into the sea by the overturning of a lifeboat. She was able to swim and, as she says, "although there was a crowd struggling together, I got clear and reached a raft." This is only one isolated instance, but significant and impressive, from being associated with so terrible a disaster. But we have repeated instances every season of swimming being a means of saving life; and as the drowning season is at hand, the subject of swimming should receive attention. We might be excused for our indifference, if it were not that swimming is easily and quickly learned, given the opportunity and the inclination. With a noble river flowing through the city, the opportunity thus presented seems too good to be missed. But we fail to provide proper places where swimming can be taught, or even bathing done, without the vote of the police.

THE LUSITANIA.

The sympathies of the United States will henceforth be inalienably with the Allies, and it is unlikely that any American who counts will attempt any longer to justify war as Germany wages it, without compunction or regard for humanity or international law.

We may assume, from what we know of his nature, that the British bull dog will set his teeth and hang on to the end, whatever this may be, without the least necessary to waste his energies in growling. That is the bull dog temperament, to take punishment grimly and in silence, his one concern being to keep his iron teeth locked in his enemy's throat. As for America and other neutral powers, they will now awaken, if they have not, to the realization that the only hope for mankind lies in such an ending to this conflict as shall preclude for the future the possibility that any power can carry on a war regardless of civilized conventions without rousing the world in arms to fight it to extinction.

As for the immediate action of our government there is little reason to doubt that it will meet the situation without temporarizing. We are committed to the policy that American citizenship safeguards American lives on the high seas, and that their right to travel on unarmed merchant vessels would be enforced by their government. The German doctrine, new to international law, in that citizens of neutral countries have no rights on [illegible] of the [illegible] Germany chooses to consider a war zone if his contention is conceded, a principle new and broad enough to deprive all non-combatants of every natural right on every ocean will be established.

The time to challenge this atrocious doctrine has come, and unless it is combatted fearlessly and firmly this outrage will be only the first of many. As far as human prevision goes the only way by which we can hope as a nation to remain neutral during this war is by such a determined and unequivocal insistence on our rights as shall leave Germany the option of abandoning her indefensible doctrine or adding the greatest neutral state on earth to the league of her implacable foes. For public sentiment in America is always powerful enough to coerce any administration that seeks to be, or is believed to be, willing to compromise on a principle and sacrifice an essential right.—Rochester Post-Express.

Canadian Red Cross Extends [illegible] to Plague-hit Serbia

TORONTO, May 11.—The Executive committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society have made a grant of $5,000 to relief in Serbia. This money has been sent to Sir Edward Boyle, Bart, Treasurer of the Serbian Relief Fund, and Secretary of the Balkan Committee. This will in some measure assist in relieving the ghastly conditions existing in Serbia at the present time.

Serbia is in the throes of pestilence, of this the greatest of all plagues. Enduring bravely what she is enduring this the most terrible of three successive campaigns, disaster for new-comers to her trials. The Canadian people will no doubt picture Serbia as a country which have valiantly resisted an invading enemy with inconceivable hopes of ultimate victory, and from a military point of view the people are distinctly optimistic. But a more deadly foe than the Austrians lurks in every town and village.

Epidemic disease is increasing. The government is doing its utmost, according to its lights and the means at its disposal, to stem the tide. Typhoid has already claimed many thousands of victims, civilian and military. Inoculation from that disease is practised to a very limited extent, partly owing to ignorance, partly owing to the interference with military duties which it involves, but very largely owing to the lack of vaccine, in common with the thousand and one other medical requirements so badly needed in this country and the few doctors available.

Writing to a relative in Canada recently Lady Boyle, Treasurer of the Serbian Red Cross, said: "We have no necessities, let alone luxuries." This is a terrible state of affairs and while so much has been done for Belgium, poor little Serbia has almost been forgotten. Lady Paget has already given her life while nursing the sick in this disease stricken country and many more devoted people are doing all they can to relieve the awful conditions existing among the Serbs to-day.

Serbia is surrounded by hostile and impoverished countries and her people have not [illegible] like, as the Belgians have done, take refuge in neighbouring, friendly states. Relief can only be given by sending supplies and material help and the people of Canada are asked to give what they can to the [illegible] suffering among this gallant people. # Former Peterborough Man Is Saved

Mr. A. R. Clarke Was on the RC Steed Lusitania—Mr. and Mrs. Copping Not Among Those Saved

Mr. A. R. Clarke, of Toronto, who was one of the survivors of the Lusitania disaster, is a former Peterborough man. Mr. Clarke, together with a number of other members of the family resided in East City for a number of years, where they conducted a tannery and manufactured leather products. Dr. John Clarke, who was a brother of Mr. A. R. Clarke, was Peterborough's medical officer of health for many years. The whole family originally resided here, subsequently removing to Toronto to engage in a business similar to that mentioned above.

Mr. A. R. Clarke cabled to say that Mr. and Mrs. Copping were not among those saved.

Nervous Shock.

It is understood by the family that Mr. Clarke was considerably shaken up by his experience. They cabled to friends in London to get a report as to their father's condition, and were told by cable in reply that he was suffering from nervous shock, and was laid up, but that there was no need to worry. Mr. Clarke was a good swimmer, but had not been in good health this spring.

In the last 30 years England has lost 4,000 acres of land by sea erosion and has reclaimed 46,000 acres, mainly through material brought down by rivers.

LACROSSE

Any doubt that may have existed in the minds of those interested in lacrosse, as to whether the game could be revived, is rapidly being dispelled. Lacrosse is on the come-back. This is not a theory, it is a fact, demonstrated by last night's practice, when enough for two teams were out, and had a good stiff practice. There are enough players turning out now to assure the lovers of the game that there is material for a good O.A.L.A. team, and also a city league. There will be practice to-night at the Y.M.C.A., and the coaches want every man out.

AN INQUIRY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like through your valuable paper to have some other person's opinion on this question. Do you not think it would be much more appropriate at this time, when the whole country, both Catholics and Protestants are engaged in this terrible war, if the band now practising in Victoria Hall for the 24th would lay off and take their hat from in the seat of rest? Hoping they do, I remain,

Yours truly,

T. T. COLLINS.

Letter Was Picked Up On Battle Field

Mrs. Geo. W. Allen Receives Letter From Her Husband Under Peculiar Circumstances

Mrs. Allen, 135 Chamberlen street, has received a letter from her husband, Sergt. Geo. W. Allen, written on April 23, the day of the opening of the battle of Langemarck. The letter was marked "Picked up on the field of battle," and had been sent on enclosed in another envelope. Sergt. Allen has been reported wounded, so that is thought that he must have gone into action before he had a chance to post the letter, and afterwards lost it in the confusion of the conflict. The letter is as follows:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am still O.K. up to this date. We have been back to rest, but are in action again now. We have been very fortunate so far as regards casualties, as we have only had one man die of wounds yet, and four men slightly wounded. We have left France now and are fighting in Belgium, and the artillery fire of the enemy is considerably heavier, although we are not up to the present the enemy have found our battery yet. There was a French battery in exactly the same position as we are occupying. And they all got cut up, and the regular English artillery were here too, and also got it in the neck. When we came here the English artillerymen gave us 48 hours to stay, but we have been here four days now, and had nobody hurt yet. I guess we put in a lot more time in building parapets and screening our guns from aircraft than the regulars do. We cannot work during the day, and have to work at night, bringing guns in the day time. [illegible] are very busy, but I think it will be a long job, as we are here to stay.

I have not got all [illegible] and I shall not know how the matter stands for a fortnight. I have all believe me dear to [illegible]

Young Girl Gave Up Her Life Belt To Another Woman And Lost Her Own Life

LONDON, May 11.—W. R. G. Holt, aged fifteen, son of Sir Herbert and Lady Holt, of Montreal, gave a vivid story of his experiences after he jumped from the Lusitania. Holt spent some time succoring others before he jumped from the liner. He owes his marvellous escape to his powers as a swimmer.

"After coming from luncheon," he said, "I was sitting on a lounge on the boat deck reading a novel. Suddenly, without warning, I heard a dull crash. Immediately the Lusitania leaned over on its right side about thirty-five degrees.

Confusion, Not Panic.

"People at once began to walk to the upper side deck. There was no panic, but a lot of confusion. Difficulty was experienced in launching boats owing to the list of the ship. The first boat turned over, and the occupants were thrown out.

"Seeing rescue would be difficult by means of lifeboats I decided to clamber down the side of the ship and jump into the sea, but before doing this I saw several ladies around me, most of whom had life-belts. Mrs. G. W. Stephens, Montreal, daughter of A. E. Kemp, M.P., of Toronto, had not one, whereupon Miss Anna Allan gave her one she had, and I tied it upon her.

"I then went into the cabins to see if I could find one for Miss Allan. I was unable to find one and was told by a man they had been taken out. On my return to deck I was delighted to see Miss Allan had one as well as Miss Gwendoline and Lady Allan. I then climbed down the side of the ship on the land side.

Swam from the Wreck.

"Immediately I got into the water I swam away as hard as possible. I had no life-belt.

"I had not been in the water more than a couple of minutes when the Lusitania turned over. I felt it coming on me.

Felt Rivets on Funnel.

"I dived under the water and while there came into contact with one funnel. I put my hand alongside it and felt the rivets. I swam around the funnel and eventually reached the surface water. I just managed to get a breath of air when I felt myself pulled down again by suction. Its influence, however, was not great, and I struck out with all my power and once again came to the surface. I then saw the davits of a boat and tackle just going into the water, and I was pushed by wreckage. I should say nearly a hundred yards from the ship.

"The scene around me was terrible. People were shouting for help. Others were going under the water. I succeeded in catching hold of an oar, and turning round I saw the Lusitania disappear. She did not sink all at once. Her bow entered the water first and she slid gradually forward until she disappeared.

Four Together.

"I released the oar and began swimming again. Then a man wearing a lifebelt caught hold of me round the waist, but seeing he had a belt I pushed him off, continuing to swim. I came alongside an assistant surgeon and two other men. We got hold of an air tank from one of the life boats. This was insufficient to support all of us, so again I swam away towards a collapsible life boat, which had not been properly secured, but formed part of the wreckage.

"It was partly under water and very crowded, so I left it and swam to another. With another man I got hold of a tip cart, but felt sick so my companion, while I swam for another. While swimming towards it a man on a collapsible boat extended an oar towards me, which I grasped, and was then drawn onto the boat which was upside down, but nevertheless was floating.

"Well, I should say there were over thirty people on it, and I was the last to get on. Among the group were Lady Allan and Dr. Lewis. The third engineer also was there in pyjamas. He was just going on his shift when the Lusitania was torpedoed. He took command of the boat and we drifted away from the others. There was a slight swell and any moment we thought the slender craft would go over.

"All around us were people hanging to wreckage, deck chairs, casks, tins, and anything. We observed three men in a collapsible boat which had been properly launched and was recovering survivors. They succeeded in getting about thirty people.

No Wind To Bring Rescuers.

"We kept a keen look-out for help and saw a sailing boat within half a mile, but apparently through lack of wind it came no further. There was a dead calm. This disappointed us keenly. We next saw a steamer on the horizon, and after about an hour we saw her go in an opposite direction. She had not observed our signal of distress. Lifeboats which had been launched had now gone towards the land, but there were still people like ourselves waiting rescue, and those clinging to the wreckage were in a perilous position. For two hours with others I was on the upturned boat, when to our great relief a boat known as the Katrina, flying the Greek flag, came alongside. I had tied handkerchiefs to an oar and attracted their attention. They lowered two lifeboats and came alongside. These were insufficient to take off the distressed people, and a third had to be brought.

"The Katrina, I may say, was a Cardiff ship and had come from the Falkland Islands, and had a message from the coast guard of the disaster."

CORP. HARVEY STAUNTON WRITES FROM THE FRONT

The following interesting letter from Corp. Harvey Staunton, of Peterborough, who enlisted at Lindsay with the First Contingent, and is at present in France, appears in the Lindsay Post:

France, 14, 4, 15.

Mr. J. D. McMillan,

G.T.R. Station, Lindsay, Ont., Can.

Dear Sir,—It is some time now since I have heard from you and have taken it for granted that our letters are going astray, so will write this one in hopes that we have better luck.

We now have been in France nearly two months and the boys from Lindsay are very fortunate as none have been wounded or very sick. I have visited nearly all of them and find them quite content and in best of health. Since coming here we have been in first line of trenches and under fire of every description from rifle to shell and high explosive shells. Some of the boys have had narrow escapes, they tell me, but a miss is as good as a mile these days. The first time under fire is always the worst and after that is over a person hardly ever pays any attention to the whizz of bullets or bursting of shells. We were out digging reserve trenches one night and the stray bullets were coming over the first line of trenches and were falling around us, but the boys just kept on digging and did not seem to mind very much. I had one land in ground between my feet and picked it up for souvenir. When we are not in trenches we billet in the farms close behind where we can be called upon in case of emergency. We generally sleep in barns, chicken coops or next to pig pens, etc. Most of the French people are good to us, but again we meet some who act very pro-German and will even charge for the wood we burn for cooking purposes. Others will give you anything they have. The billet we are in now they give sentries hot coffee and milk and anything they need and use them the best they know how. There are many things a person could tell you that are very interesting, but we are not allowed to tell where we are or what we are doing. We often see aeroplanes out scouting over the German lines and the shells bursting all around them, but our fellows will just change their course and fly here and there and make them foe up their shells. One morning over our trench there were four English aeroplanes and I counted over 300 shells that burst around them, some very close, but the men kept at their work until completed and then flew back with information and came back for more. The up-to-date plants carry wireless and a small [illegible] gun and an observing officer beside the pilot. One day, while going to —— for a bath, we saw two German planes flying toward us and the shells bursting around them. The British guns got one and he toppled to earth, but the other got away and dropped some bombs on a certain city close by where we were. The bombs did no damage to the soldiers, but a couple of civilians were injured and one killed. He dropped the bombs from over a mile high so could not see where they fell; also he had a chance to get away before our fellows could reach him. That is why he stayed so high up.

Most of the boys are in the 14th R.M.R. Batt. and that is the one the 40th relieve, so I see them quite often. The Ry. boys all send their best respects, also Harry King, who is in the 9th Field Battery. He is in first brigade, so I do not see him quite so often.

I wish you could convey to the directors, or who ever has charge of the payment of monies to the em-

THIS FAMILY FIGHTING THE GERMANS IN THE AIR AND ON LAND AND SEA

Dr. Amys Receives Interesting Letter From English Cousin, One of Whose Sons is Lieutenant Navigating Commander on the Conqueror, a Second a Lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps and Third a Subaltern in the Royal Field Artillery.

Dr. Amys has received a most interesting letter from his cousin, Mr. [illegible] A. Humphreys in England, which gives some idea of the way English families are rallying to the flag. The letter, in part, is as follows:

"You very kindly ask us for news of our sons. Ken., now navigating Lieut.-Commander on the Conqueror, in the North Sea, has had a trying time there since the outbreak of the war, as the fleet, there, seems to be constantly on the move night and day, which means long, responsible hours on the bridge for the navigator but he thoroughly enjoys his work, except that it involves such a long separation from his wife and three young boys. We really know nothing about the doings in the North Sea, all being kept out of our papers.

Gordon, our second son, is, as you probably know, a Lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps, and had been doing good work at the front, for which he had been favourably mentioned in French's despatches. However, on March 20th, he started early in the morning on a reconnaissance, and was shot down in his aeroplane within German lines. Two or three days afterwards we had a wire from the War Office reporting his as missing" causing us terrible anxiety. Not many days later, however, we heard from the front that a German machine had dropped within our lines. A letter signed by a German officer that the English aeroplane had been brought down and was completely smashed, the pilot (Gordon) and his observer both being taken prisoners. Enclosed in this German letter was a memo in Gordon's own hand-writing, stating that both he and his observer were "quite well". A really most remarkable escape under the circumstances. This incident seems to point to the fact that all Germans are not alike. Quite recently we have received a postcard from Gordon, written from the prisoners of war camp at Guterstock, in which he tells us that he and his friend, the observer, have so far been "treated with every consideration and courtesy." Thus our greatest anxiety has been relieved, although Gordon will, I fear, find the life of a prisoner of war very monotonous and tedious after his recent exciting experiences at the front, which he keenly enjoyed.

Spencer, our youngest son, had been on the stage, and had been successful as a producer for several years (although he is now only 23) when the war broke out and although he thoroughly enjoyed his theatrical work, he at once joined Kitchener's new army, first as a trooper in a cavalry regiment, but a few months later got a commission in the Royal Field Artillery and is still under training. He is most anxious to go to the front, and in a letter received this morning, seems to expect to remove soon. We, naturally, are not quite so anxious for this to take place.

On Friday night the older boys will meet to complete the organization of their bicycle club. The Intermediates will meet at 7.30; and the senior school boys at eight o'clock.

The first hike of the season will be held on Saturday morning at 9.30. The junior boys will leave the building at 9.30 and proceed up the Canal, where they will entrench themselves annd wait the coming of the enemy, the older school boys, who will try to locate them, and if they do there will surely be a battle for possession of the trench. The boys will bring their lunch with them, also their baseball gloves.

The war canoe will be put into shape right away, and the boys will have their usual good time down the river this summer.

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS WRITE AFTER THE LANGEMARCK BATTLE

house just behind the trenches held by the 8th Battalion. About four o'clock in the morning the "S.O.S." came up to our battery, and they immediately commenced to fire on the enemy's trenches. Shortly after we had transmitted the "S.O.S." signal we commenced to cough, and soon found ourselves enveloped by a thick yellow fume of smoke. Then we could hardly get our wind, and I looked over at Helmet and the war frothing at the mouth. In the meantime the Germans commenced the most terrible bombardment I have ever heard. A shell struck our house, and we were all nearly stunned with bricks, but managed to get out into an old trench and lie there. Then the shells commenced to come, not in ones but in fours now just beyond us and now just short. One shell ,lighting on the parapet, buried us in 6 inches of mud, and a splinter passed through Helmer's hat. It was awful.

Well I must close this letter here. Am up and around now.

Hoping you are all well, I remain,

Yours affectionately,
"Harold."

*(F.O.O.'s)—Forward observing officers.

One Company Strong"

2nd Battalion's Share in the Langemarch Fighting Told by Lieut. Jones.

The following letter is from Lieut. "Dick" Jones, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and transport officer of the 2nd Battalion and was received by his father in Bowmanville. It tells something of the experience of the 2nd Battalion in the stand at Langemarck:

April 25, 1915.

Dear Father,—I am snatching a few minutes. Can hardly do so as am almost unstrung, after being on the go for 72 hours, with two hours' sleep all told. The Canadian First Contingent might almost says is wiped out, repelling over ten times their number of Germans.

My regiment is about one company strong. All my best friends dead. Garnet Greer is almost a nervous wreck attending the wounded for 72 hours without ceasing.

I was able, through Providence, to get them their ammunition and food, through a hell of shot and shell. We were hurried into a portion of the line that the French fled from and saved the situation, otherwise a wedge would have been driven through the lines.

General French said,—"Thank God for the Canadians."

Every man we lost is a hero, and what we went through no one can realize.

The dead are piled in heaps, and the groans of the wounded will never leave me. Every night we have to clear the roads of dead men to get the waggons through, and on the way back always pick up loads of wounded to bring back to the Dressing Stations.

We are still holding them, but am thankful to say heavy reinforcements are arriving every hour, and what is left of us will be soon given a rest.

The country all around is in flames, and the continual roar of cannon is deafening. The Germans are merciless and drive their men on in masses and wither away like grain being reaped. They bayonet or deliberately shoot all our wounded not brought in, yet we bring theirs in and tend them like our own. We have got to conquer these men to bring them to their knees, and it will take thousands more good men to do it. This is War, the worst the world has ever seen.

Am well, save for being a bit on edge. Had to move my transport three times yesterday.

Your loving son,
Dick.

Pte. Quinn Safe

Says Odley Taylor Died at His Side in a Charge, He Writes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Quinn, 93 Douro Street, were pleasantly surprised this morning to receive a letter form their son, Pte. Theodore (Barney) Quinn of A Company, 2nd Battalion, First Contingent. The letter is dated April 25th and must have been written immediately after the battle of Langemarck. It is very brief, and judging by the manner it was written and the paper used, must have been written under difficulties. The most cheering news in the letter is that the writer is well. The late Pte. O. D. Taylor, who is referred to in the letter, resided next door to the Quinn family, so that the two boys were close pals, both at home and abroad. The letter reads as follows:

"Have been in one of the worst engagements yet. Have had many narrow escapes. Nearly all the Peterborough boys are killed. Odley Taylor died beside me when we charged. No doubt by the time you receive this letter you will have heard of what we have been through. I am writing this in reserve trenches, with Jack Johnsons breaking all around. Do not worry if I get hit, I will die happy."

Pte. Quinn, who was a member of the Y.M.C.A. City Hockey League team, has a host of friends here who will be glad to learn that he came through the great fight safely.

Was Shot in Leg

A letter from Pte. Ernie Mosley, who was officially reported wounded, the message coming to his parents Sunday, May, 2, written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mosley, 222 Dalhousie Street, City, tells of the battle in which he was wounded in the leg. In the letter he stated that he was to be sent to England, but a card written later says he is now in a hospital in Dublin, Ireland, and doing fine. The letter is as follows:

"Just a line to let you know where I am and what I am doing. I suppose you have heard by this time that I have been wounded, but don't you worry about me, because I know I am alright and getting along fine. Just thank the Good Lord that I wasn't killed. We had a lot of our company wounded and killed. I was shot in the leg. The bullet went in the side of my right leg just above the knee and came out behind my knee. It struck the bone, but I don't think it will bother me much..

There are eight wounded men in the ward I am in and we are some bunch. We have a lady nurse and she is very good to us.

I have just had the news that they are sending me to England to-morrow. I am now in Rouan in France. I don't know what part of England I am going to, but will let you know when I arrive there.

The morning I was hit the Germans had broken through our lines. At least it was where the French soldiers were defending the trenches, and the Canadians and some English were ordered up to drive them back, and we did too, although we lost a lot of men. I don't know who was hit from Peterborough. When I was hit I had to crawl about five hundred yards as best I could, to safety. This was just at days break Friday morning and I had a rest there and went to an old barn where there were about fifty wounded men. We had our wounds dressed and had to stay there all the day, and then at night we were taken in an ambulance to a hospital. I had my wound dressed again and then put on a Red Cross train and brought down here to Rouen. So the only thing I can do is to thank the Good Lord I am alive, because bullets were thicker than snow flakes on a snowy day, and then the big shells were bursting around us. Nearly all our officers were killed.

Well I guess I will close. I will write from England, so good-bye, mother ,and don't worry.'

Hurt By Shrapnel

Pte. Harold Saunders of the 57th Detachment Writes.

Mrs. J. Saunders, Sherbrooke Street, has received the following letter forwarded from England by an aunt of Pte. Harold Saunders, to whom the local boy wrote immediately after the Langemarck battle:

Dear Auntie,—I am wounded and expect to be sent down to the base soon. The Canadians are all cut to pieces, but made one of the best charges during the war.

They got me in the leg with a piece of shrapnel, but it is nothing very serious, although a little painful.

Will you please write home and tell them about it, as a letter from England would reach them quicker than one from here. Now I must close, with best love to all.

Harold.

EARLY NOTES FROM STONEY LAKE

The steamer "Empress" which, along with the "Islinda," has been busily engaged in towing logs from Bell's Creek, the last three weeks, took a day off and brought up a large load of freight from Lakefield.

There was merchandise for Mr. Julian, lumber for Clink's cottage, near "Viamede," and household goods for Mr J. W. Wilson's summer home, near McCracken's Landing. Mr. Wilson is an American, hailing from Rochester, and is an enthusiastic admirer of our lakes. Last year he commenced the erection of a splendid cottage on the mainland, south of McCracken's, almost opposite Mr. J. O. McCarthy's "Emerald Isle."

Messrs. Moore and Son have the contract for the erection of Mr. Clink's cottage, which will be like that of Mr. Lawrence Graham in design. Its dimensions will be 29 x 34, over all. Mr. Robinson of Lakefield will erect the building.

Mr. Botterill of Lakefield has the contract for building Mr. Gordon Fraser's cottage on the second island east of Burleigh Falls. Ten thousand feet of lumber were taken up a couple of weeks ago for the boathouse.

The cottage will be a palatial affair, measuring 30 x 30, including verandahs, which will have a uniform width of fifteen feet.

Mr. James Northey's residence on the Burleigh Road was struck by lightning during the electric storm of last week.

Mr. D. J. Lundy and party, as well as Mr. R. J. Winch, took passage on Mr. Thompson's launch, the "Viking," last Saturday, to their cottage in upper Stony Lake, where they will spend a few weeks' holidays.

Mr. Walter of Montreal, accompanied by Mr. Rupert McLellan of the Peterborough Canoe Co., went north in Mr. Walter's new motor boat on Saturday. At Lakefield they picked up Mrs. Walter and proceeded to their cottage in Stony Lake.

The steamer Stony Lake will open the excursion season on the 24th of May, but running a trip down the river for the Salvation Army.

Local Council of Women's Column

The Matter Published in this column will be supplied by the Local Council of Women and is the interest of their work.

Mothers Day has come and gone, surely the saddest Mothers Day that ever was. That it was fittingly celebrated in Peterborough was shown by the fact that the Local Council of Women [illegible] carnations. Over two thousand five hundred were sold by eleven o'clock a.m., and had they been able to secure five thousand they could have been disposed of.

Few people are aware of the good work being done in Peterborough by the Mothers' Clubs. The first Mother's Club was started by the wife of one of our leading physicians in connection with the Y. W. C. A. The Local Council of Women took up the good work and now there are Mothers' Clubs in connection with nearly all the schools.

The object of the Clubs is primarily to promote the welfare of the child and at the same time to educate the mothers and also to encourage a more sympathetic interest between the teachers and the mothers. At these meetings mothers and teachers talk over their difficulties in an informal friendly way and many acts of kindness are the outcome. For instance, at one of the schools over thirty children were supplied with suitable clothing last winter, all supplied by the Mothers' Club in connection with that school.

Talks are also given on various subjects. On April 30th, Dr. Neal talked to the Mothers' Club of Queen Mary's school on the care of an infant up to one year old. The Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A. also spoke to the Mothers' Clubs on the need from a moral as well as physical standpoint of the supervised playground.

We often hear it said that when women get the vote it will be the man's hand that will have to rock the cradle. Yet side by side with the movement for the suffrage is marching this still stronger one, the movement for the betterment of child life. Never in the history of the world has there been so much study devoted to child welfare in all its phases. All the American Mothers' Clubs and schools of mothercraft are being established. Even that arch suffragette, Mrs. Pankhurst, announced that she intends to adopt twenty "war babies" and see that they are properly brought up, according to the true Pankhurstian idea what ever that may be.

CAME BACK FOR ANOTHER TERM

Harry Watters drifted into the Police Court this morning, for his regular "six months' ticket" to Castle Nesbitt. He has been out for about two weeks, but likely found the city too busy for him.

The Magistrate probably has heard of Harry's abilities as an entertainer and thought it a pity that the other inmates of the jail should be deprived of this pastime. Watters has been cook at Castle Nesbitt during several terms of incarceration there, and it is he who is responsible for the rendering of patriotic selections to which the attention of many visitors to the County Court House have been drawn.

From daylight to dark the corridors of the jail section of the County Buildings echo with the "Words" of the selections "Rule Britannia" and "The Maple Leaf," uttered by Harry, taking the "Air" mostly from his surroundings.

possibly for several weeks. The administration officials emphasized today that while the German circular received at the State Department yesterday did indicate a willingness on the part of Germany to recede at least a step in her submarine policy, it in no way affected the Lusitania matter On the question of torpedoing unarmed merchant vessels carrying noncombatants the two nations are still far apart. The report that the president would make a personal appeal to Emperor William instead of proceeding through the usual diplomatic channels, was revived to-day. It received no official confirmation.

GERMAN ATROCITIES

TORONTO, May 12.—Reports from London summarize the reports issued to-day by a committee headed by Viscount Bryce, a committee of such calibre that no neutral will doubt the truth of the findings which it bases on the examination of 1200 witnesses. In the United States the report will carry especial weight owing to Bryce's term there as the British Ambassador.

The commission was appointed by the British government with the idea of clearing up and classifying the mass of stories as to German atrocities in Belgium and France which have been circulated. Its report verifies the very worst of these stories, even the statements which have been considered exaggerated by the British themselves. The tales of children with their hands cut off and women mutilated in the most horrible way are found by the commission to be true. One case is cited of a three year old child who was nailed to a farm house floor. The commission finds that most of the horrors were part of a deliberate plan to terrify Belgium for which "men higher up" were directly responsible.

"Murder, lust and pillage on a scale unparalleled in any war between civilized nations during the last three centuries are proven against Germany," says the Bryce report. Many of the outrages are declared to have been due to drunkenness on the part of the soldiers, to the turning loose without restraint of brutal and beastial natures and to confusion caused by the authorized campaign of killing, arson and destruction as reprisals for civilians attacking German troops. The commission cites cases where German soldiers were killed for attacking women.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—President Wilson has fully made up his mind to-day on his action in the Lusitania case. A note, vigorous in tone, firm in purpose but devoid of threats or bluster, will be sent today or early on Thursday to Berlin, it was announced, calling Germany to "strict accounting" for the destruction of American lives and property in the European war zone. All that Americans feel in the way about the recent case will be expressed, it is understood, but not in such a way as to shut the door against any sincere German desire to make amends and to give solemn assurances that such incidents as that of the Lusitania and others which have occurred in the past, will not be repeated in the future. It was stated on good authority, however, that the note will be clean cut and emphatic. Germany, according to reliable reports, will be called on to admit that the war methods involving the status of neutrals, and women and children, are wrong.

French Microbe is Fatal To Men on Battlefield

PARIS, May 11.—A mysteria s occurred by the Germans, where a new microbe that thrives without oxygen has been unearthed by modern trench warfare and has confronted medical science with another riddle which Metchnikoff, Sir Almwroth Wright, Carroll and others are now working night and day to solve.

The new microbe, which resembles in most respects a microbe already discovered in the laboratory of Professor William H. Welch, of Baltimore—the bacillus perfringens—is a deadly enemy to the armies in the field and has caused untold suffering and reaped a rich harvest of dead. Its mortal activities have hitherto set at naught the profundity of learning and experience now being brought to bear in military hospitals against war wounds and sickness.

Nowhere is the struggle against this devastating germ being waged with greater earnestness or more effect than in the magnificent American Ambulance Hospital at Neuilly, by the gates of Paris, yet, in the words of Dr. Edmund Gros, one of the leading members of the American medical staff, "We feel we stand where we did before Lister discovered antiseptic treatment."

New Scheme of Surgery.

"This war," Dr. Gros added, "will result in the revolutionizing of the whole scheme of antiseptic surgery. Accepted theories and practices do not apply to the army surgery of today. The world must look to another men like Lister or Pasteur to enable us to cope with the terrible complications of gas and other gangrenes produced by these deadly and mysterious earth microbes."

Six months' experience of treating victims of trench warfare at the American Hospital here — the best equipped military hospital the world has ever seen, in the opinion of the leading European bacteriologists and surgeons—has demonstrated the inefficaciousness of the usual antiseptic dressings for shell wounds. Soldiers who have remained in the trenches a few days become impregnated with hitherto unattached microbes, which, as soon as shell splinter or bullet tears open the flesh, penetrates to the tissue and blood. The result is tetanus or gangrene, with very little chance of recovery unless treatment is immediate.

These earth microbes thrive without oxygen, so that the wound must not be allowed to heal until the germs are annihilated.

The cultivation of these microbes and the creation of a "serum" to destroy them as they eat into the tissues of wounded soldiers, is the problem that Metchnikoff, Carrel, Tuffier, Dilsberg and other great experimenters are now attacking.

Many from Aisne Valley.

"The wounded from the valley of the Aisne," says Dr. Benjamin Jablons, head of the laboratory department of the American Hospital, "seem to have suffered more from the medical riddle of modern warfare than any other troops. The Germans have suffered likewise. Among the troops, especially in that part of France still

Roblin Has Resigned

General Election in Manitoba Expected Shortly

WINNIPEG, Man., May 12.—Sir Rodmond Roblin's government resigned about noon to-day, and the Liberal leader, T. C. Norris, was called in by the Lieutenant-Governor to form a government immediately. Roblin has had fifteen years of power. A general election is expected shortly, and it is conceded that the Liberals will be returned to power.

Premier T. C. Norris and his cabinet have already taken over the departments vacated this morning by Sir Rodmond Roblin and his cabinet.

The Winnipeg Telegram (Con.) says editorially to-day that Roblin and other members of the cabinet will resign their seats, and thus give the new Liberal government a majority of seats in the Legislature.

J. Hubert Eastwood, son of Mr. Eastwood, Brock street, passed his third year in civil engineering with honours. The congratulations of their many friends is extended the successful students.

The Hair-Destroying Curling Iron Passes

The heated iron makes the hair dry and parched looking, burns off the oils giving a most untidy appearance. Ye who have learned this from sad experience will be glad to hear of a very simple method which is open to none of the objections referred to and which gives better results than the curling iron.

Just get a 25c bottle of Parisian Sage from any druggist and apply a little to the hair at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down one strand at a time from root to tip. In the morning the hair will be wavy and fluffy as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be oh so beautiful. The waves that night of comfort you get. The effect will last much longer than if you used a curling iron, and the health of your hair will not suffer. At druggists 25 cent bottle or grocery it is quite pleasant to use.

English Women In Canada As Anxious As Sisters in Old Land

Peterborough is beginning to realize the human cost of war. The slowly unfolding list of Langemarck's casualties moved the citizens to a profound sense of their loss, and while time heals quickly the public heart the near friends and relatives of the dead will not soon forget. Since last August the Empire's bereavement has steadily deepened, but it remained for the second battle at Ypres to link us up in sorrow with the Old Land. The list of British officers recorded almost daily from Flanders, France, and the Dardanelles, showed the wastage among the British regiments, and the ever increasing number of homes affected. But even here in Peterborough, one begins to realize the extent to which Old Countrymen have recruited. Calling at local homes of English families, for instance, where men, recently killed or wounded, had resided, one learns of the numbers of their relatives who are also bearing arms. One woman had a large plush-covered board with many snapshots neatly arranged on it. And every snapshot pictured a relative or friend fighting somewhere under the Union Jack. "This is my brother Fred. He's with the Buffs. That's my sister Anna's husband; he's with the Lincolns. That's my husband's youngest brother; he's on the Lion or Tiger, I forget which. That's my sister Lucy's beau. He's with the Staffords." And so she might have indicated all the photographs on the plush board, including her husband, then at Ottawa, and several former boarders with the Canadians. Interviews with these relatives or friends of the recently wounded and killed, brought out invidentally the fact of the thousands of homes in the British Isles that have given husbands and sons to the colours. Thus while the women in the Old Land are bereaved or are anxious for the safety of their men, almost to the same extent are the English women who have come to Canada in recent years affected by the same blows, or the spectral fears for those yet untouched.

Little Damage Through Frost

Crops Are Looking Fine in Peterborough County—Pastures Are Coming Along in Good Shape

Mr. J. H. Garbutt of Smith Township and ex-Warden of Peterborough County, states that the crops are looking fine. The frost of Sunday night, when five degrees of frost were registered, did comparatively little damage. If anything, the barley suffered the worst. As for the other grain it will serve to make it hardy. Mr. Garbutt had occasion to take some young cattle back to Harvey last week where they will pasture for the summer. The pasture seldom looked better. Most of the young stock have been out for nearly a month and are already growing sleek and fat.

The timothy might have suffered slight damage from the recent frost especially in the low lying ground. The actual damage will be difficult to ascertain until harvest time.

Ontario Crops.

Reports coming to hand from all parts of Ontario are one in their optimism regarding crops, says Bradstreet's report, seeding is about complete, and in many sections every available acre has been utilized. The condition of fall planting is excellent both East and West. Farmers have gone in for wheat and oats, but less for barley.

Since last July North America has exported 250,000,000 bushels of wheat as compared with 220,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period a year ago. This speaks volumes for the grain growers of the two countries. The total stocks on hand in the two countries that might possibly be shipped abroad amount to only about 5,000,000 bushels.

In The West.

Regina, May 12—The Department of Agriculture is in receipt of week-end telegraphic reports from members of the outside staff engaged in various parts of the province. An outstanding feature is that wheat seeding is practically completed. High winds have been prevalent and on light lands some re-seeding may be necessary.

A quarter of the oats acreage is seeded and barley seeding has commenced. In the south-western district it is very evident that no efforts must be spared to conserve moisture.

Fear For Safety Of Two Aged Men

Inmates of House of Refuge Have Been Absent for Several Days and Cannot Be Located

There is great anxiety at the County House of Refuge for the safety of two aged inmates, named Breene and Page, who left there on Friday and Sunday, respectively, and of whom there has been nothing heard since, though the authorities have been making a thorough search of the County, and following rumours, since the dates of their disappearance.

When the superintendent was absent on Friday with some cattle which he was removing to another part of the township, Breene made his getaway. Inquiries were first instituted in the neighbourhood and it was expected that he would spend the night at some residence in the vicinity, and would be reported in the morning. When no information was forthcoming on Saturday, a search party was sent out. The search continued Saturday and Sunday, and when the superintendent returned Sunday evening, he was informed that Page had also left.

Page had asked the matron to allow him to attend church Sunday morning, and she replied that the weather was not very good, and he had better wait until evening when the superintendent would have returned, and Page could go to church with him. Page is aged, and at times becomes childish, and it is thought he was disappointed and took a notion to go somewhere. When the roll was called at supper time, Page was absent and nothing has been heard of him since.

Breene left a couple of times before, and the last time was found in the vicinity of Young's Point. The other time he returned of his own accord. He has some relatives in Otonabee, and it was thought he might try to go there, but inquiries in that direction did not bring any results.

Both Breene and Page are very feeble, and the authorities fear that they may have come to grief somewhere. The people throughout the county have been notified to be on the lookout.

There was no information forthcoming at the local Police Station this morning when an inquiry was made as to whether the Peterborough Police were assisting in the search.

Elder Johnston at Woodmen Hall

Another theme of interest was delivered by Elder Johnston, last night, in Woodmen Hall, being an examination of the false and unscriptural theory entertained by many in this and other cities that "once we are in grace we are always in grace." Taking for his text, Rom. 6:14, he showed how that grace was extended to man in consequence of a broken law. Had there been no law there could be no grace. Proof: The law defines sin and condemns it—I. John, 3:4, and where there is no law there is no sin. Rom. 4:15. If there is no sin there is no need of grace. Thus the doctrine which teaches that there is no law dispenses with the reason for believing in free grace. To illustrate his point, he referred to the civil law of Canada. If a man dares to steal we find he is arrested, tried in a court of justice, condemned and cast into prison. But if for special reasons the penalty is revoked and the person is allowed another chance to reform the unmerited favour bestowed upon the man is called grace. Thus we can see if there had been no law there could be no grace. As in the civil earthly arrangements of man, so with the Lord. Grace is bestowed upon him who repents. But in order to continue on to enjoy the grace bestowed, he must ever after this obey the law of God. If after one is converted he then disobeys, he naturally becomes a sinner again, and comes beneath the penalty of the law.

From the foregoing thoughts it becomes very plain that a person may fall from grace; yea, even fall and never return. Various individuals were referred to, in proof of this point, and particularly the Scriptures in Ezekiel, 18:24, where it says that a righteous man may fall and never return Thus the view that many hold that we cannot fall from grace is not true. Judas fell from grace and afterwards Hilaged Himself. Will he be saved? Same was true of Saul and Solomon. We used to be shy about believing such an error, and, as the Lord says, in I. Cor., 10:12: "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. Also in Heb. 12:15: "Looking diligently lest any man fall from (marginal reading) the grace of God.

The Site For The Disposal Plant

Will Come Up This Evening Before Committee of the Whole Council

A Committee of the Whole Council has been called for this evening The question before the house will be the proposed site for the sewerage disposal plant. The City Fathers may consider the advisability of locating a short distance below the point that has already been selected and over which so much controversy has arisen. By moving a short distance down the city can avoid the possibility of prolonged litigation and excessive costs that might arise in connection therewith.

The Finance Committee of the City Council will meet this afternoon at four o'clock for the purpose of discussing the Hydro Association's request for a monthly grant of fifty dollars a month.

WEDDING BELLS

SIMPSON—GREENE.

In Toronto, on Thursday, May 6, 1915, Miss Edith May Simpson and Mr. Alfred Lewis Greene, both of Peterborough, were united by the holy bonds of matrimony, Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Toronto, officiating.

BARTON—MANN.

A Victoria exchange says: A very [illegible] o'clock on Monday evening, April 5th, at St. Barnabas Church, when the Ven. Archdeacon Scriven united in marriage Oswald Herbert Barton, son of Mrs. Barton, of Victoria, B.C., and grandson of Rev. J. Stevenson, D.D., Principal of Cambridge House Collegiate School, Stratford-on-Avon, and Rector of Kingsley Church, Buxton, and Miss Jessie May Mann, youngest daughter of Mrs. Esau Tucker, of Apsley, Ont. The church was filled with friends of the bride and bridegroom, and was beautifully decorated with a profusion of spring flowers. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Thomas Parsell, looked very pretty in her wedding gown of white charmeuse satin, with overdress of silk marquisette trimmed with lace and pearls, and veil and orange blossoms. She carried a sheaf of Easter lilies as a bridal bouquet. The bridesmaid, Miss Edith Parsell, cousin of the bride, wore a dainty frock of pale green crepe de chine, with a picture hat, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Albert Jones acted as best man. The service was fully choral. The choir boys met the bridal party at the door and marched in procession up the aisle, singing "The voice that breathed o'er Eden." Mr. Arthur Longfield presided at the organ, playing Schubert's "Wedding March" at the beginning of the service. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. J. Little, Dallas Avenue, attended only by immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The table was beautifully laid with carnations and wild lilies, with green chiffon and asparagus fern. The bridal couple left on the midnight boat for Vancouver, on their way to the Sound Cities. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Barton will make their home at [illegible] Point Day.

FITZERALD—SHEEHAN.

The wedding bells of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, rang out in all their splendour on Tuesday, May 4th, when Rev. Father McGuire united in marriage Miss Anna Fitzgerald, lately of St. Paul, to Mr. Richard Sheehan, of Douro. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Alice Fitzgerald, while Mr. Dan Sheehan, of St. Michael's College, Toronto, acted as groomsman. The bride was charmingly attired in white silk, draped in shadow lace, caught with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas, with a beautifully plumed hat to match. The bridesmaid was attractively apparelled in pink voile, and wore a corsage bouquet of pink carnations. The marches, solos and other selections were very admirably rendered by the choir, all the members of which were present for the glad festivity and very much enjoyed by the friends and relations of the young couple. After the ceremony the bridal party and a few intimate friends partook of a dainty repast at the home of the bride's mother. After spending a few enjoyable hours with their friends, from whom many pretty presents were received, the happy couple left on the evening train for Toronto, where they will spend their honeymoon, and on their return will reside in Douro.

MILITARY NEWS

In the list of the 57th detachment, the name of Pte. H. Sweeny was omitted.

Pte. T. H. Griffiths, Jr., officially reported killed, was a son of Pte. T. H. Griffiths, and a brother of Pte. Albert Griffiths, both with the Peterborough Squadron of the 6th C.M.R., at Ottawa.

A typographical error made an article in yesterday's military column misleading. Instead of being referred to as wounded the article stated that Pte. Nicholls, Corp Savage, and Corporals Yates and Ellis, had been reported killed. The sentence should have read "reported wounded."

One thousand and five soldiers from Lindsay passed through Peterborough this morning to join the 39th Battalion at Belleville.

RIOTS IN OLD COUNTRY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May. 13.— Not since the outbreak of the war has the situation so far as naturalized enemy aliens is concerned, been so critical. While leading members of the House of Commons were demanding that the government intern these citizens, mobs are parading London and other cities, demolishing stores and houses and attacking all persons with German or Austrian names. In a number of cases, Russians were mistaken for enemies and badly beaten. The police were unable to control the mobs. In many instances women who had pillaged the German and Austrian bakeshops attacked the police with bags of flour, tearing their uniforms and inflicting severe bruises and cuts. So serious did the government consider the situation that Premier Asquith in the House of Commons, after a long cabinet meeting, announced that the Government was considering interning all aliens born in the enemies' control, whether naturalized or not. He promised a statement of the subject later on. In the east end the Germans and Austrian residents formed a defence battalion and defied the police and the crowds. A free for all street battle followed that extended for many blocks.

No Mention Made Regarding the Fate of Mr. Copping

A despatch from Queenstown states that the body of George R. Copping, of 72 South Drive, Toronto, who sailed on the Lusitania with his wife, was identified yesterday. While no mention has been made in the various cables regarding the fate of Mrs. Copping, no hope is now held out for her safety.

Mr. R. Copping, of the Brinton Carpet Company, Peterborough, is a son.

A Muzzle For Dernburg

Special to the Examiner.

WASHINGTON, May 12. — That the Government intends to muzzle Dr. Bernhardt Dernburg, unofficial German representative in the United States, was learned on high autority this afternoon.

The affair has been taken out of the realm of diplomacy, however. Indeed it was stated that no diplomatic method of dealing with the Dernburg case exists. Administration officials have decided, however, that it will not be difficult to prevent the publication at least, of the doctor's remarks.

WATER IN STONEY LAKE VERY HIGH

The water in Stoney Lake is being maintained at a very high level at present. It is within a few inches of the top of the cement work at Young's Point, which is nearly as high as at flood time. The stop logs are all in at the Point. The reservoirs in the north part of the Trent Valley watershed adequate water power well as into the summer. For the balance of the season it largely depends upon the rains. Last summer these were few and far between, which resulted in "low water" in the fall. It is said that if there is a rainfall of half an inch on the level, it will raise the level of the lakes eight inches.

Many stationary wharves are out of sight, and those of the floating variety are being driven high up on the shores, which will make them hard to float again when the water goes down. In former years the majority of floting wharves were wrenched from their moorings and scattered around the lakes. Such is not the case this year, as the ice went out, or disappeared, very quietly.

The rains have been very frequent of late. There is a certain fascination about a rain at Stoney Lake, particularly when it is accompanied by an electric storm.

"How beautiful is the rain!
After the dust and heat,
In the broad and fiery street,
In the narrow lane,
How beautiful is the rain!
How it clatters along the roofs,
Like the tramp of hoofs!
How it gushes and struggles out
From the throat of the overflowing spout!
Across the window pane
It pours and pours;
And swift and wide
Like a muddy tide
Like a river down the gutter roars
The rain, the terrible rain!"

SWITZERLAND'S FOOD SUPPLY

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 13.—The Swiss people are concerned over the question of food supplies in case Italy enters the war. No supplies are coming in at present from Germany or Austria, but wheat shipments are arriving from America. Food has increased in price 20 to 25 per cent, since the war began, and a further rise is expected if Italy takes up arms.

The Swiss Government believes that wheat from America will be permitted to come through France freely in case assurance is given that it will not go beyond the Swiss frontier.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

How Will Germany Answer United States Note?

Demands For Reparation For American Lives And The Loss of Property

Much Curosity as to Exact Contents of President Wilson's Letter--The Attitude of the Germans.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

WASHINGTON, May 13.—How will Germany answer?

Interest in this question overshadowed early to-day the curiosity concerning the contents of President Wilson's message to the Berlin Foreign Office. The latter had not been made public, but it was pretty well understood what it contained—in brief a demand for reparation for the destruction, already suffered, of American lives and property, through German submarine activity in the European war zone, and assurances that such occurrences would not be repeated so far as Americans are concerned.

The German attitude, however, was wholly an unknown quality. Three possible forms of response were seen by officials here—acquiescence in America's demands—such a reply as would lead to further negotiation. A definite refusal, politely worded or otherwise, to grant what President Wilson asks.

Perhaps the second of these theories had the greatest number of supporters. That the Kaiser would go so far as to admit himself in the wrong and promise not to err again, was not very generally believed. Yet in his latest note relative to "mistaken" German submarine attacks on neutral vessels, some thought they saw an inclination on his part not to assume an entirely defiant attitude toward all the world.

Of the hope that Berlin would unqualifiedly yield, there was little talk. Fears of refusal were numerous.

"They've Got Us Now" Called Mr. Vanderbilt As Vessel Sank

Survivor Tells of Seeing Wealthy Sportsman With Heavy Overcoat Wrapped About Him Just Before Waters Closed Over Him

QUEENSTON, May 13—Dr. Owen Kenan, of Wilmington, N.C., who is on the Lusitania's passenger list as coming from New York, was found seriously ill in a hotel late yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Kenan said that as he went down with the ship he saw Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt leaning against a gateway door, and that Mr. Vanderbilt called out to him "They have got us now!"

Mr. Vanderbilt, according to Dr. Kenan, wore what looked like a very heavy overcoat, around which a lifebelt had been buckled Dr. Kenan did not see him come to the rail.

Dr. Kenan declares he went down twice. The first time he was submerged, it seemed as though he hd gone to the bottom. He kept his eyes open and finally saw the light and then his head protruded from the water, but stayed there only long enough to get a couple of gasps of air. Then he was pulled down again, and came up almost underneath two boats. He was picked up a moment later.

Dr. Kenan was ill when he went into the water. His condition still is serious, but he probably will recover.

Dr. Depage, medical director of the Belgian Red Cross, arrived here during the day and positively identified the body of his wife. The body of Mme. Depage was sent to London and thence will be taken to Brussels.

Mme. Depage was bringing back to Europe $00,000 contributed by the United States to the Belgian Red Cross fund, but this money was in the vessel's safe and went down with the ship.

The police have taken possession of $50,000 in cash, many drafts and a considerable amount of jewellery found on the dead.

F. M. Lasseter, an officer of a Scottish regiment, who was wounded early in the war and had been on a voyage of three months to recover his health, was saved, together with his mother, by the saloon grand piano of the Lusitania, on which they floated for three hours. Mr. Lasseter says he came up near his mother after the boat went down and sighted the piano floating with its legs up. He lifted his mother on the piano and then climbed aboard himself. They found the unique craft well above the waves and perfectly seaworthy.

The Lasseters were less exhausted when taken aboard the trawler than most of those persons who had been in lifeboats.

Delay Funeral Procession.

An early morning train yesterday brought nearly a hundred friends or relatives of passengers to Queenstown from various parts of the British Isles. Among those who arrived was W. L. Griffiths of the Canadian office in London, who desired to extend aid to the Canadian survivors.

The coffins of the sixty-four unidentified dead were filed past by weeping men, women and children, who sought the last opportunity to see if there were among the dead those for whom they were searching. This delayed the funeral procession, the entire forenoon being devoted to last efforts to make identifications.

Abandon Proposed Search of Sea.

William Webb, the representative of Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, wanted to send out a tug last night to continue the search for Mr. Vanderbilt's body, but the Admiralty and Cunard line officials discouraged the idea which was abandoned. There is no indication when the search for bodies will be resumed.

Mrs. Jessie Taft Smith, of Braceville, Ohio, who was making the trip from New York unaccompanied, was one of the coolest survivors of the disaster. Recounting her experiences yesterday, she said:

"I was in my room writing when the torpedo hit the ship. I am satisfied no warning was given. I have testified to this in an affidavit which I have supplied to the State Department.

"It is a surprising fact how many persons were caught in their state rooms. Evidently they shared my feelings that if they struck the ship would stay up a long time. This probably accounts for the heavy losses among the first cabin passengers, many of whom went below to get their belongings. I had practiced putting on my life belt and by the time I reached the deck I had adjusted it. On my way to the deck the list was so great that I fell against some man who expostulated with me. Asking his pardon, I hurried to the port side, and was thrown into a boat by a steward and fell sprawling.

"Two-thirds of the persons in this boat, the only one launched on the port side, were men. A fearful time was taken in lowering the boat, which was only about thirty feet a-day when the Lusitania disappeared beneath the waves leaving a mass of wreckage, swimmers and dead bodies.

After rowing for three hours we were picked up by a fishing boat. Later we were taken aboard a trawler and landed here. I was taken into the home of a local physician, whose American wife treated me as if I were her own relative. To-day my husband arrived, but I shall stay here as long as possible"

MORE PROGRESS HAS BEEN MADE NORTH OF ARRAS

French Offensive Continues Despite Most Violent Opposition—Every Counter Attack is Thrown Back

COSTLY FAILURES

PARIS, May 13.—The fighting north of Arras continues with extreme violence. In the night of Tuesday-Wednesday the Germans, reinforced, delivered several counter-attacks without result, and suffered very heavy losses, 280 German dead being found in one place. The second attack, between Carency and Albain, was also repulsed, and a third, in which the Germans debouched from Ablain, was also thrown back.

Yesterday morning the French made progress in the woods east of Carency, taking 125 prisoners. This advance continued in the afternoon. They, moreover, occupied three successive lines of trenches on the border of the wood north of Carency and penetrated into the wood, threatening at close range the last line of communication remaining open to the defenders of the position. Finally they captured a further part of the village and made 400 prisoners. In the afternoon they attacked the part of Neuville St. Vaast still held by the enemy. The street fighting resulted in making them masters of several groups of houses, and the advance continues. The total number of prisoners since Sunday last was Wednesday evening about 4,000.

The German official report admits that trenches taken by the French during the past few days between Carency and Neuville, north of Arras, are still in their possession.

Sir John French reports the repulse of another German attack near Ypres, the third costly failure of the enemy since yesterday.

Horse Badly Injured In Runaway

INDIAN RIVER, May 13—A team of horses belonging to Mr. John Fitzgerald of Indian River, ran away yesterday afternoon. They were attached to a heavy steel roller and two of Mr. Fitzgerald's sons, Mark and John, who were riding on the roller at the time, had a narrow escape from serious injury. As it was they were badly shaken up. One of the horses was so badly injured that it may not recover. Dr. George Forrune, V.S., of Peterborough, was sent for, and in attending the injured animals

British Held Lines Under Heavy Fire in Fighting at Ypres

Whole Length of Defences Were Wiped Out But Survivors Rebuilt Parapets and Awaited Next Onslaught---Thrilling Story by the Eye Witness.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 13.—The official British eye-witness, under date of May 11, gives an account of the German attempts on Saturday and Sunday last to break the British lines around Ypres and the great advance made by the allied forces north of Arras. He says:

"The calm that prevailed Thursday and Friday proved to be only the lull before the storm. Early Saturday morning it became apparent that the Germans were preparing an attack in strength against our line running east and northeast from Ypres, for they were concentrating under cover of a violent artillery fire, and at about ten o'clock the battle began in earnest.

DETERMINED ASSAULTS.

"At that hour the Germans attacked our line from the Ypres-Poelcapelle road to within a short distance of the men in the high road, it being evidently their intention while engaging us closely on the whole of this sector to break our front in the vicinity of the Ypres-Roulers railway, to the north and to the south of which their strongest and most determined assaults were delivered.

"Under this pressure our front was penetrated at some points around Frezenberg, and at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon we made a counter-attack between the Zonnebeke road and the railway in order to recover the lost ground. Our offensive was conducted most gallantly, but was checked before long by the fire of machine guns.

"Meanwhile, the enemy launched another attack through the woods south of the Menin road, and at the same time threatened our left to the north of Ypres with fresh masses. Most desperate fighting ensued, the German infantry coming on again and again, and gradually forcing our troops back, though only for a short distance, in spite of repeated counter-attacks.

BROKEN AT SEVERAL POINTS.

"During the night the fighting continued to rage with ever-increasing fury. It is impossible to say at exactly what hour our line was broken at different points, but it is certain that at one time the enemy's infantry poured through along the Poelcapelle road, and even got as far as Wieltje at 9 p.m.

"There was also a considerable gap in our front about Frezenberg, where hostile detachments had penetrated. At both points counter-attacks were organized without delay. To the east of the salient, the Germans first were driven back to Frezenberg, but there they made a firm stand, and under pressure of fresh reinforcements we fell back again toward Verlorenhoek.

"Northeast of the salient a counter-attack carried out by us about 3 a.m., was more successful. Our troops swept the enemy out of Wieltje at the bayonet's point, leaving the village strewn with German dead, and, pushing on, regained most of the ground to the north of that point.

FOUGHT ALL NIGHT LONG.

"And so the fight surged to and fro throughout the night. All around the scene of the conflict the sky was lit up by the flashes of the guns, and the light of blazing villages and farms, while against this background of smoke and flame, looking out in the murky light over the crumbling ruins of the old town, rose the battered wreck of the cathedral tower and the spires of Cloth Hall.

"When Sunday dawned there came a short respite and the firing for a time died down. The comparative lull enabled us to reorganize and consolidate our position on the new line we had taken up and to obtain some rest after the fatigue and strain of the night. It did not last long, however, and in the afternoon the climax of the battle was reached, for, under the cover of intense artillery fire, the Germans launched no less than five separate assaults against the east of the salient.

"To the north and northeast their attacks were not at first pressed so hard as on the south of the Menin road, where the fighting was especially fierce. In the latter direction masses of infantry were hurled on with absolute desperation and were beaten off with corresponding slaughter.

"At one point, north of the town, 500 of the enemy advanced from the woods, and it is affirmed by those present that not a single man of them escaped.

LITERALLY HEAPED WITH DEAD.

"On the eastern face, at 6:30 p.m., an endeavour was made to storm the grounds of the Chateau Hooge, a little north of the Menin road, but the force attempting it broke and fell back under the hail of shrapnel poured upon them by our guns. It was on this side, where they had to face the concentrated fire of guns, Maxims and rifles again and again in their efforts to break their way through, that the Germans incurred their heaviest losses and the ground was literally heaped with dead.

"They evidently, for the time being at least, were unable to renew their efforts, and as night came on the fury of their offensive gradually slackened, the hours of darkness passing in quietness.

"During the day our troops saw some of the enemy be still employed in stripping the British dead in our abandoned trenches, east of the Hooge Chateau, and several Germans afterwards were noticed dressed in khaki.

"So far as the Ypres region is concerned, this was a most successful day. Our losses were comparatively slight, and, owing to the targets presented by the enemy, the action resolved itself on our part into pure killing.

"The reason for this very determined effort to crush our left on the part of the Germans is not far to seek. It is probable that for some days previously they had been in possession of information which led them to suppose that we intended to apply pressure on the right of our line and that their great attack upon Ypres on the 7th, 8th and 9th was undertaken with a view to diverting us from our purpose.

AGAIN AND AGAIN BLOTTED OUT.

"The failure of their effort was due to the splendid endurance of our troops, who held the line around the salient under a fire which again and again blotted out whole lengths of the defences and killed the defenders by scores. Time after time along those parts of the front selected for assault were parapets destroyed, and time after time did the thinning band of survivors build them up again and await the next onset as steadily as before.

"The services rendered by our troops in this quarter cannot at present be estimated, for their full significance will only be realized in the light of future events. But, so far, their devotion has indirectly contributed in no small measure to the striking success already achieved by our allies."

Interment of All Male Enemy Aliens

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 13.—A heavy downpour of rain early to-day dispersed anti-German mobs that ran amuck all over London during the night defying the police and smashing German and Austrian shops and eating houses.

Following a night of terror, the frightened German residents to-day were barricaded in their homes in many districts.

A special cabinet order for interment of all male enemy aliens was to be promulgated to-day. The authorities expressed hope that the issuance of this order would stop mob scenes occurring all over England.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

Authorities Won't Release Horn

BOSTON, May 13.—The petition of Werner Horn for release from custody on a writ of habeas corpus was refused in the Federal Court, Judge Morton holding that the defendant's attempt to destroy the international railroad bridge at Vanceboro, Me., last February was not an act of war. The court also rejected the claim that Horn had been illegally removed from Maine to this state.

Horn is in jail awaiting trial on an indictment charging violation of the laws regulating the inter-state transportation of explosives.

Removes Hairy Growths Without Pain or Bother

(Modes of To-day)

It is not necessary to use a painful process to remove hairy growths, for with a little delatone handy you can keep the skin entirely free from these beauty destroyers. To remove hair, make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To guard against disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"Mebbe it's all the poor beggar's got," sez I.

"Naw, he's got a ton o' money," sez Monody. "He's got so much money he uses a blank cheque for a book-mark. That's another thing—he don't mingle in none, just pokes off by himself and reads out of a book."

"How did ya happen to get here with this bunch o' cattle?" sez I, hopin' I'd discover where the deuce we were, anyway.

"Oh, we circled 'em to the northwest as much as we dared, and then every time they got nervous at night we let 'em drift to the south-west. He can't tell north from south."

"Uh-huh," sez I, noddin my head, "you're figgerin' on takin' 'em down into Mexico and sellin' 'em there. Well, that's a fool notion. Why don't you let him market 'em and lift the money? You can't get wages for 'em down in Mexico."

"He don't carry money, does everything through banks."

"He won't bank all of it," sez I. "He's just been makin' you think he banks it. Whose plan is this, anyhow?"

"The' ain't much plan to it," sez Monody. "The blame coffee-coolers in this outfit are too sorry a lot to make up a real gang. They steal a little and rustle a little and murder a little—but they're no real good when it comes to a tight corner. That's why I was glad to see you throw in with us."

"Well, that's all right: but I'm not takin' any chances myself, just now. Fact is, I'm supposed to have disappeared off the face of the whole earth, so don't you start anything expectin' me to finish it. What kind of a layout has this geezer got?"

"He's got a fat range; but the worst lot o' bulls and cows ya ever set eyes on. Everybody else has been robbin' him; I don't see why we shouldn't have a share."

"He's got a good lookin cavey o' ridin' hosses along," sez I. "Where did he pick them up?"

"He knows consid'able about a hoss," sez Monody. "He's got a thorough-bred stallion and a band of extra mares—that is, he had when we left, though I wouldn't be much surprised if some one's took 'em by now. The' don't anybody care for him much—he's haughty."

"Well, I'm blamed glad he's haughty," sez I. "Tell ya the truth, I've had the pack turn on me, snappin' an' yelpin', and I sort o have a feelin' for any one else in the same fix—but if this geezers haughty, why that's another tune and I'm again' him. How far are we from town?"

"Oh, about a day's ride," sez Monody. I looked around. We were right in the saucer of the plains and towns seemed about as plentiful as Noah found e'm. I just didn't seem able to find out where I was without askin'.

"You well acquainted over there?" sez I.

"I helped round up a feller there once when I was with Bill Brophy, and I reckon I could find my way around: but I should think you'd know Tascosa a heap better 'n I would."

"Let's ride over and see what we can find there," sez I.

"All right," sez Monody, "anything for a change."

When I told Jim about it, he threw back his head and wriggled his eyebrows. He sure did look haughty. "It seems to me you're wastin' a lot o' time," sez he.

"Oh, the'll be plenty left," sez I. "Do you happen to know where we are?"

"We're close to the Kansas line," sez he.

"Then," sez I, as respectful as a new postmaster, "whoever is lookin' after the Kansas line had better be pullin' her back where she belongs. We're west of Tascosa headin' toward Mexico, and if what I've heard tell is correct, we're in a purty tol'able neighbourhod."

His face got as long as a buffalo-gun and he heaved a sigh from clear below his belt. "I've suspicioned for several days, that we were off the trail: but they all insisted we were right, and—hang it all, man, I'm a duffer!"

"That's right," sez I, "throw it off your stomach and you'll feel better. Now then, this outfit you've selected takes just the same interest in you that a loafer wolf takes in a bum lamb; but it so happens that I was just in the mood for a little diversion when I met up with you, and I'm goin' to gentle these bronchos till they'll be scared to go out alone after dark. If you know what to do, why, take the lines. Otherwise, me an' Monody'll ride into town this evenin' and see what we can pick up."

"Go ahead," sez Jim, managin' a weakly grin, "you're the straw an' I'm the drownding man."

The first thing I noticed as we rode along was that Monody was sure a ridin' man. He was several sizes too big for any useful purpose; but he rode light and eased his hoss every step. I sang an' carried on high for a while and then I put on a fit o' the blues and closed up tight.

"What's eatin' you?" sez Monody after a time.

I kept up pertendin' to think for a long spell, and then I sez, "Monody, did you ever do a genuwihe decent act in your whole life?"

He looked at me hard and half a dozen expressions scampered across his face like rabbits in the moonlight. Finally he bit off a chew o' tobacco, wiped his mouth on the back of his hand, and said, "Lordy, yes, a many of 'em—but that was a h——l of a while ago, and I don't recall that it paid."

"Think hard now, did you really feel any better after you'd done something which you knew was plumb white and square?"

"Aw, I used to think I did—but I was too young then to know what I really did think."

"I'm goin' to try it myself, some time," sez I, though to myself. "I'm sick o' wolfin' it and the very next time I get a fair stake, I'm goin' to pull out an' play square."

Monody laughed out loud. His laugh was like a child's, free an' full an' bubblin'. "That's what they all say," he chuckled when he'd had his laugh out. "Why I've heard Bill Brophy take his oath that if he just made good one more time, it was faces up for him for ever after: but you can't do it, Kid, you simply can't do it, any more 'n a wolf can reform once they get him circled up. When men once hunt men that settles it—they never hunt nothin' else."

"This here Jamison party," sez I, "he's not haughty, he's homesick: he's just a straw dog, suspicious of every livin' creature. Blame' if I don't feel sorry for him!"

Monody's face grew long and thoughtful and he gave all the outward and visible signs of bein' bogged down in deep and fretful reflections. I didn't say nothin' or even pertend to be noticin': but inside I was chucklin' hearty. I'm old enough now to say without blushin' that I allus did have the gift o' feelin' the temperature rise an' fall in even a perfect stranger's disposition, and this was where what others called my luck largely came from. I never did know Monody a whole lot better 'n I did right then.

"What for you want to begin talkin' this-a-way?" he asked after a time.

"'Cause that's exactly the way I feel," sez I. "Breakin' law-books never pesters me none: but every time I get a hunch that what I'm about to do is a low-down, ornery trick, why, I'm sure to pay heavy for it, providin' I go ahead and do it. I've felt just exactly the way that geezer back there 's a-feelin'—and blame' if his callin' it back don't make me feel sour and mean right now."

"I don't reckon you've ever had any rougher deals 'n I have," sez Monody.

"I'll bet I can prove 'at I have," sez I.

"How you goin' to do it?" sez Monody.

"A Gila monster don't suffer so much from havin' a hole punched through him as a pointer dog does from bein' kept home when his master goes huntin'," sez I; "and some men are hot, and some cold blooded, so that just list'in' to what a feller's been through is no test. What he's willin' to do now on account of it, that's what proves how much a feller's been stung."

"Well," sez Monody, "what kind o' fire you goin' to eat that I'm afraid to eat?"

I stopped my pony and waited until Monody had twisted his around to face me and then I said to him: "I'm a-goin' to try to get in the mood to help that feller—that's what I'm goin' to do."

Monody looked at me all puzzled up. "You mean you're goin' to let him keep his money after he gets it?"

"That's what I'm goin' to try to do," sez I, givin' my head a sidewise shake. "I'm goin' to act plumb on the level with him and see how I feel about it. 'Course, now, I'm not sayin' that I can do it, for if he shows out with me, I'll; probably just stop him off-hand; and then again, I may get tired of the project, take what he's got, and move on; but I'm goin' to pertend to myself and to him that I'm as friendly with the law as a lawyer and if I feel any better for it, why I'm a-goin' to stick to the straight and narrow path till she's worn as deep as a buffalo trail."

Monody turned away and started on without sayin' anything. "What about the rest o' the bunch?" sez he after a time.

"None of 'em related to me so far as I know," sez I.

"Yes," sez he, "but I've told 'em that you was goin' to engineer the game from now on and that—"

"What did you tell 'em, in just what words?" I sez to him crisp.

"Oh, I didn't put it into words, exactly. I told 'em 'at you were the Panhandle Kid an' that what they'd better do was to wait until you cut the pie."

"That's not very bindin'," sez I; "if they'll just do that why they won't get into any trouble with me."

"You're not aimin' to turn any of 'em into the law, are ya?" sez he.

I only grinned and shook my head; and purty soon he held out his hand. "I'm just as game as you are," sez he. "I'll stick in the straight and narrow just as long as you do, and I'll bet you fo'ty dollars that you squeal first."

I've told ya Monody's story before, you recollect, and how he won a real man's death for himself, but you want to remember that he was plumb a stranger to me at this time—and I had to fish for him cautious. Still, I trusted him even then and I shook hands with him free and hearty, 'cause he was white inside and I knew it; but we rode on in silence for some time. He was thinkin' of how he had drifted into devilment, I reckon; and I was thinkin' of what a fine thing red blood was to them who knew how to use it. Red blood hates to take a dare and it don't care a darn what the dare is. You could get just as excitin' a mix-up matchin' two plungers to see which could pray the longest as matchin' 'em to see which could cuss the hardest. You never have to say please to red blood—and that's why I like it.

DOCTOR SAID SCIATICA—RHEUMATISM—LUMBAGO

But He Could Not Help Me, and Endorsed the Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Mr. Wm. Parker, 605 Cayuga street, Brantford, Ont., tells in the following letter of his remarkable experience with Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills: "My doctor treated me for some time for Sciatica, Rheumatism, Lumbago, but to no purpose, for I had to lay off work. The visiting officer of Sick Benefit called to see me and advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, stating that he had been cured of the same trouble by their use. I asked the druggist about them and he recommended them highly. Not being satisfied with this, I went back to my doctor, and when he said they were good I began their use. The promptness with which they enlivened the action of the kidneys and bowels was wonderful, and it was not long before I was rid of all my trouble.

"I was so bad that I could only walk by hanging on to a chair or the wall. My wife had to lace my shoes. Only those who have had this ailment can realize the way I suffered. I am writing this letter to let people who have my trouble know of these pills. You are at liberty to use this letter, and if anyone interested will call or write to me I will give every detail."

Write to Mr. Parker, enclosing stamp for reply, and he will verify this statement. He will do this out of the gratitude he feels for his cure and because he realizes how difficult it is to obtain the cure of these dreadfully painful ailments.

There are so many treatments recommended for rheumatism that you naturally doubt them all. Here is an opportunity for you to verify the cure and put this great medicine to the test. It will only cost you a quarter to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They get at the very foundation of rheumatism, and by removing the poisons from the system take away the cause of pains and aches.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BOTH WERE MISJUDGED

How Husband and Wife Were Separated by Baseless Disagreement.

By GEROGE ELMER COBB.

"This is detective work, pure and simple, Ashley, but I am not even an amateur. Just plain John Birt, once a town marshal, now a second rate lawyer. I am your friend, though, and your wife's friend. And the friend of poor little lost Harry. Let me show you, out of gratitude for the start you gave me in life years ago, what real, genuine friendship is."

There was nothing heroic in the speech. There was no false note of bombast. Richard Ashley, sick, disheartened, all at sea, had come up against the dead blank wall of "No clew" in a case where mystery and misery were pretty well commingled, and no visible thoroughfare back to happiness and peace.

Ashley had befriended Birt fifteen years previous, and the loyal fellow had never forgotten it. Ashley had married Lucia Ward. A child was born to them, and when Harry was five years of age, a heedless disagreement had come about. They had separated, Ashley taking the child in his keeping. The abyss broadened. They did not meet again.

Ashley went west with Harry and acquired a small fortune in Idaho lands. His wife he seldom heard from. She was heiress to a large estate, he learned. Too proud to meet her half way in a reconciliation, she seemed to have completely shut him and the child out of her memory. She led a hard, lonely life at the secluded country home of a stepbrother. All that kept Ashley in touch with his old life were occasional letters from the loyal Birt. The latter knew that the estranged wife was a sore subject to his friend, and rarely alluded to her. At length, however, a letter came that brought Ashley east post haste with his son.

"I have learned," Birt wrote, "that you have misjudged your wife, just as she has misjudged you. She pines for you and the child. I find, too, that Dunbar, her stepbrother, spread all the lies that separated you. He will do all he can to keep you apart, for by doing so he hopes finally to control the estate to which she is heiress."

Ashley had come to Rockton at once. A slow fever had set in. Before Birt could carry out his plans to bring the separated wife and husband together, the boy Harry mysteriously disappeared.

Harry slept in the room adjoining that of his father at the hotel. In the morning he was found missing. He had apparently been carried down the fire escape of an inner court. The only clew was the discovery that a covered wagon had left the town, headed south, at midnight. All that showed the visit to the room was the disturbed bed, a taint of chloroform in the air, and a lot of gilt spangles covering the rug.

"I am going to find your boy for you," declared Birt.

"I have never go to Lucia unless he is with me," said Ashley.

Four hours later Birt was resting under a tree near the beach of a little lake about ten miles from Rockton. He had followed the clew of the midnight wagon and had lost the trail. As he now sat thinking over the affair, he confessed to himself that the "intuition" that most detectives talked about was slow in coming to him.

"Only one thing can I certain of," he told himself. "Dunbar is behind this kidnaping."

The speculator just then noticed a little red toy balloon sailing out over the lake. A second followed, a third, and then as many more in succession. Then boyish cries attracted his attention. A group of lads came into view, chasing another of the red spheres. One venturesome urchin ran into the water, grabbed it, exploded it, and waded to the shore holding the wreck of his trophy.

Birt watched the crowd gather curiously, around the object. Then another balloon was espied, and they put out for it.

Birt arose and strolled aimlessly down the beach. As he passed the flattened out balloon he noticed that a string ran from it to which a card was attached. He picked it up.

"Why, hello!" he exclaimed.

Water had obliterated some pencilled words on the blank side of the card. The front bore his own name.

"One of my business cards," he soliloquized in a wondering way. "That's queer."

"Shoo—shoot!" he heard a boyish voice call just then, and came upon a second group of lads chasing another of the toy balloons.

One of the boys had a bow and arrow. He aimed aloft. The shaft sped from the bow, pierced the balloon, and the deflated globe came to the ground. There was a scramble over it.

"Here, I'll pay you for that," he said, extending a coin to the boy who had rescued the object. Then eagerly he inspected the card. It was another of his own. It had, however, got trampled in the mud. He made out these words: "In a lion's cage—send word—Ashley—hotel—Rockton."

For fully five minutes the amateur sleuth stood studying the card. Then suddenly he exclaimed triumphantly: "I've got it!"

He remembered that he had given Harry some of the cards to draw on. The words "lion's cage" in connection with the spangles found in the room at the hotel suggested—a circus!

"And say!" ejaculated the second-rate man, "I recall now that Dunbar owns a half interest in a traveling show. Why, find a circus, and I find Harry!"

Four hours later Birt stood by the side of one of a dozen tents at the outskirts of a county seat town. He looked around him and swiftly bolted under the canvas.

Birt had just heard a circus peddler complain of losing his balloons. He also learned that there was a cage wagon inside the tent.

Fifteen minutes after that Birt was leading from the place the recovered boy. He had found him locked in the cage wagon and had opened a way to freedom.

Harry told of two men kidnaping him. He had overheard them say that Fifteen Minutes Later Birt Was Leading From the Place the Recovered Boy.

[illegible] had ordered them to lose him in some distant part of the country.

A circus peddler had tied his string of toy balloons to the wagon. A bright idea came to Harry. He reached out, drew the balloons towards the bars, attached what cards he had to them, and let them go up. There was an opening at the top of the tent, and they sailed away.

It was after restoring Harry to his father and hiring a man to guard against a new abduction, that the lawyer took a train direct for the home of the mother and wife.

He had sure evidence that Dunbar was a wicked villain, and of this he convinced the amazed stepsister.

Mrs. Ashley met her husband and son for the first time in ten years. There were explanations, forgiveness, awakened love, and the modest lawyer blushed when the reunited pair tried to tell him how much they owed him.

"Oh, I just did my duty," declared Birt, "like the second rate man I am."

"You insist upon that, do you?" cried the Happy Ashley. "All right, but one thing, sure—you are a first-class friend."

UNSTRUNG, UNSTEADY SHAKY NERVES

MAY BE TONED UP BY USING MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. John Harper, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the heart and nervous system. I was confined to a grocery store for twelve years, and had to give up business, as I became terribly run down and nervous, and had heart trouble, and I am sure I am gaining very fast now. I feel that nothing did me any good until I tried your Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am positive they will cure me. The nerves of one hand would tremble and then seem to go numb so that I could not write or sew. Now my hand is quite steady, as you can see by my handwriting. This is a big change which delights me so much for I thought all was done that could be done. I was about to give up in despair when I tried this last remedy, and even after I had only taken half a box the change started to come."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the enfeebled, enervated, exhausted, overwarked system to full constitutional power.

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DOCTORING WAR HORSES

Painful Operations For Animals as Well as For the Men

At the front horses are treated with just the same care and skill as is shown to the soldiers, and are given chloroform and other anaesthetics before being operated upon by skilled officers. To every division and several brigades is attached a Mobile Veterinary Section, each consisting of one officer and twenty-two enlisted men of the A.V.C.

The Mobile Section is divided into two sections, one equipped for collecting sick and wounded horses from the firing line and other places, while the other branch carries the patients to the nearest railhead. Thence they are sent by train to the nearest base veterinary hospital, where they are treated according to the nature of their wounds or sickness.

Each hospital has accommodation for some thousand or more cases, and is equipped with every requisite for careful and scientific use. When sufficiently recovered the horses are drafted to the convalescent farm where the cure is completed.

The Dardanelles are the key to Constantinople and the Black Sea. Defending forts were erected as long ago as 1659.

Tea, Cheese, Butter and Steaks Financially Strong

Review of Weekly Market—Hogs Are Higher But Farmers Face Much Lower Wool Prices—Seed Corn Now Purchased

MARKET FEATURES.

Beef, steaks, etc.—Advanced.
Wool—Market weak.
Tea—General advance.
Cheese—Prices at record level.
Butter—Steady and firm.
Live hogs—25c advance.

Both producers and consumers will find several items of interest in this week's market news. While the country is rich and green under the recently favourable weather, farmers also find cheese selling at new high levels. The export demand is very keen just now for reasons so well understood they scarcely need explaining. One result is the diverting of a major part of the new milk supply to cheese factories with a strong effect on butter, which at this season is usually declining.

There is little business in cattle. Most trading is in stockers, etc., which are being put out on ranches in various section of the county. Fat cattle are few and selling high, and steak is now retailing at higher prices in the city stores.

The egg supply is thinning out, and the demand is materially lessened. Grocers are asking 20 to 21 cents a dozen.

Tea Is Higher.

Tea occupies a much stronger position, and within the past week prices have generally advanced.

The tendency away from liquor in Britain has been noticeably felt in the increased consumption of tea. Purchasers will likely find higher prices around the stores.

Sugar is steady, and some quote it higher than a week ago.

Prices of Meat.

There have been sharp advances in the prices of beef during the past week. One butcher said round steak is worth 25 cents, and sirloin at least 30 cents. Competition alone is keeping the prices slightly under these figures. At that sirloin could be bought a week ago at 23 and 25 cents. It is now selling generally at 25 cents.

A drover told The Examiner that there is almost no business in choice cattle just now. On Tuesday he offered a farmer 8 cents a pound for a likely-looking heifer, and even at that price the farmer was not eager to sell, although he finally did so. The reported saw a list of new prices sent from Toronto for the various beef cuts. They were a wholesaler's advice in regard to the prices which should be obtained. In every case they were considerably higher than local quotations. Stockers sell all the way from 5 cents to 6½ cents.

Live hogs are up to $8.85 locally this week, as compared with $8.60 a week ago. The market is reported steady and firm at the new price.

Meats and Hogs.

|---|---|
| Bacon, per lb., | 25c to 28c |
| Ham | 25c |
| Cooked hams | 35c |
| Pork | 18 to 20c |
| Spare ribs | 10c |
| Lamb | 20 to 25c |
| Veal | 20c-22c |
| Rib roast | 18c-20c |
| Sirloin steak | 25c |
| Round steak | 22c |
| Live hogs, cwt. | $8.85 |

General.

|---|---|
| No. 1 granulated sugar, cwt. | $7.00-$8.00 |
| Honey, lb. | 15c. |

Dairy and Poultry.

Cheese brought 18 7-16c. at Campbellford on Tuesday, and at Picton recently 18 1-2 cents. This indicates what may be expected by local cheese factories when the local board opens on May 15th. Of course the price is a record one, and under the present export demand for cheese the whole dairy industry will likely be influenced in an upward direction. Geo. A. Gillespie told the Examiner that the factories around Peterborough were going in for cheese this spring on a larger scale than last year. Hence it is easy that the expected decreases in butter prices will not materialize. The butter market may weaken a little in Peterborough, but it is unlikely, especially if cheese prices go any higher. Nearer Peterborough cream is scarce even for this season when milk and cream production should be increasing. The export cheese trade gives the farmers a strong position at a time when their dairy supplies should run high, and with present prices a dairy herd should be something of a gold mine.

Local prices:

|---|---|
| Butter, dairy | 25 to 30c. |
| Butter, creamery | 33 to 36c. |
| Cheese | 20 to 21c. |
| Eggs, new laid, doz. | 20c. |
| Turkeys, lb. | 25c |
| Geese | 15c |
| Ducks, lb. | 25c. |
| Chickens, per pair | $1.60, $1.80 |
| Cream, qt. | 33 to 35c. |

Wool and Hides.

John Hallam, of Toronto, says: "The Canadian Government has made an Order in Council which prevents the export of wool and wool products to the United States or to any other country, except England or the British possessions. This materially limits the market for wool. The fact that the Canadian mills are generally well supplied with the raw material, that no large army contracts have been given out to be filled, and the curtailment of the market by the embargo caused a heavy decline in prices during the past week."

The Examiner has been in touch with several drovers, who in their trips around the county, find the farmers greatly incensed over the decline in wool prices. This is the shearing season, and it seems strange they say, that the Government should place the embargo at a time when it will affect manufacturers and adversely injure farmers with flocks of sheep. If there were heavy army contracts necessitating the holding of stocks, or if there were any demand to stabilize the wool market, the farmers would not object. But, as Hallam states, the Government has authorized the embargo which gives an extra stimulating influence on the market, and prices to farmers will be correspondingly affected.

Local prices are:

|---|---|
| Wool | 18c to 20c |
| Sheep skins, each | $1.00 to $1.75 |
| Calf skins, lb. | 12c to 13c |
| Beef skins, lb. | 10c to 12c |
| Tallow, rough, lb. | 2c |
| Tallow, refined, lb. | 6c |

Seed Corn.

Farmers are purchasing seed corn in quantities these days and many have already begun planting. It is evident that there will be a heavier sowing than ever. The new silos and the growing use of ensilage for winter feed are bringing corn more into prominence. Other seeds are very quiet. The following prices are quoted locally:

| | |
|---|---|
| Mammoth Southern Sweet | $1.25 |
| Improved Learning | $1.50 |
| Whitecap Yellowdent | $1.50 |
| Crompton's Early | $1.75 |
| Longfellow | $1.75 |
| King Phillip | $1.75 |
| North Dakota | $1.75 |

Grains, Hay.

This market has been quiet all week. Locally hay was more plentiful than for weeks past and apparently exceeded the demand. Prices ranged nearer the $20 mark than $23.

|---|---|
| Wheat, per bushel, | $1.50 |
| Barley | .70 to .80 |
| Oats | .60 to .65 |
| Peas | $2.15 |
| Shorts, ton | $20.00 |
| Bran | $20.00 |
| Buckwheat, per bush. | .55 |
| Bran | $20.00 |
| Baled hay | $20 to $22 |
| Loose hay | $20 and $22 |
| Straw | $10.00 |
| Flour, cwt. | $4.35 |

Fruit and Vegetables.

|---|---|
| Apples, per bbl. | $1.00 to $1.50 |
| Pineapples | 15 to 30c. |
| Potatoes, per bag | 50 to 55c. |

| Onions, white pickling, qt. | 10c |
| White beans, qt. | 10c |

| Beets, peck | 15c. |
| Celery, head | 5c to 10c |

| Spinach, peck | 30c. |
| Lettuce, bunch | 10c. |

MOURN FALLEN BY WEARING WHITE

A Better Mark of Distinction and Less Depressing Than Black

OTTAWA, May 12.— A suggestion which has received the approval of Major-General Hughes and the headquarters staff comes from Westmount, Montreal, to the effect that white should be worn instead of black by the relatives of those killed in war. It is argued that there is enough depression in war without adding to it by wearing sombre colours. It is also suggested that a white bandage worn on the arm would serve as a mark of distinction, and would be more of an honour to those who have fallen in the service of their country than the wearing of black.

Joy and Gladness

IT s a cold, dreary, cheerless morning and yet outside the windows, as if there were no rain, no winds, no clouds, the song sparrow is singing clearly, and the robin chirping cheerily, while every little while comes the blackbird's strident note. As these joy-messengers seem to brighten the whole atmosphere without, so they seem to make easier the day's cares and perplexities within, and with them, one wanted to raise also a song of joy.

Paul's message to the Philippians, 4:4, "Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say rejoice," seems best to express this gladness. Yet they were written by him in probably the saddest days of his life, the days of his imprisonment. But above all the privations of his position, the disappointments in his plans, his faith in his Lord was so strong that he could write thus to his beloved friends so far away, whose own trials and discouragements he knew full well.

He had no realization that his very imprisonment was to bring far-reaching results in his work, which he must often have felt was being interrupted. During all those prison days he was never released from the galling annoyance of being constantly chained to a soldier. Now these soldiers were regularly changed, and many no doubt would be sent at some time in his life to distant posts. Anyone being so constantly with such a whole-souled, impetuous, inspired man as Paul, could not but be impressed and thus spread his message throughout the length and breadth of the vast Roman Empire, the very thing which he so longed to do.

Then he was never deprived of the privilege of pouring out his love and anxiety in those precious letters to the distant churches. So if he could have looked into the years ahead, he would have realized just what cause there was for the glad triumphant message, which he sent in faith and confidence.—I.H.N.

What's in The Cup?

The flavour may be agreeable, but appetite isn't the only thing to be considered.

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffeine, a powerful drug which is a frequent cause of indigestion, constipation, nervousness, heart trouble and other ills.

Some persons are strong enough to use tea or coffee for a time without apparent harm, but repeated doses of its subtle, cumulative drug, caffeine, sooner or later affects even the strong man or woman.

Any tea or coffee drinker will benefit from a change to

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink has a delicious snappy tang, and it contains no caffeine, nor any other harmful ingredient. It is made of selected wheat, a little wholesome molasses and is pure, invigorating and delicious.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup, add hot water, and sugar and cream to taste.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form—which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c pkgs.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavour is equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

2000,000 NEEDY BELGIANS DEPEND ON AMERICAN AID

LONDON.—An American who has passed ten days in the towns and villages of Belgium and northern France tells a correspondent who writes from the Dutch frontier that there are more persons hungry in Belgium than the charitable world knows of.

"America is the one hope of the Belgians," he says.

"Thousands will starve, despite the great work, that the various commissions for relief are doing, unless the American people dig deeper into their well filled pockets and send more food ships across.

"I believe there are nearly 2,000,000 persons in Belgium who are absolutely dependent upon the bounty of the outside world. The people in the larger cities are receiving enough food to keep body and soul together. It is in the smaller and out of the way places that the suffering and want are more acute. There are hamlets where hunger reigns."

"Everything that one learns here," the correspondent continues, "at the gateway of the land of misery, bears out the account of my American informant, who is a United States representative.

"Here is how a Dutchman just returned from an errand of mercy put it: 'Hundreds of thousands are not able to earn anything. They are dependent on charity. Sometimes they get food, and then have to go without for a spell or else live on half rations. It is not starvation, but very often semi-starvation. What that means is that gradually their strength is sapped; then their vitality dwindles and they fall an easy prey to the first disease that comes their way.'

"NOTHING LIKE ENOUGH."

"Of course, splendid relief work is being done. But it is nothing like enough in a country where 6,000,000 people are still living — a country many of whose industries have been destroyed and whose pasture lands have been swept by the pestilence of war; a country, in great measure, of wreck and ruin.

"Belgium is a small country, but in these days, when its sole internal organization has been shattered by the blow of the mailed fist, there are parts of it that are almost cut off from the rest of the civilized world. Occasionally, after a weary journey, some one comes over the frontier with stories of life in the Forest of Hainault, for instance, or near the banks of the lower Meuse. Here is one such glimpse which has been given to me in this way.

"It is of a little village of which one has not heard before, called Sarinnes, not far from Dinant. My informant went there a few days ago and found to his horror, that of Sarinnes nothing remains but a heap of blackened ruins. He discovered the 500 or 600 inhabitants living in the chateau and adjoining outhouses. This residence has been spared, and the owner, a titled gentleman, has gathered the little flock of homeless people. There they are, crowded together, most of them, of course, with no bed to sleep on.

"Very similar is life in Dinant itself. Here came the Huns in the ferocious days of August, with torch and fire bomb, and of 1,830 houses burned all but 200. Amid this scene of desolation 5,500 people are now living, herded in cellars or finding precarious shelter under boards spanning roofless walls.

ARISTOCRATS HELP THEM.

"They would be even worse off than they are but for one factor. Sharing their lot and ordering as far as possible their lives are members of aristocratic families for whom this most beautiful part of the country has always been a favourite residential district. They are real noblemen and noblewomen.

"Most of them were wealthy, or had wealthy friends elsewhere, and could easily have gone when the invaders came. But they chose to stay with the stricken people, who naturally looked to them for help and guidance. And there they remain, purely from a sense of duty and responsibility.

"I am told of one such titled family whose chateau was destroyed. Opportunity to join their friends elsewhere or go to England was open to them. But they felt that their place was amid their poorer fellow sufferers. They are living now in a cellar just like the others, advising and helping them, and by their mere presence keeping alive in their hearts the spark of hope.

"Of the cities of Belgium few have felt the effects of the war in worse degree than what was formerly the great industrial centre of Ghent. Lack of raw materials and the continual 'requisitions' by the Germans have brought most of the mills and factories to a standstill, so that scores of thousands of men are unemployed and they and their families are dependent on charity. The population is on rations. Bread is restricted to half a pound a day for each person. Other [illegible] can be purchased only once in five days.

"As in other places, Ghent is being drained of its money by the fines imposed by the Germans. Antwerp, owing to its greater accessibility to the outside world, is better off than any other city in Belgium. But even in that port there are at least 100,000 persons dependent on public charity. Yet here is an example of the way in which the people of Antwerp maintain their spirit of independence. Each day one of the bands of the German garrison gives an open air performance. The Belgian audience stands around and listens to the music. But at the first notes of 'Deutschland Uber Alles' everybody turns as one man and walks away. It is the most effective way in which they could express their loyalty to King Albert."

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. All leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a large demand and projecting point.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

ALLIES' OFFENSIVE GAINS MOMENTUM

BRITISH BATTLESHIP SUNK AT DARDANELLES

BRITISH FORCES HAVE OCCUPIED GIVENCHY AND FRENCH TAKE HILL 125

Brilliant Successes for the Allies in Great Battle Raging From Arras to the Sea Confirmed by the War Office --French Troops Make Important Progress Towards Lens, Their Main Objective.

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 13.—((By William Phillip Simms.)—"Brilliant successes for the allies in the great battle now being waged from Arras to the sea, are confirmed by the war office today. In the woods north of Carency the French troops have captured additional trenches. Further gains will force the Germans to abandon their positions entirely. North of Carency, Hill No. 125 has been taken by the French after several days of most desperate fighting. Coupled with the gains elsewhere in this region the French have made important progress during the last 24 hours towards Lens, their main objective. The British drive upon Labassee is proceeding satisfactorily despite the admitted fact that the British troops have suffered heavy losses. Givenchy, which is in ruins, is now almost entirely in the hands of the British, who have advanced in the face of a murderous machine gun fire. Fierce fighting around Neuville continues.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR RUSSIA

PETROGRAD, May 13.—Reinforcements are being rushed to the support of the Russian army east of the San, according to semi-official statements given out here to-day. Though the Slavs continue to fall back at some points the main offensive of the Austro-Germans apparently has nearly spent itself in exhausting attacks against the Russian line. The idea that Przemysl might again fall into the hands of the enemy was scouted by the war office officials. "There is no fear of a final defeat," said the semi-official statement. Our lines are now being strengthened and reinforced. We are ready to take revenge on the enemy whose losses already have totalled 100,000."

Heavy emphasis was laid on the continued successes of the Russian left wing operating north of the Bukowina frontier.

PANIC IN CONSTANTINOPLE

By Henry Wood. Copyright 1915, by the United Press. Copyright in Great Britain.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 11.—By courier to Athens, thence by cable via London.—The arrival of 13,000 Turkish wounded has converted Constantinople into a city of terror. Crowds, mostly women, this afternoon paraded the streets, cursing the war and those who were responsible for the Turkish participation. Sultan Mehmed, according to a report reaching the American quarters, has treatened to abdicate. The Young Turks have given the city authorities carte blanche to prevent the uprising directed against the present government by the Mussulmen opposed to Enver Pasha's domination. It is persistentely reported that the city authorities have promised the loyal Mussulman permission to enrich themselves by looting Christians' property and institutions in the event of a big Turkish victory. The wounded brought into the city to-day have horrified the city with their stories of terrible Turkish losses—the first confirmation the population has had of what it has for some time suspected. Those to-day—the first batch brought into the city—bring the total Turkish wounded up to 40,000. The dead are not known and the extent of the casualties from wounds are only ascertainable because the overcrowding of the field hospitals necessitates using Constantinople quarters. The Turkish offensive against the allied forces on the Gallipoli peninsula has met the guns of the French and British warships, while the allied landing parties have inflicted terrific losses on the Turkish land forces along the Dardanelles. The stories of the returned wounded have frustrated the Young Turks' efforts through roseate "official communiques" to make the population believe the Turks have met with success. Allied aeroplanes which flew over the city to-day added to the hysteria of the people though no damage was done. Wholesale arrests of Armenian Christians have been made following the discovery of an alleged dynamite plot against the Sultan. The ruler himself is tonight reported to be so shaken by the indications of popular disapproval of the war that he threatened to abdicate in favour of the heir presumptive, Prince Youssuff Izzedin. Despite the obviously precarious local situation the Young Turks are apparently determined to continue their resistance to the end and fresh reinforcements are tonight being rushed to the Dardanelles.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The early morning casualties announced today, included:

Third Field Artillery Brigade—Pte. Harold Walter Johnson, Lindsay, Ont.

Gunner James Helliwell, St. Catharines.

WAS WOUNDED BEFORE THE GREAT LANGEMARCK FIGHT

Pte. H. Johnson of the 57th Detachment Injured by Shrapnel on April 16th And is in Rouen Hospital

LETTER TO HIS BROTHER

The first information that Mr. Lawrence Johnson, 302 McDonnel street, received of the wounding of his brother, Pte. H. Johnson, of the 57th detachment of the 2nd Battalion, came in a letter yesterday. Pte. H. Johnson was injured in the head and left hand, and has a bruised right arm, April 16th, when he was hit with shrapnel. At the time of writing he was in No. 6 General Hospital at Rouen, France, and doing fine.

Pte. H. Johnson was born in England, where his parents reside. He was in Peterborough about four years before war was declared, when he enlisted with the 57th detachment and was attached as stretcher bearer. He was a member of the local Labourer's Union.

The letter in part which notified the brother, Mr. Lawrence Johnson, of his brother being wounded, was as follows:

"Just a few lines to let you know I've got wounded in the head and left hand, and bruised right arm with shrapnel. It happened April 16th. I was hit and buried in the dugout. I was about two hours before I came round. It happened about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and I had to stay in the trenches till dark at night, before they took me out. Of course it is not safe to go out of the trenches in day light.

"Well, I am pleased to say I am getting on pretty well at present. We are having nice weather now. I received the tobacco and zig-zags all right."

Centenarian Passes Away

At the advanced age of 100 years and 5 months, Mr. Joseph Valois passed away at noon yesterday in the Peterborough Protestant Home. His birthday was Dec. 27th.

The late Mr. Valois was one of the oldest residents of the city. He came here from Lower Canada when he was 15 years of age, and has been a resident of the city ever since. He was in good health until about two months ago when he began to fail, passing away yesterday.

Besides his wife, four sons and two daughters survive. The sons are: Messrs. Charles Valois, 190 Auburn street; Thos. and Albert Valois, Woodbine avenue, Toronto, and George, in the Northwestern Provinces; and the daughters, Mrs. Wm. Facey, Toronto, and Mrs. Losey, of this city.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from the residence of his son, Mr. Charles Valois, 190 Auburn street, at 3 o'clock, interment in Little Lake cemetery. Service will be conducted at the house at 1:30 p.m. by Adjt. McElhiney.

ASCENSION DAY.

In the Church calendar to-day is Ascension Day. In the Catholic churches of the city there were three masses, the first at 5.30 a.m., and the last at 9 o.m., the latter a high mass.

A SICK DOG WAS THE CAUSE OF FIGHT

A discoloured optic and an artistically bandaged hand, carried in a sling were exhibits "A" and "B" in an assault case being tried before Magistrate Dumble in Police Court this afternoon, in which Mr. Thomas Sandercock is charged with having unlawfully assaulted Mr. Harold Gilbert, who with his wife had a couple of rooms rented at the Sandercock residence, Inverlea Street.

Mr. Gilbert was the possessor of the injured eye, while his wife had her hand tied in a sling. It is alleged that Mr. Sandercock was the cause of both injuries. While Mrs. Gilbert was trying to save her husband from the blows of the defendant, her finger was bitten three times, it is alleged, by the defendant. It has since had medical attention.

And the trouble arose out of a dog which was supposed to have rabies and was sent to the incinerator. It was the property of Mr. Gilbert, who thought the cause of the illness might be from poisoning. Evidence of interested parties was still being taken at time of going to press.

To make a hen take exercise while she is eating a Californian has patented a feeder that releases but a few grains of feed at a time and then only when a fowl jumps on a lever to open a valve.

MORE LETTERS BY PETERBORO' BOYS TELL OF THE FIGHT

Driver Herbert J. Rush Says That Peterboro' Artillery Men Escaped Without Casualties Up to Fourth Day of Langemark Battle

SAW LOCAL BOYS

That the Peterborough artillerymen had escaped without casualties up to April 26th, the fourth day of the Langemarck fight, is shown by the letter published below from Driver Herb. J. Rush of Peterborough, who left here with the 26th Field Battery and was transferred to the Divisional Supply Column. Driver Rush speaks of meeting the battery boys on Sunday and the "Dooly" referred to in his letter is Gunner G. A. MacDougall of Peterborough, yesterday reported killed. It is evident that the artillery were in action during the following week after the Canadian infantry had been relieved. The letter, which was received by his mother, Mrs. T. O. Rush, was written on April 28th and is as follows:

Dearest Mother,—I wonder if you have heard of the gallant valour of the Canadians. We were billeted just out of Ypres last Thursday when the Huns made a daring attempt to advance. They broke through the French lines, but as the French retreated the Canadians, the 5th Highlanders of Montreal and another battalion, kept them at bay. We also recaptured a battery of guns, but great sacrifice was made.

The transport was forced to follow in the retreat. It was a most pitiful sight to see the refugees in hundreds running in all directions with what few wraps they could gather together in the nick of time. I had a family of four children, also their mother and father and a young married couple in my lorrie. The Huns had been using shells charged with poisonous gases and they had vile effect on the French, but as they galloped away our artillery passed them going to the front.

A number of us were back Sunday. It was quite lively, with shells bursting and artillery passing through. The traffic here is congested at times. Lorries, motor cars, ambulances, dispatch riders and all kinds of war equipment. We are back now to a safe distance.

Saw Peterborough Boys.

I saw of the boys from the old Peterborough battery last Sunday, and fortunately there have been no casualties as yet. Saw Dooly just for a minute as he passed. I also saw Harold Matthews. He wished to be kindly remembered to you all. Have also seen Garnet Greer and Charlie Ackerman. We supply the different Canadian brigades with all supplies, rations and forage, but thousands of the dear boys have eaten their last.

We have been congratulated by different Imperial officers as to the rapidity with which we moved the lorries, but if we had been commanded to advance to the trenches we would have been right there. The transport must be protected or hundreds go hungry, as supplies would be hindered.

There are two Canadians buried a short distance from here. Hope to know their names when I go up to the hill again. Many were from the battalion Harold Scottie is in and all the Peterborough boys.

I [illegible] all well and happy. I am feeling fine. No complaints at all.

HONESTY THE BEST POLICY.

This has been a bad year for Conservative provincial governments, and a good year for impressing the truth of the fact that, with governments, as individuals, our sins will find us out. During the year two provincial premiers have fallen by the wayside—Flemming in New Brunswick, forced out of office by the report of a Royal Commission, declaring him guilty of malfeasance in office; Roblin of Manitoba, who deserted the tiller to dicker that stock, and striking the rock of the adverse finding of another Royal Commission. Premier McBride of British Columbia, is somewhat in the shadow of hostile criticism of his modes of management of the public domain. With governments as with men, honesty is the best policy; and not only that, but the best practice, the only practice, that pays in the long run.

WORDS THAT RUN.

The last words and actions of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who went down on the Lusitania, have a ring of heroic humanity, which the Bishop of London says "will run round the world in a way no millionaire's millions will ever do"—"save, the biddies." These words, involving the highest recognition of man's humanity, saved many from death, and covered a multitude of sins. After them, and the actions that went with them, we can freely forgive Vanderbilt for being a millionaire. Here we have a striking contrast to the mad spirit of merciless militarism that can reconcile its policy to the slaughter of babies, the killing of women and helpless non-combatants. The only way to kill this latter spirit is to crush its embodiment as we would destroy a venemous reptile. And the Allies are proceeding to do this. The process may be slow and costly in life and treasure; but it is worth all the sacrifices, to destroy a menace to the peace of the world, and bring about conditions that will let the world have peace, with the highest enjoyment of human liberty and freedom, to pursue the activities of civilization, give individual assurance of liberty, that will permit the world to sleep o' nights and make Christian civilization and all it stands for, a living reality. In this war we are not fighting for territorial aggrandizement, or the conquest of material advantages, except, incster, as these involve assurance of the good of humanity.

GLOOM AND HOPE.

In these past few days Canada has had her dark hour; our soldier sons and brothers dying on the battlefield, or languishing wounded in hospitals, confronted with the brutal outrages of the ghastly skill the temporary successes of a desperate attempt of the enemy to gain ground, have put gloom in the outlook. Canada's share in the dark, still unfinished, has been dearly paid for. But the gloom is not as it was when the first shock came. There is no cessation of the noble mood of the Empire. Instead of hesitancy and paralysis, there is a firmer grip of the sword, and a more determined purpose to see it through. Instead of hasty, ill-considered action, there is a calmer, more resolute spirit. Instead of the confusion of panic, there is a more united people. Instead of the weakness of despair, there is a more confident hope. Instead of the shock of surprise, there is a more settled conviction that the end will be victory. Instead of the paralysis of fear, there is a more vigorous determination to fight the battles of human freedom to a triumphant finish.

MIND AND MORALS.

The term-end examinations in the schools will discover the standing and proficiency of the pupils. These examinations and their results will be incomplete indications of the extent of the success of teaching, if they do not include—as they unfortunately do not do—some examination as to the moral conduct and deportment of the pupils. We shall have no returns on this score. It is to be feared that, in case of such examinations, the marks of some pupils would be low. For instance, the standing in morals and behaviour, would be low in the case of one school boy who, a few days ago, on his way to school, entered upon a private lawn, though enclosed by a fence, and stole a magnificent tulip or two from a clump, in his hurry pulling up the bulb by the roots. It is no palliation of this offence, that he presented the stolen flowers to his teacher.. This is of a piece with the practice of German officers, who enter a chateau and steal the jewellery from dressing rooms to send home as presents to wives or sweethearts. This action of flower stealing is vicious; and the lads, or men, or girls, or women, who do these things, are to be feared as members of society, etiam dona ferentes—even bearing gifts of the rapt flowers. We fear that many of our school pupils would pass sorry examinations in morals. Indeed the morals that influence the relations of citizenship—our duty towards our neighbours, one of the two divinely accepted essentials of the Christian religion. We need to give more attention to moral training in our schools. We are by neglect only fostering the German spirit—that finds its expression in rabid militarism—that cultivates the mind only to make it a more effective contributing agent in the corruption of morals—prostituting civilization to savagery — to make the application of debased mikal sense more effective. We are sending men to fight and die in the effort to crush the manifestations and exercise the spirit of German "kultur" and militarism, but if we neglect to implant in our rising generation the spirit of civilization and religion involved in right relations to one's neighbours, we are inviting the taunt, "physician heal thyself."

THOSE CANADIAN RATS.

A Prussian officer is reported as having said that if it had not been for the Canadian rats the German army would have got through to Calais. He will discover by and by that the beaver is quite a super-rat, with amazingly sharp teeth.—The Globe.

JUST NIBBLING.

Early in the war there was attributed to General Joffre a statement which caught the fancy of the world, but at the time carried very little enlightenment. Asked if the French offensive had begun seriously, he had replied, "No; I am just nibbling." But th March and April the word came to have a more serious and sinister connotation than at first. Indeed, it seems now, to the European critics, to mean precisely what Grant described as "attrition." Grant's policy had been from 1864 to the end [illegible] of a fortress [illegible] but it was also the policy of the Allies in France and Flanders, wearing down and decimating the European armies of Germany in their "forlorn hope" attacks on the western front. The tide of German invasion is not only rolling back, but the Allies are substantially gaining ground. On the eastern front, Russia stayed or forced back in Galicia before stellar German feats of arms, is coming back and forcing the slackening of the enemy's onslaughts. In the Dardanelles the Allies are making splendid progress, and all over the continental theatre of war, the Allied position is becoming more satisfactory. It will take time to achieve victory. In this war we have battles of days and weeks, as contrasted with the fiercest battles of former times when battles were matters of hours. We must have patience. There will be temporary reverses, but with them will come permanent gains. We may have situations in which the only comfort we can see, will be to recall that "the darkest hour is before the dawn." We must not weaken; we know our cause it just; we know our staying power; we know how strong and abiding is our determination to fight the battles of human freedom to a triumphant finish.

The Chief Agency in Piracy

In view of the menace of the German submarine some information in regard to their latest development, will be interesting.

The comparitive speeds of the submarines and surface boats has made it possible for many merchantmen to escape. In many instances by zig-zagging and running at high speed was enabled to dodge the deadly torpedo. Every torpedo shell costs a large sum. Obviously, Germany could not afford to waste many. So, shortly after she started her submarine warfare, she restricted her use of torpedoes as much as possible. Whenever feasible, her submarines would rise to the surface, halt the merchantmen by gun fire, board her, and blow her up with dynamite. This course was cheaper, surer, and no waste of expensive torpedoes. But, the submarines were only equipped with only very small calibre guns, not more than one and one quarter inch, with only a short range, and there was always some time required to them into action. The merchantmen were continually becoming more and more alert and frequently escaped before the submarines could halt them with gun fire. To avoid this, and at the same time to avoid all dangers incurred in boarding operations, a new plan has been adopted. They no longer board and blow up a merchantman. They sink her by gun fire. This of course, requires a much more powerful gun, and greater speed of operating it.

Briefly the construction and arrangement is as follows: At a suitable point in the hull is arranged a hydraulic elevator on which is fixed a gun pedestal. On the pedestal is mounted a short powerful four-inch gun with a recoil cylinder above for taking up the shock of discharge and using that energy to reload the gun. Arranged above the gun and cylinder like an umbrella, is a heavy plate of armour, completely protecting the entire gun. On the pedestal, at each side and close to the gun is a seat for an operator, who are also completely shielded by the armour plate. This armour plate is really the hatch which seates on a rubber packing and closes and seals the hatch-way through which the gun rises. As the submarine approaches its prey and comes to the surface, the operators step to their seats, one of them swing a lever, and the elevator immediately hoists the pedestal, gun, and shield. The operators then start firing to sink the merchantmen. As she sinks, the operator reverses the lever and the pedestal, gun, and gun crew disappear into the hull, the armour plate gun shield closing tight-ly as a hatch cover on the rubber packing of the hatch-way.

This latest development in armaments of submarines is the explanation of many of the more recent successes of the German submarines, and they say that every effort is being made by the German navy to make their submarines more and more deadly as the war goes on.

CANUCKS WORSHIP ENGLISH TOMMIES

TORONTO, May 13.— The most glorious moments at the front are those spent while standing between the trenches in the glare of the German light bombs, in the eyes of Lieut. J. B. Neale, of the 10th Royal Grenadiers, a member of the 3rd Battalion, who returned to Toronto to-day on sick leave, after contracting neuritis as the result of exposure in the trenches.

The fixing up of barbed-wire entanglements, blown away by the enemy's shell fire, is done at night. Generally volunteers are called for, and frequently the whole platoon volunteers. "While the men are working the Germans begin to play their searchlights, and you wait expecting them to catch you. When the Germans send up a star shell you stand perfectly still with your hands clenched, waiting until it goes out. The men stand up, because by attempting to lie down they would make a movement which might be seen. The shell does not give out its light until it reaches the apex of its ascendancy, although you can see it going up. The light does not last more than a few seconds, but it seems like weeks while you are waiting."

Lieut. Neale said there were numbers of Belgian and French refugees still left in the towns which had been swept by the Germans, and these were unable to get away. They are a pretty hungry lot; and the Canadians, when given 24 hours' rations before going into the trenches, often divide their supplies with hungry kids and go into the trenches with half their allotment, thus taking a chance on going hungry the next day.

Canadian Hospital the Best.

"Words cannot express our admiration for the nursing sisters," said the Grenadier officer, turning to another phase. "They are simply saints. The Canadian hospital at La Touquet is considered to be the finest equipped military hospital in France. "The Canadians love the British Tommies," he continued. "When we first went into the trenches we were placed with English regiments. They were awfully good to us, and there was nothing they wouldn't do. They shared their rations with us and they gave us part of their tobacco."

The fact that the men in the trenches are on duty one hour and off two does not mean that they are not working during those two hours. An important branch of the work is the rebuilding of the trenches. The fellows not on sentry go take the empty bags and fill them up with clay. At night the parapets are bolstered up where they have been damaged by artillery fire or have fallen in.

"The Germans are as black as they are painted," concluded Lieut. Neale. "In all the time at the front I never heard a Canadian say a disrespectful word to a woman or hurt a child."

The Grenadier officer was with the Third Battalion in reserve at Neuve Chapelle. When he became ill he travelled back through five different hospitals before he got to London.

Lieut. Neale was a member of the 1914 [illegible] team.

Will Make War Munitions To Avenge Death

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., May 12.—To avenge the death of their brother, Isaac B. Trumbull, of Bridgeport, who went down with the Lusitania, John H. Trumbull and Henry Trumbull, the Trumbull Electric Company, of Plainville, are to enter into the manufacture of munitions of war.

The Trumbull company had previously received orders to manufacture rifles and shrapnel and other munitions of war for the Allies, but declined to do so. J. H. Trumbull said that he and his brother were so indignant over the sinking of the Lusitania and the loss of their brother that they will aid the Allies.

"Our plans are still in an embryonic state, and we are not yet ready to make any announcement as to what course we will pursue," said Mr. Trumbull. "We had received orders to make war munitions before, almost any price being offered, and we are now figuring on the cost of the necessary machinery. I was in New York when I heard the news of the sinking of the Lusitania, and I had to hurry home."

Mr. Trumbull does not believe the sinking of the Lusitania will bring the United States into war with Germany, although he calls the act murder. "The standing army of this country could be put into the Yale bowl, and under present conditions the United States would be of little use in the war," he said.

Isaac B. Trumbull was treasurer of the American Cycle Car Company, of Bridgeport. His body has been identified at a morgue in Queenstown. Before the Lusitania sailed he joked concerning the possibilities of its being sunk by a torpedo, and remarked, "The worst they can do is to kill me, anyway."

Energy emitted by radium has been utilized by a German scientist to drive a tiny clock.

If harnessed, it is estimated that the Victoria Falls of the Zambesi river in Africa would furnish 88,000,000 horsepower, or more than derived from coal and oil in the world to-day.

My mothves teas and knits sox and be- to the Empire Club, and we all up for the militia, and my fathon parade when it is not too and we thought that was enough, since reading your lecture it I don't want the girls sneering the way they are doing at of the poor things about town.

he Editor of The Examiner:

ar Sir,—In last night's issue of paper I notice an article entitled, Inquiry" from one Mr. J. T. ns in regard to bands practicing e for the coming 12th of July in ris Hall, George Street, In which dvises us to lay off and take our to the seat of real war.

regard to above let me say that ently it is the kind of music that not appeal to Mr. Collins, and I iate the fact that he thinks for ment (or time of war) religious should be buried. But when Collins feels that way why should start knocking a religious society has done more for the British Empin the present great struggle, and struggles as well, than any other society in our Dominion (excepting ose the Sons of England.) We gymen in this city have supplied upwards of 60 men for the different contingents leaving Peterborough, and we have a lot more who will offer themselves if needed. We have done our share, has Mr. Collins done his? Also let me ask, if on account of the war, if the Roman Catholics cancelled any ceremonies in connection with St. Patrick's Day If not, why should we be asked to lay our instruments away? We want nothing for ourselves which we would not grant to others. Even Mr. Collins will practice what he preaches, I am, sir,

RIPPER'S THREAT IS CAUSE OF A WIDESPREAD PANIC

NEW YORK, May 13.—Monday passed without "Jack the Ripper" adding a third child to his list of victims, although a letter to the mother of little Charles Murray, his second victim, said he would murder a child on May 10 and that the crime would be committed somewhere between Fifth and Eleventh avenues and Fiftieth and Fifty-fourth streets.

However, that section and neighbourhood of his previous crimes suffered all day and night under a tense nervous strain and in this popular hysteria there were numerous "Jack the Ripper" scares. Fear of the murderer even extended to Long Island City and to Newark, where parents besieged schools to recover their children.

Highwaymen boldly robbed a man in the streets and then cried that he was the "Ripper." They escaped in the excitement. He was almost beaten to death. Several other innocent men were attacked by excited mobs, and the police were on edge all day and night.

Scores of Detectives.

In the district where the "Ripper" wrote that he would murder a child yesterday the excitement was tense that it was not wholly suppressed. More than four hundred policemen were sent into the district to maintain a constant vigil ,and detectives by the score were assigned by the various detective bureaus.

Comparatively few children were to be seen on the streets. Many were kept from schools and most of those who ventured upon the streets were escorted by older persons. Every man who sauntered through that section was under suspicion, and several of them were attacked.

One of them, David Goldenberg, of No. 159 East 105th street, was said to have been talking to little girls. The cry that he was "Jack the Ripper" spread and Policeman Cross seized him in Forty-second street near Tenth avenue just as an increasing crowd was attacking him.

Cross ran through the street with his prisoner, both of them being struck many times. They jumped on a Ninth avenue car and escaped by directing the motorman to put on full speed. Goldenberg was held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

At least a dozen men were arrested in various parts of the city yesterday on similar charges, and in each instance there was trouble in getting the prisoner away from rapidly growing crowds.

Frank Fisi, homeless, was arrested in avenue C, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, accused of annoying Helen and Mary Manning, fourteen and thirteen years old, of 257 avenue C.

Robbers' Victim Attacked.

Robbers employed the "Jack the Ripper" excitement to escape, after they had held up a man, although it nearly cost the latter his life. Giovanni Garcona, a macaroni manufacturer at No. 126 Cherry street, was passing Broome and Pitt streets last night when four men seized him, and while two compelled him to keep still the others struck him. He was knocked down and was being kicked when help came. He was sent to the Clinton street hospital for the police reserves.

By that time a part of the surging mob had been pushed through the glass front of a crockery store and the place was wrecked. When Garcona was rescued he was cut and bruised in many places and most of his clothes torn off. After being attended by an ambulance surgeon he was sent home.

An affray was sounded in Delancey street that William Stokes of No. 2,474 West Fifteenth street, County Inspector Walsh, retired, Captain Inspector Walsh, retired, Captain Inspector Walsh, retired, Captain

NOTHING IS LEFT OF YPRES GREAT BATTLE HANGS IN SUSPENSE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Thursday, May 3—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at [illegible] sends to-day the following despatch:

"The great battle hangs in suspense or, at any rate, in equipoise and the sense increases in terror. Nothing is left of Ypres to-day, as raging fires of shells knock to atoms the relics of what were once its walls. Nothing could live in the city and there have been fires at Poperinghe to give the name of only one town near the fighting.

Every road and cross road has been blown up and shelled into craters. The Germans have launched a new fleet of aeroplanes or have stimulated new activity in the old ones. Some flew over Dunkirk yesterday and over different spots behind Ypres. The clear sky is clouded with the smoke of shrapnel bursting around them.

"Our lines in front of Ypres are like a piece of Galway bog slides. To such extent have the trenches been knocked out of shape that a great deal of fighting has been in the open and under the cover of half dug shelters or in pits made by the shells.

"The precision of the German artillery has been as notable as its fury and pace. As a result of colossal concentration of cannon our losses have been heavy. The German infantry has been wretchedly inferior to the artillery. No infantry attack in he Ypres district has really been pressed home. In the last few days at Ypres advances have been made almost lastly and placidly. The German staff cannot see the ground they have so thoroughly tilled and they will reap no harvest, though the ploughing is terrible enough in itself. It has seemed to some on the side of the allies that they are engaged in a warfare between human and evil elements so prsistent has been the rain of explosives and gas-filled bombs from the enemy, and then so superior is their own power when the human element comes into play. The occasional losses from the allies' own artillery increases this feeling except at Ypres, where the battle ebbs for a moment.

"Heavy German reinforcements debouched from cover of the French towns occupied by them and hold the ridge of Aubers.

"The French continue their advances. They took Blagny and a horde of German prisoners, who surrendered with certain readiness. At no time in the war have our men spoken with more wholesale admiration of the work of the French gunner and guns, although at that point the battle has not yet reached its climax.

"If appearances have any meaning we see a weakening in the spirit of their infantry here and there, but not everywhere. Near Aubers their infantry fought magnificently. On the material side we only see a crescendo of supply and energy."

England is Busy Caring for Wounded Refugee Belgians and German Captives

A traveller from London, Eng., who was in the city yesterday, stated that Canadians have but a slight conception of some of the conditions in the Old Country Hospitals seem to be on every hand. Many schools have been indefinitely dismissed and the rooms are temporary hospital wards. Even churches have been given up to this purpose not to mention the numerous palatial residences and country homes. Grand stands at ocean grounds have been transformed into recuperating premises. Soldiers convalescing thus live in the open air, and undergo what might be called a "hardening," which might not follow as rapidly from enclosed premises. There are in addition to the thousands of wounded numbers of homeless Belgians and thousands of German prisoners. Altogether, said the traveller, England has a big problem in caring for and handling all these persons in addition to the other great tasks connected with the prosecution of war.

Germans Threaten To Lay Italy Waste

Violence, Murder, Rape and Destruction Openly Proclaimed as Punishment

ROME, May 12.—The Germans must know the game is up, but they do not slacken their efforts. Menace is the only weapon left them, though it is reported the Kaiser followed up a threatening telegram by a cajoling message to the Kitty which emphasizes the common interests of Germany, Austria and Italy in the campaign.

The threats really have been going on for some time, but until recently they took the form of regretful allusions to the horrors of modern warfare. Now the day of decently veiled threats is over and destruction, violence, murder, rape and torture are openly proclaimed to be part of Italy's punishment if she dares to oppose the supreme warlord. # Proposed Sites Disposal of Site For Disposal Plant

Suggests That Another Site Be Selected at or Near the Foot of Park Street in the Township of Otonabee—Council Revert to the Question of Site of Pumping Station, Leaving the Site for Disposal Plant to Take Care of Itself for the Present.

A special meeting of the City Council was held last evening. The question of a site for the sewage disposal plant was the vehicle for a two-hour discussion, the net result of which is the city will employ an independent engineer to give an expert opinion as to where the pumping station should be located. The plans designate the intersection of Lock and King George streets as the place for the pumping station. This is re-affirmed by the Provincial Board of Health. Not so with the site for the sewage disposal plant. This was to have been located directly across the river from the end of Lock street on what is known as the Kennedy property, but such a protest was raised as to apparently justify the Provincial Board of Health in submitting the following resolution to the city.

The resolution reads as follows:

Moved by Dr. A. A. Weagant, seconded by Wr. T. E. Kaiser,

"That the application of the City of Peterborough for the establishment of a sewage disposal plant at the site proposed in the Township of Otonabee be not approved. The Board suggests that another site be selected at or near the foot of Park street in the Township of Otonabee.

"The Board re-affirms its opinion that the present proposed site of the pumping station is a proper one."

Quarter of a Million.

Alderman Green in addressing the meeting as chairman of the Board of Works, said that time and circumstances would work out the proper place for the sewage disposal plant. That is a matter which would not make any material difference this year at least. He recommended that an outside engineer be brought in to give an expert opinion as to whether it would be better to locate the pumping station at the end of Lock street or at the end of Park street. Both sites are available. As to where the disposal plant will be located is another matter that will have to be decided later. Alderman Green pointed out that as the present proposed sewage disposal scheme would probably cost in the neighbourhood of a quarter of a million dollars, it would be poor policy to object to the expenditure of a small amount of money such as would be required to pay for the services of an expert to supplement the reports already furnished the city by the Provincial Board of Health and City Engineer Parsons. The present site, Alderman Green contended, looked like the logical place for the pumping station, but it would do no harm to have the advice of an independent expert.

Expressed Dissatisfaction.

Alderman McIntyre rose to state that he had from time to time expressed dissatisfaction at the way the sewage disposal scheme was working out. He reiterated his former opinion that the pumping station should be located at the foot of Park street, and not at the end of Lock street, as proposed by the City Engineer and the engineers of the Provincial Board of Health. He was inclined to think that a mistake had been made.

Have Been Dilatory.

Alderman McIntyre is not satisfied that the Provincial Board of Health has done all that it might have done to expedite matters. He believes they have been dilatory and that when it came to a final show-down for a site for the sewage disposal plant, they "wobbled." He is firmly convinced that the end of Park street is the most suitable point for the pumping station and that the present site will have to be abandoned.

Alderman Stratton took the stand that he has always taken which in effect was that the Council should first have secured the site before proceeding with the work of constructing the sewer. He would expropriate land for which owners were asking an exorbitant price. He is not altogether in sympathy with the methods of the Provincial Board of Health, and believes that the Board is too arbitrary.

"It is pretty late in the day to think of calling in an outside engineer," said Alderman Weir. "I suggested engaging an expert engineer before we undertook the work on King George street. Had my advice been acted upon all this trouble and expense would have been avoided. It seems to be bad management on the part of the Council. I think our engineer as well as the engineers of the Provincial Board of Health, and the City Council, were wrong in attempting to place the disposal plant directly opposite Lock street, knowing that people were holding property there. You might have known they would kick."

Working for the City.

Mayor Buller—"I am working for the city and not the property owners."

Alderman Evans was in favour of leaving the matter entirely to the Provincial Board of Health. He moved that the work be proceeded with as far as the De Laval factory, and then discontinued until some definite understanding was forthcoming from the Provincial Board of Health, as to where the sewage disposal plant should be located.

This brought out a whole raft of amendments and counter amendments, with the result it was finally decided to adopt Alderman Edgar's amendment calling for the employment of an expert engineer to give advice as to the location of the pumping station. This does in no way dispose of the question of a site for the disposal plant, which is another unit in itself. That is a matter as Alderman Green stated, would be left to "time and circumstances." What the latter consisted of was not divulged.

"It is all right," said Alderman Duffus, "to come into this year's Council and criticise the work of previous Councils. Up until the present we have depended upon the advice of City Engineer Parsons and the Provincial Board of Health. What more could the Council do. Some of the Aldermen believe that the station should be located at the foot of Park street. That may be. That is a personal opinion."

Alderman Green—"There is not half so much difference between us as there appears to be. Some of the Aldermen feel that we should go down Park street, and others believe that the end of Lock street offers the most advantages for the location of a pumping station. My idea far allowing a disinterested party to come in, was to strengthen our hands in respect to the site we should select. Personally I don't feel that we have made any mistake in selecting the present site. If the site as selected by our city engineer and approved of by the Provincial Board of Health is wrong, we can change it at a cost of a few hundred dollars, whereas if we continue the work and find out later on that we are wrong, it will cost us several thousand dollars."

RUSSIANS ROUT THE MARAUDERS

Germans Along the Baltic Wandered Far Inland and Were Cut Off

PETROGRAD, May 12—Their Nemanis has overtaken the German raiders in the Kovno Government. One body of German cavalry which penetrated the neighbourhood of Poneviesh has been placed in a difficult position by the double advance of the Russians south of Mitau and from the northeast along the Uilna-Libau railway. This German force consisted of a Bavarian cavalry division, supported by a regiment of the Prussian Guard infantry.

German Retreat Fails.

Finding its retreat threatened, it attempted to break through near Shelmy, about twenty miles northeast of Kovno. Here its advance guard came in [illegible] with the Russian cavalry.

Finding itself outnumbered, it fell back on the main body, which was unable so affect anything like a check of the pursuit by the Russians. Soon the battle became a desperate fight by the Germans and a hot and determined chase by the Russian horsemen.

For forty miles the Russians clung close to the heels of the flying Germans, not desisting rain until the division, togHinbers and purposes, was destroyed. The losses of the Germans undoubtedly were very great.

It is positively asserted that the general situation in the Kovno Government is now such that the Germans can hope to maintain themselves only in the valley of the Dubissa, where they are entrenched in the neighbourhood of Rossieny and along the coast as far as Libau where their movements can be covered by their naval guns.

WILL PUNISH LIQUOR MEN WHO SELL TO INDIANS

License Board's Decision Following Report That Indians Get Much Drink

The Ontario License Board will not tolerate the supply of liquor to Indians. This determination was expressed in a resolution passed as a result of a protest received by Mr. Duncan Campbell Scott, Deputy Superintendent-General in charge of Indian affairs, to the effect that liquor dealers are supplying Indians freely with drink. On the motion of Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. Dingman, the License Commission has issued the following warning: "The attention of the board has been drawn to the fact that although the law prohibits the sale of liquor to Indians, in the past many vendors of liquor throughout the Province have been convicted of this very serious offence. In view of this fact, all offenders in the future will be severely dealt with, and in all probability their licenses will be cancelled."

THE BUSINESS WAS VERY LIGHT

The business transacted by the Finance Committee last evening was particularly light. There were only a couple of matters to come before the committee, the most important being the consideration of a grant to the Peterborough Health Association. This was left over until a later date, and in the meantime a deputation from the committee, headed by His Worship Mayor Baller, will wait on the Patriotic Fund Committe to see what that body would consider doing in the matter of sharing the amount of the grant.

Tax Collector Green waited on the members to see what they would do towards paying the additional postage in his department occasioned by the Special War Tax. He estimated the amount at about $5.00 per month. It will be referred to the City Council for discussion.

RECEIPTS FOR TOBACCO NOT AS LARGE AS DR. ROBINSON EXPECTED

Thirty-six dollars and thirty-five cents was the sum received at the Empire Theatre last night for the soldiers' tobacco fund. Dr. Robinson was rather disappointed that the sum did not reach the average nightly receipts, but believed that the early rain storm and threatening skies kept many citizens at home. The programme of pictures was supplemented with musical selections by the Conservatory Orchestra, Douglas Carlisle and Mr. John Allen.

Reply to "An Inquiry"

Sir,—In reply to the scribble in the Examiner of May 12th of J. T. Collins about the band practice in the Victoria Hall for the 12th, as he states it, it is true enough that Protestants and Catholics are enagged in this terrible war, but why should they stop on this occasion? Why not stop baseball and other amusements while the terrible war is one? I am glad to say my husband was one of the men practicing on Tuesday night in Victoria Hall that he refers to, and he says about taking the drum to the real seat of war, they can do so if necessary. They are quite willing, and they are by no means cowards. Perhaps Mr. Collins himself would like to enlist. If so, I believe they are still recruiting at the armouries, but I think he would be rather nervous. When he can't stand the noise of a drum, he would hardly be able to stand the roars of the cannon.

Yours truly,

(Mrs.) R. J. McLaughlin.

Note.—This letter must be the last on this subject, as far as the Examiner is concerned. There has been letter and reply, and in this sense "honours are even." This is no time for any controversy, even of the most trivial kind, that tends to divide our citizenship. On this account, the Examiner opposes the idea of a general election, and there must be no opportunity given for creating division and bitterness in the local arena.—Ed. Examiner.

AMERICA'S NOTE

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Germany must act—not quibble nor promise. Summed up in a sentence that is the United States' attitude in the negotiations growing out of the torpedoing of the Lusitania, with its toll of American lives. America's last word is now going forward to Germany this afternoon. The note was formally approved by the President at 10.15 to-day, signed an hour later by Secretary of State Bryan, and immediately turned over to the confidential secretary to be rushed in code. "You can say that the note is now going forward," said Secretary Bryan at noon. "It will make between 1200 and 1500 words and will be made public on Friday morning. It will be in Ambassador Gerard's hands not later than an early hour to-morrow, and he will present it to the German foreign office without delay." It was evident from the attitude of every high government official to-day that they realize America's affairs have reached a crisis. The die is cast in the president's last note.

It sets forth in language that cannot be misinterpreted that the United States considers the killing of more than 100 Americans a monstrous crime against civilization. Following as it did the Falaba, the Cushing, the Gulflight, and other incidents, it is characterized as an open act of hostility that admits of no excuse. The United States expects all of these acts to be disavowed. It also expects that Germany will pledge herself as a nation that there will be no repetition. There are no threats made according to those who are closest to the president. Rather the position taken is that of a dear friend who realizes his friendship violated without warrant.

ANOTHER STRIPE OF RED ON THE MAP

LONDON, May 13.—It is officially announced that Windhoek, the capital of German South West Africa, was captured yesterday without resistance by the Union of South Africa forces under General Botha. Martial law has been proclaimed throughout the conquered territory.

The foregoing despatch practically means that German South West Africa has become a British possession. Windhoek, the capital, is 400 miles north of the south boundary, where the British entered from Cape Colony, so the achievement is a considerable one. The conquered territory has an area of 322,450 square miles, or as large as Cape Colony and the Orange free state combined, and about the size of Ontario. The population is 80,000, and includes 15,000 whites, mostly Germans.

POLICEMAN RESIGNS TO AVENGE WIFE

HAMILTON, May 13.—Police Constable William Smith, whose wife went down on the Lusitania, handed in his resignation today. He is now a member of the 36th Overseas Battalion. "Those dirty hounds murdered my wife and her unborn babe. They may get me, but by God I will wipe out my score first," as he walked out of the station.

ADVANCE CONTINUES

LONDON, May 13.—The advance of the allies on the Gallipoli Peninsula continues. The towns of Chanek Kalessi, Maidos and Kilid Bahr are heaps of smoking ruins. The allied fleets are bombarding the forts today from close range.

RIOTS IN SOUTH AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, May 13.—In a mad wave of indignation over the sinking of the Lusitania mobs to-day wrecked scores of buildings owned by Germans or German sympathizers, and ran riot over the city. The police have thus far been unable to hold the rioters in check and damage of nearly a million and a half dollars has been done.

OFFICIAL SPRING CROP REPORT IN THREE PROVINCES

Fall Wheat Crop is Reported as Being Exceptionally Good on April 30—Area Winter Wheat Killed

1,208,700 ACRES IN WHEAT

OTTAWA, May 13.—The census and statistics branch, Department of Trade and Commerce, issued the first crop report of the present season. The report states:

"Owing to the mild weather and the favourable conditions which prevailed during the critical months of March and April, the fall wheat crop is reported as being exceptionally good on April 30. In Ontario, where 1,063,000 acres were sown as estimated last fall, not more than 6.8 per cent. is reported as winter killed, and in Alberta, with 230,000 acres estimated as sown, the proportion winter killed is only 6.9 per cent. These proportions are lower than in any year since 1908-9, for Ontario and lower than in any previous year on record for Alberta. Last year the percentage winter killed was 19 in Ontario, and 15.6 in Alberta. In Ontario the area winter killed amounts this year to 71,969 acres, and in Alberta to 14,300 acres.

Acreage by Provinces.

"These figures deducted from the areas sown leave 972,000 acres in Ontario and 215,700 in Alberta, as the areas under fall wheat to be harvested. With 10,900 acres in Manitoba, 4,100 acres in Saskatchewan, and 6,000 acres in British Columbia, the total area under fall wheat to be harvested this year amounts to 1,208,700 acres as compared with 973,300 acres the area harvested in 1914.

"As in the case of wheat, the amount of winter killing proved to be unusually small, in hay and clover meadows, not more than 10 per cent. being the estimated for all Canada as compared with 14 per cent. last year and 23 per cent. in 1913. The average condition was 91 per cent. of the standard or full crop, as compared with 86.7 per cent. last year (May 6), 89.6 per cent. in 1913, and 74.6 per cent. in 1912.

The Maritime Provinces.

"It is as yet too soon to report on the Maritime Provinces, but excellent progress in the seeding of spring grains is reported from all the other six provinces. About double the amount of seeding was accomplished this year on April 30 than was completed on May 6 in 1914. Of spring wheat, 55 per cent. of the total was finished in Quebec as against 5 per cent. last year; in Ontario, 73 per cent. against 24 per cent.; in the three Western provinces, 33 per cent. was completed in Manitoba, 24 per cent. in Saskatchewan, and 21 per cent. in Alberta, three proportions being higher than in any year since 1908. In British Columbia the percentage is 35. For the six provinces the proportion of seeding reported as effected on April 30 was 56 per cent. for wheat, 45 per cent. for oats, 38 per cent. for barley, and 61 per cent. for all crops."

Not Many Pals Left

Pte. Arthur Phipps Writes From No. 13 Hospital, Boulogne

Mrs. A. Phipps, 9 Fradette Ave., has received a message from her son, Pte. A. W. Phipps, of the 57th detachment, who was wounded at Langemarck. The Communication was written on a French "carte postale miltaire," (military post card), and was posted on April 28th. Pte. Phipps was then in the overflow ward of No. 13 General Hospital at Boulogne, France. He says:

My Dear Mother,—I guess you have heard of me being wounded by now, but buck up, dearest, and don't worry for I am being well looked after here. I am in a big hospital in France. I came here yesterday and am feeling a lot stronger now. I have lots to tell you soon. I don't know where Jack and Frank are now. It was a bayonet charge that we were in. This happened on the 22nd of April. I don't think there were many of my pals from Peterborough left after the charge. Well dear, I might be in England soon. My best love to all, I remain your ever loving son,

ART.

READY FOR FIGHT

Letter From Late Pte. Geo. Minorgan Stated That 2nd Battalion Would Welcome Chance

The following letter from Pte. Geo. Minorgan, killed at Langemarck, has been forwarded to Mr. E. B. Rogers by Pte. Minorgan's limit, to whom it was written. It is dated April 9th, two weeks before he met his death:

Dear Auntie,—I received a big letter from you last night and 'Bill' did also. I also received the writing paper and newspaper. Everything in fine condition. We get our mail regularly each evening.

We were inspected to-day by our first commander, General Alderson. He said we were Canada's best battalion and would welcome the chance to be compared with His Majesty's Guards. Perhaps this may mean the hardest jobs when in the advance, but we would gladly welcome such.

We three are feeling fine and do not worry but keep cheerful. We complete our drill at 4 o'clock and then play ball until dark. We are getting on fine with our French and even read the French papers. We have yesterday's Daily Chronicle, but, as a rule, we are four days' late in getting the news. I was so glad to get the book concerning "When The War Will End." That is a subject dear to question and we pass anything concerning such with interest. Another question is when will Italy enter the war.

I am writing this in a small French "pub," the only place we have to write. Bill and I decided we will have our evening meal here. [illegible] your will please send me [illegible] another. I had forgotten to [illegible] that.

I do not worry [illegible] cheerfully with a hope of finally seeing you.

Our new billet is good and warm. We have plenty of straw and sleep close together. Bill and I sleep together. We put our oil sheets on the straw and, with a blanket each, we sleep between them. We also pull our great coats over us. We are getting on well with machine gun work and like it fine. Will write again soon,

Lovingly,
George.

More About the 2nd Battalion

Belleville Private Says Hundreds of Canadians Were Mowed Down

A thrilling story of the great Canadian charge at Langemarck is given in a letter to his parents at Belleville, by Pte. Jim German, of the 2nd Battalion.

April 28, 1915.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I am in the City of London Hospital, wounded in the back with a piece of shrapnel when we made the big charge. I guess all the Belleville boys were hit somewhere, for we were all in the front line of the charge. Well, mother, I guess by the time you get this you will have read in the papers of the great work we have done, but, by God, we have paid for it. There were hundreds, just mowed down by the German guns.

We have often talked about Hell, but we were in it for those three days and nights, amidst heaps of dead Germans and our own mates lying at our feet, crying for help, and we could not get out to help them. Some of our lads were dying out in front of our trenches and had to be left there for fourteen hours until dark. When we got out to them in the dark more had died from bleeding, and I can tell you that it was terrible listening to the groaning of the poor fellows.

I guess you will know that Carl Clark and Tom Vance were wounded. They were both hit the day before me. Mother, nobody knows what war is like until they get there. Well, I can't write any more just now. Remember me to all.

Your loving son,
JIM.

TOBACCO FUND ENTERTAINMENT AT EMPIRE THEATRE

Rain coming on as darkness fell last night prevented a very large attendance at the Empire Theatre, Charlotte Street, when the proprietor, Dr. Robinson, generously donated the entire receipts of the evening to the fund for providing tobacco, chocolate, etc., for the Canadian soldiers at the front. A very entertaining programme was put on, with a first-rate orchestra furnishing music. During the evening Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang, "His Majesty the King," in an extremely effective manner, well worthy of the enthusiastic applause his song received. Mr. John Allan was accompanist. The entertainment provided, and the cause in which it was given, deserved a larger attendance than was present. It is hoped that some of the stayed-homes of last night, with a tobacco shop every hundred yards, will want a smoke as badly as the isolated Canadian soldiers in the trenches with a rifle [illegible] or a shell at every hundred yards [illegible] no other smoke.

BOMBARDMENT MERELY AN OLIO IN LIFE AT YPRES

YPRES, May 10.—Ypres is still too accessible to the fire of the heavy German artillery to be freely open to strangers not connected with the serious business in hand, yet if one did not know what the thundering roar was all about he would not think of war.

The tranquility of the inhabitants is so assuring that a visitor may walk around the great market place with no thought that a shell is likely to light upon the very spot.

A green Hammersmith 'bus drives up and some "Tommies" get out leisurely, light their pipes and take a turn around the battered market house whistling "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Belfry Reduced to Ruins.

The superb belfry of the market house has been reduced to two crumbling walls that recall ancient towers along the Rhine. The left wing of the building lies in a heap and the main hall consists of four bleak walls, through the windows of which daylight is seen from every side.

Outside this melancholy ruin, behind an improvised counter under a little arcade flanked on either side by the wreckage of recent bombardments and facing the roofless cathedral, a little woman calmly waits the rare customer for her stock of fruit gathered from no one knows where or how; she reflects the mentality of the people of Flanders—resigned, patient, confident, half forgetful what fear is like and stubborn in their determination to stick to their firesides as long as one stone remains on top of another.

Shell Explodes in Throng.

Civilians and soldiers—French and British—are fraternizing in the middle of the market place when the distant thunder strikes up and soon after the first projectile arrives. It misses the market hall, but explodes in the very middle of a throng on the square. Most people for the time take to their cellars.

REPORTS WESTERN CROP CONDITIONS AS EXCELLENT

NORWOOD, May 13.—Mr. Wesley Andrews, of Hazenmore, Sask., arrived in Norwood on a two months' visit. Mr. Andrews, who is engaged in farming, as well as the machinery business, is particularly optimistic over the prospects of a bumper crop in the west this summer. He states that on account of the early spring the crops are at least two weeks ahead of other years, while an abundant amount of moisture has also assisted materially in making the conditions so advantageous.

Claims Damages To Horse and Cutter

Interesting Case in Havelock Division Court—Adjourned Until To-morrow

HAVELOCK, May 13—Considerable interest was taken in the case of Max Post vs. J. C. Buchanan, Jr., of Belmont in the Division Court. Post claimed damages to his horse and cutter for a runaway last winter, which he alleges was caused by Buchanan's negligence. The case was not concluded and was adjourned until to-morrow. Considerable delay was caused to the Court by reason of parties having actions not being on hand on time and Judge Huycke's ire was aroused in consequence and he intimated that in future such cases would be thrown out. Judgment with costs was given against Calvin Youmans for an account of $47.23 put in by E. C. Pace of Cordova.

Ran Away With A Farm Roller

Accident at Indian River Which Might Have Proved Fatal For Two Boys, One of Whom Was Injured

INDIAN RIVER, May 13—To be run over by a heavy steel farm roller to which was attached a team of horses bent on running away, was the experience of two boys, Mark and John Fitzgerald, sons of Mr. John Fitzgerald, of Indian River. Both boys were badly shaken up, but no serious results are anticipated. The accident occurred about two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The two boys were out rolling in a field when the horses suddenly became frightened and commenced to run away. They were not long in getting beyond control of the boys, who were thrown off. One if not two of them is said to have passed under the roller. Mark Fitzgerald sustained injuries to his shoulder, while the other boy received a severe shaking up.

The horses left the premises of their owner and made their way onto the railway track, where they proceeded towards the village at a lively clip. They were finally captured by Mr. Kidd and Mr. Hall. One of the animals was badly cut up, and may not recover. Dr. George Lorrigan, V.S., of Peterborough, was summoned, and is attending the injured animals.

HER PRAYER FOR THE KAISER

LONDON, May 12.—A Scotch woman whose son is at the front, was loudly berating the Kaiser when the parson called. He ventured to suggest that "we should love our enemies and pray for them."

"Oh, but I do pray for him, too," said the woman.

"What do you say?"

"I say, 'O Lord, deal with that old blackguard, soften his heart, and damp his powther!'"

MAN SENTENCED TO DIE AFFIRMS HIS INNOCENCE

ATLANTA, Ga., May 13.— Leo M. Frank, at twenty-five minutes to twelve o'clock to-day heard from the lips of Judge Ben H. Hill, of the Fulton Superior Court, his fourth sentence to be hanged for the murder of Mary Phagan. Tuesday, June 22, was fixed as the date.

Mrs. Frank was at the condemned man's side. When Frank started out of the court room she wept.

Asked if he had anything to say Frank made a long statement, in which he said:

"I am innocent of this charge and I assert that the record of the evidence conclusively proves this. No appellate tribunal has ever passed upon this evidence. The only judge who has ever heard it stated that he had the most serious doubt as to my guilt.

"My execution will not avenge Mary Phagans death. A life will have been taken for a life, but the real culprit will not have paid the penalty. I will suffer for another's crime.

"My trust is in God, who knows that my protestations of innocence are the truth. At some future date the mortal world will realize it. It is the knowledge that God knows it now and that the world will know it some day that inspires me as I stand before Your Honour and as I face the future."

Caused Crepe For Million

In the current issue of the Philistine, Elbert Hubbard, who was one of the victims of the Lusitania horror, wrote the followigg under the caption of "War News":

Readers may remember that I have once or twice, frankly, but kindly, criticised that great and good man, William Hohenzollern.

Also I published a little booklet entitled "Who Lifted the Lid?" and on the back of this booklet was the slogan "Hell Was Made in Germany."

It speaks volumes for the patience and good nature of the German people that somebody has not reached for me with a snickersnee on account of my shooting paper pellets in the direction of the Teutonic tribe.

The fact is, I make a very sharp distinction between the Germany of art, commerce and handicraft and the Prussia of Militarism.

The only excuse for criticising the Kaiser at all is that he is the leading exponent of the military system. Here is a man who has murdered thousands and caused crepe to be worn by millions, and certainly such a one is fair game for the gentle art of literary criticism.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. J. Richardson left this morning on an extended visit to her daughter, Mrs. S. Westwood, Toronto, who is still very ill.

Mr. Spence McIntyre, son of Ald. McIntyre, is one of those who have graduated at Toronto University. He has received his degree as an electric engineer.

Miss Sybil White, head of the cloak and suit department of Robert Fair and Company, has returned from a buying trip in Toronto, where large purchases were made for that particular department, including a large assortment of novelties.

Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton returned last night to Peterborough after spending the past seven months at Clifton Springs, N.Y., and at Hot Springs, Arkansas. Mr. Stratton's numerous friends are pleased to note that he has considerably benefitted by his stay in the south during the winter.

The Peterborough Progressive Club will serve tea at the Oriental tea room from four to six o'clock on Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons of this week. The proceeds will go to buy hospital supplies and comforts for the soldiers. Miss Peck, Mrs. McDermid, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson and Mrs. McLean will be in charge to-day; Miss Rubidge, Miss F. Rubidge, and Mrs. (Dr.) Cameron on Friday, and Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Travers, and Miss Pearce on Saturday.

AN APPRECIATION

Whereas in the providence of God the Women's Missionary Society of the George Street Methodist church has been called through the death of Mrs. J. B. Pentland to part with one of its most faithful and efficient officers, we would place on record our high appreciation of the character and work of our dear sister who a few weeks ago was called to higher service. For many years she had been recording secretary of our society, and her place at our monthly gatherings was seldom vacant. And no one was more deeply interested in the success of our work than she. We shall miss her at our meetings, and another occupying her place will but intensify our loss, but though God buries his workmen He carries on His work, so we trust the stimulus of His life will remain with us, and that its unlooked for termination may awaken in us greater love for the work God has given us to do, and greater zeal in trying to accomplish it, so that when we, too, cross the border land we may individually hear the high encomium: "She hath done what she could." We would also extend to its stricken family of our dear sister, to the husband in his loneliness, to the dear girls with their added responsibilities and their unspeakable loss of a mother's love and counsel, the assurance of our heartfelt sympathy, and of our hope, and prayer, that as one whom his mother comforteth, so they may feel their Mighty Friend who never leaves His children to bear their burdens alone.

Signed on behalf of the members of the society.

NATIONAL ANTHEMS NOT OLD

The dates of the publications of various national anthems are as follows:—"God Save the King," 1746; "Marseillaise," 1792; "Brabanconne," 1830; "Die Fachs am Rhein," 1854, and "The Austrian Hymn," 1797, whilst "God Save the Czar" was composed by Alex Lvoff, who flourished about the middle of last century. The only really old national anthem, Mr. Gilbert avers, seems to be the Japanese which I take to be about 2,000 years of age, a Dorian melody of a fine type.

RED CROSS MEETING

To Hold a Red Cross Tag Day on May 22nd

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross Society was held yesterday afternoon. The President, Mrs. J. C. Davidson, was in the chair.

It was decided to send one of the members, Miss Peacock, to address a meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute, on "The Needs of the Red Cross."

The Secretary, Miss S. Davidson, brought a communication from headquarters, regarding the sending of an Organizer for Red Cross Tag Day, for which this Branch is arranging, on Saturday, May 22, but the members thought, in order to avoid expense, it was better to manage this day themselves, and it is hoped a very large amount may be realized.

Committees were arranged for the various parts of the undertaking and it is hoped the Branch may have the support of the general public, when collecting funds for the noble work being done by the Canadian Red Cross Society. Mrs. F. L. Roy is Treasurer of the local branch.

Cost of Ventilating The City Hall

Scheme as Prepared Will Mean an Outlay of Approximately $1,200 —Will Meet This Afternoon

A meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council will be held this afternoon at four o'clock. Plans and specifications will be submitted to the meeting, which call for an improved system of ventilation at the City Hall, the same to cost in the neighbourhood of twelve hundred dollars. There is little doubt in the minds of some of the Aldermen but what the proposal will be turned down on the grounds that the undertaking [illegible] especially as the present City Hall is rather old and antequated. If the work were undertaken the Council would probably look to the City Trust Commission for the necessary funds, and it is hardly likely they would be forthcoming. The plans and specifications were prepared by R. G. Sturgeon.

Alderman McIntyre, chairman of the committee, is not very enthusiastic about the scheme, and it is hardly likely he will support it.

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 13.—Repeated efforts were made to break through the line of support during second hour of to-day's market, but without success, the buying being more sturdy in face of each successive attack.

There was no inclination to follow rallies up, but stocks were wanted on reactions. It was rumoured that the Penna had definitely placed a contract for 120,000 tons steel rails and had decided to go forward with the building of 14,000 cars for replacements on its lines. It was also said that B and O would give a substantial order in the near future. A.C.P. rallied well and it was rumoured that after the exchange of stocks was made the dividend on A.N.C. would be increased. It was rumoured that Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, was operating on the bear side. The market closed weak with fractional losses all along the line.

CARRANZA FORCES ARE DRIVEN BACK

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Carranza forces under General Obregon have been driven back to Irapuato by General Villa, who has surrounded that place and has Obregon cut off on all sides, according to an announcement made here to-day by the Villa agency.

Zapta has cut off Obregon's retreat southward, while the Villa forces occupy strategic points north, east and west of Irapuato. It was stated that every precaution has been taken to make it impossible for Obregon to escape Villa at Irapuato.

The agency stated that advices received from Villa were to the effect that he had destroyed the left wing of the Obregon army during the fighting in the vicinity of Leon. Obregon then retreated to Irapuato, where he had established a base before moving on Villa at Aguascalientes. Villa pursued him to that place and immediately began a siege. Another battle is expected to be fought in a day or two at Irapuato.

The State Department has received little information from Central Mexico during the last three or four days. The European situation has occupied almost the entire time of officials here and they have not given much attention to affairs in Mexico.

Duval West is still in Washington, waiting to report to President Wilson the results of his trip to Mexico.

French Troops Operating North of Arras Capture Immense Amount of War Material in Addition to Large Number of Prisoners.

FRENCH OFFENSIVE DEMORALIZES GERMANS

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 14.—The following official communication was issued last evening:

"The fighting east of Ypres still continues. The Germans yesterday [illegible] bombardment, which in places destroyed some of our trenches, causing temporary readjustments in the line. The line, however, has since been completely re-established.

"On the remainder of the front there is nothing to report."

BELGIAN TROOPS TRIUMPH.

PARIS, May 14.—The following official communication was issued last night:

"The Belgian army, by a new attack Wednesday night on the right bank of the Yser, repulsed the enemy, who left, in retiring, several hundred dead on the ground.

"To the north of Arras we have obtained some new and important results. By the capture of Carency there has fallen into our hands much war material, which it has not yet been possible to enumerate completely. It includes two cannon, one howitzer, two mortars, a dozen bomb-throwers, a large number of machine guns, 3,000 rifles and large supplies of shells and cartridges.

"In the wood of Hill 125 we found the bodies of three companies of Germans who had been annihilated by our artillery.

HUNDREDS ARE PRISONERS.

"The enemy bombarded Carency yesterday afternoon, but without result. As masters of Carency, we have progressed towards the north, where we have established ourselves in Ablain St. Nazaire, which we hold, with the exception of some houses along the river. Around these the struggle still continues. We made several hundred prisoners. During his retirement the enemy set fire to half the village.

"At Neuville St. Vaast we occupied new groups of houses in the northern part of the village. The number of cannon and howitzers of large calibre taken was seventeen.

"In the Argonne, at Bagatelle, we repulsed two German attacks, one at night, the other in the day. The latter was very violent.

"The success reported yesterday morning in the Forest of Le Pretre has made us masters of the last German organization which had still resisted in that woods. The position is now in our hands."

BIG FRENCH SUCCESS.

The French War Office yesterday afternoon issued the following statement on the progress of hostilities:

"We won brilliant successes Wednesday evening and Wednesday night to the north of Arras.

"At Notre Dame de Lorette we are masters of the fort, as well as of the chapel.

"In the vast quadrilateral of trenches and other earthworks which are to the south of the Chapel of Notre Dame de Lorette we have been subjected to a very violent counter-attack. A ferocious combat which lasted all night long developed in this quadrilateral. In the morning we were complete masters of the situation, having inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy.

"During Wednesday night we also took by assault all of the village of Carency, as well as the forest to the north of it, Hill No. 125. The German garrison stationed in this village and in this wood was composed of one battalion of the 109th Regiment of Infantry, one battalion of the 136th Regiment of Infantry, one battalion of Bavarian Chasseurs and six companies of Pioneers, 300 men to a company. These forces had made of Carency and of Hill No. 125, in the forest, a position of great strength. In spite of the fact that their numbers had been very much reduced by their losses in killed, wounded and prisoners on previous days, these forces during the night put up a desperate resistance to our attack delivered against a maze of trenches, block-houses and narrow passages.

TOOK 1,050 PRISONERS.

"We broke down this resistance of the enemy, and at break of day we were in complete mastery of the situation. Our troops killed hundreds of Germans at the point of the bayonet. We made 1,050 prisoners, of whom about 30 are officers. Included in these latter are a Colonel and the commandant of a battalion of Chasseurs.

"At the southern exit of Souchez our positions were subjected Wednesday to violent attacks on the part of the enemy. Nevertheless, we retained them.

TOOK SEVERAL TRENCHES.

"At Neuville our attacks on the village itself and to the north of the village made perceptible progress. To the north of Neuville we took possession of trenches several hundred yards long, and we occupied the road called the Highway des Carrieres, which runs from Neuville to Givenchy. In the village itself we occupied Wednesday morning only the southern portion, the enemy still holding the centre and the northern part. An attack delivered late in the afternoon resulted in our occupying, house by house, all of the central portion of this village. The Germans were driven back to the extreme northern part, where we are outflanking them. Our troops in this fighting gave admirable evidence of courage and tenacity.

"In the Forest of Le Petre we occupied Wednesday a new line of German trenches."

Bombs Used By British Airmen

The bombs used with such effect by British naval and military airmen during the past are of the Marten Hale type, as shown in the above photograph. The bomb on the left weighs 20 pounds, and carries 8 pounds of high-explosive known as trinitrotoluol. That on the right weighs 10 pounds, and carries 4 pounds of the same explosive, besides 350 steel shrapnel balls, each ½-inch in diameter.

EXTENSIVE ANTI-GERMAN RIOTING TAKING PLACE IN ITALIAN CITIES

Riots Follow Report That the Salandra Cabinet Had Resigned Because of Opposition of Neutrality Party to Intervention.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

ROME, May 14.—Extensive anti-German rioting broke out here and in a number of other Italian cities to-day, following the report that the Salandra Cabinet had resigned because of opposition of the neutrality party to intervention. Frenzied mobs, forming in different sections of the city, concentrated in the main streets and began attacking German shops. Mounted troops and soldiers in automobiles were hurried out to rush the mobs. A despatch from Milan reported that interventionists and neutralists exchanged shots in a pitched battle, and that a number of persons were killed or wounded. Angry mobs of interventionists formed quickly last night when the cabinet's action was first rumored.

[illegible] broke out vending their wrath against the Germans. A crowd of men and boys assembled near a German College and threatened to apply the torch.

The wildest scenes occurred near Piazza Colona. The mob attacked nearly every German shop in the vicinity, the proprietors fleeing to the residential districts for protection.

NEW RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IS FORCING AUSTRIANS IN ROUT TO THE PRUTH

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 13.—The Russian offensive in far Eastern Galicia towards Bukowina is meeting with continued success, according to the official report received to-night from Petrograd. Counter-attacks by the Austrians have failed entirely to check the advance of the Russians, and the enemy's forces were in disorderly retreat throughout Tuesday, his formations becoming demoralized during the evening when the Czar's troops penetrated as far as Horodenka, a town some 20 miles north of the Pruth River.

Two Austrian battalions were annihilated by the Russian artillery, and several thousand men were taken prisoner. A number of guns and 50 ammunition caissons also fell into the Russians' hands.

There is no official news from Petrograd to-night concerning the Austro-German attack in West Galicia and the Carpathians, except for the statement that the fighting Tuesday and Wednesday decreased in intensity on a great part of the front. An earlier official note, referring to the enemy's success during the last fortnight says: "The Germans have gained no tactical success. Our reserves, by a flank blow, enabled our army to rearrange a line of advantageous positions eliminating all fear of final retreat. Our army has received strong reinforcements, and is ready to exact hearty revenge."

Berlin and Vienna officially claim that their armies have occupied several towns along the San River above Peremyal, their vanguard being about 25 miles from that fortress. According to the German official report the Russians' reiterated statements that their retreat has been orderly.

Carpathians since General von Mackensen inaugurated his great drive from Cracow number nearly 145,000. It is stated that 69 cannon and 255 machine guns have been taken in the former area. The small number of heavy guns compared with the prisoners is regarded here as strongly supporting the Russians' reiterated statements that their retreat has been orderly.

The isolated battle in the Baltic province of Courland is still going on with no decision at hand. At first the German invaders, attacked at Mitau by strong Russian forces, fell back rapidly, but now they have been reinforced and have ceased to retreat. Neither Petrograd nor Berlin has yet claimed success in this engagement.

"The President Has Spoken Firmly" Says Sun

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, May 14.—New York papers, without exception, had only praise for President Wilson's note to Germany. The World said: "President Wilson's note to Germany cannot fail to satisfy the highest expectations of the American people. There can be no mistake whatever as to the intentions and purposes of the American government." The Sun says: "The President has spoken firmly, the country supporting him as firmly, awaits without passion the German reply."

King Constantine of Greece is Seriously Ill

Special to The Examiner:

ATHENS, May 14.—King Constantine is seriously ill. Prayers were ordered in all the churches of Greece to-day for his recovery.

The King contracted pleurisy and a severe cold. Consultation of royal physicians was held last night. To-day an official bulletin was given out denying the report that the King's condition had been considered as hopeless. King Constantine is 68 years old. He became ruler of Greece upon the assassination of his father, King George, March 18, 1913. King Constantine was active recently in overturning the war party in Greece.

LIQUOR CONCEALED IN FURNITURE

Charleston, W. Va., May 14—Since West Virginia went dry there have been many ways of getting whisky and beer into the state, but the latest system was discovered when Fred O. Blue, commissioner of prohibition, confiscated a carload of furniture shipped from Cincinnati.

There were pianos, buffets, beds, china closets and what not and all highly charged with whisky bottled in all shapes and sizes of flasks. Gene Brennan, a local restaurant keeper, was arrested.

Stoney Lake Breezes

Items of Interest From Peterborough's Popular Summer Resort

The shores of Stony Lake are very pretty just now, presenting as they do every conceivable shade of green, from the lighter hues of the poplar to the more somble colour of the pines. Quickly they recall the beautiful ode to spring by the Rev. J. B. Dollard, beginning:

"Lakes of the North, flash out in sheen
Of silver and engirdling green!
White birch and fragrant tamarac
Your myriad beauties fitly screen."

Vegetation is about three weeks in advance of last year, having been brought on quickly during the warm spell of April.

The cottages and islands should look their best this summer, for nature is certainly doing her share to adorn this "Garden of Eden."

Mr. Lindsay is having a rustic summer house built on his island near McCracken's Landing. Mr. John Brown of Dunnore is doing the work.

The last block of the logs, which came down Eel's Creek, are now entering Lake Katchewanooka.

Mrs. J. W. McKinney of Sewickley, Pa., arrived at McCracken's Landing on Monday, where she will remain until her cottage near Kawartha Park is ready for habitation. Mr. Norrish of Lakefield, has been busy all winter getting out the timber for its construction.

The many friends of Mrs. J. D. Collins will regret to learn that the illness, which afflicted her all winter, may make it impossible for her to spend the summer at Stony Lake, a privilege she has enjoyed for a great number of years.

The Kawartha Park colony will greatly miss Mrs. E. B. Clegg and family, who are now in England visiting Col. Clegg prior to his departure for the trenches in Flanders. Mrs. Conway, who with her family has camped for several seasons near Sandy Beach, will not come up this season on account of the absence of her friend, Mrs. Clegg.

Indeed the war has been responsible for many changes along the Kawartha Park shore, the scars of which will never be healed. When we think of Heber Rogers our hearts bleed.

Happy Hawkins in the Panhandle

By ROBERT ALEXANDER WASON

"What for you goin' in to Tascosa?" sez Monody, as soon as the wind that all the time blows up there on the plains had scattered his memories.

"I don't rightly know," sez I. "I would like to hear what news the' is, but mostly I'm goin' just 'cause that's the way my mood shifted. I want you to remember one thing, Monody, and that is that I've never told you that I was the Panhandle Kid."

"I reckon I know enough to hold my own tongue," sez Monody, swellin' up. He was as easy to me to play on as a drum.

It was dark when we reached Tascosa so as we prepared to put hobbles on our ponies and go in on foot, Monody warned me to be careful and promised to pick up all the news he could, he not bein' much known in those parts. I grinned to myself in the dark, 'cause I was sure beginnin' to feel like the Panhandle Kid and playin' a part allus was divertin' to me.

CHAPTER THREE.

TASCOSA.

"I should think you wouldn't dare so you tell me his story the same as if I had never heard of him before."

"That'd be a funny thing," chuckled Monody. "I don't believe I could tell a man's own story right to the man."

"Go on," sez I. "It's dark so neither one can see the other blush. Don't soften it none on my account, just heave it out the way you've heard it yourself."

Well, Monody he shied and bucked a while longer but finally I derailed him until he didn't care whether he hurt my feelin's or not; and this was about what he told me:

It seems that the Kid had been about eighteen when he had spread the West wide enough to wedge himself into it, and he had brought along all the popular notions of what was expected of a genuwine Westerner. What most Easte'ners call typical Westerners are generally kids from the East who haven't got tamed yet. We generally give 'em plenty o' rope at first, and then if they don't tone down so we can find some use for 'em, why we—give 'em a little more rope.

The Kid had brought a twenty-two-short along with him and he felt it was a grand thing to be out where it was fashionable to take human life without gettin' a jury's permission. Texas Paddy in a saloon in Omaha and Paddy was feelin' merry; so he invited the Kid to mount a table and recite his last Sunday School lesson. The Kid refused pointblank, and Paddy pulled his gun and a terrific frown. The Kid immediately flashed out his twenty-two and shot Paddy in the wrist. This irritated Paddy considerable and he let out a yell and rushed for the Kid who continued to shoot his little old bean-blower like hail on a tin roof, gettin' Paddy in the other wrist, both shoulders, and a leg; and then he tore out the door.

I don't know whether to believe it or not; but they claim a twenty-two stings like a bee; and, anyway, Paddy had yowled every time he had been hit so the Kid thought the whole regular army would be after him for murder, and that his own safety lay in goin' from bad to worse. Texans didn't use to take any more heed of a real gunwound 'n they did of a nosebleed, so Paddy didn't bear the Kid even a mite o' resentment, admittin' that the Kid had done just the right thing in turnin' the joke on him; but the Kid had took it serious and the next heard of him he had joined Welchy's' gang in Southern Kansas. No kid of this stripe ever has to be out of a job so long as shy gangs are left and Welchy put the Kid into harness pronto.

Gun-fighters have to have certain traits to start on, and the Kid had 'em all. He was vain, easy teared, quick as a flash, out of tune with the world, and hungry for an ear-ful. Welchy savvied all this and molded the Kid to suit him. They kept the Kid in camp practisin' with a forty-five, exclaimin' about his marvellous rapidity and accuracy, and every time one of 'em would come back, he certainly would fill the Kid's ear with scary tales of how thick and savage the detectives were on his trail.

The Kid took all this serious and he spent his time imaginin' himself in the centre of an avenging ring and himself sellin' out at the highest figger, till after a bit his nerves bein' of the proper quality, got tuned up to what he wanted to see 'em for and then he was in the second stage of the bad man.

Welchy wasn't much celibre of a bad man himself, bein' mostly nothin' but a thief and doin' all his shootin' from ambush. As soon as he had the Kid to suit him he tried to get him to help rob a ranch house when the men-folks were away, and the Kid was shocked. He had took Welchy to be the real thing and when he found him to be only a thief, he sailed in and talked to him. Welchy spoke some words about slappin' the Kid's face and the Kid went on the prod proper. He pulled both his guns and built a blaze around the old man which broiled him in ten spots, but didn't draw a drop of blood and the yellow streak in Welchy was so wide that he never even tried to pull his smoke-wagon at all, just stood with his tongue hangin' out until the Kid told him to emigrate.

Then the Kid weeded the gang and started in to be a genuwine story-book hero. He robbed the rich and paid the poor, he pinked scrips with bad men and got away with it. There is a manly glint in the eye of a killer so bluffers can save their lives by practicin' a little temperance, modesty, and the Kid had the good luck to miss bumpin' the right men at the wrong time.

Some feller's reputations grew like mushrooms, gettin' mighty big in a single night, but not havin' any show of root; and from what I could gather from Monody, this Panhandle Kid was one of 'em. Monody had never seen the Kid himself; but had gossiped with a lot who had and they all claimed he was bad medicine. Still, when I asked for Bloody particulars, why they were mighty shy.

Monody'd shake his head and say, "He's sure enough a killin' feller, that feller is"; but when I'd try to get a list of his victims, why Monody'd just give him the credit for all the dead men no one else had laid claim to, and I got the notion into my head that this Panhandle Kid was either a purty decent sort of a chap, or else awful' lazy a fuss in the pan. He had got the name all right, down west in John Wesley Harden that he (accepted an invitation to go to the Panhandle and if they kept on botherin' John Wesley down below, for him to come up into the Panhandle and be at rest.

Now, John Wesley Harden was about the best advertised killer the' was at that time and he thought this a huge joke and told about it; but the ones he told it to, took it serious and from that on the Panhandle Kid didn't have to do nothin' but pack away the laurels other fellers donated to him.

While we were sittin' there in the little arroyo, along came two fellers tellin' each other what they didn't like about each other, and doin' it cold an' calculatin'. I hadn't listened a minute before I began to itch with a desire to leave that pair in my possession. One feller's voice was high and thin, the other had a cellar bass so everlastin' heavy that while he was makin' a remark you could still hear the echo of his last one and the rumble of his next on its way to the surface.

"What you goin' to do with that blame kid?" growled the bass voice when they get right at the mouth of our arroyo.

"We're goin' to take care of him till he gets himself hung," replied the thin voice. "What else can we do—we can't eat him, can we?"

"You had no business to bring him along."

"You had no business to save his life."

CHEERFUL GHURKAS

One Man Blinded But Still Makes Fun For Wounded Comrades

Blind though he is, Gundar Singh, a young Ghurka now lying with terrible shrapnel wounds at Netley Hospital, is far from being downhearted. Indeed, in the words of Nurse Ethel Naser, he is the life of his ward, stoically indifferent to his wounds and always cheerful and gay. "Sometimes," says Nurse Naser, "Gundar Singh, who has lost the sight of both eyes, imitates the wounded Germans, and at other times he will go through the actions of an encounter in the trenches. The last is most realistic. One can well imagine the Ghurkas creeping up to get at the enemy. The other evening when I came back from tea I found the patients in roars of laughter. Gundar Singh was out of bed performing a "pay day" to the other men. I ordered him back to bed, and he immediately stoo to attention and saluted, 'Salaam, sister sahib new pay, sister sahib; 500 rupees, sister sahib, very good.' How could I be angry with him? I had to laugh with the rest of them.

"One gets very fond of the Ghurka and the Garwhal. There is never a complaint or murmur from them, and their faith in all the doctors and sisters is quite touching. The most trying ordeal to them is when they get X-rayed. Sometimes I wonder if they think we are casting a spell over them, for they often come back counting their fingers and feeling their limbs. At first it was difficult to keep order in the ward, especially with the Mohammedans, but they soon settled down and made really excellent and very tractable patients.

The Ghurkas are such quiet, brave little men, very like the Japanese in appearance, and the Sikhs and Garwhal Hindus are fine, handsome fellows. All the Indians have magnificent teeth which they clean regularly after eating. In fact, in personal cleanliness they are far ahead of the average English working man. But oh, the messes they make with their washing and meals. They like 'plenty paal' (water), and an orderly has always to go round with a mop after their morning and evening toilet."

COULD NOT GO TEN STEPS FOR THE PAIN IN HIS KIDNEYS.

When you get a pain in the back you may rest assured that it comes from derangement of the kidneys, for were there not something wrong with the kidneys the back should be strong and well.

Doan's Kidney Pills regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist. What more needs to be said? While Doan's Kidney Pills are not a "balm for every ill that flesh is heir to," they are a positive, never-failing remedy for every disease that has its inception in the improper action in those delicate little filters of the blood, the kidneys.

Mr. Adelard Cleroux, Eganville, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for four years. They were so bad, at times, I could not go ten steps for the pain they caused me. My doctor could not do me any good. A friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought five boxes, and now I have been cured for over three years. I will recommend them to whoever may be suffering from kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box; 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

COMFORT AND CURE FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema

If every mother could try Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is so easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured, that Dr. Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr. M. L. Deschêne, Postmaster, Dugnayville, N.B., writes: "I believe it is my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema. My baby was seized with eczema and his face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood. Hearing about Dr. Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this was all used the child was cured. That was a year ago, and there has been no trace of eczema since. I recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand, along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth. Sample box free if you mention this paper. ## THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

By special arrangement for this paper a photo-drama corresponding to the instalments of "The Master Key" may now be seen at the leading moving picture theatres. By arrangement made with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company it is not only possible to read "The Master Key" in this paper, but also afterward to see moving pictures of our story.

CHAPTER IX.

Master of the "Master Key" Mine.

WHEN Ruth Gallon did not call upon him and he found himself unable to locate her Charles Everett was at a loss what to do. He had wired Dorr of his anxiety about her and had received word in reply that the young engineer had received conflicting messages.

Unhappily for the girl, Everett was called out of town. And so when he found himself forced to make a hurried trip to San Francisco her predicament became the more pronounced.

The false Everett, George Drake, took it upon himself to call at the Ritz for her mail, and, returning with word that there was none for her, Ruth felt a strange premonition that matters were not progressing as they should.

Mrs. Darnell found her gazing out of the drawing room window, huddled in a pathetic little heap, dejection stamped on features and form.

"Dearie," purred the hostess, "you look as if you had lost your last friend on earth. Do cheer up. What is the trouble?"

Ruth turned her head, but remained in the same queer little attitude, replying in a plaintive voice:

"I do not understand why Mr. Dorr has not written or wired me. Really, Mrs. Darnell, I am beginning to fear that something has happened to him."

Mrs. Darnell looked at her sourly.

Ruth Spied a Florist's Window.

ly, but recovered quickly. Under the questioning return gaze.

"Do not worry, Ruth, everything will come out all right. Supposing we take a drive. The air and sunshine will do you a world of good."

Every minute was one of delight to the unsophisticated girl, and each new sight and view opened a new world to her inexperienced mind. After a stop at Grant's tomb they speeded downtown, reaching Columbus circle after a run through Central park. A blowout of one of the tires caused a delay. Ruth tired of sitting in the car, and, jumping out, she spied a florist's window. Before Mrs. Darnell could think of the possibility of a miscarriage of her well laid plans the girl was inside. She purchased violets for

The greatest difficulty lay in reconciling Ruth's mind to the mystery of Everett's sudden departure after she had seen him at Mrs. Darnell's the night before. But the cleverness of the schemer counterbalanced all doubts, and the girl was therefore persuaded to hasten to San Francisco to carry out her plans.

Accordingly the wired Dorr, just again "the wires crossed," for, although he learned that she was going to the western city, he again learned that Everett had failed to connect with her.

Ruth had been gone many days when John Dorr received another telegram from Everett that made his heart stop its regular beat. Alone in his cabin he pored over it as if there must be some hidden meaning beneath the words. It was unbelievable. After all his pain and his very careful forethought for her comfort and safety something had gone wrong. Everett was brief:

San Francisco, April 2.

John Dorr, Silent Valley, Cal.:

Have been unable to find Miss Gallon.

EVERETT.

For awhile his mind refused to work logically. All that he could think of was little Ruth Gallon, she of the slender hands and pure eyes, lost in the great city and piteously seeking a familiar face. But he pulled himself vigorously together and called up the agent at the station.

"Bill," he said over the telephone, "this is Dorr. I want to get a wire through to San Francisco."

"All right, John; what is it?"

John thought a moment and then dictated this message:

Charles Everett, Golf Building, San Francisco:

Miss Gallon was to have gone to the St. Francis, as I wired you before. DORR.

After mulling over the problem he felt that he must confide in some one. Of all the men in the mine he trusted only Tom Kane. He strode down the hill to the cook shanty and found the old man engaged in his task of preparing the noonday meal.

"Look here, Tom," John said abruptly, holding out the telegram. "I haven't said anything before, but Ruth is lost in San Francisco. I've wired Everett before. He can't find her."

Without a word the cook reached for the yellow slip and read it slowly. He glanced up and said with the utmost simplicity, "I reckon you'd better catch this evening's express."

"But my work here—somebody has got to look after the mine and Wilkerson"—

Tom Kane glanced at him and then at the bit of paper. "I know how you feel," he muttered, "but I've cooked grub enough to know that if you leave things on the fire they'll burn. This business won't wait." He smiled magnificently. "And you just leave this to me. I've been here since the mine started, and I guess I can attend to it for awhile. Before you've been gone a week I'll have everything in shape."

Dorr would so stir things up with the aid of Everett that all plans to retain control of the mine's stock would be futile. He must not be allowed to go

HAD DYSPEPSIA

So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Needles, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any bad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto Ont.

it. Was that John Dorr, who must certainly be anxiously awaiting word from Ruth, neither said anything not

It did not escape him that Tom Kane and the young engineer were in consultation several times. What were they planning? He determined to probe boldly. When Dorr came into the office in the afternoon and began to clear up his desk Wilkerson asked quietly, "What's the news from San Francisco? Has Ruth wired?"

John had been expecting this perfectly natural question and was ready with his answer:

"Everything seems to be all right."

"Good!" said the superintendent dryly. "I'd like to get started on that new lead pretty soon." He could not repress a sour smile. "Since the old rate of wages has been restored I guess you and I may have to do without our salaries for awhile."

John looked up and caught himself. He was in no position to quarrel with this man. "Pay the men first, of course," he said. He proceeded to get into a package of blueprints and mean-while.

"Going to move?" suggested Wilkerson.

"I'm going for a trip, and I thought I'd look over my notes in the meanwhile," was the response.

Wilkerson said no more. He went on the alert. From Bill Tubbs he learned that Dorr was going to run into either Valle Vista or Silent Valley with the motor truck.

The superintendent of the "Master Key" belonged to the type that is cat-like in its quickness of action, based on intuition rather than on reason. While Ruth Gallon was carefully concealed it was mere than possible that Something Had Gone Wrong.

But how to prevent him? Wilkerson pondered this problem till his dark face was suffused with angry blood. There was no way but the way of violence. Among his numerous appetites was none for blood, but he nerved himself to his task and shortly after midday called for his horse and rode out, stating that he was going across the divide to see about a fresh supply of wood. In the saddle sentinel he carried a short gun.

* * * * * * *

Running an errand between two hills halfway to Silent Valley was a short incline of considerable height. It was midafternoon when Harry Wilkerson threw the bridle rein over his pony's head and climbed down the hill steps till he was directly under the bridge. Then he pulled the insulation out of his mine issue club-finger knife. Without emotion later he climbed up to the road, broke the car in two, flung the pieces into the brush and rode away. He did not look back.

From his place of vantage halfway up the hill he watched. The lever that

Spinach Souffle.

Chop a cupful of cold cooked spinach very fine, or run it through a vegetable press. Beat in a tablespoonful of melted butter; salt and pepper to taste, half teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of mace or nutmeg. Stir and beat to a paste. Add half a cupful of milk, the beaten yolks of three eggs and when these are well mixed with the other ingredients, pour in the stiffened whites. Beat for 30 seconds and turn into a buttered dish. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven.

The Use of Iron.

Iron has been known to men for a very long time. In the time of the Assyrians it was extensively used, tires, saws, knives and other tools having been found by Layard at Nineveh. Homer refers to the forging of iron, while the hardening and tempering of steel appear to have been operations in common use among the early Greeks. The employment of a kind of bellows for the forging of tools, presumably of iron, figures in Egyptian sculpture of 1300 B. C. Cast iron appears to have been discovered about 200 B. C. Through the agency of the Romans the manufacture of iron was introduced all over the then known world.

Chinese Filial Piety.

The following Chinese story illustrates the national regard for filial piety. A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was hamboozed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their offices. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire filial.

Couldn't Face Failure.

In 1788 James Price, a distinguished amateur chemist and fellow of the British Royal society, announced that he had succeeded in inventing a method of converting mercury and other inferior metals into gold and silver. He confessed a series of experiments in the presence of a number of men of rank and science which were apparently successful. Some of the gold thus produced was presented to the king, and the University of Oxford, hearing of this, immediately conferred on Price the honorary degree of M. D. But a fierce controversy arose, and he was requested to prove the truth of his discovery before the Royal society. He consented, and on the appointed day the officers assembled at his house. He lectured on chemistry, and then, stepping to one side, he swallowed a flask of boiled water and died in a few minutes. He died, it is thought, under a mistake in his experiments and had not the moral courage to own it.—London Standard.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

WHY JOFFRE REFUSED A MARSHAL'S BATON

A typical story is being told of General Joffre. When Poincare came to Alsace after the first French advance, he brought with him in his trunk more than one marshal's baton. And when he offered the honor to Joffre the Generalissimo asked the President if he had one for Castelnau. Castelnau is the young genius who has sprung from a fairly humble position to the highest command. But he is also a Royalist, and there was no marshal's baton for him. "Very well," said Joffre, "neither I, nor any of my colleagues will accept from the Republic the honor it refuses to a better man than any of us."

Coal For Britain's Fleet

In order that the fleet may be instantly coaled at any port in Great Britain, a huge number of railway trucks—the total runs well over six figures—are kept constantly loaded on sidings ready to be taken to any particular port, and thence transferred to the ship of war.

WHY PEOPLE FEEL DEPRESSED IN THE COLD WEATHER

Why is tiredness and langour so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong.

No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humours. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

WAR BY MOTOR

An Important and Striking Feature in Present Strife

One of the most striking features of the present war is the great part which motor traction is playing. The motor bus carries troops to the trenches; commanders move from point to point in the fighting line in their motor cars; practically all transport is done by motor from the railheads to the fighting line; guns are moved by motor; there are motor ambulances and motor kitchens, while the despatch rider of to-day is no longer the dashing cavalryman, but the goggled motor cyclist, who whizzes along the roads at thirty to forty miles an hour.

One of the motor novelties of the war is the motor distillery, in which vast quantities of water are sterilised instantaneously, and provide the troops with an abundance of perfectly pure drinking water. These may be said to run alongside the motor kitchens, while the motor repairing workshop, that runs on wheels, is ready to go anywhere and everywhere when a breakdown in guns or engineering equipment necessitates its aid.

Perhaps the most wonderful of these up-to-date war motor contrivances is the motor plough, which is largely used by Germans. This plough cuts a trench a yard in length, in width, and in depth in the space of one minute. In the Battle of the Marne fifteen of these ploughs were found abandoned by their owners in the hurry and confusion of the memorable retreat. And they have since been utilized by the allies to great purpose. Under favorable conditions the motor plough can cut 100 yards of trenches in a single hour, throwing up the soil on one side to form a rampart above the gap. This machine does the work, therefore, of 200 men, and can, of course, be kept going night and day.

ENOS AN ANCIENT TOWN

Stepping Place on Road to Constantinople Mentioned in Homer's "Iliad"

The rocky ridge of Enos where the allies landed troops in the course of their operations against the Dardanelles, is a backdoor way to the ancient city on the Golden Horn. It lies about 155 miles west of Constantinople, upon the Gulf of Enos, in the northeast Aegean Sea. Thirty miles away is the northern shore of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

Enos, insignificant, built on a rock ledge, and surrounded by broad marshes, becomes of unusual interest to the world in its new character as a base of land operations against the physical heart of the Ottoman Empire. The respectable antiquity of the town is attested by mention in Homer's "Iliad." Formerly, Enos was a trading port of some importance, but it has lately lost much of its export to the adjacent seaport of Dedeagatch. Its export which it retains today is due to its position on the Maritza River, the great water highway from Adrianople, eighty miles inland, to the sea.

The population of Enos is largely Greek seafarers, commission dealers and merchants. It numbered in 1905 about 8,000. The first part of the way from Enos toward Constantinople is through a level country, but the broken, mountainous regions begin long before the Bosphorus is reached.

Smokeless Guns

Ordinary powder produces smoke when fired because of the quantity of fine particles formed from the breaking up of the saltpetre and from some of the charcoal which is not completely burned. To get rid of smoke (so long a handicap in the use of guns) it was necessary to produce a substance that would explode without leaving any solid residue. This was accomplished by the use of gun-cotton or nitro-cellulose, from which the most satisfactory smokeless powder is made. The substance is a chemical compound, not a mixture like gun-cotton with a mixture of nitric acid and sulphuric acids. When exploded it is all converted into gases. Burning is not necessary to cause an explosion, a mere shock or jar being sufficient. It is too violent an explosive to use in small arms or in cannon, but gun-cotton can be made for use in guns, and most brands of smokeless powder are made in this way.

MAXIM A GREAT GUN MAKER ALSO BUILT FIRST AEROPLANE

"I plead guilty to being a chronic inventor. I commenced when I was very young, and have kept it up ever since," writes Sir Hiram Maxim in the story of his life. His first invention was an automatic mouse trap, which he made when he was a boy, and he has gone on inventing ever since. He discovered a new form of coal gas, brought about improvements in connection with fire engines, and when the British War Office was anxious to know why a certain powder made in Germany was slow burning, while English powder of exactly identical composition was quick burning, and all the great scientists failed to offer a solution, Sir Hiram took the matter in hand, found the answer in one evening's investigation, and saved the country buying the German secret at a cost of $175,000.

Another remarkable but little-known achievement on the part of Sir Hiram was his solving of the problem of the incandescent electric light, an invention alone which made the carbon filament possible.

This was in the days before he turned his attention to automatic guns. The origin of the Maxim gun was related in an article which Sir Hiram contributed to "Tit-bits." He says that when the Kaiser first saw it he exclaimed, "That's the gun! There is no other."

Talking of the cost of his early experiments, Sir Hiram relates how one day, when his little gun was on exhibition at Hatton Garden, an imposing looking gentleman called, looked at it, took out his watch, expressed his doubt at its being able to fire 600 rounds a minute, and said he wanted to see the 600 rounds go off. "I said," says Sir Hiram, "I will furnish the gun if you will furnish the cartridges." He was very indignant, and he left suddenly. Later on he said that I had insulted him."

Lord Wolseley was one of the first to recognize the enormous possibilities of the Maxim gun.

Referring to his later invention, Sir Hiram, who was the first man to make an aeroplane that actually lifted from the ground, says that his failure in the air was due to his ambition. He made his experimental machine too large, and at a time when the petrol motor had not been developed sufficiently to be of much use. He fitted it with the lightest engines and boilers that had ever been designed, and he made it rise from the rails on which it ran. One of his passengers was the late King Edward, when he was Prince of Wales. "The machine," says Sir Hiram, describing the flight on that occasion, "bounded forward with great rapidity. Admiral Commerell became frightened and said, 'Slow up,' but the Prince retorted, 'Let her go for all she's worth.' And I did. The Admiral was greatly frightened when he found we were going at railway speed, with the woods only two hundred feet away, but the strong ropes and the rotating windlasses very soon brought us to a state of rest."

One of the most interesting confessions in Sir Hiram's book relates how, being something of an amateur boxer in his early days, he had visions of becoming a prizefighter. He had a match arranged with Jem Mace, but the latter, finding that Maxim was a heavier man than he had been led to believe, refused to fight.

WITH THE FRENCH WOUNDED

The Woman's Sacrifice

LONDON, May 14th, 8.30 p.m. — Away from the battlefield one sees war stripped of its glamour. We see the heroic work of nurses who are on duty day and night. There is devotion, self-sacrifice, suffering patriotism—qualities which only a great war and its terrible consequences can inspire to the highest development. The women everywhere are helping and everywhere one sees self-sacrifice and devotion to country.

The women of Canada do not know how fortunate they are. Here there are plenty of women who suffer in silence, whose strength is out of proportion to their ambition. Their hands are tied by some chronic disease common to womankind; that weak back, accompanied by pain here or there, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, maybe fainting spells or spasms, are all signals of distress for women. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood, passing from womanhood to motherhood. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nervine, prescribed for just such cases by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription has successfully treated more cases the past fifty years than any other known remedy. When you feel dull, headachy, backache, dizzy, or perhaps hot flashes, there is nothing you can accomplish, nothing you can enjoy. You can find permanent relief in Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. It is sold by medicine dealers, or trial box by mail from Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 50 cents, or one dollar for large box.—Adv.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada, at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

AVIATOR'S NERVY DEED

Badly Wounded He Thought Only of Saving His Machine

"The British air raid at Courtrai was one of the most heroic episodes of the war," says the Officis' Press Bureau. "The aviator started alone in a biplane. On his arrival over Courtrai he glided to a height of but 300 feet and dropped a large bomb on the railway junction. He was the target of hundreds of rifles, machine guns and anti-aircraft armament and was severely wounded in the thigh. He decided to save his machine at all costs and made for the British lines, descending to a height of 100 feet in order to increase his speed. He was again wounded and flew back to his own base, where he executed a perfect landing and made his report. He died in the hospital shortly afterwards."

Army's Colossal Demands

The vastness of the work of maintaining the British army—apart from feeding it—may be gauged from a few figures. In one month there were issued to the troops 450 miles of telephone wire, 570 telephones, 524,000 sandbags, 10,000 pounds of dubbin for boots, 28,000 bars of soap, 150,000 pairs of socks, and 100,000 pairs of boots.

In ten days there were also distributed 112,200 fur waistcoats and 315,075 flannel belts.

The way that insignificant items amount up where large numbers of troops are concerned is shown by the fact that every week there is issued on an average five tons of vaseline for the feet and 100 tons of horseshoes.

Some idea of the complexity of the work can be gathered by reference to the official "Vocabulary of Stores," which contains 50,000 items.

Stopping Spy Menace

In order to put an end to the invasion of France by German spies, the French police authorities decided to subject all persons arriving in France from Belgium to a searching examination.

A machine which inserts ribbon sews it in place and cuts it off automatically when a row has been trimmed has been invented.

COMMANDS IN EGYPT

General Younghusband Remembered as a Great Practical Joker

In command of the British forces in Egypt is General Sir George John Younghusband, who for over thirty-six years has fought for Great Britain. He first came into prominence in the Afghan War, when he gained a medal and clasp. Later he served in the Soudan campaign, the Burma War, the Spanish-American War, and in South Africa. In the latter campaign he was severely wounded, and was in hospital when he learned that he had been awarded both the Queen's and the King's Medal.

In his younger days Sir John Younghusband was known in military circles as Johnny Wag. He was an inveterate practical joker, and was especially clever at drawing humorous caricatures of his brother subalterns, which decorated the walls of the officers' mess. Some years ago he spent six months through Burma and Siam.

Sir John wrote a very humorous book after his Burma travels, and it included many amusing drawings from his pen. They caricatured the people he had met, and possessed such underlines as "A chief with scrubby whiskers, of which he is very proud"; "One of the ugliest old gentlemen I have ever met"; "A gentleman who followed me like a shadow—a lady who did not."

Sir John Younghusband has his serious side, and he has written several valuable military books.

On one occasion Sir John during his travels was cleverly victimised by some natives. At a village where he was encamping the dusky inhabitants brought to his tent a number of sapphire-like stones, which they stated had been dug up at a spot some distance from the village. Sir John was convinced that he had luckily hit on a treasure mine, and bought every stone the natives possessed and obtained full particulars of the place where they had been found. "I had dreams of boundless wealth," said Sir John, when relating the story, "and on my arrival at Calcutta I hastened to have the stones valued. 'Lovely color, light perfect, not a flaw, worth fifty guineas apiece—if they were not made of Birmingham paste,' was the expert's crushing criticism."

KAISERIN'S FINE JEWELS

Wears Fortune In Precious Stones But Dresses Very Plainly

The German Empress is said on State occasions to wear not less than $1,250,000 worth of diamonds and pearls. The Kaiser was furious when at one great function the Kaiserin was outshone by the ex-Queen of Italy, the beautiful Margherita, and insisted that the Empress should almost load herself with gems.

One of her ornaments, by the way, is said to be the circle of guns which Napoleon wore in his hat, and which was found by Blucher's soldiers after Waterloo. A few extra stones are attached to her fan, and at court functions it is the duty of two pages to see that none of these fall off. The Empress's personal jewellery, on the other hand, is said to be surpassed by that of many middle-class women in Germany; while she is also in ordinary life one of the plainest of dressers. Her gowns, in fact, have been styles by French ladies "simply appalling."

MAY GET TWO MEDALS

In This War the Problem Unusual and Complicated

It is safe to say that of all subjects which form topics of conversation in the trenches during the moments which the enemy leaves the British soldier for social intercourse, none is more popular (unless the soldier has completely changed his character) than the great question: "How many medals shall we get for this war and what will be the bars?" That has always been, since the British army received medals, the one subject which has interested him more than any other.

In the argot of the barrack room, the medal is a "gong," an' it is the ambition of every soldier in the army that the "gong" should not be bare of bars (the little strips of silver across the ribbon inscribed with the names of action which mark the quality of the award), and the more bars there are to a man's medal the higher does he stand, not only in his own estimation, but in the estimation of his comrades.

It is curious how, when discussing the war, generally, with wounded soldiers, the topic of conversation invariably veers round to this medal question. The optimistic think that there will be three. One given by France, one by Russia, and a third by England. Others believe that the medal will be of bronze, and will be issued in uniformity by the five nations engaged. This would not be very popular with the soldier. In the Egyptian campaigns there were two, one British and one which was presented by the Egyptian Government. In the South African War there were also two, but that was due to the fact that the war was continued under two sovereigns.

What is probable is that there will be a British medal and one issued by the allies in conjunction, that is to say, the Russian soldier will wear the Russian medal and the allies', and the French soldier will wear the French medal, issued by the French Government, plus the allies', and the same decorations will be offered to the British soldier. It is said that the color of the new ribbon, made up of the national colors of Belgium and will either be a black ribbon, with red and yellow stripes on each edge, or will be a red ribbon, with a black and yellow edging, the exact pattern of which has not yet been decided upon.

Amazing Marches

In the matter of the rapid movement of great bodies of troops the record seems to be with Napoleon. In 1805 he crossed the Rhine on September 26th, was in Vienna on November 13th, and on December 2nd crushed the united armies of Russia and Austria at Austerlitz. Almost incredibly swift was Napoleon's swoop on Prussia in the following year, when, crossing the Saale on October 9th, he defeated Hohenlohe's army at Jena on the 14th, and was in Berlin on the 25th, with all Prussia at his feet. Three years later he broke even these records by returning from France to Spain on April 17th, rushing to the Austrian frontier, defeating the enemy five times in as many days, and entering Vienna on May 13th.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

IN OVERBLOUSE EFFECT.

By Anabel Worthington.

What appears to be an overblouse in this fashionable waist design, is not in reality, because the middle front and back portion is fastened permanently to the side and sleeve section. One material only can be used if preferred, but the contrasting materials, plain and embroidered voile, with the embroidered voile for the sleeve and side-body, is more than likely that as warm weather approaches these open necked blouses will be more and more in evidence.

The back view shows a pretty design in long sleeve, with buttons up the back of the arm to the elbow. This manner of trimming the long sleeves is very smart and certainly an inexpensive one. For medium size, ¾ yard of plain material and 1¾ yards of lace or contrasting material, 36 inches wide, would be required. The pattern, No. 7,111, comes in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 5 for 25c.

Further Progress Made By French in Carency District

Despite Heavy Rains Which Have Interfered With Operations the Advance of Joffre's Men Continues—French Artillery Demolish Four German Block Houses in the Aisne Region.

GENERAL OEFENSIVE IN EAST HALTED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 14.—Heavy rains are hindering the French offensive movement north of Arras, according to despatches from the front to-day.

The War Office, however, announces that despite adverse weather, the French took several trenches southwest of Souchez and near Carency, by brilliant charges. Along the Aisne, artillery fighting has been recommenced on a large scale. The French gunners yesterday destroyed four German block houses.

BANNER REMOVED.

LONDON, May 14.—Following the morning services to-day, St. George's Chapel at Windsor, was closed and the work of removing the banners of Kaiser Wilhelm and others expelled Knights of the Order of the Garter began. The action was taken at the direction of King George himself. "Across the bodies of all those women and children, deliberately murdered by the Kaiser's order, there can be no hand shaking between the British and German courts," said the Daily Chronicle, commending the King's action. "The King has shown his usual perception of national sentiment by giving formal and public expression to it."

SAILED ON CYMRIC.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Seventy-six cabin passengers and 300 in steerage were booked to sail for Liverpool to-day on board the White Star Line steamship Cymric. At the offices of the line it was said that the Cymric carried as many passengers as she could accommodate.

MORE AMMUNITION NEEDED.

LONDON, May 14.—A strong plea for greater supplies of ammunition is made by the Times correspondent in Northern France. He attributes chiefly to the lack of unlimited supply of high explosive shells the disappointing results of the British attack Sunday in the district of Neuve Chapelle and Richebourg.

ALIENS SURRENDER.

LONDON, May 14.—Hundreds of enemy aliens of military age, most of them Germans, voluntarily surrendered themselves at the police stations in London to-day, following the Government announcement that they are to be interned.

Except in few isolated instances there were no anti-German demonstrations to-day. The public, apparently, is satisfied at the Government's announcement that Germans are to be interned and frowns upon further attacks upon German shops.

A WAR DEMONSTRATION.

ROME, May 14.—Windows in the Italian Chamber of Deputies were smashed in an organized demonstration in favour of war this afternoon.

The war party leaders headed a parade that started to march to the Royal Palace to demand that the King immediately declare for war. The parade held in front of the Chamber of Deputies, the crowd hooted their displeasure at the peace advocates.

New York papers make the following comments on the note to Germany:

The Tribune—"What he had to do, Mr. Wilson has done, with the utmost simplicity, clarity and completeness."

The Herald—"Words could not be plainer. In the body of his message to Germany President Wilson inflicts upon the German Government a castigation of a whip of scorpions. And yet he gives Germany the benefit of a doubt. It can be called all a mistake."

ROME, May 14.—It was reported this afternoon that King Victor Emmanuel has decided upon a peace policy, and has urged Signor Giolitti, the former premier, to head a new cabinet, succeeding Premier Salandra, who resigned last night. Giolitti, according to authoritative reports, has refused.

LONDON, May 14.—Since the German war zone order went into effect February 18, fifty-four British merchantmen of a total tonnage of 176,371, have been sunk or captured by submarines, the Admiralty announced to-day. During the same period the arrivals and sailings at British ports totalled 17,617.

THE HAGUE, May 14.—A trawler flying the Dutch flag was bombarded and sunk by a German taube in the North Sea early Wednesday, according to the crew of the Ymuiden trawler, which reached port to-day. Other trawlers witnessed the attack.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14.—The casualty list this morning is as follows:

MACKENSEN IS HALTED.

PETROGRAD, May 14.—General Mackensen's offensive movement toward Przasnysz has now been almost completely halted according to despatches to the War Office to-day. Russian reinforcements drive Mackensen's troops from the railway at the head of the River San, recapturing scores taken with munitions.

There are indications that the Slavs are about to take the offensive in this region.

The Russian left is now pushing southward over a fifty-mile front extending from Obertynd to Zaleszczyki. The fighting is particularly fierce southeast of Stanislau. The Austrians in this region are fighting desperately to stem the retreat to Kolomea.

West of Stanislau near Obertynd the enemy has suffered heavily in the last few days. The Austrian losses in killed, wounded and missing in the Obertynd sector alone, are reported on good authority to be 30,000.

GUNNER WM. KING (on the right), a member of the 28th Field Battery detachment, to-day reported wounded. His companion in the picture is Gunner Clarke.

THE CASUALTIES GIVEN OUT SO FAR REACH 3616 TOTAL

316 Canadian Officers Have Been Reported Killed, Wounded or Missing—Lists of Men Are Still Coming In

VERY MANY MISSING

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14.—There is no abatement in the list of casualties which continue to come in from the Battle of Langemarck in which the Canadians were so heavily engaged about the end of April. So far the casualties among all ranks killed, wounded and missing total 3,616. Of this total 316 are officers and 3,300 other ranks. The officers killed in action total 75 and other ranks 368. The officers wounded total 161, other ranks 2,516. In addition there are so far 58 officers missing and 495 men.

Especially heavy lists of missing appear among the rank. It cannot be definitely ascertained whether these are prisoners or dead. There will undoubtedly be many dead at points outside the allies' lines, and identification tags will not be forwarded from Germany for some time, possibly.

Men Have Not Returned

Two Inmates of House of Refuge Are Still at Large

Nothing has been heard of Breese and Page, the two aged men who escaped from the House of Refuge on Friday and Sunday respectively of last week. Breese escaped during the absence of the superintendent, who was removing some cattle to pasture in another part of the township. Page made his getaway under the pretence of attending church on Sunday morning. Both men are very feeble, and it is feared they may have become exhausted through wandering around the country.

Paid a Fine and Also Bought Tag

Anyone who has a dog in the city and has not purchased a tag for it would do well to do so at once if they wish to save money. The police are after all owners of dogs in the city who have failed to comply with the by-law. Yesterday afternoon a citizen was fined $2.50 and his dog $1 for the same offence, and this morning this unfortunate individual was also compelled to pay a fine of $3.50 in addition to the price of a tag. How many more citizens of Peterborough may be numbered among the unfortunates before May 1 has not been ascertained, but the Chief of Police has given notice that after that date no more warnings will be given.

PTE. A. NICHOLLS, of Peterborough, with the 21st Battalion, which is now on the way to the front.

Three more members of the 57th detachment given as missing, Gunner Jos. O'Toole of the 24th Field Battery, formerly reported died of wounds, now reported wounded, and Pte. Fred Long, a Peterborough boy with the 16th Battalion, reported missing, are to-day's local features of the casualty list.

PRIVATE D. CUMMINGS.

Private David Cummings who boarded with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seabrook, 130 Rubidge Street, is another of the missing listed to-day. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, about twenty-four years ago, and had resided in Canada three years. He was in the machine shop of the C.G.E. when he heard the call to arms. He was not a member of the 57th, but enlisted from his work bench as a raw recruit. Mr. Seabrook and family moved to Hearst, Ont., in October. It is understood that Private Cummings was engaged to be married. Most of his friends, at any rate, make reference to this circumstance. He has a brother in Montreal, and in Glasgow at his old home are his father, two sisters and a brother.

PTE. ERIC LESLIE BARTLE.

"The Big Chief" of No. 3 Company — the company which heads the 57th honour roll—was the sobriquet applied by his comrades to Eric Leslie Bartle, who is mentioned in to-day's list of missing. Private Bartle was a lad of 20 years. He was born at Glasgow and said was his only son. Prior to the outbreak of the war he was employed as a machinist in the C.G.E. works. He boarded with his sister, Mrs. Frank W. Wainwright, 268 Mark Street. The soldier made a strong appeal to him and he was one of those who helped make No. 3 a crack company. He had lived in this country about two years.

GUNNER WM. KING.

Gunner William King, another Peterborough boy, is reported wounded this morning. He was with the 4th Battery, First Brigade, and enlisted with the 28th Field Battery, Kent.

His parents of Gunner King, Mr. and Mrs. John King, reside at 670 London Street. He has four brothers and two sisters, all in this city.

He was born in Peterborough and before enlisting was employed as a linesman with the Bell Telephone Company.

CALL FOR NEW BATTALION

Recruiting for Another Infantry Regiment From This Division Will Commence at the Armouries This Evening

TO CAMP AT BARRIFIELD

Official notification to commence recruiting for a new infantry battalion to be raised has been received by Lt.-Col. Walker, commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, from divisional headquarters, Kingston. Recruiting will commence at once at the armouries, and it is expected that Peterborough will arise to the occasion as she has done in the case of the other quotas asked for from this city. No particular number is asked for from the 57th Regiment. Recruits will be taken on until further notice, and as in the case of other battalions, pay will start with the date of enlistment. Recruits for this new battalion will have an advantage over the second and third contingent men, as they will not have to be housed in barracks, but will be mobilized under canvas at Barriefield camp. It is the intention to mobilize the battalion within the next two weeks, so that the recruiting campaign will be a short one. Recruits may apply at the armouries each evening at 8 o'clock or in the afternoon at 4.30. The physical requirements are the same as for the other contingents.

Ice Cream Free On Saturday

A Generous Invitation to the Public by Dawson Bros. on Their Opening Day

The second annual opening of Dawson Bros.' Ice Cream Parlour at the corner of London and George streets, promises to be a well-attended event. On Saturday ice cream will be served free to every customer and to children as well, when attended by their parents.

The firm of Dawson Bros., since opening their new store on this corner, have met with good success. Their store has become quite popular as a shopping resort for the people of the north end. The enlarging of the premises so as to afford accommodations for a refreshment parlour was a good move, by which the enterprising of the firm has been well rewarded. Saturday promises to be a gala day for their summer service. An abundant supply of The Toronto Dairy Co.'s ice cream will be provided for the occasion. A variety of summer drinks and refreshments, together with chocolates and table delicacies will be a feature of the day.

THE UNITED STATES NOTE TO GERMANY

Protest Says Expressions of Regret and Offers of Reparation Are Not Enough—Must Be No Recurrence.

TEXT OF THE DOCUMENT

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The text of the note from the United States Government to the German Imperial Government transmitted to-day to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, and to be presented to-morrow morning to the German Foreign Office, reads as follows:

"The Secretary of State to the American Ambassador at Berlin:

"Department of State, Washington, May 13, 1915.

"Please call on the Minister for Foreign Affairs, and after reading to him this communication, leave with him a copy.

"In view of recent acts of the German authorities in violation of American rights on the high seas, which culminated in the torpedoing and sinking of the British steamship Lusitania on May 7, 1915, by which over one hundred American citizens lost their lives, it is clearly wise and desirable that the Government of the United States and the Imperial German Government should come to a clear understanding as to the grave situation which has resulted.

Four More German Atrocities.

"The sinking of the British passenger steamship Falaba by a German submarine on March 28th, through which Leon C. Thrasher, an American citizen was drowned; the attack on April 28, on the American vessel Cushing by a German submarine; the torpedoing on May 1 of the American vessel Gulflight by a German submarine, as the result of which two or more American citizens met their death; and finally, the torpedoing and sinking of the steamship Lusitania, constitute a series of events which the Government of the United States has observed with growing concern, distress and amazement.

"Recalling the humane and enlightened attitude hitherto assumed by the Imperial German Government in matters of international right, and particularly with regard to the freedom of the seas; having learned to recognize the German views and the German influence in the field of international obligation as always engaged upon the side of justice and humanity, and having understood the instructions of the Imperial German Government to its naval commanders to be upon the same plane of humane action prescribed by the naval codes of other nations, the Government of the United States was loath to believe—it cannot now bring itself to believe—that these acts, so absolutely contrary to the rules, the practices and the spirit of modern warfare, could have countenance or sanction of that great Government.

Sees Sacred Freedom.

"It feels it to be its duty, therefore, to address the Imperial German Government concerning them with the utmost frankness and in the earnest hope that it is not mistaken in expecting action on the part of the Imperial German Government which will correct the unfortunate impressions which have been created and vindicate once more the position of that Government with regard to the sacred freedom of the seas.

"The Government of the United States has been apprised that the Imperial German Government considered themselves to be obliged, by the extraordinary circumstances of the present war and the measures adopted by their adversaries in seeking to cut Germany off from all commerce, to adopt methods of warfare which they have warned neutral nations to keep away. This Government has already taken occasion to inform the Imperial German Government that it cannot admit the adoption of such measures or such a warning as any justification of the violation of the rights of its citizens in the waters destined to be the scene of belligerent operations, and must hold the Imperial German Government to a strict accountability for any infringement of those rights, intentional or unintentional, which may occur. It has also taken occasion to point out to the Imperial German Government that it could not regard the commercial policy of the German Empire within the waters to which it has extended the war zone as either enforcible as against neutral vessels or as relieving the Government of the German Empire of liability for any violation of neutral rights which may result from the attempt to enforce it, and that it must hold the Government of the German Empire to the strictest responsibility for any act which may be committed contrary to the provisions of the declaration of London. It has pointed out that the sinking of passenger vessels by submarines, without first ascertaining their character and without making provision for the safety of passengers or crew, is practically impossible. It has expressed the hope that the Imperial German Government would find it possible to assure the Government of the United States that the instructions which governed the recent attacks upon merchantmen would be so changed as to prevent the killing of citizens of the United States in the future, and has pointed out that it would consider any such killing unless unavoidable as an indefensible violation of the rights of American citizens.

MANITOBA REDIVIVUS.

Brighter days are promised for Manitoba. That the progress of the oldest province of the west and its interest have been stayed, and injured by years of bad administration will not be denied, as a fact, that history will recognize, as well as the present generation. The new government should give the province honest and effective administration, and progressive legislation. The new Liberal Government will certainly do this. Where high principle may fail to keep the government [illegible] high standard, the faults that led to the fatal fall of the late government will stand as a deterrent. Roblin fell by the wayside because he did not follow the straight course; was not influenced by high ideals, failed to see as he now sees, that crookedness cannot make conquest of lasting success in administering the affairs of a great province. Premier Norris has a great chance to show that the promise of his past, of his straightforward personality will be realized. Manitoba is ripe for good government, and he will see that it gets it.

GIVE THE CHILDREN A CHANCE.

German school children were given a holiday to celebrate the great triumph of German savagery, the sinking of the Lusitania, by which about 70 children were drowned. It would seem that the school children of Peterborough to "get even," by their contributing something towards ending the war, and bringing Germany to account. We don't expect our school youngsters to fight; but they can contribute to a fund for supplying hospital necessities. Thus they will be helping the wounded soldiers, and hasten the healing of those slightly wounded, so that they can the sooner return to the battle line. If, in each room of each school, a fund were provided for, to be contributed to by each child according to its means, the school children would have their chance. Such little gifts of pin money would serve as sparate indirectly as pin-pricks to the German baby-killers. We do not want the children of our schools to act in a vengeful spirit, but we might give them a chance with th[illegible] rest of us to help on, in their own way, the cause of humanity, for which we are all fighting, one way or another, and thus develop a sense of the duty of every citizen to fight for the triumph of the right.

THE SPIRIT THAT CATCHES.

We are affected by our environments and associations. General Botha has completed the conquest of Southwest Africa, a German colonial possession. In addressing his victorious troops after the capture of Windhoth, capital of the colony, he said:

"The capture of the capital of Southwest Africa is of the utmost importance to the Empire and the Union of South Africa. The army of occupation is charged with the responsibility of caring for German women and children; and I rely upon your honour to perform this duty well and faithfully."

A dozen years ago General Botha was fighting against Britain and the Empire. South Africa as bravely as he is fighting for them to-day. He was conquered physically by superior force, also conquered morally by superior force—the moral force of Britain's generosity. Britain granted self-government, and the generous spirit of British fair play. Botha caught the spirit, and is acting accordingly. Britain's dictation by the tender care of the women and children, left unprotected of their natural defenders in the fortunes of war.

The contrast to the spirit—and [illegible] Prussian militarism is startling. Instead of babykilling on women and defenceless, we have [illegible] Belgium for them. He urged his soldiers to do this; and we [illegible] as Botha and the Boers have been. Britain trusted them with self-government, and nobly have they fulfilled the trust. General Botha not only speaks from the moving of the British spirit of liberty, but he speaks imperially. In speaking to his army of the conquest of German Southwest Africa, he puts the Empire first—its capture "is of the utmost importance to the Empire—and South Africa." This importance, apart from military significance, consists in the fact that a large expanse of great and fertile country, 322,000 square miles — more than 20 million acres — is won, and with a yearly total trade — imports and exports—of nearly 25 millions of dollars, has passed from the rule of the Prussian spirit of force and come under the genius of British freedom, which has made Britain the unique and only largely successful colonizing agent of the world's history. The reverse of this spirit has made Germany a failure. Her relentless doctrine of force; the intense self-interest of the state as superior to the citizen, have made her noble people, unknowingly perhaps, yet effectively, slaves to a most galling autocracy. They have also robbed her administration of conquered provinces and peoples of the fusion element that by the British spirit, makes conquered peoples, in citizenship and genius, a homogeneous and loyal whole. The rule of blood and iron has utterly failed in Alsace and Lorraine. These provinces, predominantly German-speaking, and German in racial origin, have never been reconciled to Prussian militarism, and the cult of brute force. Violence, corruption, banishment and confiscation, all failed. Denial of constitutional rights, also failed, as was inevitable. Almost before the smoke of battle rolled away conquered South Africa was given constitutional rights, and lo, the result. Not only a united and a loyal people, but a people animated by the British spirit, which has resulted in combatting and laying in Africa the brutal spirit of absolutism and force.

We can regard the outlook with confident complaisance. The right spirit will win. It has won in South Africa, and opened the gates to human liberty, and the blessings that flow from its possession, as it will break down the barriers to the enjoyment of human liberty to the nations of Europe, the small and the great. One result of this war, disastrously terrible as it is, will be that all the nations of Europe will rise to new life, new aspirations, new possibilities of beneficent accomplishment, by catching the British spirit of human freedom, whose ascendency and immanence are the real issues in the war.

IT WON'T PAY.

Says a United States exchange: Merely as a military measure, aside from its shameless atrocity, the sinking of the Lusitania destroyed a few cartridges and a great many women, children and other non-combatants. On the other hand, it stimulated recruiting in England, and in Connecticut, it turned to the manufacture of war munitions for the Allies, the members of a large manufacturing firm who had refused to engage in it until a brother was murdered on the fated ship by the German assassins. It didn't pay.

BUTCHERING BABIES.

Forty or fifty babies, all less than a year old, were butchered in the Lusitania massacre. What wonder that German school children received an official holiday in order that they might help celebrate this glorious herovictory! What wonder that hundreds of letters and telegrams of congratulation are pouring in upon the redoubtable Tirpits, whose master mind planned this splendid slaughter of the innocents! Surely this magnificent triumph of German arms will be commemorated in enduring bronze. There must be a suitable spot within the sacred precincts of Siegesallee in which a statue can be erected to Herod, who was perhaps weakly discriminating in his butchery of babies, but who, nevertheless, pointed the way.—New York World.

What Manitoba Shows Ontario

Special to the Examiner:

TORONTO, May 14.—One of the chief points of interest for Ontario people in the sudden political change in Manitoba where the Conservative Government suddenly resigned and the Liberals have come into power is the prominence of the Public Accounts Committee in the Manitoba crisis. The investigation into the Government House expenditures was first carried out in the Public Accounts Committee but the same sort of blocking tactics were employed there which have been used with such effect by Messrs. McGarry and Ferguson in the Ontario Committee for several years.

The difference between Ontario and Manitoba is that here those who have tried to shut off investigation, by means of the partisan majority on the Public Accounts Committee, have succeeded, whereas in Manitoba a Liberal minority, represented by the Lieutenant-Governor, evidently considered it time to forced the appointment of a Royal Commission.

It is a matter for satisfaction to both the [illegible] interested in [illegible]

What the British Navy Has Done in the Present War And What It Has Prevented

"Is the British navy afflicted with cowardice?" asks The Rochester Herald, in a discussion of the sinking of the Lusitania. "We do not know what is the matter with the British navy," it adds, "for we are only laymen, but we can say, as all the world can, that the British navy has not been very efficient in the war so far. The ships have bombarded no German port, and in spite of the boasting of the First Lord of the Admiralty, no attempt has been made to come to close grip with the German vessels. The British have submarines, but they torpedo no German ships. They have destroyers, but the German submarines do not appear to fear them. It really looks as if the British navy had only Duponts at its head, and as if it would never give a good account of itself until a real fighter, like Nelson or our own Farragut, made his merits known."

Occasionally similar criticism is heard from people in Britain and in Canada, who are not so profoundly ignorant as The Rochester Herald of the great work done by the British navy since the war began. It is therefore worth while to say once more that without the overwhelming pressure exercised by British sea power, and exercised for the most part in absolute silence and self-effacement, the Allies would to-day be beaten and suing for peace. The above-water warships of Germany have been driven into port from every ocean and sea in the world except the Baltic. No mercantile vessel flying the German flag sails the high seas to-day. Five million tons of shipping that gave Germany second place in the world's mercantile marine, has disappeared as completely as if it were non-existent. The food, the copper, the nitrates, the rubber, the gasoline, and the other materials [illegible] which are now becoming scarce in Germany, have been shut off by the invisible Grand Fleet that for over nine months has held absolute command of the North Sea.

The work of the navy has been scarcely less important in keeping open a route by which war amterials and supplies could reach Russia and the Dardanelles to the commerce of the Allies would have been fatal. Russia had not Archangel and Vladivostock remained open, through the sea power of the Allies. Russia was short of artillery and artillery ammunition, and her campaigns in Poland and Galicia would have been impossible without the greatest quantities of weapons and war material which reached her by Arctic and Asiatic ports. Had the British fleet not fired a single gun since August, its work in choking Germany's shipping, in safeguarding that of the Allies, and in escorting great armies from Britain to France and to Turkey, and from the various overseas Dominions to every corner of the world without the loss of a troopship or a soldier would have constituted a wonderful achievement.

But when The Rochester Herald asks if the British navy is, afflicted with cowardice it gives the measure of its ignorance of what has been happening during the last nine months all over the world. Farragut, whose achievements The Herald is desirous that the British navy shall emulate, had at New Orleans something very much like a Sunday school picnic compared with the work the British navy is doing in the Dardanelles. When Farragut reached Vicksburg he discovered that a naval attack upon earthworks carrying heavy guns was a most perilous adventure, and he was compelled to withdraw. The British and French fleets in the Dardanelles made the same discovery very early in their operations, but they have returned again and again to renew a struggle hazardous far beyond anything Farragut ever engaged in. The British battleships Ocean, Irresistible, and Goliath, and the French battleship Bouvet lie at the bottom of the Dardanelles, with more than a thousand seamen in them, as irrefugable evidence that the British and French naval services are not afflicted with cowardice.

Of the other naval actions of the war it need only be said that, while Germany has sunk by gun-fire two British cruisers—the Good Hope and Monmouth— and has gained all her other successes by the mine or the submarine, a comparatively safe method of under-water warfare, Britain has sunk thirteen German warships by shell-fire during engagements in which the Germans had an equal opportunity to use their big guns. This is the best test of the morale of any naval service, and, judged by that test, the British sailor to-day is the same dauntless, risk-taking, death-defying bulwark of liberty that he has been for centuries.

"The British have submarines," says The Rochester Herald, as a final stroke, "but they torpedo no German ships." When Germans ships come out from the harbours, where they lie behind impenetrable defences, and take once more to the high seas, it will be found that the British officers in command of submarines are not behind their foes in daring and resource. The adventure of the E-14, which penetrated the Dardanelles as far as the Sea of Marmora and sank two Turkish gunboats and a transport, defying all the mines with which the channel has been strewn, is but an illustration of what will happen if Germany ventures out upon the deep in other than underwater vessels. "Is the British navy afflicted with cowardice?" Not one man of the quarter million. Cowardice es not come of centuries of naval supremacy. Britannia pays the price of admiralty with her best and bravest. Unafraid and, steadily she still holds the trident.—The Globe.

Many Wives and Children of Soldiers at the Front Were Lost

HOLYHEAD, May 14. — The presence of so many babies on board the Lusitania was due to the influx from Canada to Britain of the English-born wives of Canadians at the battle-front, who were coming to England to live with the parents of one or the other during the war.

No more pathetic loss has been recorded that than of F. G. Webster, a Toronto contractor, who was travelling second-class with his wife, their six-year-old son Frederick, and year-old twin sons, William and Henry. They reached the deck with others who were in the saloon when the torpedo struck. When Webster saw what was happening, he took his son by the hand and darted away to bring lifebelts. When he returned his wife and babies were not to be seen, nor have they been seen since.

W. Harkless, an assistant purser, busied himself helping others until the Lusitania was about to settle beneath the water. Then, seeing a lifeboat striking the water that was not overcrowded he made a rush for it. The only person he encountered was little Barbara Anderson of Bridgeport, Conn., who was standing alone, clinging to the rail. Gathering her up in his arms, he leaped over the rail and into the boat, doing this without injuring the child.

Saving the Babies.

Ernest Cowper, a Toronto newspaper man, in almost the same manner saved Helen Smith of Ellwood Pa., whose mother had been swept away from her.

Francis J. Luker, a British subject who had worked six years in the United States as a postal clerk, and was coming home to enlist, saved two babies. He found the little passengers alone, snuggled in the shelter of a deckhouse.

The Lusitania was nearing her last plunge. A lifeboat was swaying to the water below. Grabbing the babies he ran to the rail and made a flying leap into the craft, and these babies didn't leave his arms until they were set safely ashore hours later.

There are many people who to the end of their days will keep in their minds the picture and revere the memory of Bo'sun Joe Davis.

Of all the Lusitania crew Bo'sun Joe was the one man who realized the instant that the ship was struck what was likely to happen, and acted with the object of saving all the lives possible. And Bo'sun Joe knew about the lifeboats, knew what boat untied, and what block, kicked out, would release the craft and send her away.

Within the fifteen minutes Bo'sun Joe had sent five of the boats away. Puffing at a stub pipe he went about his work as if he had been practising. Many passengers, who were sufficiently calmed by his behaviour, now owe their lives to him.

The lifeboats ready, Bo'sun Joe then began putting the willing passengers into them, women first, and a few men in each boat to help them. The craft dropped to the water with amazing rapidity.

"Good luck lads, and take care of the ladies," was Joe's farewell as he went on to the next boat. For Bo-sun Joe there was a providential rescue. He went down, as did his captain, but was picked up in the water.

BARBARIANS ALWAYS

Germans of Today True Descendants of Bloodthirsty Ancestors

The barbarous manner in which war is being waged by the German armies is attributed by many to a moral degeneracy due to the megalomaniac theories of Treitschke. Yet if we but refer to Sir Herbert Maxwell's "Life of Wellington" (published in 1900) we shall find that the Iron Duke writing to his mother in August, 1807, after describing the failure of the German contingent under General von Linsingen, goes on to say: "I can, however, assure you that, from the general of the Germans down to the smallest drum-boy in their legion the earth never groaned with such a set of murdering, infamous villains." "They murdered," he says further on, "robbed and ill-treated the peasantry wherever they went." It must be remembered that English eye-witnesses of the Thirty Years' War assure us that after a victory the Germans always began a massacre, slaughtering soldiers, civilians, men and women and children indiscriminately. The German, in fact, is a true chip of the old block—the Goth, his ancestor.

FAITHFUL TO DUTY

A machine gun was stationed at an angle of the trench when the German rush near Ypres took place and one man after another was shot. The gun continued action though five bodies lay around it when the sixth man took the place of his fallen comrades, one of whom was his brother. The Germans still pressed on. He waited until they were but a few yards away and then poured a stream of bullets into their advancing ranks, which broke and fell backward leaving rows of dead. He was then wounded himself.

Britain's Seven Wars

1. France.
2. Dardanelles.
3. Egypt.
4. Persian Gulf.
5. German East Africa.
6. German South-west Africa.
7. Cameroons.

Seized German Works and Gold

The Russian Government ordered the confiscation of the Warsaw gas works, which belonged to a German company. The city officials in examining the company's safe found 500,000 roubles (about $250,000) in gold, which will evidently soon amount up and be sent to Germany.

Love Cools On 25 Cents a Day

EVANSVILLE, Ind., May 14—Mrs. Mary Neuman has entered suit against Ernest Neuman for divorce. She alleges her husband told her before their marriage that he made $20 a week. In reality, she claims, he makes only 25 cents a day by working as an usher in a theatre, and that he expects her to live on this amount. They were married in February and separated in March.

THE HISTORIC FIGHT AT NEUVE CHAPELLE

Artillery Battle Unique in Annals of Warfare Followed by Terrific Charge of Troops

The first independent detailed account of the British victory at Neuve Chapelle, reproduced in part from The London Times, is a thrilling story of real modern warfare:

Of a sudden the deep boom of a British gun struck on the ears of our waiting troops. But the bombardment was not yet. For an hour or two the guns boomed intermittently, "registering," as it is called—that is, making sure of their respective ranges—rather like a cricketer having a few balls at the nets before he goes to bat. Then dawn broke softly, the shadows melted, and the clouds drifted away and here and there a British aeroplane sailed pluckily forth over the German lines, to be greeted by white balls of shrapnel smoke hanging motionless in the clear morning air. Then hell broke loose. With a mighty, hideous, screeching burst of noise, hundreds of guns spoke. The men in the front trenches were deafened by the sharp reports of the field guns spitting out their shells at close range to cut through the Germans' barbed wire entanglements. The din was continuous. After the first few shells had plunged screaming amid clouds of earth and dust into the German trenches, a dense pall of smoke hung over the German lines. The sickening fumes of lyddite blew back in the British trenches. In some places the troops were smothered in earth and dust or even spattered with blood from the hideous fragments of human bodies that went hurtling through the air. At one point the upper half of a German officer, was blown into one of our trenches.

Signal For Assault

Words will never convey any adequate idea of the horror of those five and thirty minutes. When the hands of officers' watches pointed to five minutes past 8, whistles resounded along the British lines. At the same moment the shells began to burst further ahead for, by previous arrangement, the gunners, lengthening their fuses, were "lifting" on to the village of Neuve Chappelle so as to leave the road open for our infantry to rush in and finish what the guns had begun.

The shells were now falling thick among the houses of Neuve Chapelle, a confused mass of buildings seen reddish through the pillars of smoke and flying earth and dust. At the sound of the whistle our men scrambled out of the trenches and hurried higgledy-piggledy into the open. Their officers were in front. Many, wearing overcoats and carrying rifles with fixed bayonets, closely resembled their men.

It was from the centre of our attacking line that the assault was pressed home soonest. The guns had done their work well. The trenches were blown to irrecognisable pits dotted with dead. The barbed wire had been cut like so much twine. The Lincolns and the Berkshires were off the mark first, with orders to swerve to right and left respectively as soon as they had captured the first line of trenches, in order to let the Royal Irish Rifles and the Rifle Brigade through to the village. The Germans were taken in the trenches, half demented with fright, surrounded by a welter of dead and dying men, mostly surrendered. The Berkshires were opposed with the utmost gallantry by two German officers who had remained alone in a trench serving a machine gun.

Fierce Bayonet Fighting

But the lads from Berkshire made their way into that trench and bayoneted the Germans where they stood, fighting to the last. The Lincolns, against desperate resistance, eventually occupied their section of the trench and then waited for the Irishmen and the Rifle Brigade to come and take the village ahead of them. Meanwhile the 2nd 39th Karbwalis on the right had taken their trenches with a rush and were away towards the village and the Bien Wood.

There was bloody work in the village of Neuve Chapelle. The capture of a place at the bayonet point is generally a grim business, in which instant, unconditional surrender is the only means by which bloodshed, a deal of bloodshed, can be prevented. It was indeed a scene of desolation into which the Rifle Brigade—the first regiment to enter the village—raced headlong. Of the church only the bare shell remained, the interior lost to view beneath a gigantic mound of debris. The little churchyard was devastated, the very dead pinched from their graves, broken coffins and ancient bones scattered about amid the fresher dead, the slain of that morning—grey green forms sprawl athwart the tombs. Of all that once fair village but two things remained intact—two great crucifixes reared aloft, one in the churchyard, the other over against the chateau. From the Cross that is the emblem of our faith the figure of Christ, yet intact though all pitted with bullet marks, looked down in mute agony on the slaying in the village.

Mercy! I Am Married

Many strange incidents were observed. In the cellar a portly German was found dancing about in an agony of fear, screaming in a high-pitched voice in English: "Mercy, mercy! I am married!" "Your missus won't thank us for sending you home!" retorted one of the men who took him prisoner, and his life was spared. A Rifle Brigade subaltern, falling over a corpse into a German trench, came upon two officers, hardly more than boys, their hands above their heads. The faces were ashen grey, they were trembling. One said gravely in good English: "Don't shoot! I am from Lord Haldane." They, too, were mercifully shot.

Hit the Mark.

Youthful cleaner of the Red-Skin Brewer— Oh! If you please, Mrs. Brown, can I have my grass? It's come over into your garden.

Mrs. Brewer — Certainly, my boy. Whereabouts did it go?

L. of the R. S. B. (timidly)—I—I think it' in your eye.—Cartoon.

COUNCIL CHAMBER WILL BE RENOVATED

Work Will be Undertaken by City Trust—Property Committee Turn Down an Account For Street Car Ticket

At a meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council held yesterday afternoon, the question of providing an improved system of ventilation for the city buildings was discussed. There is no likelihood of the matter getting beyond the pale of discussion as the estimated cost is between twelve or fifteen hundred dollars. As Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the City Trust Commission, put it: "The City Trust will not enjoy its benefits, neither will they suffer if the improvements be not carried out."

The Committee did not approve of the expenditure. A compromise was effected whereby the Council Chamber will be renovated and such repairs made as may be necessary. This was left in the hands of the City Trust Commission

The Dog Scare

Upon Ald. McIntyre, Chairman of the Committee, will devolve the duty of dealing with dogs suspected of being afflicted with rabies. A letter was received from Dr. George Fortune, V. S., offering some suggestions as to isolating dogs that may be affected.

Must Pay the Tax.

A letter was read from Mr. E. Elliott, County Treasurer, regarding the removal of garbage from the county buildings, and the question of paying the garbage tax levied by the city.

It was moved by Ald. Duffus and seconded by Ald. Weir, that the County Treasurer be notified that the garbage by-law must be complied with and refuse set out in a convenient place for collection or else provide for taking it away themselves, and that in any case the garbage tax must be paid.

Will be Returned.

An account was received from the Board of Works for $42, for street car tickets furnished during 1914, to Peter Thompson, Plumbing Inspector. It was decided to return the account to the Board of Works with the information that no action will be taken by the Property Committee.

More Local Names on List

PTE. FRED LONG.

Private Fred Long of the Seaforth Highlanders, 16th Battalion, 3rd Brigade, is officially reported missing. A message to that effect was received by his mother, Mrs. George Long, who resides on George Street, next to the Public Library. Private Long enlisted while in Vancouver, where he was in the employ of the C.P.R. telegraph service as an operator a profession which he learned before he left Peterborough nearly one year ago. He was born in this city and was educated here. He is a brother of Robert and Samuel Long of this city. Six sisters complete the family, three residing in Peterborough, two in Toronto and one in the west.

Private Long was nineteen years of age. He entered the telegraphic service of the C.P.R., while in the city, and after qualifying for a position, moved west, where he remained up until the outbreak of war. He volunteered as a telegraph operator, a position which he was known to have held up until the time he left for the front. It is just one month to-day since his mother received a letter from him. At that time he had been in the trenches twice, remaining four days on each occasion. He was very enthusiastic about the work and spoke optimistically of the outcome.

PTE. P. J. BUTLER.

Pte. P. J. Butler of the 57th detachment, reported in yesterday afternoon's casualty list as missing, was attached to No. 4 Company of the 57th Regiment, but had not been a member of that Company previous to the outbreak of war. His local address is not given on the Examiner list and beyond the facts that he enlisted here and went to the front with the 57th detachment the Examiner could learn nothing of him. His relatives are in London, Eng.

FIND OUT

The Kind of Food that will Keep You Well.

The true way is to find out what is best to eat and drink, and then cultivate a taste for those things instead of poisoning ourselves with improper, indigestible food, etc.

A conservative Eastern woman writes:

"I have used Grape-Nuts 5 years for the young and for the aged; in sickness and in health; at first following directions carefully, later in a variety of ways as my taste and judgment suggested.

"But its most special, personal benefit has been as a substitute for meat, and served dry with cream when rheumatic troubles made it important for me to change diet.

"Served in this way with the addition of a cup of hot Postum and a little fruit it has been used at my morning meal for six months, during which time my health has much improved, nerves have grown steadier, and a gradual decrease in my excessive weight adds greatly to my comfort."

Postum comes in two forms: Regular (Postum Cereal), Quick Kind, "There's a Reason." Sold by grocers.

Sorry, can't call the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

GREAT MEAT HOLD-UP ALLEGED

CHICAGO, May 14.—A leading official of the packing companies, which make of Chicago's Union Stock Yards the greatest meat shipping point in the world, made the following statement:

"For two and a half months not a pound of meat has been shipped directly from the plants of any of the Chicago companies or indirectly, to my knowledge, to any port of any Scandinavian nation.

"Great Britain now is holding in her ports $10,000,000 worth of meats from our yards, shipped across the Atlantic in the last five months in twenty-seven ships. Despite the most energetic and influential representations to the London Government not a single boat has been permitted to complete its journey to a Scandinavian destination within that time.

"Attorney Alfred Urion has been in London for five months trying to obtain the release of the ships. The meat was consigned to recognized dealers in the Scandinavian ports. What these dealers did with the meat that did get through in the early stages of the war I do not know. I understand and believe that the meat was for consumption in the countries to which it was consigned. I place no credence in the report that any of our meat has been transshipped to Germany since August."

YOUR SKIN NEEDS FOOD

Is your skin harsh and dry? Are there signs of approaching wrinkles? Are you getting worried about the possible loss of your youthful beauty? Cleopatra didn't worry about these things. You needn't if Usit is applied.

Cleopatra and the noted beauties of the East knew perfectly well that the skin requires food, just as does the rest of the body. They fed their skin with a preparation of vitalizing oils, the secret of which has been so jealously guarded by succeeding generations that it has only recently come to light.

Men, too, find Usit a valuable friend. An occasional application to the face not only feeds the skin and keeps it in the healthiest condition, but it leaves the face much easier to shave. Experience alone proves how much easier.

Usit is the trade mark name by which this preparation is known and sold by all druggists, wholesale and retail. Usit Mfg. Co., Ltd., 476 Roncesvalles Ave., Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL AT BRAILEY'S TO OPEN ON TUESDAY NIGHT

The new Sunday School building, under the control of the Salvation Army at Brailey's School Corner, is now being painted, and will be opened next Tuesday night (D.V.) with a grand banquet and entertainment.

Only a few weeks ago the matter was finally taken in hand by Mr. Harold Snowden, Fred Campbell and Adjutant McElhiney, and with the assistance of their friends in that part of North Monaghan, they expect to open the hall clear of debt. The Sunday School attendance has gone as high as 75, and with the increased accommodation it is expected it will double.

The foundation of the Salvation Army branch Temple at Byersville has been completed, and the rest of the work is being pushed ahead.

DISABLED MEN'S FUTURE PROBLEM ENGLAND FACES

LONDON, May 13.—What is to become of the discharged soldiers after the war, and more particularly of those who are disabled?

This double question is being asked by thousands of public spirited persons in England to-day and already, although the end of the war can hardly be said to be in sight, organizations are at work preparing to solve the problems which will arise "when Johnny comes marching home."

The country has already done something in providing a new pension scheme under which the totally disabled man will draw about $5 a week for life and the partially disabled proportionately smaller sums.

It is these partially disabled men, and even some of those who will be classed as totally disabled, who present the most difficult problem. A strapping young man who has lost both his legs, if he comes from the ranks of unskilled labour, will receive a pension equal to his earnings before he enlisted and he has nothing to do. What more natural than he should drift into the saloon, the poor man's club, where he will always find someone to treat him in return for his stories of the war.

REMEDY IS TO TEACH TRADES.

The remedy is to teach them trades at which they can supplement their pensions.

One of the most interesting of the schemes for helping disabled soldiers, which is already at work, is that of C. Arthur Pearson for training the men who have lost their sight in the war. Mr. Pearson, who was formerly a great newspaper publisher in London, lost his own sight a few years ago, and he is now devoting his life to helping his fellows in misfortune. Now he has started a special institution for training blind soldiers and sailors.

Maj. Gen. Lord Cheylesmore is the most active spirit in the movement for the training of disabled soldiers and sailors in general. This is being undertaken as a special branch of the work of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society, of which the King and Queen are patrons.

Lord Cheylesmore declares that what most of the disabled men dread is the prospect of a long life with nothing to do, no matter how comfortably they may be provided for.

"The other day," he said, "a man limped into the society's head office. He had lost one leg at Mons and was injured in the other and had just been discharged from the hospital.

"'What shall I do?' he asked. 'I can't stick this vanian way any longer. What I want is something to think about.'

MAIMED BUT STILL USEFUL.

"That is typical of the attitude of most of the men, although they do not generally express it so clearly. They want something to take their minds off their misfortunes, and the best thing for that purpose is work and the knowledge that, although maimed, they are still of use in the world."

The men are paid the full trade union rate of wages and, as an official of the society said the other day, they earn every farthing of it. They are highly skilled workmen and not gifted amateurs when they have finished with our training.

A most elaborate organisation has been worked out by the society. In practically every town and village in England it has a voluntary agent, who is known as the "soldier's friend." It is the duty of the friend to hunt up every returned soldier in his district and find out if he needs any help. If the War Office is slow in sending his pension or pay the friend advances him money to go on with. If he wants work it is the duty of the friend to find out what he can do, or if he has no available trade, to discover what his tastes and aptitudes are and to arrange for his training.

A heap of grinding material to be fastened over the fly wheel of a sewing machine to sharpen household tools has been patented by a Pennsylvania man.

Asks $3,058 For Stock

Peterborough Man is Defendant in an Action to Recover Money involved in Stock Transaction

TORONTO, May 14.— In the Non-jury Assizes, Toronto, Chief Justice Meredith is hearing evidence in the suit of John H. Hart against Charles H. ## SAVED FROM A WATERY GRAVE

Son of Lindsay Man Almost Drowned in Scugog

LINDSAY, May 14.—The Scugog River almost claimed another victim when the young son of Peter Scott, fell in at the locks and was carried under the swing bridge out of reach.

It appears that young Scott and a companion were returning from school and loitered along the banks of the canal. In some manner Scott slipped off the high concrete wall and was quickly swallowed up by the water. He could not swim, but the alarm given by his companion brought Messrs. Frank Beamish and Lockmaster Abercrombie to the rescue. Beamish managed to get a hold on the lad's shoulder and with the assistance of the lockmaster succeeded in hauling the almost drowned boy out of danger.

Scott was rescued just in time to prevent a tragedy as he was almost [illegible] his head above water. The lad is about 11 years old.

VESSELS BRAVE SUBMARINE PERILS

NEW YORK, May 14.—The White Star liner Cymric, scheduled to sail to-day for Liverpool, will get away on time, according to officials of the line. She will carry about 10,000 tons of cargo, including many armoured motor trucks. Captain Beadnell was reported as saying that he hoped to be protected by British war vessels when he reached the war zone, but it was said at the office of the line that no arrangement for convoying the Cymric had been made with the British Admiralty.

Only two of the 1,200 cabin passengers cancelled their reservations. Officials of the line expect that about sixty passengers will sail in the cabin and 300 in the steerage. There are only a few Americans in the passenger list.

The American liner Philadelphia, which will sail on Saturday for Liverpool, already has 300 cabin passengers booked, and the officials expect that she will have 500, an unparalleled number for this period of the year for the Philadelphia or any other American liner.

The Anchor liner Tuscania, which sailed for this port from Glasgow on Saturday and from Liverpool on Sunday, carried 60 first cabin, 120 second cabin, and 175 steerage passengers. She should have been well out of the war zone Wednesday morning, and the officials of the line have no doubt that she is all right.

The French liner Niagara, which sailed from Bordeaux at midnight on Saturday, is supposed to be coming along as usual.

Canada to Have 150,000 Under Arms Very Soon

OTTAWA, May 14. —Canada had 108,700 men under arms on the first of May. This includes the troops at the front, those drilling at home preparatory to getting there, and the corps or detachments assigned to guard duty in different parts of the country.

The question of raising additional troops is under consideration, but as yet no announcement is made. The expectation, however, is that before [illegible] will reach the total of 150,000.

The department has promptly filled up the gaps resulting from the losses at the front and further reinforcements are being despatched steadily.

The plan which has applied heretofore, and which still holds, is that of keeping fifty thousand men under arms at all times in Canada, and despatching them in large batches as the necessities of the service call for. This has worked most satisfactorily and, at the beginning of the month, the different units were fully up to establishment.

With additional units in prospect of authorization, the total by the summer will likely reach the 150,000 mark. Two complete divisions will be constantly maintained in the field and reinforcements at the rate of eight or ten thousand a month provided for.

Since the battle of Ypres, with its heavy loss of men and wounded, applications are coming in under the provisions of the Pension Regulations. The amount required for this purpose will reach several millions. Two millions have already been provided.

The scale is graduated according to the rank of the men, the nature of the disability, and the number of dependants on the dead or incapacitated soldier. A special staff has been assigned to attend to these cases, to the end that they may be dealt with promptly.

"RIPPER" PANIC SPREADS SCORE ARE ARRESTED

NEW YORK, May 14.— That many men are at liberty with minds so depraved they are a menace to the safety of children was indicated yesterday when the police, urged to unusual activity by the "Jack the Ripper" murders, made fifteen or twenty arrests in widely separated districts. In each instance the prisoner is said to have approached small girls.

While there is nothing definite to show that any of these men have any knowledge of the "ripper" crimes, in which Leonore Anna Ooh and Charles Murray, each five years old, were killed, the number of complaints against men who speak to little children and try to lure them away with them, has caused the utmost concern in the police department. Drastic measures may be adopted to rid the city of this class of persons.

In the belief that many of these arrested have disordered minds, the police began a search of the records of insane persons recently released. Also circulars describing "Jack the Ripper," so far as he is known, were sent out by the police. These were sent not only to the usual places where criminals may be found, but even to banks and large business houses, there being a feeling that the man may belong to the better classes.

Excitement Continues.

Hysteria of children and parents continued yesterday in many sections. Much importance was attached to the arrest of a man who said he was Virgilio Gaicchi, of No. 128 North street, Westfield, N.J. Captain Brogan and Detective Leonard, of the West Sixty-eighth street station, said they saw him speak with several little girls and offer them money to accompany them. The children ran. The policemen, followed the man through the park and then to Broadway, where they said, he spoke to other children.

When he boarded a bus a policeman followed. They trailed him downtown and then back in a Broadway car to Eighty-fifth street, where they arrested him. He had a pistol in his pocket, they said, and a long handled pocket knife and several towels. Garschi said he arrived recently from San Francisco. He was held for examination.

Mary Curiello, thirteen years old, ran into her home at No. 3,528 Webster avenue, the Bronx, screaming that "Jack the Ripper" was pursuing her. Her mother used a broomstick on a man in the street, who ran and later was caught by a policeman. He said he was Carmine Kitty, chemist, of Camden, N. Y. He denied that he chased the girl.

Mob Attacks Innocent Man.

Among the other men arrested during the day, all on the hysterical cries of parents or children whose fears were not based on fact, was Frank Lehr, of No. 220 Bowery. Some child had pointed to him, setting up a cry. He soon was the centre of a mob, but the police rescued him.

The "Ripper" hysteria spread to new sections yesterday. In the foreign settlement at White Plains hundreds of frantic mothers and fathers besieged the Hillside Avenue Public school when a groundless rumour was circulated that two of the children had been murdered in the basement.

The scare continued in Newark, where on Monday five schools were besieged by excited parents. Many parents kept their children from school, while others personally escorted them to and from the buildings.

Peter Labur, who asked some children where he could find a certain [illegible] was called a "Hate the [illegible] and after being chased several blocks was arrested. When released another mob pursued him and the police assisted him to his home. Two other men were attacked.

The rumour that three of their classmates had been killed so frightened the pupils in Public school No. 8 in Park avenue, Hoboken, that they tried to run from the building. The principal called the police to aid him in keeping the children in the rooms.

The Wives of Soldiers Get 36 Cents a Day

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 14—Conditions which prevail in workrooms opened to enable the wives of soldiers to earn a living, the Petit Parisien says, are deplorable. There now are 600 of these establishments in Paris, half of them subventioned. Many of those which are operated under private auspices are declared to be no better than sweat shops. Even in the best managed of these in the subventioned class, women are able to earn an average of only 36 cents a day for 8 1-2 hours' work.

In some of the work rooms conducted by sub-contractors for army shirts and other military supplies, the Petit-Parisien asserts, women get only 10 cents a day, while many operatives exchange their services for board and lodging.

The National Council of French Women has taken up the question of affording relief.

A HAVEN FOR FRIENDLESS GIRLS

As a memorial to his family who were killed in an automobile accident of which he was the only survivor, David Sommers, a wealthy business man of St. Louis, is about to found a philanthropic institution on new lines.

He was engaged in New York consulting with officials of the Sage Foundation and other experts who are interested in charitable projects.

Mr. Sommers was accompanied by his architect and with him called at several orphan asylums and homes for girls and young women.

He is the president of a large furniture house in St. Louis and is prominent socially. Mr. Sommers was driving in an automobile in St. Louis County last summer when in an accident his wife, his mother-in-law and his two children were killed. By chance he escaped. He has been much affected by the double tragedy, and desires to create a memorial which would be of practical good to homeless girls. The [illegible] to-day [illegible] date [illegible]

STONEY LAKE BREEZES

Cottages Will Be Scarce This Season—Prospects Bright for a Busy Summer

The summer tourist traffic promises to be very brisk this season. The signs point to a big year with a heavy influx from the other side of the line. The present European conflict will be largely responsible for the diversion of pleasure-seekers from their usual haunts, and Kawarthadom should see many visitors from the south.

Already many cottages have been rented for the season, and this year will be a profitable one to those who look upon their summer homes as an investment and rent them during July and August. Many cottagers do this, particularly those who live in Peterborough, and make use of their cottages only during May, June, August and September.

Mr. Rice has rented his island to a party of Americans, who will occupy both cottages.

Mr. R. Harstone has taken the Gordon cottage for the season.

"Portree," Mr. Carey's summer home, has been rented to Mrs. Kitney and family, of Toronto, for July and August.

Mr. J. W. Bennet, of the firm of Bennet and Goodwill, expects to spend the summer up the lakes, coming about the first of June.

It is an indisputable fact that a summer home in the best province a parent can make for the benefit of the family. ## Graphic Stories of the Canadians' Gallant Deeds in the Battle North of Ypres

Among the many thrilling stories of the gallantry of our troops history will accord a high place to the glorious charge of the Canadians in the battle north of Ypres, which resulted in the recapture of our lost heavy guns. It will be recalled that the French and Belgians on the left of the British line had been driven back for nearly five miles by the dense cloud of asphyxiating gas created by the enemy and by the charges which the Germans made after the gas had done its work. Four Canadian 4.7 guns which were firing from the rear of the French had been captured. This rendered the left of the Canadian Division. The situation was a critical one. Had the Canadians not held their ground our line might have been broken, and the reverse might have had grave consequences. But the Dominion troops responded with magnificent gallantry to the call made on them. Although the Germans were strongly posted and a hail of machine-gun and rifle fire swept the level ground in front of them, the Canadians charged home with the utmost determination and bravery. The Germans were not only held, but were swept back by the irresistible dash of the charge. Their advance was completely stopped, and the whole situation was saved.

Graphic stories of the fight have been related by the wounded who have arrived in this country. Thus Private Edward, who was shot twice in the arm, the bone being shattered: "The 2nd and 3rd Brigades of the Canadians were in the trenches, and the formed part, was held in reserve. We were billeted in various houses well in rear of the firing line. At one o'clock on the Friday morning we were roused with the news that the Germans had pushed back the French about four and a half miles, and that we were required as support. It was our first chance of real fighting, and we were all delighted at the prospect of meeting the Germans at last.

"We were at once paraded and marched some miles in the darkness to the Yser Canal, where we dug ourselves in and waited for dawn. On the way shells fell close to us, and when we reached our position we came under fire from the German machine guns and rifles. As soon as the dawn came we saw that the Germans were only a short distance away in front of us. The ground in front was level, and beyond was a wood.

The Charge.

"The Germans were very strongly entrenched, and their position simply bristled with machine guns. The order was given, 'Fix bayonets.' Then, before it was quite light, we began our advance in extended order, in a series of short rushes. The hail of lead from the German line was terrific. Crouching low, we darted forward a few yards, then dropped on the ground and waited for the German fire to slacken. And then we dashed forward again. As we lay on the ground we could see the close of bullets passing over us.

"My company had advanced within about 300 yards of the front German trenches when two bullets struck me in the right arm, and as the bone was smashed I had to make my way back as best I could. Later one of my chums helped me to a ditch, and from there to a farm-house, where my wounds were dressed.

"Bandages had just been fixed on my arm when the Germans started shelling the farm-house, and all the wounded had to clear out immediately to a safer place. We helped one another along, and eventually arrived out of the range of the German guns."

The story of the battle is continued by another wounded man. "Our officers gallantly led the way," he said, "but our losses were very heavy. Before the end few of the officers were left. At one part of our line our men could go no further, but they dug [illegible] yield an inch. My regiment, cheering wildly, reached the German trenches, and we gave them the steel. We not only drove them from the trenches, but into a wood and right through it. They were simply smashed.

"Bullets seemed to come from all directions, but we went on, and recaptured, not only our own 4.7 guns, but some French heavy guns. By this time the Germans were rushing up reinforcements. We were in danger of being cut off, and so we retired to the trenches we had captured and held them all the rest of the day and during the night.

Appalling Slaughter.

"The slaughter was appalling. Many of our own wounded as well as wounded Germans lay in front of us, but we could do nothing for them. When darkness came the German searchlights lit up the ground strewn with dead and dying. Of course, it was impossible to obtain anything to eat and many of us went without food, or even water, for twenty-four hours. But nothing mattered so long as we held the Germans back, and we were in the highest spirits.

"At length Saturday morning broke, and other troops—British, Indian, and French,came to our relief. It was just towards the close that I was hit in the arm. We learned that the German advance had been completely stopped, and that we had saved the situation. There was not a happier lot of men in the world, and all we want now is to have another go at them."

"The enemy were only about 300 yards away when we got the order to charge," stated another Canadian, who took part in the battle. "We were at once mown down like a lot of sheep by the German artillery. Some 2,500 of use had to attack the wood where there were, I suppose, some 7,000 Germans, and the place was full of Maxim guns, though before our attack some shells had been thrown into the wood, but not many. We drove them from the trenches in front of the wood and went right through, about 800 yards, to the other side. There we got surrounded and had to retire to the trenches which he had taken, and here we dug ourselves in, remaining till next morning, the enemy shelling us all the time with shrapnel.

"It was certainly a terrible time, the most awful time I have ever known. They seemed to have enfiladed us completely at the beginning, but we got them on the run. We had the Prussian Guards in front of us, and they ran like cowards. The Germans didn't mind where they fired and were continuously shelling the dressing stations with the Red Cross flag over them."

Referring to the asphyxiating shells, another soldier said they found their eyes commencing to water from what they at first thought was ordinary shell smoke. The pain grew worse and became almost unbearable. It was so if they were losing their eyesight altogether. It was through this gas that the gallant men from Canada rushed to recapture four of the 4.7-in. guns which had been previously taken by the Germans. Another man, to show the nature of the fighting, referred to the German dead being piled 6 feet deep in front of some of the British trenches.

Cold Storage Filled With New-Laid Eggs

Canadian Grocer Says Egg Supply in the United States is Exceptionally Large

MARKET REFERENCES

All the produce and provision markets are firm and high with the exception of the egg market. There is an enormous consumption of eggs, but it does not seem to be so large as the inordinately large supply. The United States warehouses on May 1st had over half a million cases on hand more than they had at this time last year. In Ontario the storing of new-laid eggs has been going on for two or three weeks and last year it did not begin until about the present date. The fact is there has been such a superabundance of eggs that no matter what inroads have been made by consumption there has been a plethora. In the States they have so many eggs that they don't know where to put them. Most storage facilities have been taken up for beef, meat and so forth, and there is hardly any room for eggs. In consequence, the merchants over there are doing their best to export and this is naturally a bear in Canada. Eggs are therefore a trifle lower this week and to the trade are worth 23 to 28c per dozen.

It might be said that this storing which has been going on by the egg man is a fairly bold move, in view of the fact that the months of heaviest production are this (May) and the next. If production is any heavier than it is at present, and the market tendency continues downward, there will be a glut of eggs on the market. For that reason egg men have a nerve if they store eggs at present prices.

Cheese continues to be very strong on the market. Not only is the old cheese higher still, almost out of sight, but the new make has advanced in price this last week. New large is now selling at 19c and new twins 19½c. For cheese at this time of the year, with the new make coming along, these are exceptional prices. But the export demand for Canadian cheese continues unabated, and we see by advices from England that over there they haven't got as much cheese by a long way as they could take. Butter prices are unchanged but rather easier, because the make is on the increase, so the demand is fairly considerable.

Flour, in common with wheat, experienced a slight bear movement for two or three days, but has firmed up some and prices are now fairly strong. There is not, however, very much doing except that there is some demand for Manitoba spring wheat flour in Great Britain. Domestic business continues fairly easy and the only reason that prices keep up is that they are in accord in some sort with the wheat market. On the other hand they are still below the market, and while there is comparatively very little business being done in flour, we shall not expect to see lower prices for some time yet. Business in millfeeds is still more or less dead, the coming of the new grass having cast a damper on whatever business activity there was last week.

Bulk teas, following the lead of package teas, are advancing, particularly the lower grades, which are most difficult to get and highest in the primary markets.—Canadian Grocer.

THE UNITED STATES NOTE

sons of one of the nations at war, cannot lawfully or rightfully be put in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of an unarmed merchantman, and recognizes also, as all other nations do, the obligation to take the usual precaution of visit and search to ascertain whether a suspected merchantman is in fact of belligerent contraband of war under a neutral flag.

"The Government of the United States, therefore, desires to call the attention of the Imperial German Government with the utmost earnestness to the fact that the objection to their present method of attack against the trade of their enemies lies in the practical impossibility of employing submarines in the destruction of commerce without disregarding those rules of fairness, reason, justice and humanity which all modern opinion regards as imperative. It is practically impossible for the officers of a submarine to visit a merchantman at sea and examine her papers and cargo. It is practically impossible for them to make a prize of her, and if they cannot put a prize crew on board of her they cannot sink her without leaving her crew and all on board of her to the mercy of the sea in her small boats. These facts, it is understood, the Imperial German Government frankly admits. We are informed that in the instances in which we have spoken time enough for even that poor measure of safety was not given, and in at least two of the cases cited not so much as a warning was received. Manifestly submarines cannot be used against merchantmen, as the last few weeks have shown, without inevitable violation of many sacred principles of justice and humanity.

Rights of Neutrals.

"American citizens act within their indisputable rights in taking their ships and in travelling wherever their legitimate business calls them upon the high seas, and exercise those rights in what should be the well-justified confidence that their lives will not be endangered by acts done in clear violation of universally acknowledged international obligations, and certainly in the confidence that their own Government will sustain them in the exercise of their rights.

"There was recently published in the newspapers of the United States, I regret to inform the Imperial German Government, a formal warning, purporting to come from the Imperial German Embassy at Washington, addressed to the people of the United States, and stating in effect that any citizen of the United States who exercised his right to travel upon the seas would do so at his peril if his journey should take him within the zone of waters within which the Imperial German navy was using submarines against the commerce of Great Britain and France, notwithstanding the respectful but very earnest protest of his Government, the Government of the United States. I don't refer to this for the purpose of calling the attention of the Imperial German Government at this time to the surprising irregularity of a communication from the Imperial German Embassy at Washington addressed to the people of the United States through the newspapers, but only for the purpose of pointing out that no human act will be committed can possibly be accepted as an excuse or palliation for that act or as an abatement of the responsibility for its commission.

Expect a Disavowal.

"Long acquainted as this Government has been with the character of the Imperial German Government, and with the high principles of equity by which they have, in the past, been actuated and guided, the Government of the United States cannot believe that the commanders of the vessels which committed these acts of lawlessness did so except under a misapprehension of the orders issued by the Imperial German naval authorities. It takes it for granted that, at least within the practical possibilities of every case, the commanders, even of submarines, were expected to do nothing that would involve the lives of non-combatants or the safety of neutral ships, even at the cost of failing of their object, or capture, or destruction. It confidently expects, therefore, that the Imperial German Government will disavow the acts of which the Government of the United States complains, that they will make reparation, so far as reparation is possible, for injuries which are without measure, and that they will take immediately such steps as may be necessary to prevent the recurrence of anything so obviously subversive of the principles of warfare for which the Imperial German Government have in the past so wisely and so firmly contended.

"The Government and people of the United States look to the Imperial German Government for just, prompt and enlightened action in this vital matter with the greater confidence because the United States and Germany are bound together, not only by special ties of friendship, but also by the explicit stipulations of the treaty of 1828 between the United States and the Kingdom of Prussia.

Regret Not Enough.

"Expressions of regret and offers of reparation in case of the destruction of neutral ships sunk by mistake, while they may satisfy international obligations, if no loss of life results, cannot justify or excuse a practice the wanton and necessary object of which is to subject neutral nations and neutral persons to new and unprecedented risks.

"The Imperial German Government will not expect the Government of the United States to omit any word or any action necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding to all peoples the free exercise of their acknowledged rights on the high seas.

"The Government of the United States is happy to observe that the Imperial German Government has already taken some steps which it hopes may be construed as relieving the present critical situation with regard to the use of submarines against merchantmen, and that it has given assurances that no further attacks will be made upon vessels carrying passengers without warning and without safety for the lives of those on board, and that it is prepared to make reparation for attacks already committed contrary to the rules of international law. The Government of the United States will rely confidently upon the fulfilment of these assurances in the event that the reports should prove to be correct.

"Secretary of State."

Trent Valley League Gun Competition

Cobourg Carried Off the Pennant —Peterborough Finished Fourth

BELLEVILLE, May 14—The second of the season's meetings of the Trent Valley League was held Wednesday in this city at the traps on Coleman's flats. The competition excited much interest and the day was well suited for shooting, there being but little wind to contend with. Cobourg, the holder of the pennant, carried off the flag again by 199 points out of 200 against Belleville's 187 points. Stirling stood third and Peterborough fourth.

Mr. George M. Dunk of Toronto attended the shoot and broke 46 out of 50 birds.

Mr. Crowthers was high gun for the spoon on account of York's handicap. Mr. McCallum won the watch fob donated by the Dominion Cartridge Company, being second high gun.

Cobourg did the best shooting individually, three men getting forty birds or over. One Belleville man only, Mr. Harry Day, got into this class by breaking 40. The Peterborough and Stirling gunners did not reach the forty mark.

CLARK GRIFFITH SAYS ATHLETICS NEED BAKER

WASHINGTON, May 13. — Clark Griffith believes that Frank Baker is the key to the American league situation. If the Athletics' third baseman remains at Trappe, Md., the Senators have a chance to win the pennant, having no real competitor, but the Red Sox, says Griff. If Baker decides to return to Connie Mack's team it will immediately become a strong contender with the Griffmen and the Red Sox. The Old Fox does not rank the Tigers as contenders, believing they are sure to crack before long.

"The Athletics need Baker more than he needs them, that's a cinch," is the way the Old Fox puts it. "If he changes his mind and joins the team it will make a whole lot of difference in the general work of the ball club. If he remains away all year I don't see where they'll get off. They seem about done without him. Eddie Collins was a heavy loss, and the team could have got along without him, so long as Baker was on deck. But with Baker out of the line-up the team is impossible."

"Ah, Mr. Hood, you still spin."

Yes—but I've quite done," was the reply.
